4th Termers Defend Soviet Expansion.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—President Roosevelt's reputed surrender to Soviet Dictator Stalin at the Teheran conference bids fair to figure conspicuously in the Presidential election canvass, particularly if Mr. Roosevelt is the Democratic candidate, as it now seems certain he will be.

It was following the Teheran conference last November, at which Mr. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill tacitly agreed to give Stalin a free hand in eastern Europe that the American Communists, long subsidized by Moscow, went "all out" for the reëlection of the President for a 4th term. With a free hand assured him, Stalin immediately pushed forward his program for annexing the eastern half of Poland, the Baltic republics, and slices of Finland and Romania, and establishing soviet hegemony of the Balkans.

Hint at Stalin Threat.

Defenders of the President have given various explanations for his failure to interpose any effective opposition to the Stalin expansion program at the expense of the Poles and other small nations. One is that Stalin frightened Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill with hints that Russia might make a separate peace with Germany, thereby impelling them to let the soviet dictator name his price for continuing in the war.

Stalin returned to Moscow well satisfied with what he got at Teheran and the favorable reaction of the American Communists quickly followed. Earl Browder, general secretary of the American Communist party, proposed its dissolution as a political party, thus freeing its members to affiliate with any other party. With Browder already known as the original 4th term shouter, they approved the dissolution and promptly flocked into the Democratic party. They already had control of the American Labor party, which, with the balance of power it frequently exercises in New York, may swing the election to Mr. Roosevelt.

CIO Boosts 4th Term.

The Communist dominated CIO political action committee has become the most aggressive force in the nation fighting for a 4th term for the President. By assessing its labor unions, notwithstanding the prohibitions of the Smith-Connally and Hatch acts, it has raised a campaign fund of $700,000, several times that of the Democratic national committee, and is aiming at a 2 million dollar total.

Browder had based his proposal of Communist party dissolution upon the agreement reached at Teheran, which he regarded as an alliance of America, Britain, and Russia for war and peace. Since then he has traced Stalin's diplomatic and political successes to the Teheran understanding.

U. S. Switches to Tito.

Among them he has cited the action of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill in transferring their favor from Mihailovitch, leader of the forces of the Yugoslavian government in exile, to Tito, the Communist leader of the Partisans, who is Stalin's chief lieutenant in the Balkans. He also ascribed to the amity of Teheran the desertion of the Badoglio government in Italy by Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill and their acceptance of the "democratic coalition" government, including Communists, which Stalin preferred.

In the Polish question also, said Browder, progress is now being made in the direction of the solution favored by Stalin. He thought that the "visit to the soviet union of two prominent Polish-Americans, Prof. Oscar Lange and Father Orlemanski, signifies, among other things, the opening of a final opportunity for the [Polish] government in exile to purge itself of its anti-soviet personnel and policies, and merge into the new Polish government which will undoubtedly arise as Polish territory is liberated by the victorious advance of the Red army."

1,200 Planes Sent Russia in 2 Months

More Tanks Needed

Washington, D. C., June 17 [Special].—The military high command has ordered an "extremely heavy" increase in the production of tanks as a result of reports from the invasion beachhead that their expenditure in battle was running three times as high as the expected rate, it became known today. Well informed sources said American plants which halted tank production some months ago must reopen their production lines, altho new production schedules have not been set and the plants which will be reopened have not been singled out. Tank production was reduced after the North African campaign, when tank destroyers and mobile artillery cut Nazi armored units to pieces.

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—Almost 2 million tons of lend-lease military equipment and war production materials were shipped to Russia along with food for its army during the first four months of 1944, Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, announced today.

More than 1,200 planes and 400 tanks and tank-destroyers were sent in March and April. From Jan. 1 to May 1 the United States sent 40,000 trucks, 6,300 jeeps and 6,600 other military motor vehicles.

Factory to Battle Front.

Since October, 1941, a total of 10 million, 400 thousand tons of supplies has been shipped to the soviet union, including 10,000 planes. Half of the planes were flown from factory to battle front.

Other shipments since October, 1941, have included 5,600 tanks and tank destroyers, 210,000 military trucks, 40,000 jeeps, 30,000 other military motor vehicles, 414,000 tons of railroad rails, car wheels and axles and 249 locomotives.

Other Equipment.

The United States also has sent 7 million 600 thousand pairs of army boots, 900,000 miles of field telephone wire and 300,000 telephones, 2 million 800 thousand tons of food for soviet army rations, 1½ million tons of steel, 460,000 tons of aluminum, nickel, copper, brass or zinc, 215,000 tons of explosives and 500 million dollars' worth of machinery and equipment for the manufacturing of soviet planes, guns, shells and bombs.

150,000 Pray Tonight at Soldiers' Field

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A procession expected to include 150,000 persons will begin moving toward Soldiers' field from all parts of the city and suburbs this afternoon for the Holy Name Holy hour, at which prayers will be offered for the country's service personnel, both living and dead. Preliminary events will sart at 6 o'clock, with the holy hour beginning about an hour later. The service, over which Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch will preside and be celebrant, has developed into the most dramatic annual religious event in the United States and it represents an epitome of the Christian zeal of the nation's largest archdiocese.

Father Kelly to Speak.

The Rev. E. J. Kelly, director of the Chicago archdiocesan union of the Holy Name societies, will deliver the address of welcome at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by the recitation of the Angelus. Early comers will then hear a sacred concert by the Great Lakes Naval Training choir.

Shortly afterward, the Great Lakes band will march down the field playing the "Victory March," and halt halfway toward the altar, which towers to the height of an eight story building, where it will play "To Jesus' Heart All Burning."

Ceremonies Before Altar.

The militia will form an aisle of honor for the ecclesiastical procession, which will have nearly 1,000 participants.

Intricate military and ecclesiastical movements before the altar have been rehearsed.

A new ceremony this year will be a procession of the blessed sacrament.

TRIBUNE ARTIST ON LIBERTY SHIP DRAWS PICTURES OF YANKS

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD THE LIBERTY SHIP FRANK R. STOCKTON OFF THE NORMANDY BEACHHEAD, June 15 [Delayed].—The most popular guy on this ship is Gary Sheahan, Tribune artist, who is drawing portraits of soldiers and battle scenes for reproduction in THE TRIBUNE. Sheahan draws 10 or more portraits from dawn to dusk and is continually surrounded by a crowd of curious G. I.'s.

Soldiers from East Orange, N. J., and other parts of the country express a wish they were from the middle west so Sheahan would draw them. Being a big, soft hearted dope, Sheahan sometimes breaks down and draws pictures of them. But for the most part he tries to do a picture of boys whose families will see them in THE TRIBUNE.

Sheahan came close to losing 65 portraits in the ocean when he and this correspondent went on the beaches. Fortunately we mounted separate trucks to ride ashore from the landing craft, and he had the good judgment to pick a vehicle which didn't drop in a hole. The Tribune artist also painted a number of water colors which give a far better impression of the actual scene than any photograph.

Yanks Smash 25 Jap Tanks, Gain a Mile on Saipan Island

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQS., Pearl Harbor, June 17 (AP).—Battling determined Japanese resistance, United States marines and infantry have expanded the beachhead on southern Saipan to a maximum depth of 2 miles along a five and one-half mile front, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight.

In fighting thru Thursday night and Friday assault forces made gains averaging more than a mile and captured the village of Himashisu, more than half way across the island from the beachhead.

These developments were reported shortly after it was disclosed that American warships had bombarded Guam for the first time since that former United States outpost in the Marianas was captured by the Japanese in December, 1941.

Japs Counter-Attack.

Before dawn Friday, Jap defenders of Saipan, numbering an estimated two divisions [30,000 men], launched a determined counter-attack. The thrust, supported by tanks, was hurled back. Twenty-five Jap tanks were destroyed and the enemy cost in lives was heavy.

The bulletin said the area now controled by the American forces on the southwest side of Saipan extends from a point outside the key town of Garapan, five and one-half miles southward to Agingan. Agingan is a village nearly halfway across Saipan's southern end.

Before launching their counterattack, the Japs maintained steady mortar and artillery fire on American positions thruout the night.

American warships countered with shelling of enemy strong points.

Yanks Two Miles Inland.

After repelling the Jap counterthrusts, American troops launched the offensive which pushed forward for general advances of 1,500 yards.

The points of deepest penetration are two miles inland from Saipan's western shore, and the fighting line now skirts the western edge of Aslito airdrome, which has a 3,600 foot fighter strip.

In the Friday push, American echelons drove into the naval air base at Aslito airdrome, but had to be withdrawn under enemy fire. This is the second officially announced withdrawal under enemy pressure, and indicates the ferocity of the struggle.

Carrier bombers and fighters supported the Friday offensive with bombing and strafing attacks on Jap positions.

Sink Five Jap Ships.

In a dramatic single ship exploit, a World War I. destroyer, converted into an attack troop transport, caught five Jap coastal cargo ships Thursday and sank all of them. Twenty-nine survivors of the enemy ships were picked up and made prisoners. This makes a total of 201 survivors from Jap ships made prisoners.

Capture of the village of Himashisu north of Aslito airdrome put American forces nearest the east shore in their drive to sweep the Japs from Saipan's southern half. Himashisu is in the center of the island's narrowest area, two miles west of the steep shore of Magicienne bay.

American forces already had captured the sugar mill town of Charan-Kanoa and the small Charan-Kanoa air strip.

Kurites Pounded Again.

Adm. Nimitz' earlier bulletin also reported a series of air strikes against Japan's Kurile Islands, in the north, during which the Japanese sent up fighter interceptors which accomplished little against the American flyers.

Nimitz' bulletin told of the Kurile raids June 14 and 15. Army Liberators blasted Matsuwa, Paramushiro, and Shimushiri Wednesday. Five Jap interceptors took the air at Matsuwa and 14 at Paramushiro. One enemy fighter was shot down and a Japanese bomber was damaged.

The same day navy Venturas bombed Paramushiro and Shumushu, meeting 15 Japanese fighters.

Army Liberators again hit Shimushiri Thursday. Some of the American planes were damaged.

3,283 YANKS DIE IN FRANCE; 12,600 INJURED

Gen. Bradley Hails Invasion Army.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 17.—During the first 11 days of fighting in France the American army lost 3,283 men killed and 12,600 wounded. More than 8,500 Germans were taken prisoner.

Lt. Gen. Bradley.

These figures were given today by Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the American forces. He paid the highest tribute to the soldiers who stormed the shores on D-day, and said the beachhead has become "absolutely secure."

"Only by guts, valor, and extreme bravery on the part of the men and their leaders involved were we able to make the landing a success," he said. "And I can not say too much for the paratroopers who dropped in the rear and made the job easier for the beach troops. They did a marvelous job."

Praises Navy, Air Force.

The quiet spoken general also praised the navy and air force. The navy often sent warships within 500 yards of shore to fire point blank at German positions. And the air umbrella so disrupted German communication by blowing up bridges and strafing roads that many Nazi reserve divisions were kept away from the landing areas.

There has been considerable resentment among 1st division troops after reading in the army newspaper Stars and Stripes, as well as some British papers, that British troops captured Balleroy and Caumont. For the benefit of those who do not know the truth it was the "Fighting First" which occupied Balleroy and which moved on to capture Caumont after a brisk engagement, making this division against the beachhead spearhead.

Bradley Has Carbuncle.

While giving his first review of the campaign, Bradley was asked if he had been wounded. All the war correspondents noticed the tape across the end of his nose and one writer suggested that the general might have been wounded by a shell fragment.

With an embarrassed laugh, the general said that the "wound" was only a painful carbuncle. It had been coming on for some time in England, he said, but he had avoided the doctors for fear they would keep him out of the fight.

Neither Bradley nor any of his subordinates minimized the weight which the Germans can bring to bear against the allied second front despite the security of the beachheads. They estimated that from Denmark to southern France the Germans have between 60 and 62 divisions.

Nazis Use 16 Divisions.

Not all of these can be employed against the allied force, for the Germans must continue to defend other coasts of Europe and use troops to garrison interior areas.

At least 16 German divisions or parts of divisions are now in position against the Anglo-American front. More are being moved forward.

In discussing the campaign Brad-

NORMANDY LOSSES GREATER THAN THOSE OF TARAWA, SALERNO

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—The casualty cost to American forces in Normandy is above the price paid for other major operations, but different factors make impossible any exact comparison.

The officially announced casualties of 3,283 dead and 12,600 wounded compare most closely in percentage with the marines' landings at Tarawa in the Gilbert Islands last year. There the marines lost 958 dead, 2,084 wounded, and 27 missing.

At Salerno last September, six days of fighting cost 8,500 casualties of all categories. In six days just south of Rome, the American army lost 1,100 killed and 3,900 wounded.

Here's Digest of Invasion Facts

PROGRESS—American troops four miles from Atlantic coast in drive to cut Cherbourg peninsula and trap Nazis; British troops beat back German thrust and gain in attack in Caumont area; tanks battle at Tilly-sur-Seulles.

AERIAL—Bombers blast Pas de Calais and six airfields behind German lines; other raiders shoot up Nazis in battle zone.

WEATHER—Skies clearing.

Robots Attack with Roar Like Giant El Train

BY DONALD MACKENZIE.

[Correspondent of the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

A TOWN IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND, June 17.—Anti-aircraft guns and rocket batteries violently awakened this town this morning as new flotillas of Germany's robot bombs attacked.

The barrage was so intense outside my hotel that the bed shuddered and the window panes sang like violin strings. Then came the rumble and roar of the robots close over the houses, so close it seemed they would rip off the roofs.

When they are directly overhead the clatter is what you would feel if you were standing at Randolph and Wabash and a misdirected Twentieth Century limited came roaring down the el tracks at 80 miles an hour.

See Flashes Along Coast.

Observers opposite the Pas-de-Calais coast reported strange flashes at ground level which were presumed to mark the launching operations of the robot crews.

This was Derby day and everybody in England would have laid any odds that the Germans would try to spoil it. They did. The race was hardly over when the sirens' gloomy wail split the air and guns began to thunder.

It was a short alert and the phlegmatic British and rubber necking Yanks didn't pay the enemy even the small compliment of heading toward the shelters.

ATTACK FOR FOURTH DAY

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 18 [Sunday]—(AP).—More German robot planes hurtled into southern England during the night as the Nazis' flying bomb attack moved into its fourth consecutive day.

The pilotless jet propelled planes were disclosed yesterday to be a death-dealing overgrown rocket equipped with wings and a ton of explosives.

In the newest attacks they came over the coast low and singly every few minutes. Damage was caused in various localities and several persons were killed. One of the missiles wiped out four houses.

Intermittent explosions from these rocket plane bombs occurred during the night.

Controled by Compass.

These facts about the craft have emerged:

The "dynamite meteors" are fired off tracks on the Pas-de-Calais coast of France, which has been pounded by allied raiders in an effort to wipe out the bases. It was disclosed that they are not radio controled, but are steered by a compass in the nose which keeps the craft on a rough course.

With perhaps a 100 mile range, the rocket can be thrown miles off its course by air currents. The Germans have no control over it after it is fired.

Run by Simple Motor.

In flight it makes an odd noise and sparks shoot from its tail—a jet propulsion by an efficient motor so simple as to surprise war scientists.

Built like an airplane, it has small wings and is constructed largely of iron and is quite heavy. It has a head like a sewer pipe with a radiator which takes air into the combustion chamber as the craft thrusts forward. Here a simple spark device ignites a mixture of fuel, expanding pressure closes the radiator and forces an explosion out of the tail, giving the rocket a new propulsion.

The explosions cause a continuous whirring sound like a regular airplane engine. The fuselage is filled with explosives which are detonated when the plane strikes the earth.

Its speed is probably around 250 m. p. h. and while it can be fixed to fly slowly or curve, it flies mostly on a straight line.

2 U. S. DIVISIONS BATTER THRU GERMAN LINES

Capture 2 Towns; Cross River.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 17.—The American 9th infantry and 82d air borne divisions tonight were in sight of the Atlantic ocean as they smashed within four miles of cutting the Cherbourg peninsula in two and trapping the German garrison at the prize port.

One spearhead, lashing out southwest of St. Sauveur, at last reports, was only a mile from St. Lo-d'Ourville, on the west coast road—three miles inland—the last possible German escape route out of Cherbourg.

Guns Shell Escape Road.

Another column, hammering northwest of St. Sauveur, captured St. Jacques-de Nehou, seven miles from the coast. North of St. Sauveur, American infantrymen plunged across the Douve river less than 18 miles from Cherbourg.

American artillery was giving heavy support to the swift moving divisions. The big guns also had effectively cut the west coast road.

Moving Swiftly to Decision.

A late dispatch from John Thompson, Chicago Tribune correspondent in the field, said the peninsula campaign was moving swiftly to a decision, with the Germans apparently doing their utmost to move south from the St. Sauveur sector before the Americans close the trap.

"Thus, on the 12th day of the invasion, the severing of the Cherbourg peninsula was all but an accomplished fact," Thompson said. "It was a break which was begun yesterday by the 82d and exploited to the hilt today by the well seasoned 9th which boasts soldiers from every state of the union and the District of Columbia.

Yanks Push On.

"The combat teams of the 9th division reached their objectives this morning, sat down to consolidate and then got orders to push on. Their general could smell the sea and believed that German resistance was insufficient to check the impetus of his drive.

"His men could see German vehicles pulling out, headed south toward La Haye du Puits past the 82d's paratroopers. From this view and other observations we were aware that the Germans seemed to be trying to get all of his better elements out, leaving sacrifice troops behind. Even their ambulances were moving.

"At dawn patrols snatched four prisoners who turned out to be artillery men from three different batteries. At once the patrols started trying to find their 12 tractor-towed guns while our artillery also joined in the search. Meanwhile, the push continued and by early afternoon the leading elements were 5,000 yards from the coast road and still going.

"Judging from the appearance of the prisoners it was the push yesterday by the 82d thru St. Sauveur and the heavy fight with the 9th which took Urglandes and St. Colombe north of St. Sauveur that broke the back of German resistance altho the enemy still continued to fight.

Nazi Units Shot to Pieces.

"The prisoners reported that their companies and platoons had been shot to pieces. They did not know who their immediate commanders were, so high were the German casualties.

"One officer even said that his last order had been to pull back to St. Colombe and reorganize, altho at that time we had the town. Many said that they had been taken completely by surprise and another officer complained bitterly, "You crazy Americans. This isn't war. This is madness."

"At Orglandes the Germans had held out for two days in well dug positions, but the skill of our enveloping movement, plus the courage of the Americans, carried this town like others. Nearby, too, the 9th division captured a German field hospital intact with about 100 wounded men, including several American paratroopers and air force personnel wounded on D day in the air borne invasion. With them were several American doctors."

Bradley Directs Drive.

Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley was directing the drive. He predicted a last ditch German stand in Cherbourg, whose harbor is vital to the allies in order to speed movement of supplies and reinforcements.

At allied headquarters there was optimism and confidence, but there were few who were willing to predict that Cherbourg can be captured without heavy and costly fighting. There was no indication yet that the Germans intend to try a Dunkerque evacuation from the peninsula by small boats, altho the effort may be made later under cover of darkness.

The German air force today made its strongest daylight bid to prevent the continuous allied dive bombing and strafing attacks on roads choked with vehicles south of St. Sauveur. Three allied fighter groups reported being attacked by four Focks-Wulf 109s—an indication of the weakness of the enemy air force.

Battle in Montebourg.

It would appear that the Germans may plan to fight for Cherbourg first along a line from Bricquebec on the main western peninsula road to Valognes, the hub of the roads radiating from the main line to Cherbourg.

This was the situation on other Normandy battle fronts:

MONTEBOURG: On the fifth day of a furious battle, a report from the 21st army group headquarters of Gen. Montgomery said that the Germans had "not been wholly ousted from Montebourg."

QUINEVILLE: American troops attacking north of Quineville on the extreme east coast flank were reported to have made slight gains about 14 miles from Gherbourg.

TROAHN: [British sector]—Heavy fighting rages north of Troarn, with the British gaining slightly. Two German counter-attacks at Breville and Escoville were beaten off. These villages are two miles east of the Orne river and from three to four miles northwest of Troarn.

Nazis Dig in at Caen.

CAEN: German troops are dug in on a semi-circle about 2½ to 4 miles outside Caen. The British battleship Ramillies was hurling shells into the area. Two small settlements south of Caen were captured by British and Canadian forces.

CAUMONT: British troops were reported to have taken "limited" objectives in this area.

ST. LO: American troops on the British right flank still were reported six miles northeast of St. Lo. In a new push north of St. Lo, the Yanks reached the canal junction of the Vire and Taute rivers near St. Jean-de-Daye, six miles south of Isigny and eight miles north of St. Lo.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 17 (AP).—Allied war bulletin No. 24 issued tonight said:

"Allied forces have pushed deeper into Normandy and villages east and west of Tilly-sur-Suelles have been freed of the enemy.

"Advancing two miles south of Isigny our troops have reached the Vire-et Taute canal.

"In the Cherbourg peninsula St. Sauveur-Le Vicomte has been liberated.

"Air operations were sharply curtailed from dawn to midday when bad weather obscured much of the battle area. Nevertheless fighter-bombers and rocket firing fighters attacked railway yards, motor convoys, and bridges leading to the Cherbourg peninsula.

"A convoy of horse drawn vehicles was destroyed at La Traverserie and enemy machine gun nests at Folligny were strafed.

"No enemy fighters were encountered during these operations.

"Shortly after noon medium forces of heavy bombers with fighter escort attacked seven enemy air fields in southern Normandy. Three enemy aircraft were destroyed. Two of our bombers and one fighter are missing.

"Other fighters destroyed a railroad bridge across the Comme canal.

"Early this morning coastal aircraft attacked enemy shipping in the channel."

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

Following is the Saturday German high command bulletin on the fighting in France as recorded by the Associated Press in New York:

"In Normandy there were again defensive and offensive fights in our favor yesterday. East of the Orne our attack, despite strong enemy opposition, gained after heavy fighting in the largest part of the forest district south of Bavent.

"Our panzer formations achieved full defensive success against the enemy attacking with strong tank forces the whole day southwest of Tilly-sur-Seulles. Some enemy tanks which had broken into our positions were destroyed.

"The enemy yesterday with strong forces attacked also along both sides of the road from Bayeux to St. Lo. Fighting there is still in progress.

"Southwest of Carentan strong attacks were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

"It was only in the Ste. Mere Eglise sector that the enemy succeeded in advancing westward as far as St. Sauveur le Vicomte, where heavy fighting still is going on."

Cannon Predicts Defeat of Nazis by Christmas

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—Rep. Cannon [D., Mo.] told the house today it could expect the collapse of the German armies by September and the surrender of the Nazis by Christmas and "perhaps much sooner."

3,283 YANKS DIE ON BEACHHEAD; 12,600 WOUNDED

ley said there were two critical periods, but asserted that our strategical plan worked out almost as originally conceived despite the delay in crossing to the mainland beach where losses were heavier than expected. Losses on the peninsula beach, however, were far less than predicted.

Two things occurred which affected the original plan. The Germans moved two divisions into the peninsula where there had been only the Cherbourg garrison. This necessitated altering plans for landing two air borne divisions.

Fight Two Battles in One.

On the beach facing the force which I accompanied in the assault the Germans had another division supporting their coastal battalions. This meant that instead of meeting this division later in a counter-attack the beach assault teams would fight two battles in one.

The peninsula landing was made safely with only light casualties. This was attributed in part to the aid rendered by paratroopers at the rear and the apparent German belief that only a military idiot would attack an area covered with swamps, marshes, and narrow causeways.

But the first critical period came on the same day at the mainland beach. Using the same term as Gen. Montgomery, Bradley described the situation as very sticky.

The dead were numbered by the hundreds and the wounded likewise. But knowing that the gateway had to be opened by power and more power, the Americans pressed on under the immediate leadership of two colonels and a brigadier general who got the men off the beaches, thru the first lines of German defenses and on to the bluff. If the Germans had sufficient man power in position they could have whacked the Yanks back into the sea, it seemed to us who were there.

Nazi Attack Fails.

The second critical period occurred later when Bradley began closing the gap between the two beachheads. The Germans attacked, trying to retake Carentan, key to the sector. In the face of determined American paratroopers and later tanks, the Germans failed and the gap was successfully closed. If the Germans had driven to the sea, however, it would have been a maneuver having only a nuisance value. The beachheads were secure.

Now the Germans have a considerable force still facing the Americans on the Cherbourg peninsula. Their strength runs well into five figures, while Cherbourg itself has an all around defense, with heavy guns trained seaward, strong pillbox positions on the rear perimeter, and other guns capable of traversing in any direction.

How long this force would be able to hold out if the peninsula were severed by the Yank drive thru St. Sauveur, is problematical. They might continue to receive supplies by coastal boats, altho these would be in danger of attack by naval and air forces. Or they might hold out as long as their supplies last, merely to delay the American advance, then start a mass surrender. Their supply problem would become critical once the last escape corridor is closed.

INVASION CALLS FOR SPEED, SO G. I.S PROVIDE IT

Set Records in Swift Loading of Ships.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT AN ENGLISH PORT, June 17.—American soldiers, sleeping as little as two hours a night, shattered all records for loading ships at this port when notified they would be allowed 21 days to get war material aboard more than 100 vessels for the invasion.

Army red tape, known politely as "normal procedure," was thrown out the window as the mobile port battalions went out to beat the D-day deadline.

Sixty-five hundred tons of cargo were loaded aboard one Liberty ship in six days, less than half the usual time, as army loading crews raced to complete their tasks.

The result was that the Americans operated 24 to 48 hours ahead of schedule and the more experienced British.

Col. John C. Fritschler, a Superior, Wis., lawyer who is chief of operations in this port, said the G. I.'s kept plugging as long as they could stand on their feet. The same went for the officers, many of whom worked 48 to 72 hours on the docks.

Most of the officers in this port command are civilian soldiers. That is, they aren't professional military men. For that reason it didn't hurt them so deeply to dump army routine.

Gunners Drive Trucks.

When it was necessary to move a large number of trucks some miles to an embarkation point and no drivers were available, naval gun crews off the ships became drivers.

The army air transportation corps jumped into the fray when the British were unable to replace a broken ship's part in less than 10 days. The Americans sent an order to the United States, had the part flown over, and installed it in four days to get the ship in to an invasion convoy.

The paper work in connection with loading invasion ships is something unbelievable. It explains why only a few soldiers in any army ever get to fire a rifle. Ships are not loaded by just chucking the stuff aboard. That which is needed first must be loaded last, so it is the first off. The first troops to go ashore must have their equipment on top of the load and there are a million complications when supplies have to flow from all over England to reach a particular ship in a particular order and at a particular time.

Like a Jigsaw Puzzle.

It is a wonder it ever gets done at all. For instance, there is a blueprint for every ship, designating a place for every article, regardless of how small, and it all has to go together like the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle.

The crews of merchant ships, altho they get paid overtime, work long hours assisting in loading and unloading. Among the able seamen of the Frank Stockton, aboard which I went to the beachhead, is H. Q. Rogers of 627 E. 3d ave., Lewiston, Ill.

DODGE TOOL GRINDERS HALT STRIKE; RETURN TO B-29 ENGINE JOBS

Striking tool grinders at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, which manufacturers motors for the new B-29 Super Fortress, returned to work yesterday and union and company representatives went into conference to settle the status of a discharged apprentice, whose dismissal brought on the two day walkout of 117 workers.

A. W. Brady, company labor relations officer, announced the return to work with the comment, "It was impossible to reach any understanding while the men were out." Frank Blake, international representative of the United Automobile Workers, said, "The men have returned, as the company says, but the grievance is still to be negotiated."

Fellow workers of the apprentice, Arno Buti, 2262 Coulter st., said he was a skilled worker, who apparently thought he was entitled to journeymen's wages even tho he had not completed his apprentice time.

There was no company statement, but it was suggested Buti had slowed his working pace.

Production of B-29 motors was not hampered by the strike.

WOMAN ROBBED OF $20.

Miss Ruth Ayrea, manager of a cleaning shop at 4559 Sheridan rd., told police yesterday that a gunman robbed her of $20.

STEAL GOLF CLUBS FROM CAR.

V. J. Canavaugh, 1243 Chase av., reported to police yesterday that his car was broken into as it was parked on the lower level of Wacker dr. at Dearborn st. and his golf clubs stolen.

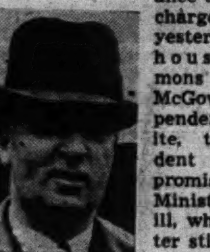
LONDON HUSHES STORY OF F. D. R. PRE-WAR PLEDGE

Press 'Buries' Charge Made in Commons.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



John McGovern.

LONDON, June 17.—The British public was almost entirely in ignorance today of the charge voiced yesterday in the house of commons by John McGovern, Independent Laborite, that President Roosevelt promised Prime Minister Churchill, while the latter still was first lord of the admiralty and before Britain entered the war, that America would come to her aid.

Most British papers ignored the story. They gave some space to the motion of Sir Irving Albery, Conservative, that regulation 18-B, a defense measure under which 1,829 persons have been detained without a trial and 226 still are held, be revised, but did not mention McGovern's charges.

Morrison Gets the Space.

It was in the debate on Albery's measure that McGovern gave publicity to the Roosevelt-Churchill story, long rumored but not publicized. Most of the newspaper space, however, was devoted to Home Secretary Herbert Morrison's speech giving his reasons for desiring to retain his arbitrary power.

The ultra conservative Daily Telegraph in next to the last paragraph of its column report on the debate mentioned McGovern as having been one of the speakers. Its lead editorial complimented Morrison without mentioning the charges.

The charges were that Churchill, long before he was prime minister, "was soliciting military aid in the event his country got into war." According to the story McGovern told, "promises were given by the President of the United States." Churchill, as McGovern reported the story, was "carrying on this campaign behind the back of his prime minister—Neville Chamberlain."

Beaverbrook Paper Silent.

Beaverbrook's Daily Express also reported the 18-B debate without enlightening its readers on the McGovern story. So did the Daily Mirror.

The Daily Times, which devoted three columns to the debate, gave one paragraph on an inside page to the story McGovern told. It did not quote McGovern explicity, however. The story McGovern related, according to the Times, was merely that Churchill "in a campaign behind the government's back" was endeavoring to find out the strength of American support and whether America could be depended upon to come into the war if and when this country [Great Britain] were engaged in the vital struggle." It added that McGovern said the story was "detailed to him by scores of people."

McGovern's Story in Full.

The text of that part of McGovern's speech referring to the alleged Roosevelt-Churchill pre-war negotiations, as reported in the official parliamentary report, follows:

"I want to find out what the honorable and gallant gentleman [Capt. A. H. M. Ramsay, member of parliament, who has been held in prison since 1941 under emergency regulation B-18] has done. There are so many stories going the rounds regarding the detention of this man. We are told by many people that he is not in prison because he is a Fascist. I find it difficult to believe the man could be in because he is a Fascist when the government coöperated with Gen. Darlan, Marshal Badoglio, and Gen. Franco.

U. S. Clerk's Case Recalled.

"I am told that this is the case that Tyler Kent [American embassy clerk who was sentenced to seven years in prison for disclosing embassy secrets] used the diplomatic bag or took copies of letters from the diplomatic bag that were being circulated between the United States and this country between the present prime minister and the President of the United States, and that the present prime minister was soliciting military aid in the event of us going to war and preparations were made and promises given by the President of the United States thru the diplomatic bag. I was told further that while the present prime minister was first lord of the admiralty in the government of the late Mr. Chamberlain, he still was carrying on this campaign behind the back of the then prime minister and engaging in an exchange of letters thru the diplomatic bag in order to find out the strength of American support and whether America could be depended upon to come into the war when this country was engaged in the vital struggle.

"Scores" Ask for Facts.

"This is said and I would like to add a reply to it. It is said that if the honorable and gallant member for Peebles & Southern [Ramsay] were released, it would be extremely difficult and dangerous if he were to be going around substantiating these things and stating that they were true and therefore he is being held because the prime minister does not want him to be at liberty.

"If that is the case, and it is the view of a large body of opinion in this country, no matter where they get their information—and I, myself, have been asked scores of times—I would like to know whether it is the personal animosity or security of any individual in a high place that is responsible for keeping him detained."

Robot Plane-Bomb Hurtles Thru Night Sky Over England

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Streaking over southern England, one of the Germans' new, pilotless, bomb carrying planes glows against the night sky in midst of light network formed by tracer bullets and searchlights and bursts of anti-aircraft fire. This picture evidently was taken from an English plane attempting to destroy the missile before it headed for earth.

PENS 'GREETINGS FROM MA' UPON YAWATA BOMB

When Sgt. Robert C. Jorgensen, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Jorgensen of 6629 S. Wolcott av., was about to take his post as an observer in one of the B-29s which raided Yawata, Japan, last Thursday, he remembered that it was his mother's birthday. Hastily, he wrote on one of the bombs: "Happy Greetings from Ma," and watched later as it plummeted down into the industrial city. Word of Sgt. Jorgensen's unique birthday greeting was contained yesterday in news dispatches which came shortly after his mother had received birthday greetings by cablegram from him.

Two other Chicagoans in the raiding armada were Lt. Herbert Hirschfeld, 22, navigator and bombardier, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hirschfeld of 8046 Saginaw av., and Sgt. Stanley Sienkiewicz, 31, a radar operator and brother of Henry Sienkiewicz of 2131 Caton st.

Twenty minutes before taking off for the flight over Japan, Lt. John Middleton, 22, former La Grange policeman and now a B-29 bombardier, enjoyed a nap in a tractor at the air field, news dispatches said. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Middleton of 231 S. 7th av., La Grange.

Sgt. P. K. Churm Missing; His Brother Is Wounded

Sgt. Paul K. Churm, bomber turret gunner, was reported missing over France May 11 in a message received yesterday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon W. Churm, 906 Sunnyside av. Sgt. Churm, 23, was graduated from Senn High school and was attending Illinois Institute of Technology when he entered the army two years ago. His brother, Lt. James Churm, a tank reconnaissance officer, is at home recovering from wounds received in Africa.

SEABEES' CHIEF ARRIVES IN CITY FROM NORMANDY

Vice. Adm. Moreell.

Vice Adm. Ben Moreell, chief of the Seabees, came to Chicago yesterday almost straight from the invasion beaches in Normandy, where he watched the specialists under his command do "a great job of work."

Except to praise the Seabees for their action in clearing away obstacles for the landing troops, both in France and in the South Pacific, Adm. Moreell said he could not comment on the war.

He is Seabee commander as chief of the bureau of yards and docks. This afternoon he will receive the honorary degree of doctor of engineering at commencement exercises of Illinois Institute of Technology. He will be given a dinner in Hotel Sherman tonight by Capt. E. S. Huntington, officer in charge of the yards and docks office in the Furniture Mart, and his staff.

WAR REPORTER LOOKS IN MOUTH OF A NAZI RIFLE

But Rangers Shoot the German First.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 17.—Lt. G. K. Hodenfield, Stars and Stripes reporter of Iowa City, Ia., with the American Rangers four days during the early stages of the Normandy fighting, climbed a 100 foot cliff by the aid of rope ladders and carried ammunition despite machine gun fire. But what he remembers clearest of all was something he saw thru his field glasses for only a few seconds.

Hodenfield and six Rangers were lying behind a hedgerow protected by a low earth embankment, occasional targets for German snipers whom they couldn't locate. Finally, thru the field glasses they determined that one Nazi was firing from a hole behind a tree, his body concealed by its roots. Hodenfield cautiously stood up, located the sniper's hiding place and told the six Rangers where to aim—then waited for the sniper to reappear.

"I finally saw him," Hodenfield said, "so I said: 'There's his head—wait a minute, he's coming up higher—get ready.' Then he was aiming—'Get ready,' I said.

Looks Down a Rifle.

"Then I suddenly realized I was looking directly down the barrel of that sniper's rifle, that he was aiming at me. He shot, but I had dropped and he was too late. They got him, tho. I saw him half rise, then fall back."

Hodenfield, who is 28, attended the University of Iowa and formerly was a correspondent for The Chicago Tribune sports desk.

At one time during the action he took a bangalore torpedo and helped blow up a German ammunition dump. During the adventure Hodenfield and a German emerged simultaneously from adjoining shell holes, but Hodenfield fired his revolver before the Nazi got his rifle into position and killed the German.

Target for Mortars.

Later, while he was behind the hedgerow, German mortar shells began working slowly down the length of the hedge, coming closer and closer to where the Americans huddled in a foxhole at one end. The German mortars ceased firing after complete coverage of the shrubbery. During the firing only one motar shell failed to explode, and that was one which landed 15 feet from the rangers and Hodenfield.

SPECIAL RAIDERS RIP NAZIS' ROBOT BOMBER BASES

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 17 (AP).—Powerful formations of allied bombers lashed at the Pas-de-Calais area tonight presumably in a relentless follow up of daylight blows at the French coastal bases from which the Germans are launching robot planes against England.

A German broadcast said R. A. F. raiders were over the Berlin area.

While selected squadrons of United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators hit the Calais region, 1,000 other American heavy bombers and fighters ranged over the Normandy fighting front in direct support of the invasion troops. Seven German air fields in France also were blasted.

Two Heavy Bombers Lost.

The Paris radio reported the town of Lisieux was in flames after a furious 10 minute raid. Lisieux, 40 miles east of Caen, is an important junction for roads to Caen and the coast.

The day's operations against the "robot plane coast" cost the allies two heavy bombers and one fighter. In addition five fighters and nine fighter-bombers were missing from the other United States aerial activities. At least 10 enemy planes were destroyed.

The United States 9th air force announced 540 sorties had been made over the Normandy battlefield by its fighters up to 6 p. m. and disclosed some of its bombers were carrying explosives loaded at airstrips on the beachhead.

The 9th's Marauders and Havocs attacked rail facilities, including one over which German reënforcements and supplies must move to the battle line. Another line about 50 miles west of Paris also was hit.

Shoot Up Nazis in Normandy.

The German air fields raided this morning stretch in a great arc in the Paris, Boulogne and southern Normandy areas, nearly halfway around the Normandy battle zone.

American Mustangs spattered German motor transport along the shell-pitted roads back of the Normandy front while R. A. F. fighters, fighter-bombers and rocket-firing planes shot up enemy positions, troop concentrations and the Mezidon railway yards.

Mustangs and Thunderbolts blasted an enemy air field on the Cherbourg peninsula and German motor convoys, tanks and machine gun nests. Other targets included a rail bridge south of St. Lo and yards, rail guns and tracks in the same vicinity.

Shoots Down 29th Plane.

In combating today's slight German aerial opposition, Lt. John Schmidt, fighter-bomber pilot from Arvada, Colo., reported he chased a Focke-Wulf all over the Cherbourg peninsula, thru the tree tops, almost down the street of a French village and finally shot the German down after dodging a church steeple.

During Friday night Wing Commander Johnny Johnson, R. A. F. ace, shot down a Focke-Wulf 190 over France. It was his 29th victim.

The R. A. F. coastal command set fire to two minesweepers Saturday morning, hit an armed trawler and shot up four E-boats off Holland.

Besides the Pas-de-Calais raid during the night, R. A. F. heavy bombers hit the Fischer Tropsch synthetic oil plant at Sterkrade, about 5 miles north of Duisburg, Germany, while Mosquitos dumped blockbuster on Berlin.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S BROTHER TELLS HERE OF MENTAL VICTORY

David Bowes-Lyon.

Success of the allied nations' psychological warfare against Germany is constantly being attested by the reactions of the Nazi press and radio, David Bowes-Lyon, head of the British political warfare mission in the United States, said in Chicago yesterday.

He explained that the German counter-propaganda showed how Goebbels feared the effect on German morale of the information on the war and related subjects that the allies were giving the German people thru radio and other means.

Bowes-Lyon, a brother of Queen Elizabeth of England, paused here on his way from New York to San Francisco. There he will confer with representatives of the office of war information and his own mission on the subject of psychological warfare against Japan.

Bread Ration in Rome Rises to 5.3 Ounces a Day

ROME, June 17 (AP).—The allied military government [AMG] announced today an increase in Rome's daily bread ration from 100 to 150 grams [3.5 ounces to 5.3 ounces], starting Wednesday.

R. A. F. FIRES NAZI MINESWEEPERS OFF HOLLAND

LONDON, June 17 (AP).—Two German minesweepers were left burning and an armed trawler was damaged today in an attack by cannon-firing Beaufighters of the R. A. F. coastal command off the Dutch coast. One plane is missing.

Another coastal command squadron attacked four E-boats off the same coast. The Berlin radio said waves of bombers attacked a German convoy off northern Norway yesterday sinking one ship and damaging another.

ALLIES' SUPERIOR FORCES SHOULD WIN, SAYS LANZA

Germans Outnumbered and Underarmed.

[This is the first of two articles reviewing the grand strategy of the allies.]

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and a recognized authority on military matters.]

The United States and Great Britain have just started an all-out effort and in time the situation for Germany should be helpless. The allies are committed to doing the same against Japan as soon as possible after the end of Germany. The final steps having been taken, this is a suitable time to review the strategy of the allies.

The plan of the allies is to crush Germany with overwhelming armies advancing from all directions. These armies are superior in numbers and vastly superior in weapons and equipment to anything the Germans can put in the field.

Father of Plan Not Identified.

Who first proposed this plan is not yet known. The first public presentation of it was by President Roosevelt in his radio talk Dec. 9, 1941. At that time he stated:

"Your government has decided on two broad policies.

"The first is to speed up all existing production by working on a seven day week basis in every war industry, increasing production of essential raw materials.

"The second policy, now being put into form, is to rush additions to the capacity of production by building more new plants, by adding to old plants, and by using the many smaller plants for war needs."

Explained by Churchill.

Another presentation was made Dec. 26, 1941, by Prime Minister Churchill in an address before our congress. This was his explanation:

"It is quite true that on our side our resources in man power and materials are far greater than theirs [the axis]. But only a portion of our resources are as yet mobilized and developed, and we both of us [the United States and Great Britain] have much to learn in the cruel art of war. We have, therefore, without doubt a time of tribulation before us. In the same time some ground will be lost which it will be hard and costly to regain. . . .

"It is [now] possible for orders to be given every day which in a year or 18 months hence will produce results in war power beyond anything which has been seen or foreseen in the dictator states.

"Reasonable to Hope."

"Provided that every effort is made, that nothing is kept back, that the whole man power, brain power, virility, valor, and civic virtue of the English speaking world, with all its galaxy of loyal, friendly, or associated communities and states; provided that it is lent unremittingly to the simple but supreme task, I think it would be reasonable to hope that the end of 1942 will see us quite definitely in a better position than we are now, and that the year 1943 will enable us to assume the initiative upon an ample scale."

It will be noted that while President Roosevelt referred only to production of material, Churchill had in mind man power also. And he had a definite idea, and very probably a plan, looking forward to an all-out attack in 1943.

The program for the production of the necessary material and man power has been almost completed. The all-out attack has started. It is a year behind time. Whether this will be a material factor in the result remains to be seen.

Germans Started Late.

Not until after the disaster of Stalingrad, and not until after the allies had shown their growing strength by the successful North African expedition, did the axis become alarmed.

Dispatches from Germany of Feb. 4, 1943, announced that Germany had already embarked upon a vast program to increase the man power of the axis armies, while at the same time increasing war production. This decision is more than a year behind the similar one of the United States.

The population of Germany is in round numbers 80,000,000. The satellite axis states number as many more. Together they equal approximately the population of Russia, but they are less than half the population of Russia, the United States and the British empire together.

Sees 2 to 1 Superiority.

Even tho a considerable number of allied forces are diverted to the war against Japan, it is not far from the truth to state that the axis is outnumbered in Europe two to one in man power. It is outnumbered in the air at a bigger ratio, and on the sea there is next to nothing left of the axis navies.

Last June 12 Gen. Eisenhower, commander in chief of the invasion forces based on the British Isles, sent a message to President Roosevelt, in which he said:

"The Nazis will be forced to fight thruout the perimeter of their stronghold, daily expending their dwindling resources until overwhelmed by the hopelessness of their position."

The substance of the allied strategy is summed up in that paragraph.

Tanks Wipe Out Nazis After 11 Day Siege of Buried Fort

BY ROGER GREENE.

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, June 17 (AP). — One of the strangest chapters of the war on the western front was being written off today — the story of the death this afternoon of 150 German troops who have been holding out since D-day deep underground in a concrete bastion.

The stronghold is sunk 50 feet in the center of a mine field a mile and a half from the beach and five miles behind the allied front line trenches.

The attack began at 3:15 p. m., when a field gun fired a warning shot at the German garrison which had been sporadically shelling and sniping allied troops moving up to the front for the last 11 days.

Lay Down Smoke Screen.

All that could be seen was a series of grass covered mounds rising perhaps 10 feet from a flat meadow where three cows grazed.

At 3:55 smoke shells laid a thick screen at the edge of the field to mask the approach of allied tanks. At 4 p. m. the barrage was intensified.

At 4:12 flame spurted from the Nazi gun slits. Machine guns crackled wildly and tracer bullets flashed.

Tanks Move to Attack.

At 5:15 British tanks lumbered across the field. Several mines exploded, but they waddled on like monster turtles toward the objectives. The tanks clambered atop the small pitted mounds.

At 5:22 shock troops advanced. The Germans opened fire and the British Tommies hit the ground. A tank slid down the mound and approached the front of the strongpoint.

A terrific sheet of flame enveloped it, but then the tank lurched off to a better vantage point, the German guns in the bastion were silenced, and quiet settled over the battlefield.

William's Castle Conquered.

Today I visited the ancient feudal castle of William the Conqueror and jeeped down the narrow ramp where William and his Norman barons rode forth on chargers to conquer England in 1066.

Today the massive walled turreted bastion still remains as a sentinel over the allied-occupied countryside, a powerful stronghold if the Germans had chosen to defend it.

But the enemy apparently fled. Important papers were left behind and thousands of booby traps and mines lay on the flag-stoned floor waiting to be hooked up when the castle fell to allied vanguards by 3 p. m. on D-day.

From the deep cellar vaults to the turret tops plenty of mines had been put in place, but not a single one had been set to go off.

Bayeux Has Its Luxuries.

A few days ago I visited Bayeux, which still is not far from the front lines. Except for German bombers overhead and the distant rumble of gunfire, it might be a town on the French Mediterranean coast untouched by battle.

It is one of the rarities of this campaign. Its shops are loaded with fresh beef, vegetables, wines, cosmetics, musical instruments, smart frocks, hats for women—and even silk stockings.

For some mysterious reason the Germans fled Bayeux without a fight. There's not a sign of battle.

ILLINOIS NURSE AT FRONT

BY HAROLD DENNY.

[Correspondent of New York Times and Chicago Tribune.]

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, June 15 [Delayed].—The first American field hospital to reach France in this war debarked today and prepared to care for casualties just behind the fighting front within three hours.

The hospital includes the first United States army nurses to be permanently stationed in France in this war. Among them are Lieutenants Faye K. Ryherd of Windsor, Ill.; Eunice M. Beardslee of Whittemore, Mich.; Gertrude M. Parliament of West Branch, Mich., and Betty J. Wing of Rogers City, Mich.

The girls traveled with the rest of the unit on a tank landing ship which they found luxurious after living many months in pup tents at the hospital they set up in England.

Girls Find Fun on LST.

Social life on an LST normally is limited, but the girls gave their vessel in its grim convoy the air of a peace time holiday cruise. Altho fully realizing they were going into the heart of the war, they joked with the officers and laughed at their own shapeless coveralls and unglamorous boots.

They accepted the captain's invitation to visit the bridge and cheerfully advised him how to run his ship. They were calm when, late at night, the convoy was attacked by torpedo planes.

The dispatch of these girls to the beaches is evidence of the solidity with which our forces are established in Normandy. Other nurses have flown to the beachheads and back in ambulance planes, but these are the first to come to stay.

Their field hospital, which is so mobile that it can move on a few minutes' notice, is better equipped than most civilian hospitals in the United States.

CHICAGOAN FLIES IN AID

BY W. W. HERCHER.

AN ADVANCED LANDING GROUND IN FRANCE, June 16 [Delayed]—(AP).—The largest number of freight carrying C-47s to land on French soil since the invasion came down at advanced bases today with tons of small arms, ammunition and medical supplies. Among the transport pilots was Lt. William Carls of 2506 N. Mozart st., Chicago.

The planes are the same work horses which dropped thousands of parachute troops in Normandy and towed gliders across the channel. Now they are busy toting supplies, including grenades, rockets and blood plasma.

F. D. R. ACCUSED OF GIVING FINNS OVER TO STALIN

Asked Why Russians Avoid Jap War.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rep. Harold Knutson.

Washington, D. C., June 17.—Banishment of Finland's four top Washington diplomats brought a swift rebuke to President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull in the house today from Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.]. Recalling the idealism of Mr. Roosevelt's Atlantic Charter, Knutson demanded to know why Finland should be called upon to commit national suicide by attempting to expel the Germans when Russia is not called upon to declare war on Japan, which he termed America's most deadly enemy.

"Thanks to President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull," Knutson told the house, "the republic of Finland will shortly be but a glorious memory. These two gentlemen have given the Russians a free hand to invade Finland and wage a war of extermination, which is as savage and barbaric as it is unjustifiable.

Travel Bloody Trail.

"The Finns are now being made to travel a blood trail blazed by countless thousands of Poles, Latvians, Lithuanians, and Estonians, as well as Russians. Those who are not killed will be deported to the wastes of Siberia, where they will either be exterminated or assimilated."

Knutson said it has not been long since the Roosevelt administration held Finland up as an example of honor. Finland was practically the only nation, he said, that did not repudiate her American war debt, as Finland met her obligations "promptly, proudly, and gladly."

"Mr. Roosevelt and his administration may hold Finland up to scorn," Knutson said, "but millions of Americans who have longer memories than Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull feel humiliated over the shabby treatment this administration has accorded the Finnish people.

"It is not pleasant for red blooded Americans to reflect upon some of the foreign policies of this nation. It is not so long ago that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill met and formulated the Atlantic Charter and its four freedoms.

Reds Given Free Hand.

"Evidently this was not to be a world-wide charter, as it placed no restrictions or obligations upon the united nations. Under it, Russia continued to have a free hand in the countries that are so unfortunate as to border on the Baltic sea, while England will be free to continue her exploitations in India and other oppressed countries.

"It is humiliating to Americans to know that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull have been most bitter in their denunciation of Finland for her refusal to commit national suicide by attempting to expel the Germans, who occupy the country by force."

Knutson said he is unable to understand why greater sacrifices should be expected from Finland than from Russia.

"Russia," he asserted, "has not declared war on Japan, which is by all odds our most deadly and dangerous enemy. Then why should we insist on Finland's declaring war on Germany?"

FRENCH PATRIOT FORCES TEAR UP NAZIS' RAIL LINES

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 17 (AP).—Full scale activity of French patriot forces operating inside France is giving complete support to the invasion by broad, planned sabotage of German rail and road communications, headquarters declared today in a special announcement.

Bridges have been destroyed, trains derailed, at least 70 locomotives sabotaged, and all road and rail traffic has been stopped in the Rhone valley, the bulletin said.

In direct fighting operations, French patriots have taken 300 German prisoners, attacked garrisons, fought thru streets and occupied some villages.

Disrupt Communications.

The special report said:

"Since June 6 the army of French forces of the interior has increased both in size and the scope of its activities. This army has undertaken a large plan of sabotage which includes in part the paralyzing of rail and road traffic and the interruption of telegraph and telephone communications.

"In the majority of these cases their objectives have been attained.

"The destruction of railways has been most effective. Bridges have been destroyed, derailments effected, and at least 70 locomotives sabotaged.

Rhone Traffic Stopped.

"It is reported that both road and rail traffic is completely stopped in the valley of the Rhone.

"Canals have not been spared. One has been damaged and one cut, and another has been put out of action. Four consecutive locks of another have been destroyed.

"Many acts of sabotage have been carried out against transformer stations.

"It is neither possible nor desirable to enumerate all the many effective acts of destruction which have been carried out.

Capture 300 Prisoners.

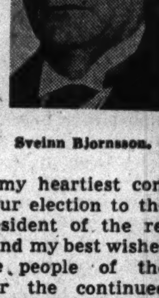
"However, these multiple and simultaneous cases of sabotage coordinated with the allied effort have delayed considerably the movement of German reserves to the combat zone.

"Direct action also has been taken against the enemy. Maquis [patriots] are reported to have taken 300 prisoners. German garrisons have been attacked. In some areas villages have been occupied. Street fighting has occurred elsewhere and enemy detachments have been destroyed.

"Guerrilla operations against the enemy are in full swing and in some areas the army of French forces of the interior is in full control.

"At the end of the first week of operations on the shores of France, the army of French forces of the interior has with its British and American comrades played its assigned role in the battle of liberation."

ICELAND RULER CONGRATULATED BY ROOSEVELT



Sveinn Bjornsson.

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP). — President Roosevelt sent a message today congratulating Sveinn Bjornsson upon his election as first president of Iceland, which became an independent republic yesterday. Secretary of State Hull similarly congratulated Vilhjalmur Thor, Icelandic minister of foreign affairs.

"Please accept my heartiest congratulations on your election to the high office of president of the republic of Iceland and my best wishes and those of the people of the United States for the continued prosperity of the Icelandic nation," the President's message said.

DE GAULLE PUTS AN 'IF' IN PLAN TO VISIT F. D. R.

Circumstances Rule, White House Told.

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, acting as "chief of the provisional government" of France, which the United States does not recognize, has advised President Roosevelt that he hopes to be able to come here either late this month or early in July.

His response thru diplomatic channels left the way open for a decision not to come, since it was based on the expressed provision that circumstances permit the trip.

If he does come, it is generally agreed among White House advisers that he will be accorded the honors and courtesies due a visiting dignitary. It is expected that he will be quartered at Blair house, the state department's official lodging for foreign government heads.

F. D. R. May Stand Pat.

Contemplated arrangements appear designed to give De Gaulle about the same treatment he would receive as a visiting head of government but not to do anything that would imply official recognition.

This purpose reflects the general impression here that President Roosevelt holds no intention of modifying his decision against recognition. What he is said to hope for from a meeting with De Gaulle is some agreement on military cooperation in a man to man talk.

De Gaulle, on the other hand, is believed here to want to come to Washington to seek recognition. United States officials interpret all his official moves, including his decision not to work with Gen. Eisenhower on final military arrangements for the invasion, as designed to that end.

Visit Faces a Hurdle.

Speculation in diplomatic quarters raises a question as to whether this evident conflict of intentions can be reconciled by compromise and agreement on both sides. If there is no hope for such progress, many authorities here say the visit may not be made.

President Roosevelt said on June 9 that he had agreed to receive De Gaulle if the general should visit Washington, and had designated two periods—June 22-23 or July 6-14—in which he would be available here.

General Back in Algiers.

LONDON, June 17 (AP).—Gen. De Gaulle has returned to Algiers, leaving in Normandy instructions to his representatives for full collaboration with the military and in London fears over the future of British-American-French relations.

Altho his visit to France slightly alleviated a tense situation, there is scant evidence his consultations with Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. Eisenhower produced a solution of acute differences.

The situation has taken on increased seriousness because German propaganda is using the lack of accord in its efforts to stir up Frenchmen against invading troops and to dissuade them from acts of cooperation. De Gaulle's action in establishing representatives in the liberated area and instructing them to help in administering civil affairs has counteracted this propaganda in some measure.

King Peter and Tito Set Up Communications: Reuters

LONDON, June 17 (AP). — King Peter of Yugoslavia and Marshal Josef [Tito] Broz, the Partisan leader, have established direct communications, Reuters [British news agency] said today. This was the outcome of recent negotiations in which Prime Minister Churchill played a prominent role, Reuters said.

MOST CHEESE TAKEN OFF RATION LIST FOR TWO WEEKS BY OPA

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—The office of price administration today announced that all rationed cheese except American cheddar cheese, cheddar products, and other cheese in group 1 on the ration chart will be point free for the two weeks beginning 12:01 a. m., Sunday, June 18. OPA explained the temporary action, taken with war food administration approval, was because in the coming fortnight soft cheese stocks will be at the highest level of the year. Cheddar and cheddar products and other group 1 cheese continue at 10 red points per pound on the ration chart values, OPA said.

200 TRIBUNE YANKS GET FIRST BONUS CHECKS

Pay for Kin Hailed as in Paper's Tradition.

More than 200 checks, ranging from $100 to $1,500, have been mailed to the families of married Tribune employes now on war duty. Others are being mailed daily under THE TRIBUNE's new plan to assist financially the families of those employes who have been called to military service.

Enthusiastic letters began arriving from employes and their families as soon as the plan was announced early this month. Treasury department and war labor board approval soon followed. Since the program, as government approved, is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1944, many of the first checks were sizable. Liberal semi-annual bonuses, the amounts dependent upon the employe's length of service, will be given unmarried Tribune fighters.

In Tribune Tradition.

All of the letters hailed the plan as in the Tribune tradition, following its program of employe benefits, including sickness and life insurance, benefit and home ownership savings, medical and dental care, Christmas bonuses and pensions.

The plan operates in this fashion: THE TRIBUNE will pay each wife 50 per cent of the difference between her husband's Tribune pay and his government pay and family allotment, and 10 per cent of that difference for each child. The total is not to exceed $300 monthly, nor be less than $20 for the same period.

A sample case might be that of a Tribune employe with a wife and two children who earned $3,000 from the paper during the last year before his induction. As a buck private or an apprentice seaman, his pay, plus government allotments, will total $1,536 annually or $1,464 less than his civilian income.

85 Per Cent of Pre-Service Pay.

This difference is employed as a measuring rod, and THE TRIBUNE pays 50 per cent of the $1,464 in behalf of his wife, and 10 per cent more for each of his two children, for a total of $1,024.80. Thus, his total income becomes $2,560.80, or 85.3 per cent of his pre-service income. A man with a family of five children would get 100 per cent of his Tribune pay. In the event of death of a Tribune husband, his family would receive benefits for at least six months after death.

Reactions to the plan were immediate and enthusiastic. One soldier wrote: "The nearly two years which have passed since I was commissioned by the navy have been a period of very considerable sacrifice on the part of my family, and, as the months went by, the future looked pretty bleak for them. You will understand the great sense of relief and deep appreciation we feel for the very generous compensation plan THE TRIBUNE has evolved."

Another said: "Yours is the kind of patriotic idealism for which a man gladly and proudly fights."

Called Unexpected Boon.

Even to long time employes, accustomed to Tribune benefits, the plan came as a welcome and unexpected boon. "In 10 years at THE TRIBUNE," wrote one employe, "I learned to expect the finest treatment by my superiors and to enjoy progressive and liberal employe benefits, but I never anticipated being some day paid while in military service."

Said another: "I want to thank the organization from the bottom of my heart. My check came this morning. I am well acquainted with the paper's generosity towards its employes and therefore your wonderful plan for financial assistance came as no surprise. Many of my fears have been put to rest and I shall always be grateful."

The program was heralded especially by service men whose wives are anticipating children. Said one: "The amount representing our share of this compensation makes possible our continuing payments uninterrupted on our building and loan, and we are especially relieved of financial anxiety in connection with the arrival of the stork at our home shortly."

There are at present 744 employes of The Tribune company, The Chicago Tribune Building corporation, W-G-N, Inc., and the Newspaper Readers Agency, Inc., in military or naval service.

Excerpts from other letters follow:

"My wife and I are indeed grateful to THE TRIBUNE for its wonderful plan. My wife is unable to work because we are to have a family. Things were sure looking black. Now with the help of THE TRIBUNE we are able to do a great deal more for ourselves. Thank you."

Knows Warriors Are Not Forgotten.

"May I take this opportunity to add, to the general feeling of gratitude to you, my personal note of thanks for your generosity in reimbursing the wives of your employes now serving in the war. By your fine gesture, all of us now in service are fortified with the assurance that we have not been forgotten."

"I want to thank you sincerely for the allotment check which I received recently as the wife of a former TRIBUNE employe now in war service. This is a most generous and thoughtful act on the part of your organization, and is very much appreciated."

"Your letter with the news that THE TRIBUNE will send a monthly check to my wife and children cheers me beyond words, and, together with the retroactive feature, will enable us to 'get by.' It is impossible for me to express adequately my appreciation for your generosity beyond a sincere, old fashioned 'thank you!' I assure you that next to contributing my small part to help win the war, my greatest desire is to return to the world's greatest city and the world's greatest newspaper."

Means Comfort and Peace.

"In 10 years at THE TRIBUNE I learned to expect the finest treatment by my superiors and to enjoy progressive and liberal employe benefits, but I never anticipated being some day paid while in military service. Your program will bring much comfort and peace of mind to hundreds of people. My wife and baby want to thank you for our part in it."

"Thanks to Col. McCormick for THE TRIBUNE's service men's bonus plan. I know that I only echo the sentiments of all Tribune men in service when I say that any small contribution I may make to our victory will be in the knowledge that THE TRIBUNE, by easing my worry about my family, has made me more capable of handling whatever assignment may come my way."

Wonderful for Children.

"This is just a small way of saying 'thank you.' I speak also for my husband as I have already received a letter from him telling of the plan. It is the most wonderful thing a person could ever hope for. Having three children, I know. I can spend all my time with them now and that means everything."

"It is with sincere gratitude and pride that I send you this missive. Your most generous gift was not entirely unexpected, for as an employe of your great organization I'm well aware of your splendid policy. You have alleviated much of the heartache and anxiety that confronts a soldier and his family."

"I had read of this plan in a recent edition of THE TRIBUNE and was very much impressed by your generosity . . . those who really need the help are those who recently entered the army as privates, at a considerable financial sacrifice. You are to be complimented for thinking of them."

Useful Treasure . . . Yours to Own

18th Century SILK ISPAHAN

A truly fabulous silk Oriental . . . once owned by an American ambassador to Turkey . . . a rug whose history dates to the 1700's, with a beginning in the palace of a Persian Shah . . . a mellow, silky, iridescent panel of indescribable charm.

5.6 x 4.3 ft.

This Persian Ispahan, woven early in the 18th century, is made completely from silk . . . contains over two and one-half million hand-tied knots in its entire surface. Its cypress tree-pattern, executed in deep blue and mellow citron, changes color in an amazing chameleon-like way, with each variance of light. A thoroughly exquisite rug of rarest charm . . . a veritable treasure of the ancient weaver's art. One of the many dramatic rugs we invite you to own from Pushman's where, for 61 years, knowledge and integrity have guided the purchase of fine Oriental Rugs.

REDS CLOSING IN ON VIIPURI WIN 2 OF ITS RAIL KEYS

LONDON, June 17 (AP).—The Russians drove to within 25 miles of Viipuri from two directions today, capturing Perkjarvi on the main railway of the Karelian isthmus and Kuolemajarvi on the coastal rail line, Moscow announced tonight. The port of Viipuri itself was understood to be in the process of evacuation.

The two important rail towns on the most direct routes to Finland's second largest city were enveloped as Gen. Leonid Govorov's troops occupied more than 120 populated places in fierce fighting, Moscow's broadcast war report disclosed.

Both are just under 25 miles from Viipuri, which Finnish dispatches reaching Stockholm said had been ordered emptied of civilians.

Capture 3d Railway City.

Another wave of the Red army, sweeping up the east side of the isthmus, thru a region of lakes and marshes, captured Raasuli on another railroad, Moscow said, indicating the Finnish front had been widened to more than 65 miles.

While the center of the Russian drive up the isthmus reached within 25 miles of Viipuri, advance patrols and reconnoissance units probed even closer.

Govorov's infantry forces, said to total at least six divisions, were being supported by planes, tanks, and rocket-firing cannon.

Both the Russians and the Finns were bringing up fresh troops as the battle area widened.

Moscow's bulletin again said there were no changes on other sectors of the front,

Moscow said enormous losses were being inflicted on the Finns and that in one day units of a single soviet formation "put out of action" up to 2,000 Finnish soldiers.

Planes swept over the battle area, Moscow added, supporting the ground forces, mauling Finnish attempts to move up reserves, and downing 15 Finnish planes.

FINNISH REPORTS.

Yesterday's Finnish war report admitted the Finns had abandoned Unsikirkko after severe fighting in which they previously claimed to have killed 5,000 Russians and knocked out 25 tanks. [Unsikirkko is 32 miles southwest of Viipuri.]

The war bulletin also announced withdrawals from Seivistoe and Kanneljaervi, in the same area, and said "the enemy's pressure continued very powerful."

The German war bulletin said: "There are no reports of special fighting events from the eastern [Russian] front."

13 U. S. AIRMEN SHOT DOWN IN YUGOSLAVIA SAFE WITH CHETNIKS

New York, June 17 (AP).—The information delegate of the Yugoslav government released today a dispatch from headquarters of Gen. Draja Mihailovich announcing that 13 Americans, who had been forced to abandon damaged planes, were safe with units of Mihailovich's Chetniks and were awaiting allied planes to return them to Italian bases.

The dispatch said the 13 wished to advise their families that they were safe and in good hands. They include John T. Fox, son of Mrs. Loretta Allen, 1805 Springfield rd., East Peoria, Ill.; Robert P. Moore, son of Mrs. A. J. Moore, North Fort Dodge, Ia., and William L. Keepers, South Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

TELLS HOW U. S. PREPARED B-29 RAID ON JAPAN

Tremendous Obstacles in Path of Flyers.

While additional details of the results of the Super Fortress raid on Japan were awaited yesterday, the following delayed dispatch from Chicago Tribune Correspondent Clay Gowran, who flew in one of the great bombers that smashed the Japanese steel works at Yawata, was received yesterday. It gives details of the tremendous obstacles that had to be overcome before the B-29 fleet was ready for this first raid on the mikado's homeland.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A UNITED STATES SUPER FORTRESS HDQ. BASE, Somewhere in India, June 6 [Delayed].—This story is being written during a correspondents' tour of the 20th bomber command bases. On a day soon to come big B-29 Super Fortresses of the 20th bomber command will smash directly toward Japan itself. But the highest authorities of the 20th warned today that the American people should not regard the raid as the first in a series of consistent air assaults against Japan.

The day of the extravagant claims for new warplanes with the United States military forces apparently is gone. The authorities of the 20th are taking pains not to build up the B-29 as a bomber which will end the Japanese war. It is stated that even with the Super Forts ready for action in air operations against the Japanese, we are now only at the stage reached by the 8th airforce in England in August of 1942.

This means that, while Japan certainly will feel the weight of the coming attacks by the Super Forts, it will be many months before America can hope for destruction of cities and industries of Japan such as has been achieved against Germany. It will be a long time, if ever, before correspondents are able to report 1,000 plane raids over the land of the rising sun.

Cite Huge Problems.

Leaders of the 20th tell repeatedly of the problems which must be solved before the Super Forts are able to strike at Japan on more than sporadic raids.

First, there is the plane itself. Less than 16 months ago the first B-29 built crashed on its maiden flight, killing its entire crew. One year ago only one Super Fort existed, and only half a dozen people knew how to fly it.

Flight crews found that flying the Super Forts in the United States was much different from flying them here in China. In India the tremendous heat and vicious duststorms caused mechanical problems unheard of back home.

Flying the Himalayas brought other problems. Altho the Super Forts have been here more than two months now, many of these problems still hamper operation.

Bases Are Difficult.

The question of proper bases for the big planes brought its own difficulties. Runways over 8,000 feet long were needed, and they had to be far stronger than anything previously used to bear the tremendous weight of the Super Forts.

The weight of these planes when fully loaded is far above that of any other bomber. B-29 pilots say the most dangerous part of their mission will not be the run over the target or interception by Jap fighters. It will be the takeoff run down their own field, with the engines straining to haul thousands of gallons of gasoline and tons of bombs into the air.

Probably the greatest individual problem is that of logistics. It will be no secret when this story is released that the Super Forts made their assault on Japan from bases on rolling farmlands in western China. The problem of building up supplies of gasoline, ammunition, spare parts, and other material for the air war is a huge one, and it is being met now.

For weeks Super Forts hastily converted into gasoline tankers have been ferrying gas over the Himalayas to China bases. An idea of what a tremendous job this is can be obtained from the fact that every Super Fort burns 2½ gallons of gas en route to and from China for every gallon it deposits in the Chinese reserve tanks.

But there is much on the credit side of the ledger, too. Altho high air officials say only sporadic raids against the Japanese mainland will be possible for the Super Forts for some time to come, these raids will serve a great purpose.

With the giant bombers periodically blasting the homeland, the Japanese high command will be forced to concentrate part of its already dwindling air force in eastern China and Japan, itself, for the protection of its vital war industries and population centers.

MOVIE CUTIE IN ADMIRALTIES, SO THE WAR'S OVER

Officers Go Fishing, Play Handball.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LOS NEGROS, The Admiralties, June 18 [Sunday].—They have sent a Hollywood cutie named Jean Darrell here, so the Admiralties campaign can be considered officially over. Jeannie and her traveling companion, Virginia Mavis, a Red Cross girl from Bartlesville, Okla., are the first American girls to set foot on the Admiralties since the war began. They sing, dance, go swimming and pose with the cavalrymen, and so far everybody is happy.

Of course, once in a while a Jap pops up to spoil the fun briefly. Like the other day when artillerymen discovered three Japs operating a radio station in a dugout less than 100 yards from the artillery headquarters.

Battle Signs Are Gone.

All signs of the deadly battles during the campaign's early days are gone, with the exception of the coconut trees which still lack tops lost to shellfire and bombings.

Long, neat rows of tents and Nissen huts and corrguated iron buildings have replaced pillboxes and foxholes. The doctors who at first operated in a shell hole covered by a tarpaulin now have screened in buildings with concrete floors.

There are movies everywhere. Some of the theaters have high fences of coconut fronds.

At last the food has improved. Last Sunday there was steak for dinner and creamed chicken for supper at one mess.

Neat White Cemetery.

In our cemetery the mass of packing box crosses has been replaced by neat white markers. A chapel stands at one end and around the cemetery, its edge washed by the sea, is a gleaming white fence. The cavalrymen continuously wander among the crosses where their buddies are buried. There is a grim satisfaction in knowing that these men gave their lives in eliminating the Jap garrison of more than 4,000.

Brig. Gen. William Chase has moved his headquarters. To get there you take a barge at 7:30 in the morning or 2:30 in the afternoon.

A large building walled with palm fronds houses the intelligence department. The intelligent officer? O, he's fishing. His assistant? He's somewhere playing handball. Yes, civilization has come back to the Admiralties.

Brig. Gen. K. B. Wolfe (left), commanding the 20th or Super Fortress bomber command, and his chief of staff, Col. Charles A. Horn, at base somewhere in India. They directed the raid on Japan.

NEGRO DOOMED FOR RAPE IS SAVED BY IKE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 17. — Gen. Eisenhower has set aside a death sentence passed by a court martial of one colored and seven white officers on a Negro corporal accused of rape. Eisenhower held that the evidence in the case, which has been criticized by British Liberal and Leftist weeklies, was insufficient to justify the death penalty, but he did not reverse the court's verdict.

The corporal, Leroy Henry, was charged with raping an English housewife near Bath. He testified he had had intercourse with his accuser two or three times before for a consideration. The woman made her first accusation against Henry when her husband awakened and found her near where she said she had been forced over a wall.

Gen. Eisenhower said he was sure a review of the evidence would result in amelioration of the sentence.

TURKISH CABINET SHIFT VIEWED AS BOON TO ALLIES

See End of Constant Hedging by Ankara.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 17.—Numan Menemencioglu's resignation as foreign minister was taken by foreign observers here today to presage a change in Turkish foreign policy toward a greater friendliness to the allies.

Menemencioglu was not considered pro-Nazi but always was friendly to the Germans and was considered by the allies to be unduly impressed by the myth of German might and by the power of Ambassador Franz von Papen's personality.

Anglo-Turkish relations recently have been in a state intolerable between friends in war time, and tho all Turks resented British efforts to bully them, many agreed that some of Turkey's actions were incomprehensible in view of the repeated proclamations of fidelity to the British alliance. Tho it is early to say, Menemencioglu's resignation seemed to indicate that he accepted responsibility for those actions and that somebody else would be given the task of conducting policy along different lines. Premier Suku Saracoglu took over his post.

Turkish Hedging Frequent.

Recently, while proclaiming fidelity to the alliance with Britain, Turkey hedged on everything she was asked to do, and even when she agreed to halt chrome shipments to Germany it was reported that this was due to the Turkish president's intervention overriding Menemencioglu's opposition.

The most recent point causing friction between the British and the Turks was the passage of German vessels from the Black sea to the Aegean. Even by the letter of the Montreux convention Turkey's position was weak, but there is no doubt that their passage was contrary to the spirit of that agreement. Saracoglu, after taking over as foreign minister, announced that no armed vessel would be permitted to pass the Dardanelles.

Serious Move to Be Friend.

Whether the critical speeches by Foreign Minister Eden in the British house of commons was the immediate cause of the Turks' decision cannot be said, but it is evident that the two allies could not continue bickering at this stage of the war. Turkey rendered invaluable service to Britain in the most critical stage of the war and it would be ridiculous to spoil the good relations over small points.

That does not mean that Turkey intends to bow to the allies and do whatever they say. But it is a reasonable assumption, and one generally made here, that the change of foreign ministers means Turkey is making a serious effort to clear up the misunderstanding with the British without surrendering her right to do what she believes proper.

INQUIRY BARES NEW DEAL PLOT TO RULE PRESS

Suppression of Criticism Called First Objective.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—A New Deal pattern for intimidation of the American press, leading to eventual control thru a permanent government propaganda setup, has been brought to light in hearings just concluded by the special house committee investigating the federal communications commission.

Patching together bits of testimony wrung from numerous government witnesses over a period of weeks, committee members said there has become evident a well planned program for bureaucratic domination of radio, the press, and freedom of speech.

The evidence indicated suppression of newspaper criticism of the government is the first objective of the planners. An attempt to accomplish this would be made by the publication of "surveys" presenting a comparison of axis radio broadcasts with selected excerpts from a few prominent newspapers which have aroused the wrath of President Roosevelt by opposition to New Deal policies.

Digest of Broadcasts.

As a basis for making such a comparison, the federal broadcast intelligence service of the FCC, the testimony revealed, has prepared a digest of enemy broadcasts, divided in 14 "themes," illustrative of the Nazi and Japanese propaganda line.

Members noted this chart includes practically all possible criticism of the United States and its allies, so that hardly an American newspaper worthy of the name would be exempt from a charge of having followed, in some manner, at some time, the enemy propaganda line.

A newspaper could be branded as "pro-Nazi," on a basis of comparison with these 14 "themes," if it had ever intimated that "political and economic injustice" existed in the United States or Great Britain or criticized the foreign policies of Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Churchill.

Similarly, an editorial or news story suggesting that President Roosevelt was under the influence of communists would be condemned as following the German propaganda line.

The Highest Might Qualify.

As a crowning absurdity, statements that Germany and Japan were "powerful" and might win the war could be assailed as fomenting enemy propaganda. The highest ranking officers of our army and navy might qualify as enemy propagandists of this basis, members noted.

They remarked that the publication of such "comparative surveys," however, might damage the prestige of the first newspapers selected as targets to such an extent that many other newspapers would be whipped into line.

Following is a summary of the 14 "themes" of enemy propaganda, drafted by the propaganda analysis section of the FCC, which would form a basis for denunciation of any newspaper found to have published criticisms similar to them in any respect:

"Political and economic injustice exists in the United States and Great Britain, and internal corruption, war profiteering, communists and spiritual decay. The foreign policies of the United States and Great Britain are morally unjustifiable. Either President Roosevelt or Prime Minister Churchill or both is a warmonger, unscrupulous, the pawn of communists.

Variations in Many Papers.

"Germany and Japan are powerful and possess the manpower, armaments, materials and morale essential to victory. The United States and Great Britain are weak. The united nations are disunited, and distrust, deceive, envy and suspect each other. The United States and the world are menaced by communists and plutocrats."

Variations of some of these "themes" can be found in many newspapers, committee members noted, and one remarked ironically:

"An editor might fear to render a tribute to a dish of pigs knuckles and sauerkraut lest he be labeled pro-Nazi because a German broadcaster had expressed a liking for similar fare."

It was reported that last Monday's 5 to 4 supreme court decision in the Hartzel espionage case, affirming the right of an American citizen both in war and peace to criticize the government and the President in the strongest terms, even to "immoderate and vicious invective," if he so desires, may have caused a temporary halt to plans for publishing the "surveys."

Narrow Margin Noted.

It was observed, however, that the ruling prevailed by the narrow margin of one vote and the present court has been known to reverse itself. Justice Frankfurter, one of the dissenters, was revealed during the committee hearings to have requested a daily copy of the FCC's digests of axis broadcasts.

Evidence concerning the 14 "themes" was brought out during the questioning of Dr. Robert D. Leigh, former president of Bennington college, Bennington, Vt., who is director of the FCC's foreign broadcast intelligence service. He was questioned by Committee Counsel Harry S. Barger about the activities of Dr. Harold D. Lasswell, now engaged in "research on war communications" at the library of congress.

Leigh said Lasswell was "working in an atmosphere of great secrecy" and was "in touch with a great many important people around town" in the preparation of surveys based upon axis broadcast material supplied him by the FCC. Leigh was asked how comparisons of axis propaganda would be made with American newspapers.

Quantity and Content.

"You identify cliches of axis propaganda, the people it attacks, then you compare it with what are called the Nazi lines and get your identification," he testified. "If you want to compare an American newspaper with the German propaganda, you would study the quantity and emphasis and content of the newspaper and make the comparison."

"Do you not feel," asked Barger, "that if such principles as the ones we have been discussing become firmly established, we may be laying the foundation for a real gestapo to operate against freedom of the press?"

"It seems rubbish," Leigh replied. "All we are doing is a war job having to do with axis propaganda to the United States."

Delivery to Newspapers.

In November, 1942, according to the testimony, the FCC contracted to furnish its axis broadcast digests to the office of war information for delivery by it, thru wire services, to newspapers and radio. This marked the formal entrance of the government into competition with existing wire services in the gathering and distribution of news.

Moreover, Dr. Leigh conceded, the material is edited by both his division and the OWI before it reaches the public which gets only that part of it which the two government agencies wish it to have.

He added, with emphasis, that he thought propaganda work and the monitoring of foreign broadcasts should be continued after the war "for the information of our government, especially the state department."

HALSEY GETS HIS WISH—HE LEADS FIGHTING FLEET

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—Adm. William F. Halsey Jr., today was given the job he wants—a fighting command in the war against the Japanese.

The 61 year old battler who drove the Japanese from the South Pacific and thereby worked himself out of an assignment as commander of the South Pacific forces, was designated officially as "commander of the 3d fleet."

That designation means that "Bull" Halsey will have a fleet of his own to lambaste the Japanese, whom he hates violently. Halsey commanded naval forces thru the long months of fighting that ended with the elimination of the Japanese in the Solomon Islands and complete naval control of the South Pacific area.

Will Stay in Pacific.

Since then his new assignment has been a subject for speculation in naval circles. He indicated strongly that he was getting his wishes when he formally relinquished his command of the South Pacific a few days ago and told officers and men there—he referred to them always as "shipmates"—"I'll see you on the road to Tokyo."

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific commander-in-chief, confirmed that today, announcing that because of the relative quiet in the South Pacific area, Halsey had been given command of the 3d fleet to "operate in the Pacific ocean."

He gave little information on the new command but said Halsey would operate in the same way that the 5th fleet operates under Adm. Raymond A. Spruance.

Reads During Battle.

Halsey on a recent visit to Washington told newsmen that he had just one fear—that the war might be brought to an end before he struck Japan. "Don't let that happen," he pleaded.

That he enjoys battle is demonstrated by a story his shipmates like to tell. It was in the midst of one of the early naval air strikes. A junior officer saw him reading a novel on the bridge. He asked Halsey how he could relax enough to read during battle.

"Why?" asked Halsey, "we planned the battle, didn't we? And it's going according to plan, isn't it?"

His early actions against the Japanese figuratively were carried out as a "scrap with his bare fists," for naval forces at that time had been reduced to a minimum.

Commanded the Hornet.

He saw plenty of battles and has some of the highest decorations. He commanded the force which took the aircraft carrier Hornet close to Japan's shores in 1942, so that army bombers under Maj. Gen. James Doolittle could take off to bomb Tokyo. He took his force deep into Japanese waters in January, 1942, for a strike at the Marshall and Gilbert Islands, the first big naval offensive action of the war. He carried out the first raid on Wake Island after Japanese conquered the little marine garrison there.

Born in Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 30, 1882, he is the son of Capt. William Frederick Halsey and likes to say that he has spent his whole life in the navy. He was appointed to the naval academy by President McKinley in 1900 and was graduated in 1904.

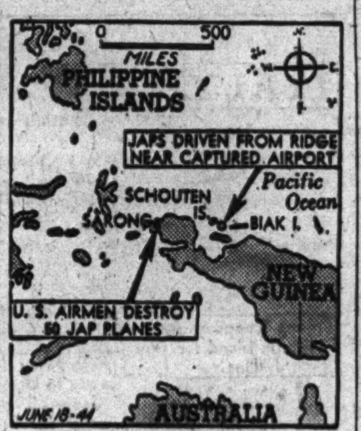
Pacific Air Victory



Where Japs lost planes.

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., NEW GUINEA, June 18 [Sunday]—(AP).—Fifty Japanese planes have been destroyed at Sorong on the northwestern tip of Dutch New Guinea, headquarters announced today.

Mitchell and Lightning attackers destroyed the Japanese planes on the ground and in the air Friday. Sorong is termed by the bulletin as the Japanese "last effective air base on New Guinea." It is 770 miles northwest of Hollandia, recently captured American airdrome, and about 700 miles from Davao on Mindanao Island in the Philippines.

The Japanese have been driven from a key ridge 800 yards north of American occupied Mokmer on Biak Island. This represented development of an American enveloping move against these strategic positions.

In aerial forays Thursday, 68 tons of bombs were dropped on Truk, naval base in the Caroline Islands, and 100 tons blasted airdromes at Rabaul, New Britain.

82 CROSS LAKE FROM MICHIGAN TO GIVE BLOOD

The Red Cross blood bank, 5 N. Wabash av., yesterday welcomed 82 citizens of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, Mich., who, unable to donate blood in their own cities because the Red Cross maintains no mobile unit there, journeyed across Lake Michigan on the cruise ship, City of Grand Rapids, to assist the Chicago blood bank.

The party will return at 9:45 a.m. today aboard the same ship. Its members are guests of the Cleveland and Buffalo Steamship company, operators of the City of Grand Rapids, which made its maiden voyage of the season yesterday.

The Michigan delegation attended the Tribune war show and last night viewed the W-G-N presentation, Chicago Theater of the Air.

Chrome Found in Reich, Radio at Vichy Reports

LONDON, June 17 (AP).—The Vichy radio quoted today a Berlin report that Germany was hopeful of becoming independent of all imports of chrome and wolfram. "Chrome has been found in Germany now and it is hoped that lost imports can be replaced," the broadcast said.

Second of a series

Curiosity is responsible for many a great invention. In 1840, Antoine Sax was experimenting with an Ophicleide, a now obsolete brass horn with a cup mouthpiece. What, he wondered, would happen if he played it with a clarinet mouthpiece? He tried it and got a wonderful blend of brass and reed tone never heard before. Result: the instrument that now bears his name—the Saxophone.

FRENCH WREST FIFTH OF ELBA FROM GERMANS

Early Nazi Resistance Reported Curbed.

WITH THE FRENCH FORCES STORMING ELBA, June 17 (AP).—French assault troops stormed ashore on the southern coast of this historic island five miles off Italy's west coast, and by nightfall had won control of one-fifth of the island's 85 square miles. Stiff fighting was still in progress against the German garrison.

[An official announcement in Algiers late last night said operations on Elba "continue to develop successfully." Early strong German resistance was said to have been overcome with the aid of American and British naval support, while five bombing attacks knocked out big gun emplacements on the Italian end of the island.]

The tiny isle of Pianosa, nine miles southwest of Elba, fell without a struggle at 4 p. m., the Germans having fled.

Lt. Comdr. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. of the United States navy was participating in the naval operations, in which American, British, and French vessels put inshore and supported the French units.

The landing and supplying of the main assault forces on Elba in the Golfo di Campo was greatly hampered by German coastal artillery, which continued to shell the flotillas all day. Allied naval guns and air forces which included French squadrons bombarded the enemy positions.

Gunfire Delays Ammunition.

The German guns delayed landing of ammunition for the troops ashore, but British Rear Adm. T. H. Troubridge, directing naval operations from the bridge of an infantry landing craft, was sending more small craft in across the sandbars and shoals seven hours after the first landing.

The French forces, commanded by Gen. Jean de Latire de Tassigny, included the Commando type battalion De Hoc, mostly refugees from metropolitan France. These went ashore at midnight on the island, famed as the scene of Napoleon's first exile. French colonials were landed at 4 a. m.

[The Berlin radio said the landing were made both at the south and north ends of the island, one of them just west of its major city of Porto Ferraio.]

Rocket barges blasted away at the beaches, clearing the way for the principal assault just before the troops landed.

The assault force was assembled at two ports in Corsica. While American and British navies, air forces, and Commandos are coöperating in the operation, the ground command is entirely French.

Fighter-bombers aided yesterday in preparations for the landings, destroying a fuel dump, scoring six hits on the island's radio station, and striking at boats and dock installations at Porto Ferraio, Marino di Campo, and Porto Longone.

Allies Gain on Mainland.

ROME, June 17 (AP).—British 8th army troops drove 12 miles north of Orvieto and occupied Monteleone, about 45 miles east of Grosseto, in their drive up Italy today. Farther east, armored elements pushing north from Todi reached a point 13 miles south of Perugia.

About 35 miles to the east of the Orvieto sector other 8th army troops surged thru Spoleto, Trevi, and Foligno on Highway 3. Montefalco was also reported to have fallen in this drive.

Fifth army troops advanced all along their sector.

AMG STILL HIDES ABDUCTED GIRL ON GRILL IN ROME

Promise of Interview Fizzles Out.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 17.—"Cloak and dagger" troops tonight still were questioning Bona Adelaida de Seta, 22 year old Roman society girl who was abducted from the villa of Baronessa Marincula, the former Josephine Pomeroy of Washington, D. C. The interrogation was in a hotel room, the location of which was a secret, and beyond some assurances that the girl was not being mistreated there was no word as to when her ordeal would be ended and she would be permitted to go free.

The "cloak and dagger" soldiers are members of the allied military government [AMG] secret police and other allied investigative units.

Seizure Branded Sinister.

If there is something droll about their methods, there is also plenty of the sinister, Romans declared, when a girl can be snatched away without a proper warrant and be held incommunicado in a star chamber session. Her mother, Princess Maria Pignatelli, and her stepfather, Prince Valerio Pignatelli, are reported to be under arrest in Naples on suspicion of continuing Fascist activities.

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Johnson, a Texan, commanding the Rome area, said he had been assured the girl was receiving proper treatment and was not being bothered except by protracted questioning.

Early today the general promised me that I would be allowed to see her in her place of captivity and satisfy myself that she was well taken care of and not subjected to the third degree. But when I called later on a scheduled appointment Johnson said it was impossible to see her.

Two Officers Call.

"I haven't seen her myself," the general said, "but I sent two lieutenant colonels over. They had to walk in casually as if they were trying to requisition the room where she was. They were satisfied that she is being treated O. K."

The general admitted that he did not know the functions and interlocking duties of the many hush-hush units working about Rome. But to stop indiscriminate seizures, such as in the De Seta case, he has directed that full particulars of the arrest of any civilian reach his desk within two hours.

A British lieutenant colonel in a security detail said that the girl would be released "as soon as possible" or be interned, or that charges would be filed.

CHINESE SEIZE KAMAING, MAIN JAP SUPPLY CITY

Foe Re-enforces Troops at Myitkyina.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, June 17 (AP).—The Chinese 22d army after a seven day siege has captured Kamaing, principal Japanese supply base in north Burma and the key enemy stronghold in the Mogaung valley, Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

South of Kamaing, which fell yesterday, the Chinese seized the town of Parentu, while in the main north Burma base of Myitkyina, Chinese and American troops continued to make gains in the north and west sectors, the bulletin said.

[A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent William Boni on the Salween front said a juncture with Lt. Gen. Stilwell's north Burma forces was made by Chinese guerrillas, who captured Lauhkaun, 60 miles northeast of Myitkyina. This was the first China-Burma link since the Japanese occupation of Burma. Both the Burma campaign and the Salween offensive are aimed at reopening an overland route to China.]

Reënforce Myitkyina.

The Japanese were reported to be reënforcing the area around Myitkyina, but their railway lines were unusable, and the enemy was obliged to bring fresh troops on foot, spokesman said.

Allied progress in this area has been slow, he added, but a juncture was expected in the near future of Chinese troops driving southward from Kamaing with Maj. Gen. W. D. A. Lentaigne's air borne Chindits near Mogaung.

Operations over the whole Burma-India front are likely to continue right thru the monsoon. Japanese strength in Burma now is twice what it was at the end of the last monsoon, and enemy reënforcements were observed in the India sectors south of Bishenpur, where a separate allied campaign was expected to attempt driving the enemy southward.

Forced Back at Kohima.

On the Imphal plain the situation was said to be satisfactory, with allied forces there steadily supplied by air. Many Japanese battalions in the area have been cut to a fifth of their normal strength in recent fighting.

The spokesman predicted that the Japanese would be cleared from the Kohima-Imphal road in the next few weeks.

Today's bulletin said the enemy was forced from positions on the Kohima front around Tsozipfemai, 16 miles southeast of Kohima, which previously had assured him use of part of the Jessami track.

Extent and goal of Nipponese drive at Changsha.

JAPS BY-PASS CHANGSHA AND DRIVE TO SOUTH

CHUNGKING, China, June 17 (AP).—With Changsha virtually isolated and all avenues of retreat closed to the defenders, the Hunan province fighting has shifted swiftly to the south, with the Japanese threatening Lukow and driving on the rail junction of Hengyang, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Apparently attempting to seize the junction of a railway from Kwangsi province with the north-south Canton-Hankow line, the Japanese by-passed Changsha and drove to a point just north of Chuchow, 25 miles to the south and eight miles above Lukow. Here, the Chinese bulletin said, they were halted, and bitter fighting was in progress.

Wear Civilian Clothes.

Fall of Hengyang could be even more serious to the Chinese than loss of Changsha. The city, 85 miles south of Changsha, could become a springboard for a Japanese advance either on Kweilin in northern Kwangsi or Kukong, Kwangsi's provisional capital. Its loss would disrupt rail communications with Kwangsi and Kawngtung.

The bulletin also said an enemy unit in civilian clothes had infiltrated the eastern bank of the Siang river opposite Siangtan, 23 miles south of Changsha, but suffered heavy casualties.

Fight in Suburbs.

In Changsha itself fighting is continuing in the outskirts. The bulletin told of a "sanguinary engagement" in progress in the suburbs of Liuyang, 30 miles due east of Changsha, while 50 miles to the northwest of the beseiged city, Chinese counter-attacking in the direction of Yiyang were five miles from Yuankiang on the south shore of Tungting lake. The bulletin admitted that yesterday the enemy again broke into the north and east gates of Ningsiang, 30 miles northwest of Changsha.

To the north, in Honan province, Chinese troops made further progress in a counter-attack against an enemy column retreating toward Shangsien, 45 miles east of the Shensi province city of Tungkwan, the bulletin said. The highway center of Junan, 125 miles southeast of Chenghsien, north-central enemy base in Honan, also was captured, the Chinese said.

3 CHICAGOLAND FLYERS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Lincoln, Neb., June 17 (AP).—Maj. Charles W. Delaney, 38, of Denver, Colo., and Warrant Officer Lawrence E. Jenkins, 28, son of Jess O. Jenkins, Rantoul, Ill., both of 2d air force headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., were among the six men killed yesterday when a bomber crashed near Council Bluffe, Ia. Other victims included 2d Lt. John P. Fortner, pilot, Princeton, Ind., and Sgt. Joseph J. Gush, engineer, Chicago.

Galena Flyer Killed.

Sacramento, Cal., June 17 (AP).—Names of three flyers killed when their army plane crashed near Bakersfield Friday, were disclosed tonight by Mather Field. They included 2d Lts. Norman L. Bruner, son of Mrs. Lottie M. Bruner, Galena, Ill., and Glen W. Edwards, son of Mrs. Ella M. Edwards, Ottumwa, Ia.

WOMAN SHOOTS SELF FATALLY DURING QUARREL

Mrs. Paula Proctor, 36, 420 Fullerton pkwy., died shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday in Columbus hospital from the effects of a bullet wound in the head, which police said was self-inflicted.

Her husband, Ralph, 54, an ex-executive in the army ordnance department at the First National bank, told police that he and his wife had been drinking and had engaged in a quarrel, and that she had seized a revolver and shot herself.

Mrs. Delia Barnes, switchboard operator at the apartment building in which the couple resided, said she had received a call for an ambulance, and then a second call for a doctor, when Proctor informed her his wife had shot herself. Proctor told police he had returned Friday from Washington, D. C.

The Proctors had been married for 12 years and had moved to Chicago from California several months ago.

Proctor, who was not held, submitted to a paraffin test at the detective bureau laboratory to determine whether he had fired a revolver recently. Results of the test will not be known until tomorrow, police said.

MARK NATIONAL DAY OF ICELAND AT PICNIC TODAY

The election of Sveinn Bjornsson as the first president of Iceland and the country's national holiday, both of which occurred yesterday, will be celebrated today by natives and friends of Iceland at their annual picnic in Harms' woods, north of Skokie. The picnic will begin at noon, with a speaking program scheduled for 2 p. m. Dr. Arni Helgsion, Icelandic consul, is in Chicago, and Paul Halldorson, president of a Chicago transformer company, will speak. Bjornsson, who was regent of Iceland for three years, was elected yesterday for a one year term by the althing, Iceland's parliament.

FREE U. S. WHILE WE FREE WORLD, BRICKER PLEADS

'Arrogant Regimentation' Must Go, He Says.

Columbus, O., June 17 (AP).—Gov. Bricker tonight asserted that as this nation frees the world from tyranny and cruel might, "we must also free America from arrogant regimentation and domination by burocratic government."

Bricker, a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, said in a broadcast speech that the issue before the people this year is "shall the United States continue as a republic?"

Then Bricker proposed a program which he said was necessary to "restore liberty at home."

"First, we must clean our governmental house," he said. "It is cluttered with debris accumulated during 11 years of the New Deal. There is only one way to clean house, and that is to get rid of needless burocracy.

Future Safeguards.

"Second, we must make sure that this perversion of our constitutional, republican form of government shall not again occur. One preventive method is to limit the President's term of office by constitutional amendment. I favor either two four-year terms or one six-year term. Such action would safeguard this nation from one man rule in the future.

"The third step is to restore state and local governments to their rightful place in our federal system. For 11 years the trend toward centralization of power in Washington has increased with reckless abandon. Unless that trend is curbed, state and local governments will sooner or later be reduced to puppet organizations—mere satellites revolving around an all powerful national planet."

Bricker said the United States did not need 3,500,000 civil employes on the civil payrolls, even in wartime.

Deluge of Orders.

"We do not need many of the countless boards, bureaus, and commissions that have been spawned under the New Deal," he said. "Nor do we require the daily deluge of orders, directives, and decrees that pours from these agencies. The year has come when we must remove the New Deal from power and put the reins of government back into the hands of the duly elected representatives of the people."

The governor said restoration of responsible cabinet government would do much to end this burocratic rule.

"The President," Bricker said, "cannot personally supervise every detail of the government. That is why the President's cabinet came into being. Thruout the years until the New Deal, the principal administrative functions of government were performed by these cabinet members as department heads. The lines of authority were clearly drawn and faithfully observed."

Lines Obliterated.

"Today," he continued, "these lines of authority either have been obscured or obliterated. Executive offices of the President now overshadow the departments headed by cabinet members. Restoration of responsible cabinet government means that cabinet members must be chosen on the basis of their qualifications for the job. They must be charged with full authority and be held personally responsible."

Bricker maintained that a closer relationship between the executive departments and the congress would do much to eliminate confusion and to build up confidence in the government.

Parts of Government.

"All records and information in the departments," he said, "should be readily available to the congress. These are parts of the government."

Bricker said America's constructive program "binds us to create in America an atmosphere of freedom and opportunity for the individual." To provide this, he said, is the primary task of the government. He suggested a policy of full production, to be substituted for what he termed the New Deal economy of scarcity; wholesale competition in every field; economy and an end to governmental waste; a balanced federal budget and reduction of public debt and a system of taxation and a scale of rates to encourage the flow of venture money into industry and trade.

Against a Soft Peace.

Bricker said the nation was united on the kind of peace that should follow the war.

"I have traveled this nation in recent months and know what the people are thinking," he said. "They want a just peace, but not a soft peace. They want America to be helpful in the world. But they do not favor a profligate foreign policy that would lower our standard of living. They wholeheartedly agree that America should take her place in a coöperative organization of sovereign nations, bent upon peace and supported by a will for peace among their peoples. But we want no dictatorial world state, no military alliances, no international police force."

Bricker Strong in Southern Revolt States, Managers Say

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Headquarters of Gov. Bricker of Ohio said yesterday that one-half or more of the national delegates from southern Democratic states, now the scene of a revolt against the New Deal, appear assured for Bricker.

Thirteen southern and border states have a total of 219 delegates in the Republican national convention, which opens one week from tomorrow in the Chicago Stadium. After an analysis, the Bricker field staff claimed about 110 of this group for the Ohioan. They are not instructed or pledged, but claimed.

The south has about one-fifth of the total 1,059 delegates in the convention. All 13 are Democratic states, except Kentucky, which last year broke tradition and elected a Republican governor, Simeon Willis.

Possible Balance of Power.

In some close races, it was pointed out, this group of states has held a balance of power in G. O. P. conventions.

In the analysis by the Bricker field staff, 25 of the 33 Texas delegates are claimed as headed toward Bricker. All of the six Mississippi delegates are claimed for Bricker, eight of the 12 delegates from Arkansas, eight of the 15 from Florida, 10 of Louisiana's 13, and eight and probably 12 of Virginia's 19 delegates. In Georgia the Bricker analysis claims six or eight out of 14; in North Carolina, seven out of 25, Oklahoma five out of 23, in Tennessee three to nine out of 19.

Kentucky's delegates are instructed for Gov. Willis. The Bricker forces count on eight or more of them after the first ballot. In Alabama two out of 14, and in South Carolina none out of four are claimed in the analysis.

Count on 49 in Revolt States.

Democratic conventions in Texas and Mississippi authorized their Presidential electors to vote for "any Democrat" if the party's national convention in Chicago fails to adopt planks satisfactory to the south. Anti-New Deal Democrats expect also to line up Louisiana and Arkansas. The Bricker analysis credits the Ohio governor with a delegate strength of 49 in these four states.

At Philadelphia in 1940, Gov. Dewey had 93 and Taft 83 of the delegates from this group of 13 states on the first ballot. On succeeding ballots Taft's high was 143; Dewey's, 98, and Willkie's, 94.

Roy D. Moore, chairman of the Bricker campaign committee, is to arrive with his staff this morning. Gov. and Mrs. Bricker are to arrive Thursday.

Also scheduled to arrive in Chicago tomorrow are New Yorkers who will open Dewey headquarters in the Stevens hotel. They are Edwin F. Jaeckle, state chairman, and J. Russel Sprague, national committeeman, and Herbert Brownell Jr., counsel to the New York state committee, who managed Dewey's campaign for governor in 1942.

Warren Releases 50

Fresno, Cal., June 17 (AP).—Gov. Earl Warren today released California's delegates to the Republican national convention from their primary election pledge to support him for the Presidential nomination. The governor, who will be the convention keynote speaker, told 38 of the 50 delegates here for an organization meeting: "I do not want any delegate to place my name on the ballot for any national position or to cast a ballot for me should any one else place my name there."

THREE MORE ASK MAJOR MIDWEST G. O. P. SPEAKER

Committeemen Join in Schroeder's Plea.

Two Republican national committeemen and one national committeewoman joined yesterday in the demand that a speaker from the middle west be added to the program for the national convention opening in Chicago Monday, June 26. They are Frank McKay, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Grace Reynolds, Cambridge City, Ind., and Ernest Morris, South Bend, Ind.

They took the stand in response to telegrams sent them asking their reaction by Werner W. Schroeder, Illinois national committeeman. Schroeder, who sent telegrams to committeemen and committeewomen in Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, and Minnesota, awaited replies to his other messages.

Hoosier Offers Two Names.

"I am for your program 100 per cent," said Morris. "The middle west certainly should have some voice from the midwest at the convention. I think Charles A. Halleck, Indiana Republican congressman, or Gov. Green of Illinois would make an excellent speaker."

While Gov. Green is on the program, he has been given the routine and traditional task of welcoming the delegates. He is the only speaker from the middle west on the program.

"I heartily approve of your suggestion," said Mrs. Reynolds. "I think it certainly would be appropriate for the convention to hear from that section of the nation that has been and is now so important to the success of the Republican party."

Asserts It's Midwest's Right.

McKay assured Schroeder of full support in efforts to gain some place on the convention program for the middle west. He said such a gesture would be the least the important Republican section could expect from Republican leaders.

The telegrams were sent after Schroeder had called upon National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler for a place for a middle western major speaker on the convention program Tuesday, June 27. He pointed out that major speeches have been allotted to Gov. Warren of California, who will be keynoter, Herbert Hoover of New York and California, and Rep. Clare Luce of Connecticut.

"Powerful strides for the preservation of the Republican party and thru it the two party system and the liberty of America have been made in the middle west," said Schroeder in his request to Spangler. "Without the votes in that part of the nation our party cannot win in November."

NEGROES TO ASK G. O. P. PLEDGE OF EQUAL RIGHTS

An equal rights plank in the Republican party platform will be sought by a delegation named yesterday by the National Negro council and the Chicago Citizens committee of 1,000, holding their joint 6th annual convention in Liberty Baptist church, 46th st. and Michigan av.

A delegation, including Edgar G. Brown; council director; the Rev. D. Z. Jackson, president of the Chicago Civic league; the Rev. A. E. Williams of the A. M. E. church; George C. Adams, chairman of the citizens' committee, and Dr. J. L. Horace, president of the Illinois Baptist convention, was instructed to present the plank before the convention's resolutions committee next week.

"We are obliged to distrust today as yesterday the conspiracy of silence at the White House," the resolution stated. "It has remained the same old Democratic party for the past 12 years. The so-called New Deal Democrats stood by and President Roosevelt uttered not a mumbling word as the anti-lynching bill and the anti-poll tax legislation were filibustered to death.

"It is sheer hypocrisy and must be repudiated by Negro voters in 1944."

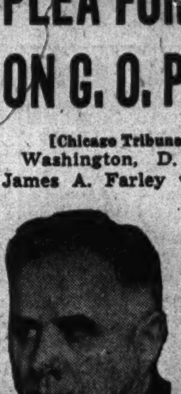
HOUSE APPLAUDS PLEA FOR FARLEY ON G. O. P. TICKET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Rep. Mason.

Washington, D. C., June 17.—James A. Farley was proposed in the house today as a Republican running mate for Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio in the Presidential election, as talk of a coalition ticket increased in the capital.

The proposal was made by a Republican, Rep. Mason [Ill.], speaking from the Democratic side of the chamber. It brought applause from Democrats and Republicans alike.

"Jim Farley is a political martyr." Rep. Mason told the house. "He is today one of the biggest men in the country, regardless of party. He has placed his country's welfare ahead of party interest or personal ambition. It takes a big man to do that.

Believes in Constitution.

"America was the land of opportunity for Jim's Irish forbears, and Jim hasn't forgotten. Big Jim is familiar with America's baseball parks, its sports, and its political machines—and loves them.

"Jim is still old fashioned enough to believe in the Constitution. This lovable Irishman has now set an example to other Jeffersonian Democrats by resigning as chairman of the New York state Democratic committee in order that he might be free to fight against a fourth term and, if possible, prevent the Hillman-Communistic alliance from taking over the Democratic party.

"If Bricker is selected to head the Republican party ticket, the best running mate he could select would be big Jim Farley, a true blue American.

A Clean Cut Division.

"A coalition ticket such as this would provide a clean cut division between conservatives and radicals. It would mean that internationalists and left wingers would remain New Dealers and all conservatives and nationalists would find a home in the Republican party."

Mason later asserted Farley could carry New York state, and would have tremendous appeal for southern Democrats who have revolted against the New Deal.

Mason's address in the house came two days after the political sensation caused by the suggestion of J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture and high ranking Democratic leader, for a "Bricker and Byrd" or "Byrd and Bricker" coalition ticket.

TAYLOR MARGIN CLIMBS TO 188 IN IDAHO VOTE

Boise, Idaho, June 17 (AP).—Glen H. Taylor tonight held a lead of 188 votes over Incumbent D. Worth Clark with 800 of Idaho's 845 precincts reporting in the primary contest for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

New unofficial totals gave Taylor 10,606, Clark 10,418. Twenty additional precincts from Bonner county increased Taylor's lead.

Sen. Clark has often been at odds with the administration. Taylor has pledged his support of President Roosevelt.

CIO UNIT SETS UP A NEW GROUP TO MEET LAW CURB

Contributions Sought from 5 Millions.

Washington, D. C., June 17 [Special].—To comply with the Smith-Connally act prohibiting labor union contributions in connection with elections to federal office and the requirements of the Hatch act and other legislation dealing with corrupt political practices, the national conference of the CIO political action committee today formed a new committee to carry on a nationwide campaign for voluntary, individual campaign contributions.

The new committee will be known as the national political action committee. It will consist of leaders of the CIO and, it was said, of progressive men and women outside labor's ranks.

Dollar Contributions Sought.

The committee will attempt to obtain contributions of a dollar a member from the 5 million members of the CIO and from other sympathizers. If the campaign obtains the 3 million dollar limit of contributions permitted single organizations under the Hatch act, its sponsors will be satisfied, it was said.

The new committee will not disturb the work of the political action committee but will assist that committee in financing its work, it was explained. Sidney Hillman, chairman of the political action committee, said the new committee will be a large one and will be named within two weeks.

Adoption of the new policy was made by unanimous vote of the 300 delegates to the conference. The resolution for change in policy was presented by David J. McDonald, secretary treasurer of the United Steel Workers' union.

Objectives Named.

Among its objectives the new committee will seek "to assure the renomination and reëlection of Franklin D. Roosevelt as President of the United States by welding the unity of the people around his candidacy" and "to assist in financing the CIO political action committee."

OUR POST-WAR AIR PROSPECTS.

The civil aeronautics board has announced the selection of overseas air routes totaling about 140,000 miles that it considers desirable for operation by American commercial planes after the war. The board intends to receive applications from American air lines for the use of these routes and to hold hearings for permits. President Roosevelt has seen the proposed routes and the state department, whose job it will be to negotiate for their use by Americans, has studied the maps.

This idea is destined to remain strictly a paper project until the United States does something about securing foreign airports, landing facilities, and permission to fly commercially over the foreign nations involved. It is significant that today American planes are flying every single mile of the proposed routes which are not held by the enemy. These planes are military and cargo craft carrying our soldiers, weapons, munitions, supplies, and food for the defense and use of the allied nations with whom we shall have to negotiate for commercial flying rights after the war. We have financed or built practically all of the airports on these routes.

Any one would expect an American government to secure some post-war rights in these lend-lease air fields, paid for with American money and built with American labor. We could expect, perhaps, to be allowed use of them after the war, but the New Dealers haven't done anything as sensible as that. They have insisted on giving away these installations outright, with no strings attached.

The British government follows a policy far different from ours. The treaty signed in January, 1942, between the United Kingdom and Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, provides that a regular British air service shall be allowed to operate over Ethiopia carrying passengers, mail, and freight; shall be permitted to use all available air facilities and build such facilities where necessary. It also provides that "his majesty the emperor will not permit foreign aircraft other than British to fly to, in, or over Ethiopia without the concurrence of the government of the United Kingdom."

Mr. Roosevelt has donated some of the finest airport installations in the world to the British and our other allies and has made no provision whatsoever for American use of them after the war. Meanwhile the British, thru the Ethiopian treaty and probably thru other treaties which have not been made public, have made sure that our commercial aviation will be excluded from wide areas of the world by British monopolies.

British air liners are all set to fly passengers, mail, and freight thruout the world as soon as the war ends. Their bases are provided by treaty or American cash and their rights are securely protected by deals their government has made. Mr. Roosevelt's CAB has drawn some fine lines on maps and intends to offer them as routes to American air transport companies providing we can bargain with the rest of the world to fly outside our continental limits, the bargaining to take place after the war.

This gives the Republicans an opportunity to declare in the platform to be adopted at the forthcoming convention that the airports we have built abroad must be open to American planes after the war on the most favorable terms. The contrast between Republican interest in the future of this country's air commerce and the indifference of the Democrats to the national welfare will make votes for the nationalist party.

FATUITY IN CANADA.

In the attempt to squeeze additional taxes from industry, the Canadian government is altering its rules regarding depreciation allowances. So far as paper manufacturers, of which THE TRIBUNE is one, are concerned, depreciation has been permitted in the past at the rate of 7½ per cent a year. Now the government has indicated that it will permit an allowance of only 4½ per cent.

This is, of course, a kind of hocus-pocus intended to create an arbitrary increase in the apparent profits of an enterprise. In fact the 7½ per cent allowance was itself too small. It assumed that machinery and other equipment would still be in use more than 13 years after it was installed. This resulted, on the one hand, in keeping in use a lot of machinery long after it had been outmoded by technological improvements and, on the other hand, in pressure upon the government to prevent new and more efficient mills from operating to the fullest extent. Canada's greatest industry was limited in the use it might make of science and invention. The pace for the industry was set by the mill with the largest amount of wornout or antiquated machinery still to be written off.

The projected 4½ per cent rate is based on an assumption that the life of papermaking machinery is not 13 years, but more than 22 years. A manufacturer who would now invest in new facilities would not be able to recover the cost of them for nearly a quarter of a century, a period in which great changes in producing methods are to be expected and in which newsprint may even cease to be used to the extent that it now is.

It would be hard to exaggerate the harm which such a policy can do to the industrial development of Canada. Even if all inventive progress were at an end, if there were no more discoveries to be made, and if patterns of life and human desires were frozen, there would still be no justification for the depreciation practices of the Canadian government now accentuated.

To the Canadian officials responsible for this badly considered action we commend the article on "The Wise Use of Taxation," in the London Statist of Feb. 12. Taking its text from a letter to the London Times in which a Mr. Dispeker had said, "Too little is realized what obstacle to industrial efficiency is constituted by the income tax regulations of this country," The Statist said in part:

"No man with any practical experience of business can regard the niggardly allowance for depreciation and obsolescence with anything but a mixture of scorn and horror. No citizen of any imagination, whether engaged in business or not, can regard the obstinate refusal of the state to permit a reasonable allowance to cover a fair-life amortization of buildings with any different emotion. What the tax gatherers consider the life of plant or the life of a building and what the work-a-day world knows them to be are two totally different conceptions. The strange mind of the treasury seems to regard, for example, an ordinary building as built to last forever. Actually, most buildings should be scrapped ruthlessly after 40 or 50 years at most, many of them before.

"A building amortized over 50 years would mean a 2 per cent allowance by the treasury with the consequent loss of current revenue, but it would also mean a strong stimulus to the building and ancillary trades, bringing in its train a growing series of indirect returns to the exchequer, not least from the income tax and indirect taxes of the workers. The gain to commercial efficiency and social amenity would be enormous. With plant and research the case is even stronger. Any temporary loss to a single fiscal period from increased allowances would be more than compensated for by the general increase in prosperity, ranging from the improved position of Britain's products in the export markets to the busier trades on which industry depends for its equipment."

In response to such sound arguments, the British government has lately liberalized its depreciation allowances. Canada is moving in the opposite direction. There is no future for the paper industry in Canada.

"HE HATH LOOSED THE FATEFUL LIGHTNING."

The news that our B-29 bombers had attacked Japan, leaving the great Yawata steel works a towering mass of flame and chaos, had been long and impatiently awaited by Americans. This was not a stunt raid, but the precursor of heavier and deadlier blows in the near future. The evil they have bred is being brought home at last to the Japanese.

We know our foes. The inhuman cruelties inflicted upon the heroes of Bataan and Corregidor by their captors, the barbarous murders of the flyers captured in the Tokyo raid, have given the Japanese war a character that no other war in our history has held for us. The Japanese, as bestial and crafty as the Apaches, have adopted the technology of the western civilization and made it the instrument of their cruelty. The combination makes them the most terrible scourge, within the still considerable limits of their power, that the world has ever seen.

We are the only nation with both the will and the ability to destroy that power. The Russians have shown themselves unwilling, and the British unable, to oppose Japan. The task becomes our principal mission in civilization. The blow at their greatest steel works sets the pattern of their defeat. We shall strike from their hands the modern weapons they have forged, and reduce them in the final struggle to the claw and fang of the savage race that they are.

They have placed themselves beyond the pale of humanity. No retribution that a just God can visit on them can be more than adequate for their crimes.

WILLIAM BOLDS AND THE PAROLE LAW.

A habeas corpus hearing before Federal Judge Barnes brought out the fact that William Bolds, committed to prison in 1928, has served nearly 16 years, under a sentence of one year to life, for a burglary which records show involved $1.65.

Judge Barnes held that he was unable to issue a writ that would free the convict, but suggested that Bolds renew his efforts for a parole, and criticized the parole board for not having released him sooner. The parole board's contention is that psychiatrists' examinations have shown Bolds to be insane.

Bolds was sentenced long before parole reform legislation was passed and made effective. The present provisions that judges fix maximum and minimum sentences within the limits of the indeterminate sentence act naturally could not be made retroactive, but it was just such cases as that of Bolds that caused the legislature to approve the parole reform bill.

One objection to the old parole system, which gave the parole board almost unlimited discretion within the wide limits of the indeterminate sentence provided by the Illinois criminal code, was that criminals with money or political influence had little difficulty in getting out of prison after they had served the minimum sentence, usually one year. An equally strong objection to the old system was that prisoners without money or political influence frequently were unable to obtain action from the parole board and served sentences far out of relation to the crimes they had committed.

There may very well be other facts in the Bolds case that were not brought out in federal court. It is not improbable that the $1.65 burglary was not the only crime of which he was accused. Burglars usually commit a series of crimes before they are caught and the practice has been to try them on whatever charge is the most easily proved and, on getting a sentence on that charge, to let the others drop.

However, if Bolds had been sentenced under the present parole statute, he would have received a minimum and a maximum sentence which long before now would have made action on his case by the parole board mandatory. Furthermore, if, as the board contends, he was insane, the authorities would have had to prove the charge and have him committed to the state security hospital, or would have had to release him at the expiration of the maximum term of his sentence.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. A silo usually means the farmer is raising which one of these?
   Sheep Hogs Cattle Horses
2. How many stars are to be seen in the Big Dipper? 5 7 8 9
3. Which one of these prominent Americans was superintendent of a Sunday school at the age of 16?
   Hull Bricker Roosevelt Willkie
4. Bronze is an alloy of copper with which one of these? Tin Zinc Aluminum Nickel
5. The anti-knock quality of gasoline is roughly proportional to its Specific Gravity Viscosity Octane Number Carbon Content
6. Which one of these terms is a generic word including the other three?
   Flea Parasite Tapeworm Tick

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

THE BATTLE OF MIDWAY

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE*, on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]*

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

You will remember that Dec. 8 found Hawaii in evil case. Such battleships as were not on the bottom had to be patched up, sent to the mainland, and drydocked before they would be suitable for service.

Only the Island of Oahu was garrisoned. If there were Japanese transports at sea, the other islands could be occupied without resistance, air runways constructed, and Oahu itself attacked in force. Fortunately, the Japanese plans lay in another direction. Time was furnished to transport garrisons to the islands and to collect a fleet of aircraft carriers, which, in the absence of a battleship fleet, had to be operated as the principal arm, supported by destroyers and cruisers to attack submarines and furnish anti-aircraft fire for the carriers.

News of the Japanese advance southward showed that modern battleships and aircraft carriers were not being employed there. In consequence, carrier reconnaissances were carried into the Marshall and Gilbert Islands which, in turn, showed that the main Japanese fleet was not concentrated in those waters.

On one of these raids, the successful defense of the Lexington from air attack, principally by the late Lt. O'Hare, may have given an unsound sense of security from attack which was to be rudely shattered in the coming months.

By early March, 1942, the Japanese had completed their conquest of Malaya and the Dutch islands and were in possession of the north coast of New Guinea.

The Australian regulars, returned from Africa, had left all of their ordnance behind. They were armed only with rifles. The Australian militia was drilling with wooden guns. It was planned to retreat to the southern half of the continent and the plan was changed only by the arrival of Gen. MacArthur, who held Port Moresby and forced a Japanese attacking party back over the Stanley mountain range.

In support of this defense, the carriers Lexington and Yorktown sent their bombers, with some of MacArthur's, across the island and destroyed Japanese transports and a few naval vessels in the ports of Salamaua and Lae.

Port Moresby continuing to defy overland attack, the Japanese prepared an expedition, probably to take Port Moresby from the sea and very likely to occupy New Caledonia.

To counter such a move, the carrier Yorktown on the fourth of May attacked the Japanese fleet in Tulagi harbor, sinking transports and cruisers, and here for the first time an airplane sank a Japanese destroyer by machine gunfire.

The next day the Yorktown was joined by the Lexington and its supporting ships.

On the morning of the 7th, bombers from these carriers sank the Japanese carrier Shoho and severely injured a cruiser. The next day there ensued a bomber battle between our fleet and a Japanese fleet containing two carriers and supporting ships. One enemy carrier was severely damaged, possibly destroyed, the Lexington was lost, and the Yorktown damaged but not incapacitated.

—o—

These were the battles of the Coral sea that stopped for the moment the Japanese aggressions against Australia and against our communications with Australia.

It would appear that Gen. MacArthur's reconnaissance planes, which had furnished our navy with information that had enabled it to surprise the Japanese squadrons in the Coral sea, also reported the withdrawal of Japanese forces from that area, for when the Japanese fleet approached Midway Island, not only the Enterprise and Hornet but also the Yorktown were in those waters.

On June 3, a reconnaissance plane from Midway Island discovered a fleet some hundreds of miles southwest.

The next morning, an enemy air force from another squadron somewhat northwest of Midway attacked the island, while army and navy and marine corps planes from Midway attacked the Japanese squadron, seriously injuring one carrier and striking others.

It is to be assumed that when the Japanese fleet was sighted on June 3, Adm. Spruance, commanding the American carrier force, was immediately notified and that he started at once for Midway Island to intervene before the Japanese fleet could bomb from the air, bombard from its surface ships, and capture the island. His fleet did not come within airplane range of the Japanese fleet until late morning on June 4.

Contact with the Japanese fleet had been lost after 7 o'clock on the morning of the 4th; the planes from the carriers arrived at its estimated position, and broke their formation to look for it.

The immortal squadron 8 of the Hornet found it shortly before noon and attacked. Every plane was shot down and only one pilot survived to report he thought he had struck one carrier with a torpedo. Torpedo squadrons from the Enterprise and Yorktown also attacked with heavy losses, and secured two torpedo hits.

While the Japanese Zeros were destroying these squadrons, dive bombers arrived, and, free from fighter attack, drove thru the anti-aircraft fire, and put two carriers completely out of action and damaged a third, which was later sunk by the submarine Nautilus.

Planes from the undamaged Japanese carrier successfully bombed the Yorktown, which was later sunk by a Japanese submarine. The last Japanese carrier was sunk later in the day, and so all four Japanese carriers and all of their planes were destroyed by nightfall of the first day. The battle was over and the pursuit begun, and in the two next days, June 5 and 6, the battleships and cruisers also were hit.

—o—

The official communique reported the following damage inflicted upon the enemy in the battle:

Four Japanese aircraft carriers, the Kaga, Akagi, Soryu, and Hiryu, were sunk.

Three old battleships were damaged by bomb and torpedo hits, one severely.

Two heavy modern cruisers, the Mogami and the Mikuma, were sunk; three others were damaged, one or two severely.

One light cruiser was damaged.

Three destroyers were sunk and several others were damaged by bombs.

At least three transports or auxiliary ships were damaged, and one or more sunk.

An estimated 275 Japanese aircraft were destroyed or lost at sea thru a lack of flight decks on which to land.

Approximately 4,800 Japanese were killed or drowned. The official report says our total personnel losses were 92 officers and 215 enlisted men.

This last paragraph does not tell the whole story. Most of the 92 officers killed and an unknown percentage of the enlisted men were the heroes who, flying in obsolete airplanes thru the Japanese fighter and anti-aircraft fire, won the battle of Midway.

The three aircraft carriers and the seven heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, 14 destroyers, and the ships that had carried the planes to Midway Island, and all the thousands of ship and airplane builders back of them, existed only to put some 300 airplanes in the air. These flyers defeated the Japanese fleet and sank its carriers. These few hundred men killed the 4,800 Japanese.

If these men had been defeated, the Japanese would have sunk our carriers; the Japanese would have taken Midway; the Japanese would have landed in Hawaii. The greatest battle of modern times was fought and won by less than 700 men, half of whom died gloriously. It will be no derogation to the heroes in all the other theaters of the war if these men's names be made public, for they were the men who won the decisive battle of Midway.

HOW THE TROPICS AFFECT OUR SOLDIERS.

ANY one who has read the accounts of Gen. George Crook's campaigns in pursuit of outlaw Apaches will recall the difficulties which confronted his seasoned troops. Many of the stern chases lasted for weeks or months. Squadrons were obliged to surmount arid deserts and mountainous defiles.

But no experience of the American soldier, unless it be in the Philippines, has quite prepared our forces for the climatic environment which they face in the South seas. It is the old story of obliging men, reared for generations in the north temperate zone, to combat tropical conditions without adequate preparations. Even intrepid explorers and missionaries have not been able to acclimate themselves in this part of the world. Normally, the danger is great. In war times it is multiplied a hundred-fold. If we would lessen the risk to our boys, frequent leaves amid reasonably comfortable surroundings must be provided.

What happens to the physique? The most stalwart individual, if allowed to remain overly long, will develop functional changes—both mental and physical. Personality alterations may advance slowly, but come they will. There is a well known nervous disorder which must be recognized as "tropical neurasthenia." This occurs because the spirits of the soldier may sink to a depression level. Nervous energy is lost. Muscular lassitude ensues and the legs feel so heavy that they can scarcely be moved. Coincident with languor, there is a lowering of blood pressure.

Most of us know how we feel after a hot spell which has lasted for even three or four days. We are washed out, fit for little or nothing. Imagine intense heat continuing for weeks without a single let-up. Small wonder that there is a general slump in morale, with some reduction in the sense of responsibility.

Now we can explain most of this on the basis that the body loses a substantial amount of water and salt, which must be replaced. But more than all is the fact that the eliminating machinery of the system just isn't equal to the task of getting rid of the internal fires. One letter from a commander describes the plight of his men after a hike of only a few miles. As he put it, they were whipped and the greatest alertness on the part of all the officers was demanded to observe the necessary precautions against enemy surprise.

It is not always possible to guard against the direct rays of the sun. But heat stroke, with cramps and dizziness, seems to take the greatest toll. Much value has been ascribed to extra quantities of vitamins B and C, inasmuch as excessive sweating depletes these food accessories rapidly.

But the real answer is a rest interval in some suitable area, where the reserve batteries can be recharged. There is reason to expect that we will encounter a larger number of what appear to be nervous breakdowns among our returning warriors. For the most part, however, they will be on a physical basis. By and large, these episodes will not be permanent but will require detection and relief by proper treatment, if collapse is not to fasten disability on our young men.

We must not forget that the temperature of the atmosphere is so elevated that radiation from the tissues cannot take place. In other words, we cannot use the air to dissipate heat. Furthermore, the high humidity will destroy the cooling effects of perspiration. Needless to say, alcohol makes the situation far worse.

CALL OFF THE MILITIA.

Chicago, June 15.—Let's straighten out this Illinois-Indiana boundary before the militia is called out. In his letter published June 10 Floyd M. Davis is not entirely correct in his first paragraph. The act of July 13, 1787, which formed the Northwest Territory, suggests a boundary between theoretical states as "a direct line drawn from the Wabash and Post Vincennes due north to the territorial line between the United States and Canada. This line next appears in the act setting up Illinois Territory [2 Stat. L. 514], passed Feb. 3, 1809, which reads "all that part of Indiana Territory which lies west of the Wabash river, and a direct line drawn from the said Wabash river and Post Vincennes, due north to the territorial line between the United States and Canada," etc.

By act of April 19, 1816 [3 Stat. L. 289], which took effect Dec. 11, 1816, Indiana was admitted as a state, but the description of the western boundary was changed to read "on the west by a line drawn along the middle of the Wabash from its mouth to a point where a due north line drawn from the town of Vincennes would last touch the northwestern shore of the said river."

The enabling act for the state of Illinois [3 Stat. L. 429] under the terms of which Illinois became a state on Dec. 3, 1818, defines the eastern boundary of Illinois thus, "Beginning at the mouth of the Wabash river; thence up the same and with the line of Indiana to the northwest corner of said state; thence east along the line of the same state, to the middle of Lake Michigan; thence north," etc. Thus there appears to be no basis for a contention that Indiana is in possession of Illinois land at this location. The area was legally transferred from Illinois Territory to Indiana when the latter became a state and the transfer was confirmed by assigning Illinois the boundary thus established in the act which made Illinois a state.

Mr. Davis' statement that a shift in the channel of the Wabash transferred the boundary of the state would be true only if the change was gradually made. "When the bed and channel are changed by the natural and gradual process known as erosion and accretion, the boundary follows the varying course of the stream; while if the stream, from any cause, natural or artificial, suddenly leaves its old bed and forms a new one, by the process known as avulsion, the resulting change of channel works no change of boundary," etc. [246 U. S. 173].

PRE-PEARL HARBOR ALERT.

Gainesville, Tex., June 4.—I visited or attempted to visit Fort Custer, Mich., on Saturday, Nov. 29, 1941—one week before Pearl Harbor—and found the camp alert. I do not know how long the alert lasted or where the order for it originated. The officers whom I visited at the time are overseas now, and were vague when I questioned them later on.

However, I have wondered many times since if all military posts on the mainland were alert during the week prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor, and whether Pearl Harbor, or Pearl Harbor and a portion of the coast, were left open to attack? R. E. Y.

THE VOICE HE WANTS.

Lombard, Ill., June 10.—You seek "A Voice from Illinois." The only real, courageous voice I've heard since the opening guns in this campaign to blast the rottenness that is Roosevelt from misrule is the one possessed by Judge Win G. Knoch of Naperville. He campaigned on a slogan of "Willkie Never" and was, of course, chosen as a delegate to the national convention, decisively. GEORGE C. POTTS.

DISCOURTEOUS WAITRESSES.

Chicago, June 5.—I wonder why some [and I say some, because there are a few nice ones] waitresses have to be snippy to patrons, and why one has to almost beg them for anything they want? The other day I had occasion to be served soup, and soup is an item usually served hot. This was merely warm, and when I asked, or rather told the waitress it was just warm and not hot, she picked it up, put it aside [luckily the dishes are heavy and warrant banging around], and with a look to freeze your mother-in-law said, "That's the way we serve it."

Waitresses apply for that kind of work knowing they have to serve all types of people, yet they are bored to death when asked anything or when they have to change anything. They are not the only ones having a trying time. I'd like to see a receptionist, office girl, or secretary treat any one coming into their office the way waitresses treat some people! R. COLLINS.

CARELESS EMPLOYER.

Newbern, Tenn., June 5.—We haven't received our pay for three months. Our rent is overdue, rent which our landlord counted on to pay off his notes on the house. Our insurance premiums are overdue; insurance we've carried for years may have to be dropped. We owe a large medical bill, as our little boy was quite ill six weeks ago. As for food, you figure out how the average person would live with his salary unexpectedly and unreasonably stopped. Under ordinary circumstances, my husband would have quit long ago, and got a job where the payments came thru as agreed upon; but you can't resign from the army.

There are all kinds of promises of mustering out pay, jobs for the boys, etc., but the government can't keep the promises already part of the law. I realize that the office of dependency benefits has a big job to do, but they're not understaffed. One gets some pretty radical notions, when one's own country handles a situation in this manner.

GUDRUN GAITHER.

THE BETTER TO WIN.

Boston, Mass., June 7.—Fourth termites argue that people who are against Roosevelt and his crowd of "beggars on horseback" are against winning the war. Nothing could be farther from the truth. But it stands to reason that a President who laid down an ultimatum to Japan without even informing military leaders at Pearl Harbor, should be kicked out.

Perhaps a conflict with Japan was unavoidable, but it could certainly have been opened and carried on without losing practically everything, then having to get it back the hard way.

As to whether we should have gone into the war in Europe only time will tell. However, since we are in it there is only one thing to do and that is go ahead and win it. But we can do it much better with an efficient man as President. EARL G. ARNOLD.

JUST CLOSE THE STEEL MILLS.

Chicago, June 13.—Isn't it about time some one sat on the town pest, the foghorn man? Does he yoo-hoo to the big freighters on their way to Indiana ports or is he a lineal descendant of the voice of the sewers?

He blooms and booms perennially at night, keeping the lowly taxpayers awake so they can worry better about the New Deal and how to meet expenses. Just why should the whole community be annoyed for the benefit of a few two-bit fishermen and the captains of a remnant of rusty and homeless old lake tubs well past their prime? Let them take their business elsewhere, set the bridges in permanent position and enter about 1,000 bridge tenders into some worthwhile effort. T. M.

WANTED: AN AMERICAN CANDIDATE.

Chicago, June 12.—The Republican party seems about to miss the greatest opportunity it has had since the days of the immortal Lincoln. Prior to Pearl Harbor 85 per cent of the American people, including the boys who are now in the army, were dead against our involvement in any European war. However, the "again and again and again" speech was disillusioning and, since our economic situation was decidedly better and on the upgrade because of "defense" work the Democrats were returned to power in an unprecedented third term.

Don't believe for a minute that so-called isolationism or America First is not still strong in the minds and hearts of the big majority of the American people. Give them a candidate and a platform that unequivocably espouses these principles and you will see the greatest Republican landslide in the history of our nation. H. J. F.

THE TOASTS AND THE PRAYERS.

Chicago, June 12.—I can't remember hearing of any outpouring of prayers at Cairo, Moscow, or Teheran when this invasion of Europe was planned. Only the pouring of champagne and vodka was reported. A. D. R.

WHAT WE'RE FIGHTING FOR.

Norwood, O., June 10.—The new flare-up between WLB and Montgomery Ward over the maintenance of membership clause gives rise to the opinion that the WLB has become a collection agency for the CIO. Because the taxpayer's money is used for the support of the WLB we have a right to ask congress why they tolerate this shakedown of American workers. I am a union man myself—not CIO—and I would refuse to let any union go into my pay envelope. I would rather quit my job. When I am compelled to be subjected to any organization against my will, then I have lost the war.

F. MARIN.

REMEMBER THE PACIFIC.

Oak Park, Ill., June 13.—The news item in today's TRIBUNE entitled "Forgotten, but Pilots Fight On" is one that should be read and digested by the American public. All this clamor about the invasion in Europe is somewhat sickening to those who have loved ones in the Pacific fighting our war.

Isn't it about time we concentrated on that part of the world where we have a score to settle, namely Pearl Harbor? Of course, I'm being selfish, but I would like to have my husband and my brother back from the Pacific. At least, as much recognition should be given to the progress being made by those who seemingly have been forgotten in the Pacific.

A SEABEE'S WIFE.

HE BELIEVES DIES.

Lake Mills, Wis., June 12.—A book has recently been written by William Gellermann of Northwestern university in which he condemns Martin Dies. The author boasts that he spent six hours writing each page of the book. That is interesting. In the orient there is a saying, "It takes a long time to tell a lie, but the truth is quickly spoken."

Most of the opponents of Martin Dies over the radio and in the press are people who are not particularly noted for telling the truth, and are usually men and women of doubtful patriotic integrity. The book seems to follow the usual patter of this class of people.

I note that the author claims to be a Methodist. I also am a Methodist, and on behalf of good Methodists and good Americans, I hasten to inform Mr. Dies that we believe him and do not believe Mr. Gellermann. DEAN E. SMITH.

FRIEND OF THE YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

L. C. F. writes: "I have a brother in the marine corps in boot training in California. He has a furlough coming as soon as he completes boot. His officers have told him he has to pay in $95 for railroad fare and it so happens he is an ex-railroad man and the railroad wants to give him a pass. His officers, however, insist. 'no money—no furlough.' What has his purchase of transportation to do with getting his furlough?"

ANSWER: Nothing appears in the marine corps regulations specifying how an enlisted man must travel on furlough time; that is between the man and the transportation company. Marine corps transportation officers tell us: "There must be something else in the situation the man is not telling you. We have trouble enough getting transportation for men under orders without inviting more trouble securing transportation for men on furloughs. We try to help them but we do not hinder them."

M. L. S. writes: "I am 35 and have been on a farm about 18 months and classified 2-C. I am working by the month. I am a skilled paint man and thought of trying to go into essential war work in a near-by plant. Would I have to get a release to make the change and from whom?"

ANSWER: Yes, you would have to make application first to your draft board and the local farm adviser's office.

PAWNER'S SALE.

Chicago, June 10.—If a pawnbroker has a right to sell property for a loan and charges, without giving the original owner data as to the sale price, is not the owner entitled to the surplus derived from such a sale? D. L.

Rights depend largely on the wording of the agreement.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEEDING PROPERTY.

Chicago, June 6.—[1] Can the owner of an estate deed his property to his heirs before his death? [2] Would it be necessary to do this several years before death? J. M.

1. Yes, but a gift in contemplation of death would be subject to the inheritance tax.

2. A gift within two years of death is presumed to be in contemplation of death. The use of an unrecorded deed as a substitute for a will invites litigation on the question whether the deed was validly delivered during the grantor's lifetime. Such an attempted arrangement was defeated in the recent case of Stanford vs. Stanford, 371 Ill. 211. While a lawyer might safely arrange for a delivery "in escrow" we strongly advise against lay experimentation. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ANTI-NEW DEAL DEMOCRATS TO ACT TOMORROW

Southern Leaders on Way for Rally Here.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

National political interest centered in Chicago yesterday as delegates gathered for the first of three meetings that will decide the war time candidates for the Presidency.

As a prelude to the Republican convention, June 26, and the Democratic meeting, July 19, the pre-convention caucus of the American Democratic National committee, anti-fourth term organization, will open tomorrow in the Hamilton hotel. Preparations were under way to open Republican campaign headquarters for Gov. Dewey of New York and to concentrate the efforts in behalf of Gov. Bricker of Ohio.

Meeting of the anti-fourth term group will bring together Democrats vocally dissatisfied with the New Deal. One of the projects to be discussed will be the consolidation of Jeffersonian Democrats, the new Southern Anti-New Deal association, the American Democratic National committee, and participants in other recent revolts against the administration.

Big Democrats Expected.

Among the Democrats expected today are Eugene Talmadge, ex-governor of Georgia; James A. Reed, former senator from Missouri; Sen. O'Daniel [Tex.]; John J. O'Connor, ex-congressman from New York; J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, and Otha Wearin, former Iowa congressman.

Announcement that McDonald will attend the meeting assured presentation of his plan for a "Bricker and Byrd or Byrd and Bricker" Presidential ticket. McDonald has asserted that such a combination would win most of the south for the Republican party.

He said the combination would carry Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico. These 11 states have an electoral vote of 120, more than 45 per cent of the votes necessary to elect a President.

Dewey Favored by Some.

Other members of the anti-fourth term group are said to favor waiting until after the Democratic convention to act. If a New Dealer is nominated this faction plans to convene and select a candidate for states whose electors are unpledged.

In Chicago, officers of the John Ericson club of Cook county went on record yesterday as favoring the nomination of Gov. Bricker at the Republican convention.

"It is the opinion of this club," said Loyd C. Larson, vice president, "that Gov. Bricker is an outstanding American. He is a man, who, if elected President of the United States, would at all times keep the interests of this country uppermost in his mind. We want a man in the White House who will at all times try to preserve American institutions and traditions. The American people are tired of being sold short."

Foreign Press on Job.

Walter S. Hallanan, chairman of the Republican arrangements committee, and Ambrose O'Connell, Democratic arrangements member, announced that 1,500 representatives of press and radio had made reservations for the conventions. Among them are 150 reporters and broadcasters from Canada, England, Australia, French Africa, Hawaii, Russia, China, and Sweden.

HOMER M. ADAMS AGAIN DEFERRED FOR DRAFT CALL

Champaign, Ill., June 17 [Special]. — Homer Matt Adams, 33, downstate Democratic politician, has been granted an occupational deferment at the request of the federal government, the Champaign-Urbana draft board said today.

Adams, former national president of the Young Democrats organization, is a civilian administrative officer for the office of war information in London. Adams was given a six months deferment by the local board in April, 1943, to go abroad. A second request, however, was denied on Dec. 3, 1943, and Adams was ordered to report for induction.

Adams' draft records then were ordered sent to Washington, D. C., by Selective Service Director Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey for review.

When Adams' papers were taken from the local board, D. C. Dodds, member of the board, asserted the "procedure is bad. It has made selective service in this community a joke."

WIFE DIES; HE KILLS SELF.

Within a few hours after his wife had died in St. Charles hospital, Aurora, Victor D. Gaffino, 76, of 154 S. La Salle st., Aurora, yesterday walked into the yard at his home, fired a .38 caliber bullet into his chest and died before medical aid could be summoned.

EBERLEIN SAYS DEWEY IS JUST A SECOND WILLKIE

Says G.O.P. Must Win on Principles.

Shawano, Wis., June 17 [Special]. —The Republican party this year can win only on principles, not on personalities, and if, as now appears, Gov. Dewey of New York is the candidate being groomed and sponsored by the same people who sold Willkie in 1940, he must not be given the G. O. P. nomination at the Chicago convention.

This was the assertion of Michael Eberlein, state Republican leader, in an interview here today. He added that if the Republicans are not willing to put up a fight on the post-war issue, or at least to give the electorate the hope that under a G. O. P. administration the issue may be resolved differently than President Roosevelt plans, the 1944 campaign "will be a hoax on the American people; merely a Dewey sales campaign, and perhaps the Republican party's last stand."

Fails to Take Issue.

Eberlein, a lawyer with a state-wide reputation, said Gov. Dewey has not yet taken issue with the President. He said Gov. Bricker of Ohio, the only avowed candidate for the Presidency, "is the only one that talks like an American, the only one to raise his voice in defense of American sovereignty and against one-world absurdities."

"On th contrary Dewey has gone out of his way to join the President on the issue of internationalism," said Eberlein. "Thus he seems to be on the way to playing in the 1944 election, the same role Willkie played in 1940 when the American people had no choice between the two candidates. They were just two horses out of the same stable."

Eberlein said he does not believe Roosevelt's declaration in favor of American sovereignty because the President's record shows that he makes statements to suit his political convenience. He said Wisconsin nationalists do not believe the President.

May be F. D. R.'s Pawn.

"If Dewey continues to follow the line of kicking the nationalists in the face, it can be explained in only one of two ways," Eberlein said. "Either he is far more stupid than his political record warrants any one in believing possible, or he is simply running as a foil to F. D. R. to insure the latter's election by preventing the Republicans from waging the only kind of fight in which they have a chance to win."

U. OF C. BANISHES SYSTEM OF HIGH SCHOOL CREDITS

Own Placement Tests to Supplant Method.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Calling high school credits a "broken reed" in measuring the educational level of students and adopting placement tests to supplant such credits, the University of Chicago yesterday broke with another tradition in the American educational system. Measurements of students' actual achievements will do away with "educational bookkeeping" in the high school and college levels.

This step was announced yesterday by President Robert M. Hutchins who long has pleaded for educational reforms, many of which he has inaugurated in his 15 years of Midway leadership. He announced that the university already had eliminated "the credit adding method" of advancing students in the university's new college program. The latest move extends that program into the high school level for admissions and placement of students in proper class levels.

University to Fix Standing.

This means, that no longer may a high school pupil matriculate solely by presenting credits for which he had made certain grades.

Ernest C. Colwell, dean of faculties and vice president, who said dependence upon high school credits "was at best leaning on a broken reed," explained that placements tests have been extensively used for a decade in counseling students, and were used to some extent last year in establishing the level to which the student belonged. As a result, he added, the better equipped students were moved forward.

New System for War Veterans.

Impetus toward the new general testing system has been given by Dr. Ralph W. Tyler, university examiner, director of what was announced as "the world's largest military testing laboratory." part of the laboratory's work will be devoted to returning war veterans and permit full recognition for skills and knowledge achieved during war service as they enter or reënter the university. This placement method has been gaining approval for war veterans in major universities, but the announcement said that the University of Chicago is unique in applying the tests to all entering college students.

4 KILLED WHEN TORNADOES RIP SOUTH DAKOTA

Watertown, S. D., June 17 (AP).—At least four persons were killed, one was reported missing, and more than a dozen others were injured in a series of tornadoes northwest of here late today.

Three were killed and one was missing after a tornado wrecked the southeast part of Florence. Eleven injured persons were brought to Watertown hospitals from Florence. A man was killed and his wife and daughter injured by a tornado at Bath, east of Aberdeen.

The dead: Harvey Ziebel, 2; Mrs. Jennie Larson, and Mrs. Joe Kjetland, all at Florence.

John Nelson of Bath. Nelson's wife and daughter were taken to an Aberdeen hospital.

The same storm apparently swept on across the state line into Minnesota. Several buildings were damaged at Graceville, Minn.

Iowa Town Wrecked.

Sioux City, Ia., June 17 (AP).—The town of Lebanon, Ia., 45 miles north of here, was wrecked by a tornado last night. The 40 residents escaped injury by fleeing to their cellars or driving away in automobiles.

AGREE TO LIMIT FOOD SUBSIDIES IN OPA PROGRAM

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—Congress and the administration reached a compromise today in their long feud over the payment of subsidies to control retail food prices.

Senate and house conferees on the price control extension bill agreed upon provisions "freezing" the present $1,500,000,000 a year subsidy program until June 30, 1945, after which no subsidies could be paid except thru direct appropriations by congress.

The "freeze" clause was said by its author, Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], to be designed to prevent broadening of the existing roll back subsidy program by the administration to include any additional commodities without the consent of congress.

Sen. Taft [R., O.] sponsored the ban on subsidy payments after June 30, 1945, to put subsidy policy control in the hands of congress.

Summer Model

Two members of the WACs model their new summer-weight dress soon to be available.

The army quartermaster expects to release, about the middle of July, an addition to the Women's Army corps wardrobe, a summer-weight dress for off duty hours. The model is made in shirtwaist style, with fashion concessions to the uniform. Of beige rayon shantung, the dress has a fly front from rever neckline to hemline, a self-fabric belt, and two plaited patch pockets on the bodice. With the long sleeved frock, the neckline of which may be worn buttoned high or opened, the WAC will wear yellow chamois gloves, an overseas cap of the dress material, and pumps with 2 inch heels instead of the regulation oxfords. In the case of officers, the braid piping on the cap is black and gold. Enlisted women's caps are piped with the WAC colors, gold and moss green.

The off duty dress is not G. I. Its cost to WACs will be $10.

OPA PLANS 1,200 MORE SNOOPERS, HOUSE WARNED

G. O. P. Revolt Perils Fund Measure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—Warning that the office of price administration is planning to hire 1,200 more "snoopers," Rep. Vursell [R., Ill.] led a Republican revolt that almost upset the administration's apple cart today.

Rep. Vursell.

Administration forces were pressing for passage of the $2,595,165,535 deficiency appropriation bill, which included $177,750,000 for OPA operations in the fiscal year beginning July 1, when Vursell demanded that OPA funds be cut 8¼ million dollars, to this year's level. The extra amount had been asked principally for hiring new employes.

Suggests Hospitals Instead.

"I'm trying to prevent unnecessary waste," Vursell shouted. "If Administrator Bowles can't run his OPA with the 59,000 employes he has now, he can't do it any better with the 8¼ million more he is asking for new employes.

"Let's cut this extra money from the bill. We could use it better building additional hospitals for the boys who are coming back wounded from the battlefronts.

"I want the nation to know there still are some of us who think an 8¼ million dollar saving means something."

Vursell's economy demand, made in an amendment hastily drawn during the debate, caught Majority Leader McCormack [D., Mass.] by surprise. It was with difficulty that McCormack rallied enough support to defeat the amendment by a voice vote.

232 Million in New Funds.

The OPA was given its increase and the bill was passed and sent to the senate.

The bill carried appropriations of $232,483,058 in new funds, the balance being deficiency funds for 20 departments and agencies and reappropriations for contractual authority.

The largest item was 1 billion 800 million in contract authorization for the navy to build one million tons of landing craft.

STARS JOIN WAR HEROES TO OPEN 5TH LOAN DRIVE

A spectacular demonstration of chemical warfare, army band music and the appearance of numerous movie and radio stars will make the 5th war loan show in Soldiers' field tomorrow night the greatest entertainment of its kind yet given in Chicago, treasury department representatives said yesterday. The 35,000 minute men bond salesman will be guests of honor.

Jack Benny will be master of ceremonies and Orson Welles will conduct the radio features of the program. Lana Turner will take part and Paul Whiteman will be guest conductor of the 60 piece army air force band.

Heroes to Tell Stories.

Two holders of the congressional medal of honor will tell their experiences. They are Lt. Ernest Childers, an Indian of Broken Arrow, Okla., who took charge of his battalion after its commander had been killed in the fighting in Italy, and Tech. Sgt. Charles E. [Commando] Kelly of Pittsburgh, the 23 year old one man army credited with killing 40 Germans in Italy.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau will be the speaker. His address, as well as other parts of the program, will be broadcast.

The Soldiers' field rally and bond selling centers in streets, plazas, and stores have given Chicago's public places a carnival atmosphere.

Barkers Push Sales.

Microphone barkers in various centers inveigled bond buyers by offering jeep rides or other inducements. In South Chicago the local war finance chairman sent a sound truck thru the streets as barkers invited residents to help Chicago and Cook county achieve its fifth loan goal of $894,014,000.

Five year old Nancy Starr Frazin of 300 S. Hamlin av. carried 75 silver dollars which her father, a merchant, had helped her collect to the 14th floor of Mandel Bros. department store, where she exchanged them for a $100 bond.

GUEST OF HOTEL, HIS BILL UNPAID, FOUND HANGED

A man who registered on May 16 as Sylvester P. Cullen, 45, of Fargo, N. D., was found hanged last night in his room in the Stevens hotel.

The body was suspended by a bedsheet and towel from a bathroom door, police said. Hotel attendants said they entered his room to inquire when the guest intended to pay his bill.

Cullen left three letters in the room. One was addressed to a Bishop Munch of Fargo, another to a Father Mullaney, and a third, to the hotel management, in which he apologized for nonpayment of his bill.

His papers listed his home as 1801 La Crosse st., St. Paul, Minn. The address is the rectory of Blessed Sacrament church. The pastor, the Rev. William Finley, said he did not know a Father Cullen.

STRIKE OF 20,000 TRUCK DRIVERS SET FOR JUNE 30

A strike of 20,000 truck drivers, which probably would affect 250,000 trucking industry workers in the midwest, was ordered yesterday to be effective at midnight June 30 by the Central States Drivers Council [AFL]. It was ordered because, the union charged, 112 members of the Midwest Operators' association failed to comply with a war labor board directive for wage increases, issued Feb. 7, 1944.

The strike was voted recently by the union's 40,000 truck driver members. Dexter L. Lewis, director of the council, said that, in its initial stages, the strike would affect only operations which originate in, or operate into, eight states west of the Mississippi. He added, however, that this does not mean the Chicago terminal will not be involved and contended that all operations from Chicago westward would be hit.

This would include truck operations in half of Wisconsin, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, and North and South Dakota. The other states are Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. The council is comprised of 250 locals having contracts with 1,800 employers, a large majority of whom have complied with the directive, Lewis said.

"Gas rationing is unnecessary in the Central States because gasoline is really plentiful"

Mark up your opinion—and then read what the Petroleum Industry has to say about it

IF ANYONE regrets the necessity of gasoline rationing, it's the Petroleum Industry. Companies in that industry would like to sell you all the gasoline you want—if they could. That's why you can be sure the following statement is no exaggeration:

There is not plenty of gasoline in the Central States.

The reasons are simple. Our military machine—mightiest in history—gets first call on the nation's gasoline, of course. You wouldn't have it otherwise. The needs are tremendous—and will become increasingly greater.

For example, to train a pilot requires enough gasoline to last the average automobile eighteen years—12,500 gallons; it takes three tons of gasoline (approximately 1000 gallons) to deliver a one-ton bomb; tanks of one armored division require 25,000 gallons to move one hundred miles.

After such tremendous military needs are met, there simply is not enough gasoline left to keep civilian cars running "as usual." In spite of the fact that the Central States are more fortunate than other parts of the nation in respect to nearby sources of petroleum, there still is not enough gasoline for normal motoring here—not by a whole lot!

The only way to make what is available go around is through rationing. Without rationing, somebody would be bound to go without any gasoline. That somebody could be you.

The importance of a gasoline rationing system that really works is going to be increasingly great as the military needs for gasoline grow greater. Unfortunately, we have to look that fact in the face. Rationing is no fun—but a failure of our present gasoline rationing would surely result in even more drastic measures of control over the gasoline supply. It is to your own selfish interest to do everything possible to make rationing succeed. That is the only way you can be sure of having any gasoline for your own use in the months to come.

Here's how you can help make gas rationing work: Don't apply for more gas than you really need. Get into a ride-sharing club and stick to it. Endorse all your gas coupons now—don't give any away. Don't take extra gas or coupons from anyone.

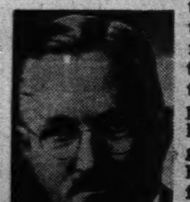
PLAN 146 HOMES FOR NEGROES IN TWO PROJECTS

Chicago, Evanston Units for War Workers.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]



Newton C. Farr.

Simultaneously with the recommendation by the National Association of Real Estate Boards to realty boards thruout the country that they program better housing for Negroes, two big housing projects for colored families were announced yesterday for Chicago and Evanston. They will represent a total investment of $844,000 and provide living quarters for 146 families of war workers. Both will be privately financed.

Newton C. Farr, of Farr & Co. and president of the Chicago Civic federation, is president of the George Washington Carver Gardens, Inc., which will build and sell the 56 living units to be built in the block bounded by Michigan av., 37th st., Wabash av., and 37th pl. The former mansions of the late P. D. Armour Jr. and J. Ogden Armour once occupied the Michigan av. frontage.

Will Face Garden Court.

Designed by Skidmore, Owings & Merrill, Chicago architects, the project will comprise six two story brick four flat buildings fronting on Michigan and Wabash, and 32 row houses facing on a central garden court, with rear entrances on 37th st. and 37th pl.

The $344,000 project is being financed with FHA insured loans thru the Advance Mortgage corporation. Each house and flat will have a separate loan amortized over 25 years. The two flat buildings will sell for $12,000, the four flats for $24,000, and the houses for $6,250.

Will Build Near High School.

In Evanston a big housing project is to be built near the Evanston Township High school, on both sides of Leland av., between Emerson and Church sts. It will contain 90 homes arranged in row houses of two to six units each. They will each contain three bedrooms and rent for $50. Fall occupancy is sought.

Designed by Architects Charles and Arthur Schreiber of Rogers Park, the project will represent an investment of $500,000, Charles Schreiber, president of Architectural Homes, Inc., owner of the development, reported. Arthur Schreiber is secretary of the corporation.

HomeBuilding Increases in Chicago Area

Home building during May in the Chicago metropolitan area was larger in both number and value than any month since April, 1942, the monthly survey of new building by Bell Savings and Loan association disclosed yesterday. Permits for 908 new homes were issued last month in Chicago, suburbs, and in unincorporated areas in Cook, Du Page, Kane, and Lake counties, with an estimated value of $3,566,819. In May, 1943, there were 484 permits for homes valued at $2,020,652. Permits issued in April, 1944, numbered 782 valued at $3,391,777.

Home building in the suburbs during May was slightly more than a year earlier, but less than in April. Permits were issued for 392 homes valued at $1,839,851, compared with 234 worth $1,144,572 in May, 1943, and 423 costing $2,124,101 in April, 1944.

Des Plaines led all suburbs in residential building with May permits for 120 homes valued at $540,490. The Douglas aircraft plant is in that area.

Realty Miscellany

J. C. Lindop.
[Margaret Perry Photo.]

John Cummings Lindop will be installed president of the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association at its annual membership banquet on June 27 in the Hotel Sherman. Other 1944 officers are: Vice presidents, Laurance H. Mills and A. O. Aldrich; treasurer, A. E. Fossier; secretary, James Dunlop; chairman of the finance committee, Nathan Manilow. Directors are George Arquilla, Irvin Blietz, Earl Carrothers, Charles E. Joern, John R. Lewis, George F. Nixon, E. C. Mahoney, J. E. Merrion, Fred J. Walsh, and E. J. Sullivan.

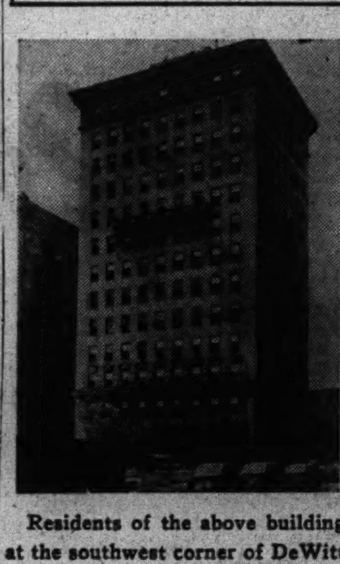
Daniel C. McGuire, housing research engineer of the Argonaut Realty division, General Motors corporation, will speak on present and post-war construction.

The Chicago Real Estate board will hold its annual all-day outing at Westward Ho Country club Tuesday. John Falvey is chairman.

News of the Architects

Alfred Shaw, of Shaw, Naess & Murphy, was reëlected president of the Chicago chapter, American Institute of Architects, at the annual meeting. Also reëlected were Paul Gerhardt Jr. and George W. Carr, vice presidents, and Samuel A. Marx, treasurer. Norman J. Schlossman succeeded William H. Furst as secretary. New members on the executive committee are John Howard Raftery and John S. Cromelin.

Buy to Save Homes



Residents of the above building at the southwest corner of DeWitt and Walton pl. bought the property for $270,000 to save their 12 room and 4 bath suites from being cut up into small war workers' flats. If recent offers for the property had been accepted the present tenants would have been forced to move. This happened at 70 E. Scott st., which is scheduled for conversion into small units.

Quadruple Units

Former luxury co-operative apartments at 1550 N. State st. being remodeled into four times as many smaller units for war plant executives.

Rebuild Big Co-Op Into 40 Small Units

Work has been started converting the 10 large apartments in the 12 story former coöperative apartment at the southwest corner of State st. and North av. into 40 suites of four, five, and six rooms each, George F. Nixon and William H. Colvin, owners, announced yesterday. The modernized flats will be rented to war plant executives for $135 for four rooms and one bath on the lower floors up to $375 monthly for six rooms and three baths on the 12th floor.

Each of the 23-room, eight-bath suites, occupying an entire floor, will be rebuilt into four flats, from plans by Frank A. McNally & Associates. George F. Nixon & Co., rental agents, reported inquiries already received from relatives of former tenant-owners and from occupants forced out of apartment buildings being remodeled similarly.

Erected in 1915 by Benjamin H. Marshall, architect and owner, at a reported cost of 1 million dollars, it was sold in 1920 to a group of 10 prominent business and financial leaders who formed the 1550 North State Building corporation, the stock of which was bought by Nixon and Colvin last year.

The original 10 tenant-owners were Stanley Field, John J. Mitchell, Edward F. Swift, Eugene S. Pike, who later sold his interest to John G. Shedd, Frederick H. Rawson, A. B. Dick, D. Mark Cummings, Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, William V. Kelley, and Dr. Frank Billings.

LEASES N. S. WAREHOUSE.

The Continental Coffee company leased from W. D. Sager the entire four story building, 50 by 125 feet, at 835 N. Larrabee st., for warehousing in connection with its other near north side buildings. Mark Levy Realty company was broker.

TIRES YOU CAN'T BUY GO TO SAVE FIGHTERS' LIVES

Rafts Make Big Display at Tribune Show.

Life rafts which often become the means of survival for men in the services who are stranded on the high seas are being exhibited at the War Products Show in Tribune Square by the Firestone Tire & Rubber company. Except for the 25 man raft, designed for shipboard use, all of the rafts made by Firestone are for the air forces.

The Tribune and the armament manufacturers whose displays are on exhibition are coöperating with the United States treasury department, sponsor of the show. It is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. and will continue thru July 9.

Pararaft One-Man Job.

The tiniest raft constructed by Firestone is known as the pararaft which will support one man for many days. It is packed in a small container, weighs only 16 pounds, and can be fastened to the harness of a flyer's parachute. Firestone also makes rafts for two, four, five, and seven men. The larger rafts carry much more equipment. Tires, supplies, and other tools of war made by the company are also on display in the tent.

Steel strips which form an entrance floor to the tent are used in building landing strips like those laid down by the allied forces on the beachheads in France.

The strips are manufactured and displayed by Ceco Steel Products.

A large aluminum fin which is made as a part of the tail assembly for a C-46 cargo plane is on display inside the tent. It is made by the Mills Industries, Inc., which also manufacturers 29 other war items. In conjunction with this exhibit is a special navy panorama training device. Motion pictures for training purposes are shown in a second machine.

Aerial bombs, heaters, a 16 inch projectile and other products are shown by the Stewart Warner company.

Portable Shower Shown.

A display by the Cleaver-Brooks company consists of a compact portable shower for air borne troops and a portable distillation unit which converts sea water into drinking water [chemically pure] at the rate of 175 gallons per hour.

The Navy pier band will give a concert from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m. today.

The famous Don Cossack choir will give two performances today at the War Products show. The first performance will be at 4:30 p. m. and the second at 8 p. m. The cast includes 27 singers, a conductor, and a master of ceremonies.

Former Executive Named N. U. Research Director

Dr. Paul E. Klopsteg, former president of Central Scientific company of Chicago, has been appointed director of research and professor of applied science in the technological institute of Northwestern university, it was announced yesterday by President Franklyn B. Snyder.

BRIDE'S MISSING GARMENTS ADD TO DEATH RIDDLE

Dress and Slip Only Clothing Found.

Mrs. Ester Drew.

Montgomery, Ala., June 17 (AP).—Several theories—all admittedly vague—were studied today by city detectives and military police in their efforts to solve the rape slaying of Mrs. Ester Drew, 19, bride of a cadet in the army air forces.

Her nude body was found last night in a drainage ditch near her rooming house in a fashionable residential section. Coroner M. B. Kirkpatrick said she apparently had been killed Thursday night, a few hours after a visit with her husband at Maxwell field here.

Her husband, Lynn Drew, remained under care at the Maxwell post hospital, where he was taken in a state of collapse after discovery of his wife's body. The couple married here three weeks ago after a courtship in Decatur, Ill., where both lived.

Stabbed Thru Chest.

Kirkpatrick said there was a possibility Mrs. Drew had been slain elsewhere and that the body had been taken to the vicinity of her home by some person who knew where she lived. He said he based this theory on the fact no blood was found in the high grass on the bank of the ditch.

Kirkpatrick said Mrs. Drew had been stabbed thru the chest with a long weapon and had been raped. Her dress and slip, ripped from top to bottom, were under the body, but her other garments were missing, he added, strengthening his belief the crime might have been committed elsewhere.

The young woman's purse, known to have contained more than $50 when she left Maxwell field, was missing, along with several articles of jewelry. Physical indications at the scene were that the body had been dragged and rolled into the ditch.

Citizens Seek Reward Fund.

Prosecutor Temple Seibels announced he was asking Gov. Chauncey Sparks to offer a reward of $500 for information leading to an arrest in the case. Mayor Cyrus B. Brown said he would match any state reward offered, and citizens started a campaign to raise additional money.

Mrs. Drew's body was discovered by Lt. Charles W. Richard, who had accompanied the cadet home after Drew had reported his wife missing. Richard was quoted by police as saying he strolled about the vicinity while Drew was examining the room he and his wife had occupied since their marriage, and was led to the ditch by a blood stained handkerchief.

Mrs. Drew was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomalla and was a student nurse in Springfield, Ill., before her marriage. Her parents were notified last night of her death, but Kirkpatrick said the body would be held here temporarily.

KANKAKEE PIONEER DIES.

Henry Schnell, 80, a lifelong resident of Kankakee county and owner of the Schnell dairy in Kankakee, died yesterday.

NAVAL OFFICER'S WIFE VICTIM OF ATTACK IN HOME

West Cornwall, Conn., June 17 (AP).—Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, 31, wife of a naval officer and daughter-in-law of Francis Lee Higginson, head of a Boston and London banking firm, was found lying unconscious yesterday in a pool of blood in the living room of her home here.

She was taken to a Torrington hospital where physicians reported today that she was in a critical condition with a fractured skull and 23 wounds on the head, apparently caused by a blunt instrument.

State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, directing the search for clues to the assault, said the bludgeoning had been uncovered when a neighbor telephoned Mrs. Higginson during the day and was told by the woman's son, Peter, 7, that "mommy is dead on the floor right here."

Struck from Behind.

Mrs. Higginson, whose husband is a lieutenant commander in the navy, stationed at Key West, Fla., had apparently been struck from behind as she walked from a kitchen vestibule into the living room of her home.

Her two sons, Peter and John, 4, who had been at home at the time, could shed no light on the mystery. Mrs. Higginson had been out until 10:45 p. m. after leaving her children in the care of a 16 year old boy.

The chance telephone call that disclosed Mrs. Higginson's plight came from Mrs. James Thurber, wife of the humorist.

Mrs. Higginson is the former Harriet Beecher Scoville of Hampton, Va. Her father, William Scoville, died here last year.

Descendant of Beecher.

She is a granddaughter of Gen. Samuel C. Armstrong, founder of Hampton institute, and a great-granddaughter of Henry Ward Beecher.

Commissioner Hickey said robbery and rape had been eliminated as motives for the assault. Mrs. Higginson's purse and jewelry were untouched, and the house had not been ransacked. A thoro search of the house and grounds failed to uncover the weapon used.

FAMILY KNOWN HERE.

Mrs. Higginson's husband is a nephew of Mrs. Barrett Wendell, prominent Chicagoan. His father is a member of the firm of Lee Higginson, Inc., an investment banking firm with offices in Chicago. The family is well known in Chicago business and social circles.

DYNAMITE DRIVER LUCKY.

Winnfield, La., June 17 [AP].—A truck loaded with 204 cases of dynamite left the highway, plowed thru a cemetery, clipped five wire fences and a pine tree 10 inches in diameter before it stopped 180 yards away with its cargo intact and its driver only slightly hurt.

POLICE SEIZE 3 AND CLAMP LID ON HANDBOOKS

Seven Fired Captains to Fight for Jobs.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Three cigar and magazine clerks in the loop learned with a shock late yesterday that the police are determined to stop handbook gambling. First district police reported these three were found taking bets, and the rest of the town seemed to be closed tight as a first result of the civil service commission's order firing six police captains and an acting captain.

In the three raids made by 1st district police the clerk in each place was arrested and the customers were chased out. The places and the men arrested were:

Cigar store at 201 N. La Salle st., James Pacelli, 31, 2445 Wentworth av.; magazine store at 141 N. Clark st., Joseph Hirsch, 40, 1807 N. Newland av.; cigar store at 228 S. Wells st., George Fersteins, 1258 Independence blvd.

"More Important than Murder."

From patrolman to captain, policemen reported they had learned it is more important to close a gambling house than to solve a murder.

Attorney Michael F. Ryan, who represented two of the fired captains, said: "The civil service commission's decision was a rank injustice. The captains will appeal to the courts and in the end are sure of vindication."

Four of the captains ordered dismissed from the service will be given pensions of $2,250 a year for the rest of their lives. They are Walter F. Healy, formerly of the Hyde Park station; Louis Klatzco, formerly of the Fillmore st. station; John T. Cartan, formerly of Des Plaines st., and Eugene Barry, formerly of Shakespeare av.

Three Get Annuities Later.

The three others, former Captains Thomas Harrison and Thomas Connelly and former Lt. William Drury, will receive small annuities after they attain the age of 50, for a new law went into effect Jan. 1, 1922, shortly before they joined the department.

Harrison is 48 and became a policeman June 7, 1922; Connelly is 46 and joined the force June 8, 1922: Drury is 42 and was appointed May 10, 1924.

Five lieutenants were made acting captains by Commissioner Allman yesterday and assigned to posts vacated by discharged captains. The five, with their former stations and their new commands, are: Lt. William Smith, from Deering to Burnside; Lt. Bart Moran, from Englewood to Gresham; Lt. John Walsh, from Summerdale to Cragin; Lt. Robert Welling, from Town Hall to Albany Park; Lt. Michael Spaatz, from 1st district to Chicago avenue.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In a story published last week in The Tribune it was incorrectly stated that a fire at 6419 Dante av. was started by Tony Romanich, 5, and his brother, Johnny, 6, who were playing with matches. Marshal Thomas Gaffney of the 5th division says there was no indication that the boys, who were rescued from the burning building, started the fire. The erroneous information was supplied by the City News Bureau.

WAUKEGAN WARS ON HANDBOOKS; THREE CLOSED

Waukegan's three handbooks were closed yesterday by Chief of Police Bart Tyrrell, who said he will arrest the operators as frequently as they reopen.

A police squad raided the books at 113 N. Genessee st., where Charles Schwartz was arrested as keeper; at 122 Washington st., where John Pagonas was arrested, and at 127 Washington st., where Harry Hart was arrested.

The raids followed a protest at last Monday night's council meeting by Aldermen Ernest Luke against the practice of making monthly token raids against the handbooks.

Lane Technical High school won its 12th City league baseball championship when Coach Percy Moore's nine defeated Crane Technical High, 2 to 0, in Comiskey park yesterday.

The 3,000 spectators were treated to a pitchers' duel between Capt. Jack Lorenz of Lane and Gene Revell, who had previously hurled three no-hit games in league competition. Lorenz, however, had the better of the argument yesterday, yielding only five hits against his opponent's six. Revell issued six walks and struck out three, while Lorenz retired seven via the strike route. Three errors were charged against Crane altho none figured in the scoring.

Lane Scores in Third.

Lane scored its first run in the third inning. Bob Curran walked, advanced to second on Johnny La Porta's infield out, and scored on John Howson's single to right. After Crane went down in order in its half of the fourth, Lane came back to get its other run. Lorenz smashed a hard blow, which Revell knocked down, but the north side pitcher was safe at first by a step. Irv Medlinger then walked and both advanced on a double steal. Milt Majercik's single to right scored Lorenz. Medlinger tried to score, too, but was caught at the plate.

Norb Wirowski Injured.

Norb Wirowski, Crane center fielder, suffered a twisted ankle in the fifth inning after a long run to catch Howson's fly. He was carried off the field and replaced by Joe Lampo, who took over in left, Ken Oldfield moving to center.

Crane's best bid came in the fifth after Oldfield had popped to Medlinger. George Grimes doubled thru second and went to third on Lampo's single to short. Grimes was caught off third on an attempted double steal and a minute later Lampo, who had gone to third on the play, was tagged when he wandered off the base.

The longest hit of the game was Lorenz' double to deep center in the eighth, the ball hitting the wall more than 350 feet from the plate on the first bounce. Jack, however, tried to extend it into a triple and was tagged out.

DOROTHY BUNDY JOINS MA AND PA AS TENNIS CHAMP

Detroit, Mich., June 17 (AP).—Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., whose mother and dad were national champions, won an American title of her own today by defeating Mary Arnold of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-4, in the women's finals of the national clay court tournament.

Dorothy Bundy.

Meanwhile, Francisco Segura of Coral Gables, Fla., and Billy Talbert of Indianapolis advanced into tomorrow's men's finals by winning in straight sets. Segura eliminated Pfc. Rex Norris of Lansing, Mich., and Buckley Field, Colo., 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, and Talbert downed Petter Officer Ralph Dilley of Cleveland, 6-0, 6-0, 6-2.

She's from Tennis Family.

Miss Bundy, rated No. 5 nationally, succeeded Pauline Betz as champion. She beat Pauline Thursday in the semi-finals. Tomorrow's winner in the men's division will succeed Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, two-time winner, who is in the army.

Miss Bundy, daughter of May Sutton and Tom Bundy, continued to play with a borrowed racket as she attained the top rung in national competition for the first time. Generally her game was too forcing for Miss Arnold, former public parks champion who was runner-up to Miss Betz for the clay title in 1941. Besides, Miss Bundy's overhead game was devastating.

She Eyes Forest Hills.

"I'm just plain happy to win a national title after all these years," said Miss Bundy. "Maybe this is my year to win at Forest Hills, too."

In her march to the title, Miss Bundy won 10 straight sets with the loss of 25 games. Her triumph over Miss Betz was by 7-5, 6-3.

Both finalists are 27 years old. Miss Bundy is a student at Rollins college, Florida, and Miss Arnold worked this spring as a secretary at Wilmington, Del.

Segura and Talbert reached tomorrow's doubles finals by defeating Hubert Johnson of Detroit and Kenneth Norman of Ann Arbor, Mich., 6-0, 6-1, 6-1. Miss Betz and Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., will meet Miss Arnold and Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., in the woman's doubles final.

Nelson Takes Golf Tourney Lead with 204

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 17 (AP).—Bronzed Byron Nelson, the tall Texan transplanted to Toledo, O., turned the $13,333 New York Red Cross Open golf tourney at Wykagyl into a one man show today.

The former P. G. A. and National Open king ripped the rugged layout apart with a 6 under par 66, the best round of the tournament, to reach the three-quarter mark of the 72 hole medal play test 12 under par with a 204. That gave him a five stroke lead over his nearest foe, Sgt. Vic Ghezzi, who had a 69 today.

Nelson had six birdies and matched par on the others for his 34—32—66.

Turnesa, Nelson Tied.

Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., who started the third round tied with Nelson, was third with 212 after a 74 today. Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Philadelphia skidded to 75 for a 214 total, where the winter tour champion was tied with Herman Barron of White Plains, who came up with a 68.

The hard luck player of the day was Gene Sarazen, the squire of Darien, Conn., who came up to the last hole 3 under par, with a chance to go high among the leaders. However, his third shot, a short chip, hit the flag as the caddy of one of Sarazen's playing partners held it, and skipped across the green. There was a two stroke penalty for hitting the flag, and Gene needed five strokes to get into the hole. The big seven on the par four hole gave him even par for the round and a 217 total that put Sarazen in a five way tie for ninth place.

Byrd Shoots 219.

Sam Byrd, Detroit star who won last week's $17,500 Philadelphia Open, added a par 72 to his previous 74 and 73 for a 219 total, two back of Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., the duration National Open champion, who had a subpar 71 today.

Tournament leaders:

Byron Nelson, Toledo, 138—66—204; Sgt. Vic Ghezzi, Atlantic City, N. J., 140—69—209; Mike Turnesa, White Plains, N. Y., 138—74—212; Harold McSpaden, Philadelphia, Pa., 139—75—214; Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y., 146—68—214; Jack Patroni, Manchester, Vt., 145—70—215; Jimmy Johnson, Detroit, Mich., 145—71—216; Morrie Gravatt, Williamsport, Pa., 144—72—216; Gene Sarazen, Darien, Conn., 145—72—217; Bud Lewis, Philadelphia, Pa., 144—73—217; Bill Kaiser, Louisville, Ky., 145—72—217; Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 146—71—217; Sal Di Buono, Larchmont, N. Y., 145—72—217; Tony Penna, Dayton, O., 144—75—219; Sam Byrd, Detroit, Mich., 147—72—219; Al Collins, Scarborough, N. Y., 145—75—220; Andrew La Pola, Wayne, N. J., 143—78—221; Tony Manero, Stamford, Conn., 150—71—221; Henry Ransom, Houston, Tex., 146—75—221; Joe Turnesa, Rockville Center, L. I., 148—73—221.

MICHIGAN LOSES 2D STRAIGHT TO BRONCOS, 3 TO 1

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 17 (AP).—Elroy Hirsch, making his last appearance in a Michigan uniform, pitched a five-hitter today but suffered his only loss of the season when Western Michigan college's baseball team registered a 3 to 2 victory. The Broncos also won Friday's game, 5 to 4.

Three extra base hits produced runs for Western in the second, third, and eighth innings to give Ray Louthen, Western's right hander, a 3 to 0 margin going into the ninth.

The defeat gave Michigan's Big Ten champions a season record of 15 victories and four defeats. Score:

Michigan ....000 000 002—2 9 1

TIP-OFF ON YANK STATUS: COONEY, 43, GETS A JOB

New York, June 17 (AP).—Johnny Cooney, 43 year old outfielder, signed today with the New York Yankees. Cooney was released Thursday by the Brooklyn Dodgers. He also is a former member of the Boston Braves and the St. Louis Cardinals. The veteran, who can also play first base, joined the Braves in 1921 as a letf handed pitcher.

SHEEHAN STARS AS IRISH BEAT PURDUE, 15 TO 0

Notre Dame, Ind., June 17 [Special].—Catcher Tommy Sheehan's five hits led a 16 hit assault on two Purdue pitchers today, as Notre Dame swamped the Boilermakers, 15 to 0. Paul Lammers, Irish pitcher, kept seven hits well scattered, and it wasn't until the ninth inning that a Purdue batter got beyond first base.

The Irish had two big innings, scoring four runs in the first and six in the eighth. Sheehan, who drove in six runs, cleared the full sacks in the first with a long single.

Notre Dame will end its season tomorrow when it play the Great Lakes Bluejackets on Cartier field here.

Purdue ....000 000 000— 0 15 6
Notre Dame.......420 100 26*—15 16 0

Batteries—Kennedy, Raymond, Vacanti, and Hesse; Lammers and Sheehan.

SAILORS WIN, 3 TO 0.

Great Lakes' unbeaten baseball team yesterday scored its 15th victory of the season and its seventh shutout in whipping an all-star team from the Service Men's league, 3 to 0, at Great Lakes.

The Bluejackets were held on one hit by Herb Bracken of the Great Lakes Negro team.

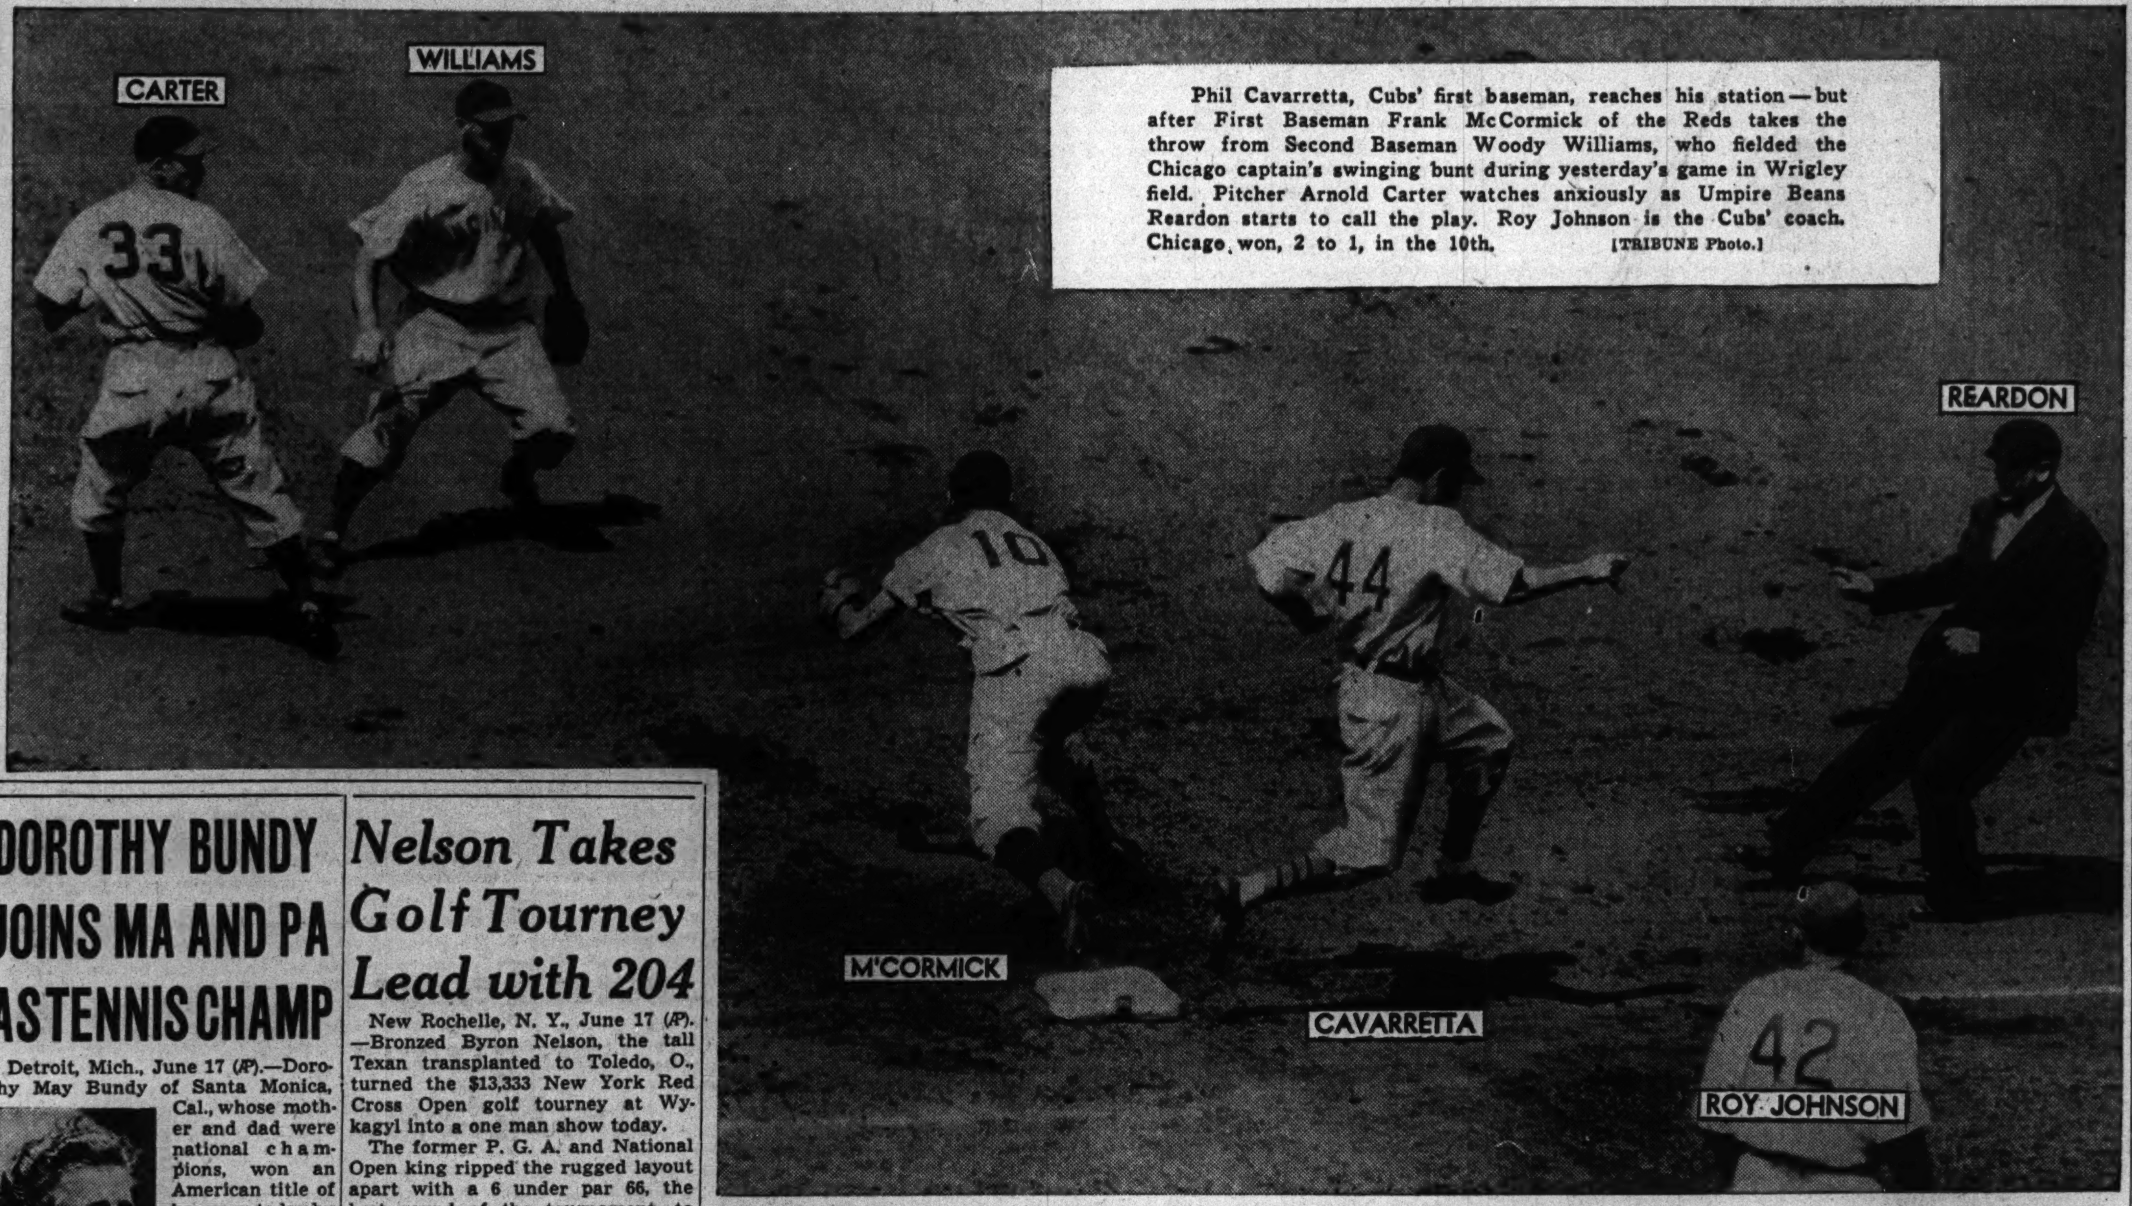
CUBS' PHIL JUST MISSES ON A SWINGING BUNT



Phil Cavarretta, Cubs' first baseman, reaches his station—but after First Baseman Frank McCormick of the Reds takes the throw from Second Baseman Woody Williams, who fielded the Chicago captain's swinging bunt during yesterday's game in Wrigley field. Pitcher Arnold Carter watches anxiously as Umpire Beans Reardon starts to call the play. Roy Johnson is the Cubs' coach. Chicago won, 2 to 1, in the 10th. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

$5,000 LINCOLN HANDICAP WON BY VALDINA FOE

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

John Marsch's Valdina Foe, which ran away with the La Salle handicap a week ago, made believers out of a crowd of 18,200 Lincoln Fields patrons yesterday when he scored by three and a half lengths in the $5,000 added Lincoln handicap, feature of the final day of the spring meeting at Hawthorne.

The 4 year old bay son of Sun Briar-Rivalry again had Otto Grohs on his back and he won just about as easily as he did in beating Howard Wells' Equifox by eight lengths in the La Salle. Equifox yesterday was held to third place as Lt. Comdr. W. Montgomery's Choppy Sea, which hadn't won a race in eight previous starts, finished second, two lengths in front of the 7 year old son of Equipoise.

Fans Wager $1,178,495.

Only five horses went postward, with Mrs. Robert McGarvey's filly, Night Shadow, drawing most of the customers' attention and being held at 8 to 5 as they reached the gate. Night Shadow came in fourth and the Circle W. stable's Devalue was last. Valdina Foe paid $8.40, $4.20, and $2.60. Choppy Sea's mutuels were $6 and $3, and Equifox returned $2.60.

The mutuel handle for the feature race, sixth on a card of nine events, was $143,431. For the second time during the 28 days of racing at the Stickney plant the wagering exceeded one million dollars as the eighth race brought the figure up to $1,035,116. The ninth, arranged for a Chicago war veterans' fund, raised it to $1,178,495.

The high mark of the meeting was set on Decoration day when a record $1,229,087 was bet on eight races.

It's a Romp at Finish.

The handle for the meeting totaled $21,483,726, as compared with $14,386,171 for the banner spring meeting of 1943. The total attendance for the 28 days was 392,127. The 1943 30 day total was 293,861.

In the feature race, Valdina Foe

Ring Coach Tells Escape from Nazis

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 17.—Professional prize fight manager, amateur boxing coach in two continents, Olympic coach, then refugee from the Germans and Fascists—finally masseur to interned allied flyers downed in enemy territory while himself hiding 'midst the Nazis. That is the evolution of the career of Steve Klaus, who brought two European boxing teams to the United States to oppose the national Golden Gloves champions and now is here in Rome looking forward to another trip to America—this time for good.

Steve Klaus.

[Klaus trained the 1939 and 1940 All-European amateur boxing teams which met Chicago in the Stadium. Klaus' boys won, five bouts to three, in 1939 and broke even in eight matches the following year.]

Steve, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., who came to Italy in 1937 to train and coach boxers for the Italian Boxing federation, today told the story of his adventures of the last few months. It contained more thrills, excitement, and narrow escapes than all the wildest bouts in ring history rolled into one. He declared it will take more than a long count or another such first round as that unforgettable one staged by Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo to raise his blood pressure hereafter.

He Finds Refuge in Grounds of the Vatican.

The story begins after Italy declared war on the United States and the Mussolini regime exhibited considerable pique over his refusal to renounce his American citizenship. He took it on the lam, as some of his friends back home might put it, thereafter becoming the party of the first part in an unrelenting manhunt, which ended only when the Germans tossed in the towel and got out of Rome.

By that time he was hiding with over a score of other refugees, including allied flyers, on the American college grounds in the Vatican, which is surrounded by a high wall. The first inkling they had that the city had fallen was the swelling roar of the Romans' greeting to the first American tanks, and Steve said it reminded him of nothing so much as some of those nights in the Garden years ago when fans saluted a new champion.

He's Handled Some Well Known Boxers in His Time.

Steve, who started fighting as a bantamweight on New York's west side, later managed Salvatore Ruggierello, Antol Kocsi, and Mike Gelb. He was also known as a trainer and second. He was in the corner with Jorge Brescia the night the latter lost to Joe Louis, and also worked in fights with Nathan Mann and was in the corner for Bob Olin for the John Henry Lewis fight.

He said today he owes his free-

NAHMA FINISHES FIRST IN RACE TO MICHIGAN CITY

Michigan City, Ind., June 17 [Special].—Nahma, 55 foot racing sloop owned and sailed by J. Harry Gardner of the Michigan City Yacht club, was first to finish in the Columbia Yacht club's annual race which ended here late today.

The P class yacht was the second Michigan City entrant in the 53 year history of the race to lead the fleet over Lake Michigan. Falcon II., Clare Udell Jr.'s Chicago Yacht club Q class sloop, finished less than two seconds astern of Nahma, after the two had sailed for 37 miles across the lake. Falcon's time allowance, it was believed, gave it first place in the universal division. The 52 foot yacht was sailed by its owner, with Sam Clarke, Herman van Mell, Mark [Tim] Angsten, Ed Challifoux, Richard Heinichen, and Carl Hoppe.

White Cloud Leads Cruisers.

First cruising yacht to finish and winner of A class was George T. Sollitt's Mackinac race winner, White Cloud. The 60 foot cutter sailed back to Chicago shortly after the last of the 52 starters crossed the finish line.

White Cloud's crew consisted of the owner, Walter Frye, Jack Dopf, Arch Ferguson, Walter McGuire, Edward Kelly, Evan Kelly Jr., Gould Davis, William Haedtler, Hugh Driscoll, Ensign Roger Grett, U. S. N. R., Ed Colgrove, Jack Chalbeck, Ed Decker, and Tom Black. Ensign Brett, who is attached to the Abbott hall naval officer training school, is a member of the Lake Hopatcong, N. J., and Larchmont, N. Y. yacht clubs.

Squall Delays Start.

The start was delayed this morning due to the line squall which blew over the lake front just before the scheduled starting time. Several of the Belmont Harbor and Jackson Park entries were harbor bound until the storm abated. The wind was light during the race across the lake.

Hulse, Parker, Campbell Win A. A. U. Titles

New York, June 17 (AP).—Bill Hulse, America's fastest miler, and two school boys new to national competition starred in the opening of the national A. A. U. track championships on Randall's Island today.

Hulse, who ran a 4:06 mile in finishing second to Sweden's Gunder Haegg last summer, left four rivals far behind as he won the 1,500 meter senior title, one of the three senior events held today in a program otherwise devoted to junior events. The remainder of the senior crowns will be decided tomorrow.

Wins by 40 Yards.

Hulse, competing for the New York A. C., took the lead soon after the start and set all the pace to finish a good 40 yards in front of Teammate James Rafferty. Rafferty had no trouble beating 17 year old Bob Umstattd, Southwest conference champion from Dallas, for runner-up honors. Hulse's time was 3:54.3.

Charley Parker, sensational San Antonio dash man, and Don Campbell, 18 year old school boy from Sterling, Colo., divided honors in the two junior sprint races. Parker, who'll be 18 in July, chalked up his 50th successive victory in taking the 100 meters in :11.1 after he and Campbell had won their semi-final dashes in :10.9.

Parker Out of 200 Meters.

Campbell, left at the post in the 100, came from behind in the 200 meters to win in :22.3 as Parker remained on the side lines in preparation for tomorrow's race with Claude Young, University of Illinois sprinter.

The other two senior titles went to Norman Bright, veteran West coast performer representing the United States army at Presque Isle, Me., and Fred Sharaga of New York City. Bright won the 10,000

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Altho their aggregate hitting was a modest total of six, the eighth place Cubs yesterday discovered how to win despite the handicap. They found some steady pitching in the person of Claude Passeau, who hung on grimly until his mates finally managed a tenth inning run that knocked down the Reds by 2 to 1 before 5,175 cash guests. It was the Cubs' second success of the year over the Rhinelanders in six games and also Passeau's second victory. The other was a 2 to 1 night affair in Brooklyn.

Passeau yielded nine hits, but he did his best work after becoming convinced that his mates were going to be a bit slow about fixing him up with the deciding run. He dodged various threats for six innings, but in the seventh, with one out, Eddie Miller banged his third 1944 homer against the left field foul marker for the tying run. After this Passeau yielded only one more hit and his pleasures were increased by the fact that he carried in the winning run.

Nicholson Comes Thru.

Bill Nicholson was in direct charge of ending the argument, altho until the 10th he was among those who hadn't been able to tune in on Arnold Carter, for a base hit. Bill's lot had been confined to two passes, one of them in the fourth, when the Cubs scored and tossed away chances for additional damage by going astray on the bases. Nicholson also walked in the sixth, when the Cubs filled the bases and left 'em that way for the want of a hit.

Preceding Nicholson's decisive thrust was a pass that put Passeau in line for the clinching maneuver at the start of the 10th. Roy Hughes supplied a sacrifice and Phil Cavarretta an infield out, thus putting Passeau on third. Ival Goodman, who subbed for Lou Novikoff "to strengthen the defense," drew a pass and the Reds held a conference on the Nicholson matter. Bill, fully expecting another pass, hung around until the count reached 3 and 1, but the next pitch suited him, so he whistled it past first base to break up the matinee.

Claude Bears Down in Pinch.

The Cubs couldn't rustle up even one base hit or a pass off Carter in the first three innings, but the Reds weren't quite that mild. Gerry Walker nicked Passeau for a hit in the first but two were out. Passeau walked Eric Tipton to open the second and set down the next three batters. In the third, he had real troubles. Carter led with a single and with one out Tony Criscola singled. Walker then fouled to Roy Easterwood, who let the ball pop out of his glove but caught it again while it was rolling down his back, and Frank McCormick grounded to Tony York.

Hughes blew open the Cubs' fourth inning with a single too hot for Carter to handle and Cavarretta followed with a clean one baser to left. Carter promptly grew fidgety and filled the bases by walking Novikoff, after which he passed Nicholson, forcing in Hughes. Then Andy Pafko's pop was dropped by Miller and Cavarretta forgot about the infield fly rule under which Pafko was automatically out. Phil drifted off third instead of remaining there and was doubled. Don Johnson ended the inning with a tap to Carter.

Double Play Saves Day.

A double play took the punch out of a pair of Red hits in the sixth and in the home half the Cubs demonstrated that it is easier for them to get to base than to get home. Hughes led off with a single on which Walker provided an extra base by fumbling. Cavarretta sacrificed and Novikoff rolled out. Nicholson walked again and a similar gift went to Pafko, loading the bases. Johnson's roller to Miller erased the full house. Shortly after this Miller cut loose with his tying homer.

1942—Betty Jameson.
1943—Patty Berg.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Fifteen years ago this summer, the Women's Western Golf association decided to conduct a novel competition to be known as the W. W. G. A. Open tournament. Mrs. Lee Mida of Butterfield won that inaugural title by defeating June Beebe of Olympia Fields, who was later to capture it twice herself. This initial session was open to all comers, whether they were amateurs or professionals, whether they played from private or public courses, or were just plain unattached.

The 1930 field was largely restricted to Chicagoans, but the progress of the tournament from that year on was such that the action of association officials in throwing open the gates for this one tourney has been vindicated a hundredfold. The 1944 proof of that early foresight will be revealed within the next six days, beginning tomorrow, at the Park Ridge Country club, where the W. W. G. A. has assembled what is undoubtedly its finest field for this 15th annual Open show.

Champions to Compete.

The two women who have accounted for three of the last four championships will be on hand when the 18 hole qualifying round tees off at Park Ridge. They are 2d Lt. Patty Berg of the United States Marines, winner in 1941 and last year and a Mrs. George Zaharias.

Mrs. Z., if you don't recall, is the former Mildred [Babe] Didrikson, probably the greatest American woman athlete of all time. When the Babe got around to taking up golf, the best she could do was to be right up there in any tournament she entered until 1940, when she ran off with the 1940 Western Open at Milwaukee. She came into golf as a professional, but was reinstated as an amateur by the U. S. G. A. last winter.

The tournament will have a fine preview this afternoon at 2 o'clock with one of the most promising mixed exhibition matches since the happy days when Joyce Wethered, Helen Hicks, and Babe Didrikson walloped a Sunday ball around Chicago fairways. No pairings have been made, but the foursome will include Lt. Berg, Mrs. Zaharias, Pvt. Melvin [Chick] Harbert of the Air WAC recruiting force, and Storekeeper First Class Mike Stolarik of Great Lakes, present Illinois state amateur champion.

16 States Represented.

Lest there be any misunderstanding that Lt. Berg and Mrs. Zaharias are the only entrants in the battle that will be waged thru next Saturday, there will be a few other ladies on the Park Ridge premises to debate the issue with them. Among these, hailing from 16 states over a span that stretches from California to New York and from Minnesota to Texas, are Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga.; Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia; Catherine Fox of Glen Ridge, N. J.; Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex.; Phyllis Otto of Omaha, Neb.; Marjorie Row of Anniston, Ala.; Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D.; Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill.; Ruth Gammon of Glendale, Cal.; Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill.; Mrs. Harold Sims, of St. Paul, Minn.; Dorothy Foster of Springfield, Ill.; Betty Haemerle of St. Louis; Eileen Stulb of Augusta, Ga., Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., and Ann Casey of Mason City, Ia.

Miss Kirby, the willowy blonde from Atlanta, was runner-up in the 1943 Open at Glen Oak, holding a three up margin over Lt. Berg after 30 holes. It took all of the old Berg fight and a birdie on the 35th to win, 1 up, on the final green. Miss Germain is the Pennsylvania college girl who became the first easterner to win the Western Amateur at Evanston last year. Miss Row has been a consistent contender in W. W. G. A. tournaments for the last three years, as have the Misses Otto, Cline, and Tainter.

Open Tourney Play Tuesday.

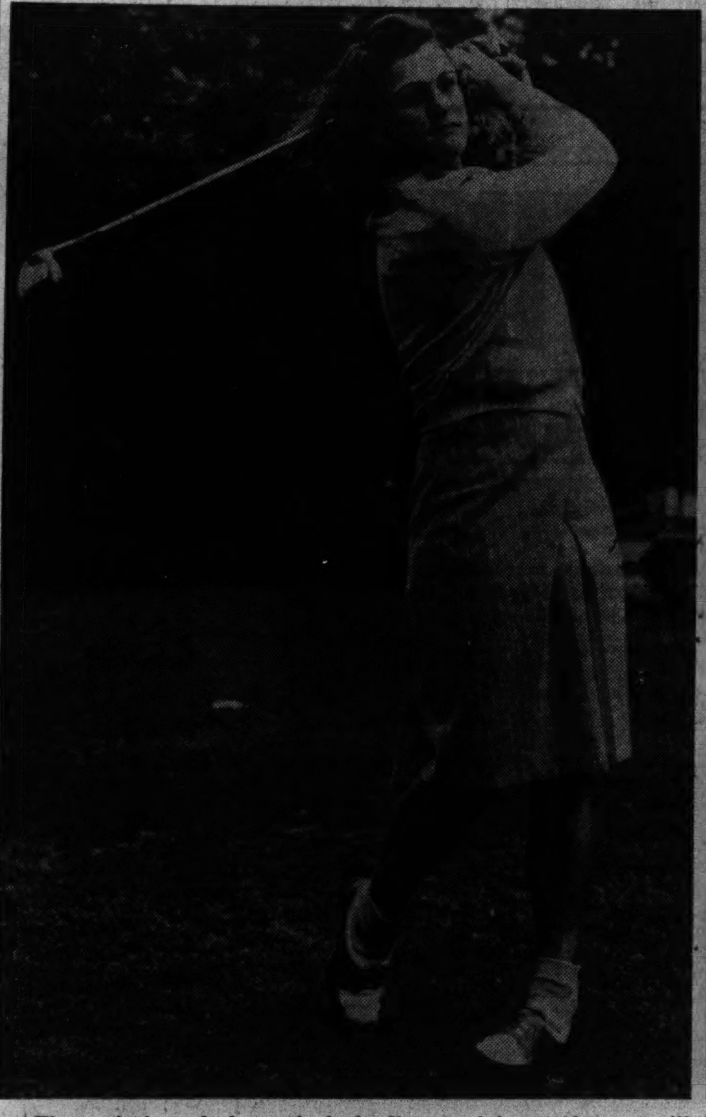
Following tomorrow's qualifying round, the field will go to work at match play Tuesday morning. They will repeat the forenoon schedule on Wednesday, but Thursday's quarter-finals as well as the semi-finals on Friday, will be afternoon sessions. Saturday's title match will be at 36 holes.

The qualifying scores tomorrow will form the first half of the 1944 contest for the Marion Miley, named for the late Kentucky star who was a regular figure in all W. W. G. A. tourneys before her death. The trophy is awarded to the golfer having the lowest combined qualifying scores for the Open and the Amateur. The latter will be held the week of Aug. 7 at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest.

Broncos Elect Compton Honorary Captain of Nine

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 17 [Special].—Bernie Compton, Flint, Mich., has been elected as the honorary 1944 captain of the Western Michigan college baseball team. Compton, shortstop for the Broncos a year ago, was shifted to second year. He was also a member of the Broncos' basketball team last winter.

CONTENDERS FOR OPEN GOLF TITLE



The majority of the nation's leading feminine golf stars will compete in the 15th annual Women's Western Open starting tomorrow at the Park Ridge course. Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Didrikson Zaharias, rated as one of the greatest all-around women athletes in history and 1940 champion, is one of the leading contenders.

Defending champion 2d Lt. Patty Berg, shown above cooling off after a practice round, who won the title last year and in 1941, didn't expect to get away from her duties in the marine corps to compete, but she was recently transferred to the Chicago district and figures to put up a stiff fight for the 1944 crown. YOUNGSTERS TO GO TO SCHOOL FOR BASEBALL!

Nearly 3,000 boys, 17 years of age and under, are expected to attend baseball schools in 40 parks thruout the city in prepartion for the Liberty amateur league which begins next month under sponsorship of the Old Timers' Baseball association in coöperation with the Chicago park district and the city of Chicago. The youngsters will organize into 160 teams for the league competition.

Most of the baseball school sessions will meet on Saturdays at 10 a. m. and two or three weekday afternoons from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. Each team's roster will be limited to 11 players. Championship games in the league will be played in late August or early September in Wrigley field.

ROUND-OF-WEEK
The 148's shot by Al Huske and Jack Grout in Illinois P. G. A. trials.

SHOT-OF-THE-WEEK
Any shot made this week in the Women's Western Open on the Pk. Ridge course.

THE Locker Room today salutes the Women's Western Golf association and the grand field it has attracted for its 15th annual Open tournament, beginning with tomorrow's 18 hole qualifying round at the Park Ridge Country club. . . . Even in the peace time years, it would be difficult to find a competitive company with such proven brilliance as the young ladies who will battle thru the next six days for one of the most valued titles in the game. . . . Two of the favorites to win, both of them winners of the championship, can be seen this afternoon in the special exhibition match getting under way at Park Ridge at 2 o'clock. . . . They are 2d Lt. Patty Berg of the marines and Mrs. Mildred Didrikson Zaharias. . . . The latter won the title in 1940, while Lt. Berg scored in 1941 and last year. . . . Lt. Berg will team up with Pvt. Chick Harbert and Mrs. Zaharias will have Storekeeper Mike Stolarik of Great Lakes as her partner. . . . It is interesting to note that the proceeds of this match, as well as those of the W. W. G. A.'s Open and amateur tournaments, will go toward the recreational needs of the new Vaughan General hospital for convalescent veterans of World War II. . . . Tickets for this afternoon's match are $1.20.

Pros, Amateurs Pick Clubs Most Likely to Be Used in Open.

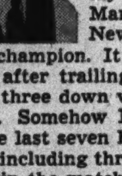
A jury of leading pros and amateurs have selected the following clubs most likely to be used in playing the Edgewater course during the Chicago Victory National tournaments there on June 28, 29, 30, and July 1 and 2. . . . In the playing order of the holes, they are: No. 1—driver and 7 iron; No. 2—2 iron; No. 3—driver and 7 iron; No. 4—4 iron; No. 5—two woods; No. 6—driver and 2 iron or 3 wood; No. 7—driver and 5 iron; No. 8—8 iron; No. 9—driver and 6 iron; No. 10—7 iron; No. 11—driver and 6 iron; No. 12—driver and 5 iron; No. 13—driver and 6 iron; No. 14—two woods; No. 15—two woods; No. 16—driver and wedge; No. 17—5 iron; No. 18—driver and 6 iron. . . . Dr. Conrad F. Nordholm, Oak Park dentist, recently joined the hole-in-one elect by dropping a No. 4 iron shot into the cup at the 185 yard 6th hole of the Hillside club. . . . The feat was performed before the same four men who have played golf with the doctor every Wednesday for the last 10 years. . . . Everette Leonard announces a big tournament for Wisconsin amateur golfers at the Butte des Morts club on June 25. . . . Entries close tomorrow. . . . $500 in victory bonds and merchandise will be offered.

The Inquiring Golfer

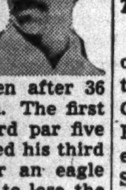
THE QUESTION.

What was the most thrilling championship final match in which you ever competed? [Asked at 1944 Champion of Champions tournament.]

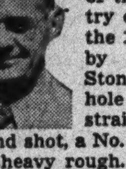
THE ANSWERS.



George Dawson, Glen Oak—My most thrilling championship final proved to be the closest call I ever had in a golf match. It occurred in the 1942 club championship at Winged Foot, where my opponent was Mark Stuart, former New York Metropolitan champion. It was a 36 hole final and after trailing from the start I was three down with seven holes to play. Somehow I managed to play those last seven holes in four under par, including three birdies in a row, to win the match, one up.



Russell Martin, Flossmoor—When you lose a match on the 37th hole after shooting a birdie it may not be exactly thrilling, but it's tough. And that's what happened to me in the finals of the 1928 club championship at Flossmoor, where my opponent was Strange Lyons. We were all even after 36 holes of a see-saw match. The first extra hole was a 507 yard par five layout. My opponent holed his third shot from 211 yards for an eagle while I got a birdie only to lose the match one up.



F. M. [Ted] Quinn, Big Foot—The one I'll always remember is the third shot I played on the 385 yard final hole of the Big Foot Country club, where I won the 1943 championship by defeating Bee Stone, one up, in a 36 hole final. I had a nice straight drive, but my second shot, a No. 4 wood, wandered into heavy rough. Bee was back of the green, and nearly holed his chip shot, which hopped out of the cup. I chose a No. 9 iron for my approach from the left side of the green and hit it within seven feet of the cup, whence I holed out to retain my one up advantage.

ONLY WASTED 34 PITCHES.

Jim Tobin made 95 pitches while acquiring that recent no-hitter. He made the fewest pitches [5] in the eighth inning and the most [16] in the ninth. Only 34 of the pitches were called balls.

JOE MISKOVIC, professional at Evergreen, reports that Babe Ahearn made a birdie the hard way at the south side daily fee course's 146 yard third. . . . She holed an 8 iron from 12 yards off the green. . . . Dr. Robert E. Graf, Skokie optometrist, is building himself quite a reputation as a deuce shooter. . . . Last Sunday, he sank his second shot, made with a 4 wood, at the 398 yard first hole of Old Orchard. . . . Last year, at the same course, he holed a No. 5 iron second at the 495 yard third. . . . Admission price for the All-American tournament at Tam o' Shanter from Aug. 21 to 27 will be 83 cents, plus tax. . . . The Builders' Tee club will hold its annual spring tournament Tuesday at Oak Hills. . . . $100 in prizes will be offered. . . . Chick Evans, dean of Edgewater players, predicts that the north side course may give the smart field entered more than its share of trouble. . . . "Wind conditions over the course are most uncertain," Chick said the other day. "Unless a fellow is able to guess with the wind, he is likely to find the breezes carrying ball into the rough, under bushes, or back of the trees that line our compact fairways."

Public Links Association Plans Team Matches Today.

The second round team matches of the Illinois Public Links association will be held this afternoon at Columbus park. . . . The leading Bonnie Brook team will be considerably weakened by the loss of Storekeeper Mike Stolarik, who is playing in this afternoon's exhibition match at Park Ridge. . . . On the other hand, the Mid-City team will be strengthened by the addition of Moe Springer, former county champion, and Columbus park itself will have an able reinforcement in Lou Lemke, who is home on furlough after serving two years with the navy Seabees in Trinidad. . . . Bob o' Link's Hulabaloo, one of the few two day invitationals to survive the war, will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, with President Lloyd Maxwell anticipating another large field. The 17th annual midwest championship will be held at Lincoln park July 17-22. . . . Other leading park and fee tournaments already scheduled are the 20th annual best ball tourney at Mid-City on July 30 and Aug. 6 and 7, the 27th county tournament at Columbus park Aug. 21-26, and the first Illinois Public Links meet at Mid-City on Sept. 8, 9, and 10.

Harris Till, La Grange, beat Allan Hess, Hinsdale, 7-5, 6-3.
Herbert Keil, Western Springs, defeated Dick Schmidt, Hinsdale, 6-2, 6-4.
Second Round.
George Fricke, Western Springs, defeated Jack Sherman, Hinsdale, 6-0, 6-0.

LIST 9 GAMES ON MIDWEST LEAGUE SCHEDULE TODAY

Admiral Radio of Chicago, with several new names in its lineup, including two former American association players, will attempt to avenge an earlier 9 to 2 defeat today when it faces Krier's Skokie Indians in Skokie's Oakton park in a Midwest league game. Walter Laskowski, Toledo catcher, and John Bender, southpaw pitcher who was with Kansas City earlier in the season, are the newest addition to radio roster.

Two unbeaten teams, Oak Lawn and the Fernwood All-Stars, out to keep their records intact, will tackle industrial teams. The All-Stars, winners of five straight, play Woodlawn Radio at 104th st. and Wallace av. in the only Chicago game, while out in Oak Lawn the home team strives for its eighth consecutive league victory against Engle Sheppard of Harvey.

Today's schedule:

Admiral Radio vs. Krier's Skokie Indians in Oakton park, Skokie; Engle Sheppard vs. Oak Lawn at 91st st. and Cicero av., Oak Lawn; Chicago Firemen vs. Benda Coals at 31st st. and East End av., Berwyn; Woodlawn Radio vs. Fernwood All-Stars at 104th st. and Wallace av.; Ace Fasteners at Arlington Heights; Chicago Hornets vs. Cole-Lenzis at Hodgkins, Ill.; Petrones vs. Harvey Moose at 143d st. and Chicago av., Dalton, Ill.; Chicago Pirates vs. Johnson Seahorses at Waukegan, Ill.; Semi-Swingers vs. Vaughn General Hospital at Hines, Ill.

RED SOX 15-HIT ATTACK ROUTS SENATORS, 11-4

Boston's Rally in Third Inning Nets 5 Runs.

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox blasted the offerings of Roger Wolff, Alex Carrasquel, and Bill Lefebvre for 15 hits tonight to trounce the Washington Senators, 11 to 4.

Joe Bowman yielded only six hits and held the Senators in check after the Sox broke loose in the third with a five run rally that put them ahead of the Senators.

Bob Johnson, former Senator, pounded out three singles and a double to spark the Sox slugfest.

Wolff was hammered for eight hits, including six in the third when he was replaced by Carrasquel. The Sox added three hits off Carrasquel and four more off Lefebvre.

YANKS, A'S DIVIDE.

New York, June 17 (AP).—A four run rally in the seventh inning, featured by Frank Hayes' triple with two on base, gave the Athletics a 5 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees in the second game of a double header today, to earn them an even split. The Yankees beat Philadelphia, 2 to 1, in the first game.

The victory ended the Athletics losing streak of six games. After holding the Mackmen scoreless for six innings, Bill Zuber blew a three run lead and was replaced by Jim Turner.

Hayes greeted Turner with a triple to tie the score and Dick Gilbert followed with a long fly to score Hayes with the deciding run. The A's added another tally in the ninth.

Don Black started badly, yielding three runs in the first but held the champions in check the rest of the game, to gain his fourth victory of the year. Turner was the loser.

Atley Donald hurled a five hit game to outpitch Jesse Flores in the opener. Oscar Grimes accounted for the winning run in the third inning, his triple scoring Nick Etten who had walked.

BROWNS, 5; TIGERS, 0.

Detroit, Mich., June 17 (AP).—The league leading St. Louis Browns continued their mastery over the Detroit Tigers today with Sigmund Jakucki hurling a seven hit shutout as the Browns won, 5 to 0, for their seventh victory in eight games against Detroit this season.

Johnny Gorsica, Detroit's starting pitcher, only yielded the Browns six hits, but in the sixth inning, after hitting Al Zarilla with a pitched ball and walking George McQuinn, he tossed a home run ball to Mark Christman.

St. Louis opened the scoring in the third inning when Myron Hayworth singled and was forced at second by Jakucki who went to third on Don Guttridge's double and scored after Zarilla's long fly.

Boxing Coach Tells How He Foiled Nazis

dom and the fact he is back with his wife Anna, and daughter Yolan, 6, to the loyalty of Italian fight fans and boxers, many of whom proved to be anti-Fascists when the chips were down. When the Germans attempted to seize him after the Italian armistice, it was a boxer in the police department of the town in northern Italy, where he had been interned, who tipped him off, enabling him to flee to another town, where he hid for two months.

Then, when he decided to travel back to Rome thru enemy territory, it was a fight manager and coach and his friend, Luigi Proletti, who arranged for him, his wife and daughter to ride an empty supply truck. Luigi himself, and Luigi's brother, Roberto, a well known Italion lightweight, accompanied him on the trip when identification probably would have meant a firing squad for all.

A Friendly Policeman Comes to Steve's Aid.

Later it was a fight fan in the Rome police department, who warned him the Fascists were preparing a raid on Luigi's apartment where he and his family were staying. The warning enabled him to hop out of a window and escape down a fire escape as the feet of the raiding party could be heard tramping up the front stairs of the building located on the outskirts of the city.

"I decided that night that the only hope was to get into the Vatican," he said. "I sneaked a ride on a truck going thru the gates and then got out and walked around trying to attract atention. I might as well have been sightseeing. Every time I brushed against the guards they either apologized or said hello. But when I began talking English they took me into custody, asked me were I came from and told me to leave. I said I wouldn't and they turned me over to Father McGree, who is attached to the United States embassy in the Vatican.

"He took me to the American college, where there were some American doctors and flyers. Some had been hurt making parachute jumps. I was glad to be able to help them with massages and other treatment.

"I spent five months there. We built a secret dugout big enough to accommodate all after we had been alerted a number of times by Nazi raids. They never came, but we really expected them the night just before the city fell when we heard they were planning to seize all Vatican vehicles to speed their flight."

Plan Fight Shows to Entertain Allied Troops.

Meanwhile, Steve continued, his wife and daughter had stayed for several weeks in Luigi's apartment, posing as the latter's relatives, but when the Fascists ordered a survey of all registered citizens, it became necessary to find a place of sanctuary for them. Faithful Luigi, who is a smiling, baldish, wirey chap and still in tiptop condition, put them on his bicycle and pedalled them in broad daylight to another hideout. There they remained in safety until Rome was liberated.

Now the Klaus family is together again, and Steve and Luigi are planning a series of fight shows to entertain allied troops in this region. Altho it is his firm belief that the refusal of many Italian sportsmen to bow to fascism augurs well for the future of the sport in this country, Steve said he is going back home to America to stay after the war. He explained it was only a business arrangement that brought him over in the first place, and the Fascists refused to permit him to leave after the declaration of war against France.

Klaus was Olympic coach for the Italians in 1932 and for the Hungarians in the 1936 games. He brought an Italian team over to oppose the Golden Gloves champions in Chicago in 1939 and 1940. Among his possessions, which he managed to hide from Mussolini's strong armers, is his scrap book which has scores of clippings by Tribune writers, Arch Ward, Wilfrid Smith, Stewart Owen, and others.

"Tell all those fellows hello," he said. "I haven't forgotten them and hope I'll be around for one of the next Golden Gloves shows."

Indians Hosts to Sox in Two Games Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., June 17.—The Chicago White Sox, highly pleased over their 3 to 1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in a thriller ball game here last night, were able to look forward to beating Ed Eleiman and Vernon Kennedy in a double header tomorrow. Kleiman hasn't started since April and the Sox had no trouble pinning back Kennedy's ears when they faced him here early in May.

Included in the plans to extend their season edge over the Indians —they now have won four out of six—is the expectation that Bill Dietrich will continue to be as good as he was in most of his six victories to date and that Lefty Thornton Lee will be given some runs to go with his heretofore good but futile pitching.

Delay Trip to St. Louis.

The Sox will not hasten out of Cleveland after their double header tomorrow. They are going to stay here until Monday night before taking off for St. Louis. It isn't that the Sox are terrified by the Browns and want to stay out of St. Louis just as long as they can. By staying here until Monday night they will be clear of the week-end railroad jam.

The Sox have played fewer games than any other team in the league —six fewer than the Indians and three fewer than the Yankees, next to them in the layoff classification. This state of affairs appears to be a potential advantage to the Sox inasmuch as they have lost fewer games than five of the teams in the league. They have lost one more than the leading Browns and the same number as the second place Red Sox.

Schedule Near Saturation Point.

Thus the shortage of games played is on the right side of the ledger—games they still have a chance to win in catching up numerically in the total of number of games played. Baseball mathematicians always keep a close eye to the rating "on the lost side" for those are games that dismally are in the books for keeps.

The Sox think they have the second string pitching to catch them up when the double headers become thicker, but their schedule is nearing the saturation point in desirable postponements, of which they have a dozen at home, and only two abroad. One of these will be played off Tuesday in St. Louis in a twilight-night double header. The other road postponement was in Detroit. The Sox have played all their scheduled games in the east this year.

Negro Giants and Cleveland Battle Today

The Negro American league's top hitting clubs and leading individuals in the batting averages clash in Comiskey park this afternoon at 1:30 when the Chicago American Giants return home for the first time since May 11 to meet the Cleveland Buckeyes in a double header sponsored by the national convention of Negro Elks.

Cleveland leads the league in hitting with a team with a mark of .246, followed by Chicago's .245. Manager Parnell Woods, third baseman, and Sam Jethroe, center fielder, of the Buckeyes share the individual lead with .382. Archie Ware, Cleveland first baseman, is hitting .328 for seventh. The American Giants' top batter is Outfielder George Minor with .324.

Manager Lloyd [Ducky] Davenport has named Gread McKinnis, southpaw, and Gentry Jessup, right hander, as his starting hurlers with Leroy Sutton and Al Jones in reserve. Cleveland will use Eugene Bremmer and Willie Jefferson.

DODGERS BEAT PHILS, 4-3.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 17 (AP).—Brooklyn's Dodgers took advantage of a pair of Philly errors to score four runs in the ninth and defeat Philadelphia, 4 to 3, today, for the second straight time.

Up to then, Bill Lee had yielded only one hit, to the first batter of the game, Stan Bordagaray. Paul Waner began the ninth with a base on Ted Ceislak's fumble. Luis Olmo walked and Bordagaray singled in the first run. Goody Rosen was safe on Lee's high throw, and Augie Galan tied the score with a double, scoring Olmo and Bordagaray.

Mickey Owen's single off Bernie Mussill, who replaced Lee, scored Rosen with the winning run.

Whit Wyatt made his first start since June 4 and received credit for the victory, his first of the year. He retired in the ninth inning for a pinch hitter and Hal Gregg finished up for him.

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Truax Field.

PVT. JACK MUNGER, former ranking national amateur golfer from Dallas, Tex., recently reported for duty at this establishment. . . . Shortly after his arrival he caused considerable comment by shooting a 72, one over par, at the Blackhawk Country club, near this camp at Madison, Wis. . . . Then that's nothing unusual for Munger, even tho it was his first round of golf since he paired with Jug Spaden in the New Orleans Open last February. . . . When only 18 and a prep school student in 1933 Jack shot a 70 in the United States amateur tournament at the Kenwood Country club in Cincinnati, the score equaling Ross Somerville's winning score for the championship the previous year.

Pvt. Jack Munger

Glenview Air Station.

LT. WILLIAM J. CERNEY, Glenview athletic officer, yesterday set the dates for the station boxing tournament. . . . Preliminary bouts will be held June 29 and 30, while the finals will be contested July 3. . . . Judges will be Police Sgt. H. K. Vance and Lt. Robert Dowling. . . . Tommy Thomas and Dave Miller will referee. . . . Lt. Dowling is a native of Chicago and formerly competed as a featherweight. . . . A large number of aviation cadets and enlisted men are working out for the impending meet under the direction of Lt. Martin Levandowski, ex-professional light heavyweight headliner. . . . The Glenview baseball team will meet the Falk corporation of Milwaukee here this afternoon. . . . The flyers also will face the 87th St. Naval Training school in a Midwest Service Men's league contest at this station next Saturday . . . The Glenview players evened the score with Bunker Hill when they defeated the latter nine in a return game on Wednesday, 7 to 3. . . . Previously Bunker Hill emerged victorious, 9 to 8.

Fort Sheridan.

FORT Sheridan's baseball standard bearers, who beat the Douglas Flyers, 3 to 0, and then lost to George field, 14 to 3, last week, will try an iron man role when they play two games in different cities today. They will play in New Holstein, Wis., this afternoon and then will head for Sheboygan for a contest tonight . . . The soldiers also will face the Johnson Seahorses at Waukegan Tuesday, the Peoria Caterpillars in Peoria Thursday, and the University of Chicago Radio school at this establishment Saturday. . . . The latter is a Midwest Service Men's league game. . . . In the embarrassment the soldiers suffered at the hands of George field, Tony Pacotti of Kincaid, outfielder from Kincaid, Ill., distinguished himself in the field and at bat. . . . He got three hits, half of his team's total.

Camp Grant.

LT. JOHN WRIGHT of Detroit has been appointed athletic officer at this camp, replacing Lt. Bob Harris, who left Wednesday on a new assignment which eventually will take him overseas. . . . Lt. Wright will make his first appearance at a major event when the post boxing team meets Fort Sheridan representatives at Fort Sheridan June 29. . . . Boxers will resume workouts tomorrow, starting at 6 p. m., under the supervision of Sgt. Lou Woods, camp boxing instructor. . . . Among those to report will be Pvt. Vince Pellegrini, Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight graduate, and Pvt. Al Prislinger, Catholic Youth organization welterweight champion last year. . . . Home and home matches have been arranged with Camp McCoy, Camp Ellis, Fort Custer, and Granite City, as well as Fort Sheridan. . . . A double no-hit game was pitched last week in the Battalion Baseball league competition when the 27th beat the 28th, 1 to 0. . . . Sgt. William Miller of the 27th pitched perfect ball, striking out 11, and was given errorless support in the twilight contest, which went seven innings. . . . Pvt. John Morris, his opponent, also pitched hitless ball, but issued four passes and was troubled by three errors committed by his mates.

Great Lakes.

THE Great Lakes Bluejackets, who defeated Notre Dame last Sunday, 8 to 2, will give the university nine an opportunity to obtain revenge when they play a return game in South Bend this afternoon. . . . Lt. Comdr. Mickey Cochrane's men also will play the Lawrence college V-12 trainees at Appleton, Wis., Thursday, and an All-Star team at Grand Rapids Saturday. . . . In addition to conquering Notre Dame in the last week, the Bluejackets beat Purdue, DePauw, the St. Louis Browns, and the Milwaukee Brewers. . . . Conquest of the Brewers was the 14th in a row for the sailors.

Cardinals Win 2 to 1 Decision Over Pirates

St. Louis, Mo., June 17 (AP).—George Kurowski's tenth home run of the season gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 2 to 1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight.

George Munger, the National league's leading pitcher, outdueled Elwyn [Preacher] Roe and Nick Strincevich to gain his eighth triumph of the season.

$5,000 LINCOLN HANDICAP WON BY VALDINA FOE

Choppy Sea 2d, Equifox 3d as Meeting Ends.

was held close to the pace set by Choppy Sea after leaving the back stretch. Then Grohs moved him into command as he drew out easily in the last eighth of a mile, altho Choppy Sea, under a hustling ride by Jess Higley, showed good speed and still was moving fast at the finish.

The secondary feature, the $2,000 Au Revoir handicap for 3 years olds and up at six furlongs, went to Bright Willie, a veteran campaigner which hadn't won a race since opening day at Sportsman's Park. The 5 year old son of Brilliant-Sweet Face, owned jointly by Mrs. A. M. Creech and Mrs. Ralph McIlvain, and with Higley aboard, came from third place in a stretch drive to beat out the favorite, Ruditaurus. Vinus was third.

Daily Double Pays $27.80.

Yesterday's double refund was one of the shortest of the Chicago season, $27.80 on Greville's victory in the first race and Orchard Run's triumph in the second. Greville, ridden by Claude Hooper, paid $9.40. Orchard Run, with Willie Morrisey aboard, returned $3.60 after going to the post a 4 to 5 favorite and winning by two lengths in a field of 11.

The suspension of Jackie Martin, apprentice jockey, was extended seven days by the Illinois Racing board at its meeting yesterday. Martin was set down last Tuesday for the remainder of the Lincoln Fields' meeting, with the recommendation of the steward that he be given an additional seven days for his infraction of riding rules. In this race his mount finished first, but was disqualified.

GREEN PROPOSES ANNUAL SPORTS D-DAY PROGRAM

Gov. Dwight H. Green yesterday launched a program to make every June 6, the anniversary of D-day, a day of special sports events thruout Illinois for the relief of World War II. veterans, their widows, and orphans.

In a letter to Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing board, the governor gave approval to the idea of such an observance of D-day, which was first suggested by Maj. Williams in an interview in New York on that date. The governor asked Maj. Williams to take steps to enlist the leaders in all amateur and professional sports in Illinois and the sporting editors of Illinois newspapers behind the program.

READY FOR OPENING OF NATION'S RICHEST TURF MEETING

The nation's richest turf meeting of 1944 opens tomorrow at Washington Park and there's plenty of evidence that the Homewood track is ready for the start of the co-ordinated Arlington-Washington Park 70 day meet. Scenes above are typical of activity during the last week as final preparations were made for opening day . . . the sound and fury of an age old sport. . . . The air is heavy with harness, arnica, and fresh hay smells. . . . Lights twinkle at early dawn in the stable area. . . . Seats are freshly painted. . . . Lawns are mowed. . . . The staccato beats of the early pacers are heard.

5 WINNERS AT DETROIT PICKED BY HANDICAPPER

The Tribune race handicapper batted a percentage of .625 at Detroit yesterday. He picked five winners in the eight race program at the Fair Grounds track. The winners were Cherry Crush, Sobriquet, Black Badge, Samborombon, and Starway.

Cherry Crush won the second race and paid $7.10. Sobriquet took the third at $7. Black Badge, the best bet of the day, paid $3.80 in winning the sixth, Samborombon returned $7.40 in the seventh, and Starway won the eighth at $7.

BREEZING ALONG

THE old turf adage, "good riders follow good horses," will be in evidence during the nation's richest meeting, the $1,700,000 coördinated Arlington-Washington Park meet, which gets under way at Washington Park tomorrow . . . America's foremost jockeys will be seen in competition during the banner 70 day session . . . Heading the list of star saddlesmiths is Eddie Arcaro, regarded by veteran horsemen as the greatest in the business . . . Eddie is under contract to Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable . . . The stable has 14 prospective stake engagements in the Arlington-Washington program which means that Arcaro will do plenty of riding . . . George [The Iceman] Woolf, so nicknamed because of his coolness when the heavy "sugar" is at stake . . . Woolf has been handling the W. P. Chrysler star string with marked success . . . Chrysler has some eight eligibles for local stakes.

Eddie Arcaro.

Conn McCreary Will Handle Calumet Farm Horses.

Johnny Longden, Count Fleet's rider . . . He's been with the John Hertz stable for several seasons and the small but select group is expected to participate in the meeting . . . Johnny has been riding extensively for Col. C. V. Whitney, who has a flock of eligibles for the rich 3 year old fixtures and the 2 year old headliners. Conn McCreary, currently leading the parade as the leading money rider . . . Conn will be busy handling the mounts of the Calumet Farm, the stable of champions, with Pensive, Twilight Tear, Sun Again, Mar-Kell, and other star thorobreds . . . The stable is out in front now with almost $300,000 in winning purses and there's great inducements in Arlington-Washington's record offering.

Conn McCreary.

Otto Grohs, Tony Skoronski Expect to Be Busy.

Otto Grohs, one of the top riders of the Lincoln Fields meeting, is going to be busy with the John Marsch string . . . Grohs was fifth among the money winners in 1943 . . . Chicago's own Tony Skoronski . . . Skoronski recently underwent an appendectomy and will resume riding at the rich meeting . . . He rides for the Brolite Farm.

C. V. Whitney Challenge Cup Received by Arlington Officials.

The C. V. Whitney Challenge cup, the trophy which will be placed up for the first time in the Equipoise Mile race at Washington Park Saturday, has been received by the Arlington park managment . . . The cup is 26 inches high and was made in London, England, more than 100 years ago. . . . Col. Whitney, under whose colors the great Equipoise ran to many stirring victories, selected it after a long search for a trophy suitable for the race commemorating the world record mile which his game little horse ran at Arlington Park in 1932.

70 DAY MEET TO OPEN TOMORROW AT WASHINGTON

One of the nation's outstanding racing meetings in point of general interest, grade of thorobreds, and size and number of purses will open tomorrow at Washington Park in Homewood for a stretch of 70 days.

The Arlington-Washington Park coördinated meeting, which will be highlighted by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., week of racing for charity and war funds, July 3 to July 7, calls for the distribution of almost $1,750,000 in purses. There will be no stake even for less than $10,000 in added money, while five have purses of $50,000.

There are 24 stakes in all, 10 of which will carry more than the $10,000 minimum. Total money for stakes amount to $490,000 and there will be almost a million dollars for overnight races, the balance coming from nomination and starting fees.

Top Horses Entered.

That takes care of the monetary aspect; the kind of horseflesh is another matter. For instance, such established headliners as Sun Again, Pensive, and Twilight Tear of Warren Wright's Calumet Farm; Thumbs Up, Louis B. Mayer's handicap star; Rounders, winner of the Stars and Stripes handicap last year; Occupy and Occupation of John Marsch's stables, are only a few which will be seen under colors during the next two months.

Then, too, the Homewood barns will be full of good colts and promising fillies for the two $25,000 futurities and two $15,000 stakes for fillies alone.

The daily program is such that many of these top-notchers will be seen in action on week days as well as in the stake events. A daily feature race, with an overnight purse of between $2,500 and $5,000, will bring them out. A minimum purse of $1,500 has been set.

List Turf Races.

Grass racing, which has become very popular in Chicago, has a big part in the program, aside from two $10,000 events for that type of racing. There will be one turf race each day, weather permitting, while Thursday will be the official grass day, in that an event over the infield course will be run then for purses ranging from $2,500 to the stake minimum. Every Friday will see a distance feature race on the program.

While the more important stake races will be run on Saturdays and the two holidays, July 4 and Labor day, there will be a mid-week stake every Wednesday with the exception of those weeks when grass stakes are scheduled on Thursdays. Every Monday, with the exception of Labor day, will be ladies' day.

Plan Opening Ceremonies.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, John D. Allen, and Walter Gregory, officials of the two tracks, will take part in opening day ceremonies dedicating the meeting to an observance of the centennial of Chicago racing. Just before the first race at 3 o'clock they will gather in the infield to raise an Illinois state flag bearing a design which commemorates the fact that thorobreds first matched their speed under recognized auspices here 100 years ago.

As was the case last season, the sport will be supervised by an amplified board of six stewards, placed at strategic intervals around the track. Everything possible has been done to assure the public and the horsemen of the finest racing in Chicago's history.

Announce Train Schedule.

In order to provide the best possible accommodations for the fans and the highest type of operating conditions for the horsemen, an ambitious program of remodeling and rebuilding has been completed at the Homewood course under the supervision of General Manager John D. Jackson. Lindheimer, executive director of the track, is confident that the main track and the stable areas now equal or surpass those of any other course in America.

The Illinois Central electric railroad will have five trains leaving the Randolph st. station from 10 a. m. to 2:10 p. m. daily. On Saturdays and holidays they will have seven trains. The trains are in the regular service maintained by the railroad. Post time on Saturdays will be 2:15 and on holidays 2 o'clock.

BY JIMMINY AT 2 TO 1 CAPTURES SHEVLIN STAKES

Beats Stir Up by Five Lengths; Pays $6.30.

New York, June 17 (AP).—Alfred Parker's By Jimminy, a 2 to 1 shot, made a show of the $10,000 Shevlin stakes at Aqueduct today, finishing the mile and one-sixteenth race five lengths ahead of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Stir Up.

A crowd of 31,162 that wagered $2,793,373 on eight races also saw William Woodward's Apache, a $3.40 favorite, set a new track record of 1:04 4-5 in winning the secondary feature, the 5½ furlong Hermes handicap, by four lengths over Brownie.

Leads All the Way.

By Jimminy, ridden by Jockey Ted Atkinson, got away fast and led all the way. Stir Up, the beaten favorite in the Kentucky Derby, challenged in the stretch, but could not gain. Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Stymie closed a big gap in taking the show.

Autocrat, Appleknocker, George Case, Ariel Flight, Who Goes There, Galactic, Shut Up, Onecbill, and Freezeout completed the 12 horse field in the race regarded as a prep for the $50,000 Dwyer next Saturday. By Jimminy was timed in 1:45 2-5 and earned $8,950. He paid $6.30 straight.

BLACK BADGE TRIUMPHS

Detroit, Mich., June 17 (AP).—While workmen were clearing the debris of an early morning stable fire, Abe Hirschberg's Black Badge ran the fastest six furlongs of the Detroit race meeting today to win the $10,000 Ann Arbor handicap before 1[illegible]22 fans.

The black colt ran the distance in 1:11 1-5 under Jockey Johnny Adams and paid $3.80 straight. Charles T. Fisher's Amber Light, the second choice, stumbled at the start and finished out of the money. Night Crawler was second, a length off the pace, and Likeasnot was third.

The victory was the eighth in nine starts at the Detroit track for Black Badge. It likewise was the colt's seventh triumph in 12 starts this year, boosting its 1944 earnings to $29,475. A total of $587,760 was wagered on the eight races.

Hulse, Parker Win Titles in A. A. U. Track

BOOST HEALTH OF CHICAGO HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS

As part of the nation's physical fitness program, Chicago high school boys and girls will be given general physical examinations and all will participate in a national recreational setup.

Plans for this project were announced yesterday by the American Medical association. At its recent meeting in Chicago, a committee to coöperate with the national advisory council on physical fitness was named. It includes:

This group, after a meeting with leading educators and others interested in physical fitness, decided on the Chicago high school program. Those on the latter committee included:

Col. Leonard G. Rowntree, medical director, selective service system; L. B. Icely, president, Wilson and company; Arch Ward, sports editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE; Herb Grafis, Chicago Times, and August H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education in the Chicago schools.

DETROIT LIONS MAKE FIGHTING MARINE HAPPY

Detroit, Mich., June 17 (AP).—A marine lieutenant in the South Pacific whose men think he is a former Detroit Lions football player is going to receive a pro contract—sort of an honorary one.

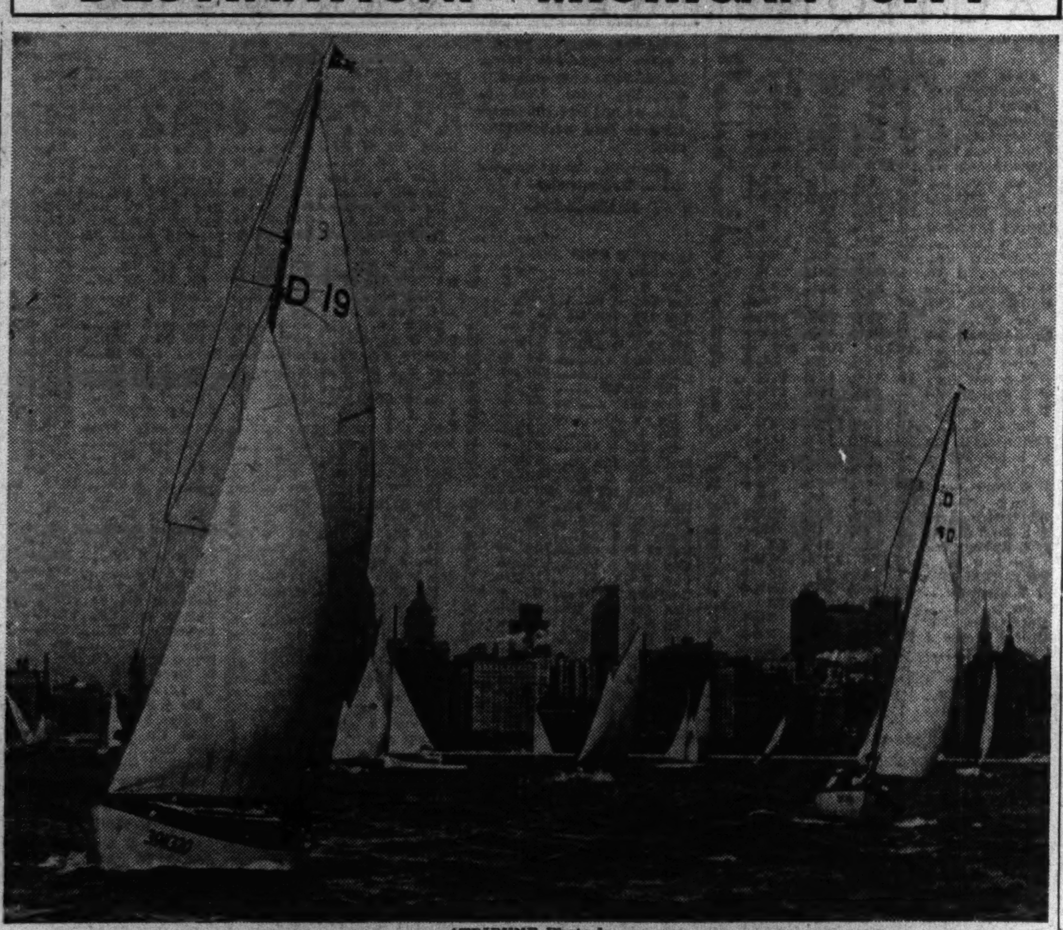
In a letter to Owner Fred L. Mandel Jr., of the Lions, the marine related that an officer had asked him if he ever played football.

"I told him I had played a little back in Detroit, and the fellows just took it for granted that I had played with the Lions," the marine said. "The impression grew and now I can't seem to stop it."

Coach Gus Dorais, sending out the contract, declared:

"We can't let boys like this down and he certainly shall have his chance with Detroit when he returns."

DESTINATION: MICHIGAN CITY



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

With Chicago's skyline as a backdrop, a group of boats heads out into Lake Michigan in the annual Michigan City race yesterday. Del Mar D 19, owned by W. S. Merrian of the Macatawa Bay, Mich., Yacht club, makes a good start, with Comet Cutter D 50 close behind.

2 TITLE GAMES FEATURE SOCCER SCHEDULE TODAY

BY OFFSIDE.

Two games, each of which has a bearing on the final outcome of the International leagues, major and first division, headline today's soccer schedule. The Hakoah-Centers battle the Necaxas in a playoff for the first division crown and the undefeated Schwabens clash with the Vikings in a major division contest. Both games will be played in Hanson park stadium.

The Schwabens can capture the title with a victory today while the Vikings need a triumph to tie for first place and another crack at the Schwabens in a playoff fray.

Necaxas Strengthened.

The match between the Hakoahs and Necaxas may develop into one of the outstanding soccer battles of the spring campaign since the latter club has been strengthened by the addition of several Mexican stars. The Necaxas, who beat the Schwabens in two extra periods in the Kelly cup finals, rules as favorites due to the last minute signing of new players.

The Hakoahs, who lost the services of Max Kassner a week ago when he suffered a broken arm in the game with the Vikings, plan to stand pat on their lineup. The team has lost seven starters since the season opened last fall.

Strengthened by the return of Al O'Hare and Jimmy McDermott to the lineup and with the acquisition of Mons Sebby, Norwegian royal air force flier on leave from duties in Canada, the Vikings entertain hopes of snapping the Schwabens streak. The Schwabens will depend on their usual lineup with the exception that Aloyius Thiet will be back at his usual post along side of Ernie Schaaf at full back.

Honor Laddi Mrnka.

Laddi Mrnka, full back for the Spartas during the past 20 years, will be honored tonight in Sparta stadium when the Croatian Eagles of Milwaukee meet the Spartas in an inter-city match.

The Swedish-Americans and Vikings travel to Aurora tonight to battle for the Swedish soccer championship and trophy.

Hold Former Employee in Detroit Fire

Detroit, Mich., June 17 (AP).—Arson squad detectives tonight detained a dismissed stable hand for questioning concerning an early morning fire that razed two stables at the state fair grounds race track, killed a groom, and destroyed at least 32 race horses.

Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Pasieczns said the man held had confessed setting the fire. Pasieczns said no charge has been filed against him.

The prosecutor asserted that the stable hand had given "revenge" as his motive, and he quoted the man as saying he was angered with George W. Lewis, general manager of the racing association, who had warned him to stay away from the track.

Horses Valued at $200,000.

Lewis expressed belief the fire was of incendiary origin. He placed the value of the horses destroyed at $200,000.

N. T. Mayo of Richmond, Va., who trained seven of the horses lost, told detectives he had ordered the former stable hand from the grounds Friday. James McClellan, a groom, said the man returned later and warned him: "Don't sleep too soundly tonight. Watch out for fire."

The groom who burned to death was David Scott, 56. Half a dozen firemen and track employes were burned or otherwise injured in leading horses to safety.

Bell Buzzer Included.

One owner, David J. Ferguson of Detroit, lost his entire string of five race horses, including Bell Buzzer, which placed seventh in this year's Kentucky Derby. George C. White, Hendersonville, Ky., trainer, lost six of his own horses, a lead pony, and six horses he was training for others.

Altho track officials accounted for only 32 carcasses, their list of burned and missing horses stood at 37 tonight, including three lead ponies with no registered names. Two horses whose names originally were included on the list were accounted for during the day. The list follows:

Thirty-Four Thorobreds Listed.

Bell Buzzer, Wise Colors, Black Skimmer, My Myri, Great Scot, Coffeeman, Wise Duke, Had More, Look Sharp, Exlamatory, Chaca Ballad, El Pueblo, Mar-Geo, Ballie Star, Listen Thor, Harlen Ann, Three Roses, Sunny Bunny, Pilot Rock, White Mystery, Miss Marvel, Golden Reward, Tarantula, Parkdale, Tsus a Bee, Lot o' Sun, Masked Ranger, Stand Alone, Spare Room, Flying Double, Carl Junior, Balboa Park, Natimulo, and Islam Girl.

Lewis said another 50 would be unfit for racing, some for months, because of injuries suffered in the confusion of the fire.

N. U. AWARDS 47 VARSITY LETTERS IN SPRING SPORTS

Forty-seven varsity letters were awarded to the members of the 1944 baseball, track, golf, and tennis teams at Northwestern university, it was announced yesterday by Athletic Director K. L. Wilson. Track led the list with 18 letter winners, baseball was next with 16, followed by tennis with seven, and golf with six.

Thirty-eight of the 47 winners are members of the university's naval V-12 unit. Of the nine civilians to earn letters, five were on the golf team, three on the baseball squad, and one on the tennis team. All of the members of the track squad were in the navy unit. Those who received letters are:

BASEBALL—Dan Murphy and Robert Grueter, Chicago; Ben Schadler, Benton Harbor, Mich.; James Homco, Hammond, Ind.; Larry Savage, Saginaw, Mich.; Robert Lindberg, Winnetka; Bryce Kresie, Topeka, Kas.; Robert Timyan, Flint, Mich.; Don Trompeter, Peru, Ill.; John Hopp, Wilmette; Lyle Anderson, Hebron, Ill.; William Heeman, Hinsdale, Ill.; Burt Schirmann and Robert Remke, Evanston; Art Katheif, St. Louis, and Haydon Anderson, Cadillac, Mich.

PARSONS FACES CHUCK HUNTER IN MARIGOLD BOUT

Bill Parsons, 1939 Chicagoland Golden Gloves featherweight semifinalist, will be in quest of his third straight knockout when he meets Chuck Hunter, Cleveland welterweight, in an eight round bout at Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

Hunter, last year's Golden Gloves lightweight champion, has been stopped only once in eight starts since turning professional last July. He made his Chicago debut as a money fighter by losing a split decision to Terry Gibson on April 10. Chuck has won his last two matches, both in the Marigold arena, his victims being Robert Fowler and Gene Ward.

Parsons twice knocked out Roy Lewis of Muncie, Ind., last month.

Collins Brown, middleweight, and Jimmy Hunt, welterweight, also Golden Gloves graduates, will appear in five round supporting contests, the former against Mickey McKiness of St. Charles, Ill., and Hunt against Refugio Ramirez, Mexico City. An additional five round event will bring together Pug Wilson, Gary heavyweight, and Charley Polk.

Walter Halbo, Milwaukee lightweight, and William Byrd will be principals in a four round opener.

An Australian tag team match will be featured in a wrestling show in White City tomorrow. Whitey Whittler and Carl von Zuppe will be pitted against Angelo Leone and Ivan Kalmikoff. Eddie [Bad Man] Lewis is paired with Morris Shapiro, Kola Kwariani with James [Bad Boy] Brown.

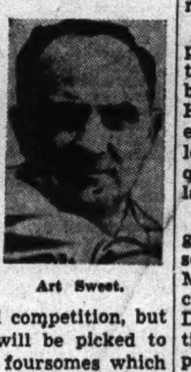
Pacotti New Head Coach of Kincaid High Teams

Kincaid, Ill., June 17 [Special].—John Pacotti, former University of Illinois pitcher, has been named head coach at Kincaid High school. Formerly assistant coach, Pacotti succeeds Joe Lucco, who resigned to become athletic director at Edwardsville.

The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

FOOTBALL players who have battled for positions on the varsity eleven at universities like Notre Dame and Michigan, where — in normal times — squads number more than 100 men during spring practice, would appreciate the stiffness of the competition for places on the golf squad at the Chicago Douglas Aircraft plant this summer. More than 300 Douglas employes have their hearts set on representing the plant in industrial competition, but only 12 of them will be picked to play on the three foursomes which Douglas will enter in the Industrial Amateur Golf association's summer tournament series.



Art Sweet.

This department has heard the statement made a number of times that Douglas has the biggest golf program of any Chicagoland industry this year and these figures indicate that such is the case. You don't have to look very far either to discover at least one big reason for the interest. That is the presence in the plant's labor relations department of Art Sweet. Chicago golf fans know Art as a competitor in amateur tournaments since 1914, as well as a capable writer on the sport. Now he's proving his ability as an industrial golf organizer, working in close coöperation with the plant welfare department headed by Dick Johannsen.

There's Golf Proficiency of Every Degree Among Those 300.

With Art on the plant's golf committee are John Gertenrich, long a prominent Chicago public links figure, and Betty Marchant, who represents the women. They say that the Douglas golfing brigade includes all kinds, from such experts as Pete Daly, district amateur champion 20 years ago and a former C. D. G. A. president, and Charley Ross, whose name has been among the list of leaders in many California meets, down to the most callow of beginners.

Right now Sweet is working on plans for the qualifying round of the Douglas plant tournament, to be held next Sunday at Nordic Hills. This is the event in which he expects to see 300 entries and the low 32 men and 16 women will qualify for match tournament play later.

The plant also has four twilight golf leagues operating on a regular schedule. The leagues play at Mount Prospect Mondays, Old Orchard Tuesdays and Thursdays and Dempster Wednesdays. The regulation round is nine holes of evening play.

Industrial Amateur Association Completes First Round Today.

The first preliminary round in the Industrial Amateur Golf association's tournament, begun last Sunday on four Chicagoland courses, will be finished today, with a field of 100 players shooting their qualifying rounds at Nordic hills. Among the industries which will be represented are Douglas Aircraft, Acme Industrial, Buick Motors, Lindberg Engineering, Liquid Carbonic, Wheelco Instrument, Brad Foote Gear works, William D. Gibson company, and Lake Shore Tool works.

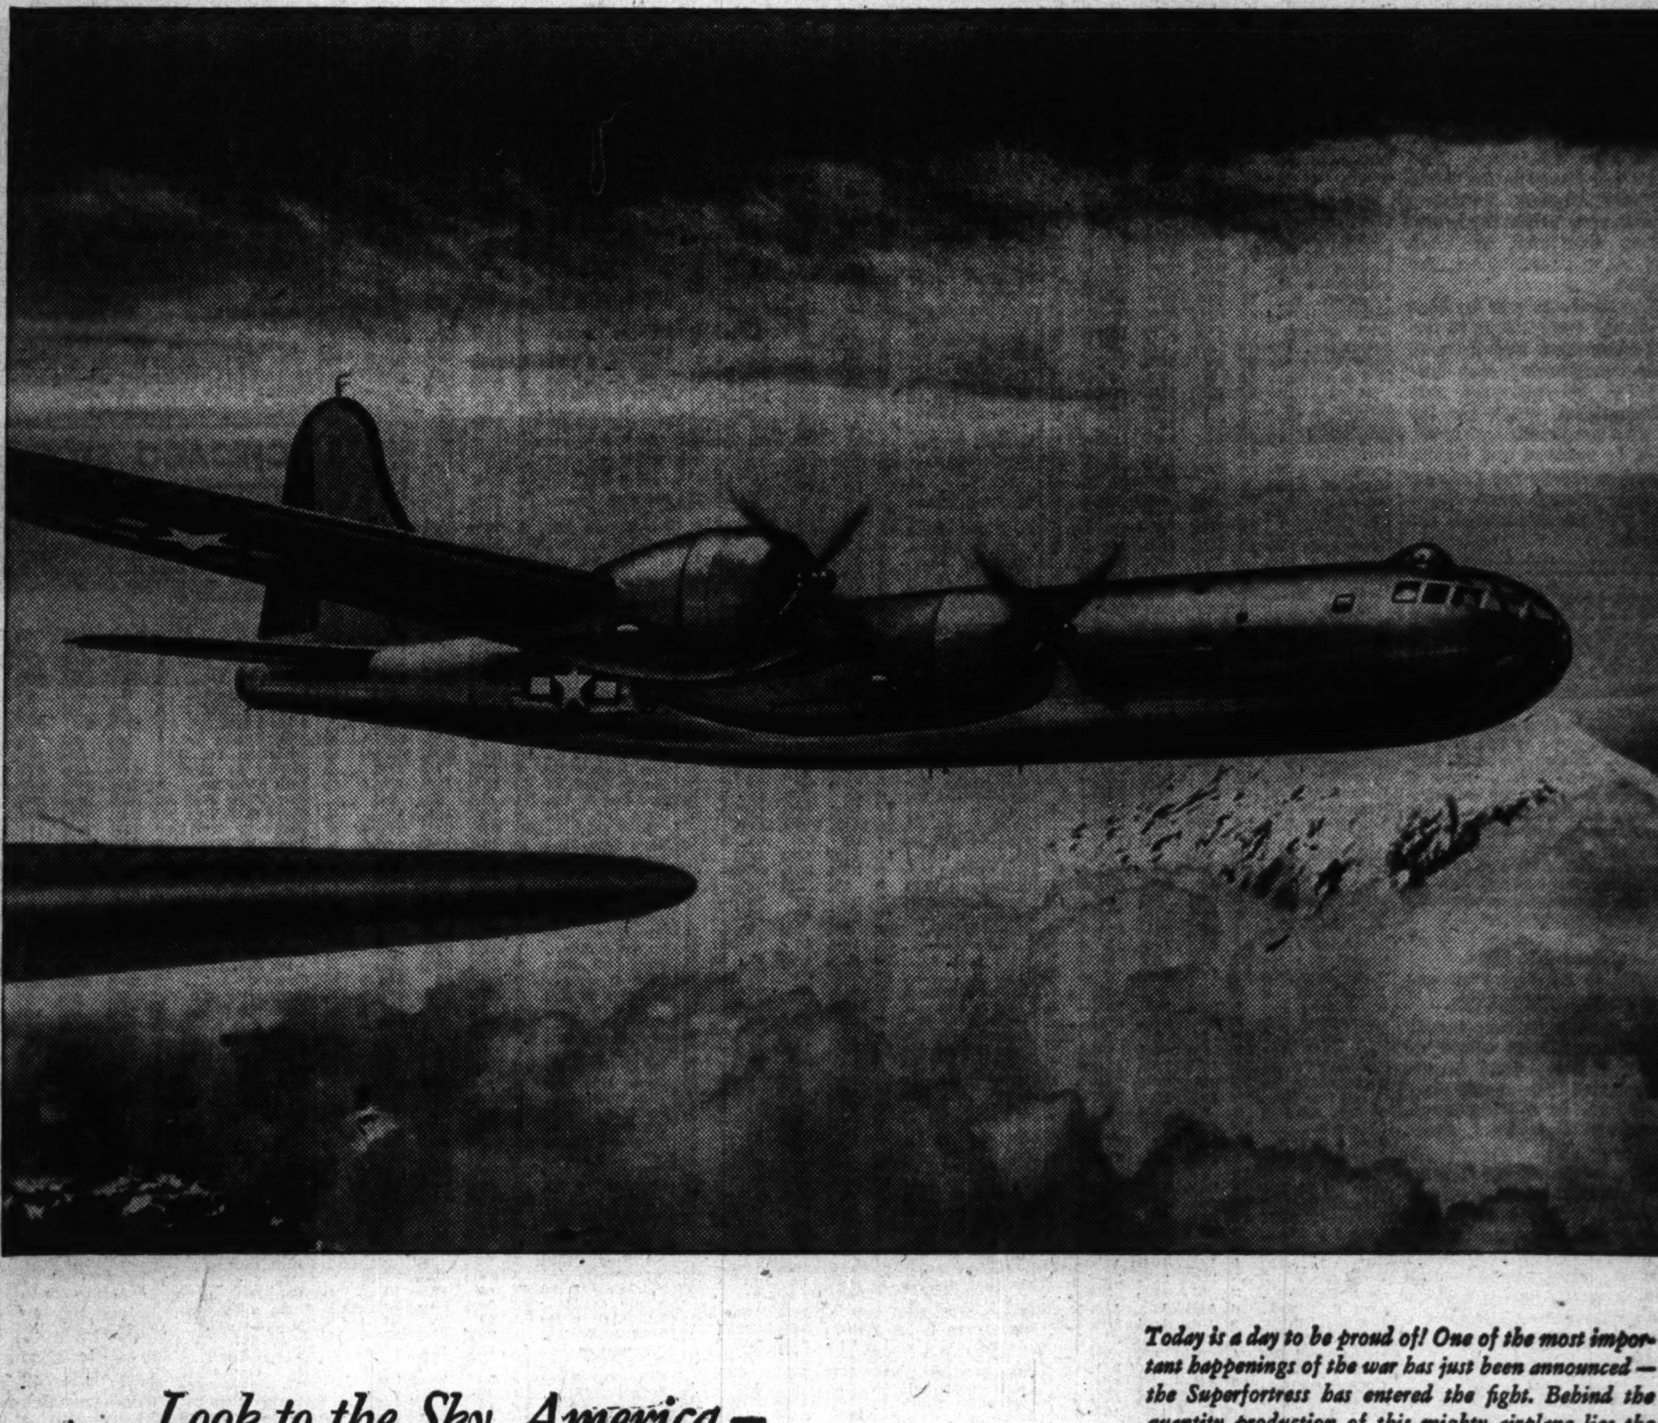
Tho it's a long time till September and the final tournament on the association's program, last week's warmup session indicated that the American Steel and Wire works' Waukegan plant, which won the team trophy last year, has its work cut out for it this summer if it expects to retain the Claud S. Gordon trophy. And some confident announcements regarding the Waukegan plant's plans for retaining the prize for another year already have been broadcast.

DR. FLOYD R. EASTWOOD of Purdue university, one of the nation's top ranking technical authorities on physical education and recreation, recently was granted another laurel wreath in his field. This was in the form of a fellowship award in the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. This is a department of the National Education association and the award was made at the general session of the National War and Peace Fitness conference in New York. Eastwood was one of seven men, outstanding figures in the field of physical education who received the fellowships. He was president of the Industrial Recreation association last year and has been in charge of industrial recreation clinics at Purdue which have attracted nationwide attention.

Ernst Also Gains Additional Recognition in National Field.

Another I. R. A. leader honored at the New York meeting of the A. A. H. P. & R. [if that's the correct abbreviation] was John Ernst, head of the recreation division of the National Cash Register company, Dayton, O., and a member of the present Industrial Recreation association board of directors. He was made chairman of the industrial recreation section of the American association.

The period of June 26 to July 1, the annual "Swim for Health Week," will be stressed more than ever this year in the nation's big industrial plants, as well as in Y. M. C. A.s and other recreational and educational centers. The week will have a three-fold aim: [1] Assisting the Red Cross in attaining its goal of teaching every youth of draft age how to swim; [2] Coöperating with government agencies in their physical fitness programs for workers in defense plants; [3] increasing the number of persons participating in swimming as sport and recreation.



Look to the Sky, America—
The new Boeing B-29 is in Action!

Today is a day to be proud of! One of the most important happenings of the war has just been announced — the Superfortress has entered the fight. Behind the quantity production of this mighty airplane lies the military vision of the Army Air Forces general staff, and the most advanced ideas and skills gained by Boeing in ten years of building heavy bombardment airplanes.

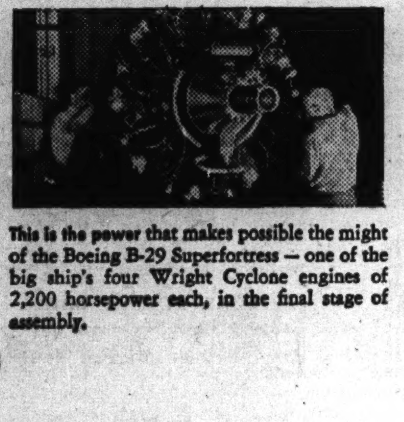
Of personal pride to thousands of men and women at Wright Aeronautical is their part in building the engines for this great new aerial weapon.

Today, America's newest and mightiest airplane is flying — not in test flights, but in wave on wave of giant B-29 Superfortresses going into combat.

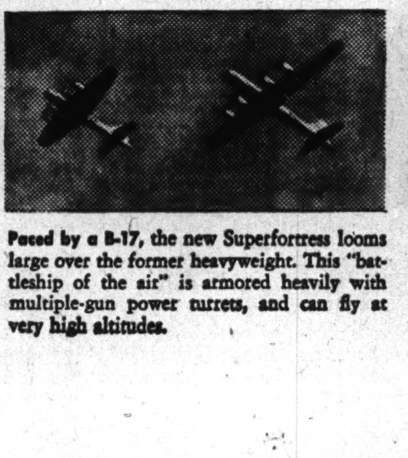
Placing all previous four-engine bombers in the "light heavyweight class," according to highest military authority, the Superfortress now doubles the range of our heavy bomber striking power, carrying far greater bomb loads faster than ever before.

For the B-29 is powered with four 18-cylinder Wright Cyclone engines, giving it nearly twice the horsepower of our heaviest bombers in action up to now.

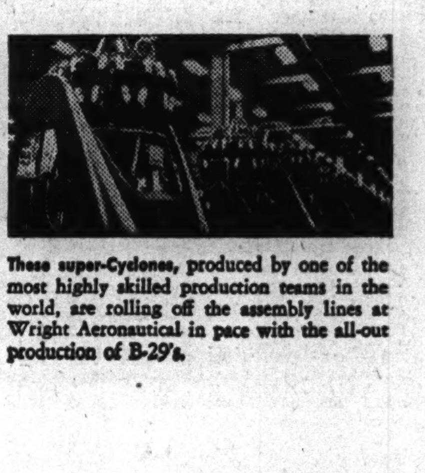
The tremendous importance of such long-range striking power to the men of our Air Forces — to America's victory in the bitterest war of all time — and to the future peace and trade of the world — make today a day to be proud of.



This is the power that makes possible the might of the Boeing B-29 Superfortress — one of the big ship's four Wright Cyclone engines of 2,200 horsepower each, in the final stage of assembly.



Posed by a B-17, the new Superfortress looms large over the former heavyweight. This "battleship of the air" is armored heavily with multiple-gun power turrets, and can fly at very high altitudes.



These super-Cyclones, produced by one of the most highly skilled production teams in the world, are rolling off the assembly lines at Wright Aeronautical in pace with the all-out production of B-29's.

Look to the Sky, America!

FUTURE FACTORY EXPECTED TO BE THING OF BEAUTY

Less Noise, Elimination of Smoke Predicted.

The "factory of the future" likely will be a show place—the pride of the community. It will have a parkway approach to enable workers to park their cars close to their jobs, its design will incorporate an "air view" attractive to air travelers, and it will have many features reflecting the feminine influence.

This forecast of future factories is contained in a research study on factory construction made by the H. F. Ferguson company, Cleveland industrial engineer and builder, made public yesterday.

Influenced by War.

"The factory of the future is important to almost 75 million Americans whose livelihood is earned from industry," the study said. "World War II. has already made marks and stains on our production pattern. The factory of the future will be influenced by them."

The study said that as air travel becomes more popular the air view of a factory will assume increasing importance. Emphasis will be placed on the air view especially by manufacturers of consumer goods who will have an opportunity to present in a moment a "vivid sales story that can last a lifetime."

"Night architecture" will be studied because the appearance of a busy factory at night can have definite good will and advertising value, the study said. In discussing the need for adopting the "parkway approach," the study said that most plants now have one large area for parking and it is not uncommon for an employe to walk a mile or more in inclement weather to get to his automobile from his job.

Influence of Women.

World War I. put women in offices to stay and it is to be expected that many of the World War II. women who went to work in factories also will stay. This means there are likely to be facilities to please women, including nurseries and play areas for workers' children, solariums, shopping places, and other conveniences, the study forecast.

Interiors of factories will be kept "hospital clean," connections to machines will come from underground tunnels, air conditioning and dust cleaning will be universal, and lighting techniques will be improved, it was predicted.

Noise will be reduced and smoke, which helped to create the dirty industrial fringe around most American cities, will be eliminated, the study asserted.

THE STOCK INVESTOR.

Any one contemplating investment in common stocks would do well to read "Investment Merits and Limitations of Common Stocks," in the April issue of the Exchange, magazine of the New York Stock exchange.

The article, prepared by "an investment consultant of long experience," discusses briefly such things as the need for skilful selection and proper timing, and the desirability of keeping a cash reserve at all times, and is particularly interesting for its comments on the experiences the stock investor must be ready to face.

"Common stocks fluctuate to an unholy degree year in and year out," the author warns, "and when one's capital is committed to common stocks under a long term investment program, the investor must brace himself for hair-raising and unpredictable changes in the liquidating value of his portfolio."

The attitude and fortitude of the buyer often determines whether or not common stocks are good long term investments, the author says. Investors have purchased good stocks at reasonable prices, expecting to hold them for income and future security, only to sell them at serious losses, he continues. "In too many instances," the writer observes, "the only reason the stocks were sacrificed was because of pusillanimity, public selling psychology, and inability to withstand the strain of watching steadily falling quotations and a shrinking portfolio.

"An investor will buy real estate, jewelry or antiques and hold thru thick and thin, not too much concerned whether there is an immediate buyer at a figure above or below his cost. The same man will buy a stock and because he can obtain day to day quotations and buy and sell at a moment's notice with no more effort than reaching for a telephone, he will suffer all the torments of the damned.

"He will live a thousand lives fretting whether to take a profit or stop a paper loss, worrying whether the market will rise or fall next week or next month. He will become prey to hundreds of rumors, much senseless gossip and conjecture."

A suitable temperament is one of the essentials to successful investment in common stocks. The investor lacking the toughness demanded of the common stockholder should look elsewhere to place his funds.

NELSON TAKES FIRST STEP TO RECONVERSION

Relaxes WPB Curb on Aluminum.

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—Chairman Nelson tonight relaxed war production board controls on aluminum in a move toward the orderly reconversion of industry, and made it possible for war plants to order—even while the war continues—the machines and tools which will be needed for peace time production.

Donald M. Nelson.

Nelson also gave industry a go-ahead on the building of a single working model of any planned post-war product, whether an automobile, a refrigerator, or a railway Pullman car.

First Move of a Series.

He said that "precious little" in the way of increased civilian output could result in the immediate future, but described his action as the first in a series of moves to protect the whole economy by lifting certain controls "no longer essential to protect war production."

Nelson's statement included a manifesto of WPB policy on two questions posed by industrial leaders for many months. He declared:

1. That WPB will permit plants in areas of easy labor supply to enter the civilian markets before competing concerns in tight labor areas which have large war contracts are able to do so.

"Any hardship worked on any business concern by this development is in my judgment regrettable but unavoidable," he asserted. "The country cannot afford to delay the return to civilian production until all manufacturers in each industry have terminated their essential war work and are in a position to resume production at the same time."

May Enter New Lines.

2. The progressive lifting of WPB controls may also result in the manufacture of civilian goods by companies which did not produce them before the war, even tho the appearance of such new competition "will no doubt be unwelcome to previously established concerns in the same industries and now engaged on war contracts."

Repeating that his decision may mean "regrettable but unavoidable" hardships, Nelson said, "If the government were to attempt to prevent new competition there would clearly be grave danger of shackling the country with a regimented economy for a long time to come."

By taking carefully controled action now to assure a smooth transition from war time to peace time production, Nelson said he believed the government could put an end to "doubts and worries about post-war business and jobs" that were causing many persons to consider quitting war work and establishing themselves in civilian enterprise.

Right now, the invasion of Europe makes it imperative that military production be brought up to schedule and kept there, he asserted.

Means Some Increases.

WPB officials said the new aluminum policy would mean some increase in pots, pans, kitchen ware, and similar simple products, but no increase in washing machines or other large durable goods items.

As his three new steps to "help industry plan and prepare for the reconversion period," Nelson:

1. Ordered revocation of the general WPB order which restricts aluminum and magnesium to military uses, so that manufacturers may produce needed products "wherever and whenever man power is available." As a companion action, Nelson gave WPB regional offices power to permit individual companies to use the two light metals in making certain consumer goods now prohibited, where labor supply permits.

May Purchase Tools, Dies.

2. Directed that manufacturers may buy machinery, tools, and dies for civilian production starting July 1; where possible, these needs will be filled from surplus stocks.

3. Announced that an order is being prepared which will let any manufacturer obtain enough materials and parts to "make and test a single working model of any product planned for post-war production"; the manufacturers will apply to WPB field offices for the materials.

Meanwhile legislation for "speedy and equitable final settlement" of terminated war contracts was approved tentatively by the house after a move to give Controler General Warren veto power over the agreements was defeated.

A final vote, however, was postponed until Monday when Chairman May [D., Ky.] of the military committee sought to force a separate roll call vote on his proposal to give Warren pre-auditing powers. A motion to adjourn carried and blocked May's move.

F.D.R. Assails Congress Rule of Elk Hills Oil

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—Vesting in congress control of the amount of petroleum to be taken from the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve is both objectionable and unwise, President Roosevelt said today in approving legislation authorizing pooling of government and Standard Oil of California holdings there for operation as a unit.

"I regret to say," the President declared in a statement, "that in several particulars this act departs from principles of government which have been long established and would vest the congress with what amounts to executive powers over administration of the naval petroleum reserves."

The President asserted he signed the legislation to meet an immediate war time need.

Opposes Curbs in Bill.

"This legislative assumption of executive functions," the statement added, "takes form in requirements that the secretary of the navy, even with Presidential approval, may produce from the reserves only those quantities of fuel congress specifies; and that the navy secretary may not condemn lands or enter into joint or unit contracts, or other contracts and leases, without previously consulting the naval affairs committees of both the house and the senate."

A previous contract between the navy and the Standard Oil company of California was set aside a year ago after the justice department ruled it was illegal. The justice department ruling followed charges in congress that the contract might give the oil company a monopoly over the Elk Hills reserve.

Since cancellation of the contract the field has been operated under a temporary agreement which Rep. Vinson [D., Ga.], chairman of the house naval committee, has termed "illegal."

Plan Opposed by Vinson.

Vinson also had warned against the new contract, which the President today sanctioned, contending it spelled a departure from a settled policy of congress on oil reserves in the ground.

The President, in objecting to the stipulation that congress must say how much oil can be taken out of the Elk Hills field, said it apparently took no cognizance that an emergency necessitating a sharp increase in production might arise during a congressional recess.

He declared the second stipulation, forbidding the navy to execute contracts without consulting the naval committees, was not only unwise but also was a delegating of executive functions to two committees of congress.

"Efficient and economical administration can be achieved only by vesting authority to carry out the laws in an independent executive and not in legislative committees," he added.

472 EXECUTIVES FROM BANKS TO ATTEND SCHOOL

New Brunswick, N. J., June 17 (AP).—The summer session of the Graduate School of Banking conducted by the American Bankers association at Rutgers university opens Monday with an enrollment of 472 bank executives from 37 states.

The course includes three summer sessions of two weeks each at Rutgers, plus two years of extension study at home. A faculty of 50 is divided between university professors and practical bankers.

CHEMISTS SEEK KEY TO UNLOCK VAST OIL SUPPLY IN CALIFORNIA

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—Millions of barrels of true petroleum are locked in the sandstone of six California coastal counties, and federal chemists are trying to develop a commercial extraction process, Secretary of the Interior Ickes said today.

If the experiments of the bureau of mines are successful, "literally mountains of petroleum" will be added to the nation's dwindling reserves, Ickes said.

Oil will be produced in quarries instead of wells, and dynamite instead of pumps will bring it from the earth, he explained.

The counties are Kern, Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Santa Cruz, and Mendocino.

The bureau of mines said the California rocks, unlike the oil shales of other states, are saturated with a true petroleum similar to that taken from ordinary oil wells.

Experiments in San Francisco already have resulted in extraction of oil from rock obtained in the Edna area of San Luis Obispo county, but not by a commercially feasible method.

GALENA MINES THRIVING AGAIN IN WAR REVIVAL

215 Year Old Pits Yield Zinc, Lead.

Galena, Ill., June 17 [Special].—Galena's zinc and lead mining industry, founded more than 215 years ago but long dormant, is undergoing a war-inspired, thriving revival and bringing hope to the community of a stable post-war operational program.

Aided by government bonuses, which now enable mines to operate on a profit basis after a lapse of years in which mining of low grade lead and zinc ore did not pay, almost a score of mines in the Galena area have reopened and are providing much needed zinc for war industries. About 20 other mines in near-by southwestern Wisconsin also are operating at an accelerated pace.

New "Black Jack" to Open.

Opening of a new mine, expected to equal the record of the noted old Black Jack mine near-by, is scheduled within the next few weeks. The Black Jack, which was closed more than 40 years ago, was the northwest's greatest producer, with 1½ million tons of mine-run ore to its credit.

Most of the preliminary work for the new mine near the Black Jack site has been completed by the Tri-State Zinc company, operator in Missouri, Kansas, and Oklahoma. Construction of surface buildings has begun, pump wells are being put down to de-water the ground and a shaft is being sunk to the ore body.

Plans are being made for a processing plant big enough to handle the entire expected output. I. W. Andrews, superintendent, and J. E. Kaltenback, his assistant, who will be resident heads of Tri-State's operations, are supervising construction operations.

Drill 22 Miles Away.

The United States bureau of mines has been at work south of Galena for a year and, it is understood, will drill as far east as Elizabeth, 22 miles from Galena. Mine and flotation mill heads are preparing for permanent installations because they expect post-war demands to continue indefinitely as a result of increased use of zinc as an alloy in the production of steel.

Old and new mines in operation in the Galena field are the Hoskins and Martin mines, operated by the Meloy-Baker Mining company, which is expected to reopen the old Crawhall mine soon; the Mulcahy mine, operated by the C. F. and H. Mining company; the North Star, by the North Star Mining company; the Andres, by the Mulcahy company; the Coyle and Copeland, by the Gill Brothers; the Ginte, by the Ginte company; the Thompson, by the Thompson company; the Monroe, by the Little Benny Mine company, which operates the Little Benny flotation plant; the Trego, by the Pickett Mining company; the New Birkett, by the Ginte company, and the Champion and the Whippet by the Whippet Mining company.

Output Kept Secret.

Production figures are not available, being a military secret, but the Wisconsin Mining school organ "Goede" reported recently that the Vinegar Hill Zinc company's custom mill alone is treating monthly about 14,000 tons of hand sorted mine dirt and milled concentrates. It said the mill was turning about 2,500 tons of 60 per cent flotation zinc concentrated zinc and 100 tons of lead concentrates a month, plus a tonnage of sulphuric acid, a by-product.

Stocks of "tailings," once regarded as valueless and used to ballast roadbeds of railroads, are being purchased and put thru the mills at a profit, largely as a result of government bonuses.

The federal bonuses to mining companies average $38 a ton for 60 per cent zinc, which, added to the current market price of $55, brings the total to $93 a ton compared with $9 a ton in 1932.

The government pays an average bonus of $120 a ton for lead in addition to the market price of $85—a total of $205 a ton as compared with the 1932 low of $22 a ton.

60 Chicago Area Plants Get New War Contracts

Sixty Chicago area companies last week received new prime war contracts totaling $535,000, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, reported yesterday.

Int. Harvester Gets Tank Job for Iowa Plant

International Harvester company will begin work soon on a contract for rebuilding Gen. Sherman tanks at its Bettendorf, Ia., works, L. M. Gildea, acting superintendent of the plant, said yesterday. Extensive rearrangement of facilities in preparation for the new work is under way.

Tank alterations will incorporate latest revisions in engineering design and changes intended to improve performance based on battle experience. Some new features will contribute to the comfort of the crew, it is understood.

Make Necessary Repairs.

Repairs will be made where necessary, but tanks to be sent to the Bettendorf plant are not battle damaged. They will be taken from equipment not yet shipped overseas.

The first shipment of tanks to be rebuilt was reported on the way to Bettendorf, and work on the contract is expected to extend into 1945, Gildea said.

Contract Figures Not Disclosed.

Figures on the dollar amount of the contract or production schedules were not available. Plant officials said the contract will more than offset reduced production of high speed prime movers on which the plant has been engaged since early 1943, after cancellation of the original M-7 tank program for which Harvester took over the former car shops of the Bettendorf company.

SUPER MARKETS TO HOLD TRADE STUDY MEETING

Problems of the food retailer, including price ceilings, rationing, man power needs, disposal of government food surpluses, absorption of returning veterans, and extension of self-service, will be discussed at the eighth annual conference of the Super Market Institute opening today in the Hotel Sherman.

The conference is expected to attract a record-breaking number of delegates from all parts of the country. W. H. Albers, Cincinnati, president of Albers Super Markets, is head of the institute, and Fred E. Zeuch, of Wieboldt's Stores, is vice president.

Government spokesmen will include Walter Straub, director, food rationing division, OPA; Jean Carroll, director, price division, OPA, and Lee Marshall, director, food distribution, war food administration.

Expansion of Campbell-Ewald company, Detroit advertising firm, in preparation for post-war business was announced yesterday by H. T. Ewald, president. R. H. Crooker, executive vice president and director, will head the new Pacific coast office. Frank McGinnis who has been assistant to Crooker in handling the Chevrolet account, will head the Detroit group in charge of this account. Henry G. Little, formerly of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, has been elected vice president and general manager of Campbell-Ewald to replace W. W. Lewis, who has resigned.

N. S. Hymer was appointed National Biscuit company manager of group sales. He formerly was assistant manager of sales representatives. James M. Cooper will take over Hymer's former post, with headquarters in Chicago. Hymer will make his headquarters in New York City.

Directors of Atlas Plywood corporation elected Stanley R. Venne vice president in charge of the western division and Richard D. Bolster assistant treasurer. Venne's headquarters will be in Gladstone, Mich.

For the third time since production started, Buick's Melrose Park plant manufacturing Liberator bomber engines received the Army-Navy award for high achievement.

LABOR RECEIVES VOICE IN WPB'S PEACE PLANNING

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—WPB today set up machinery to give labor an opportunity to advise, along with management, in the handling of cut-backs and the planning of post-war reconversion.

Chairman Nelson set up a new office of labor advisory committees under direction of WPB's two labor vice chairmen, Joseph D. Keenan, formerly of the AFL, and Clinton S. Golden, formerly of CIO. WPB already had 14 labor advisory committees, representing workers in the automobile, steel, logging and lumber, machine tool, and several other industries.

Nelson's action provides that Keenan, as WPB vice chairman for labor production, and Golden, as vice chairman for man power requirements, shall recommend creation of a labor advisory committee whenever a proposed WPB action would curtail or expand the rate of operation in any industry in such a way as to affect labor's interest.

GEORGIA TAKES RAIL RATE FIGHT TO HIGH COURT

Atlanta, June 17 (AP).—A permanent injunction against railroads charging allegedly discriminatory and preferential freight rates in favor of northern shippers over Georgia shippers was asked in a petition mailed today for filing as an original suit in the United States Supreme court by the state of Georgia.

The petition, naming as defendants 20 principal railroads operating in the territory east of the Mississippi river and western boundary of Illinois also asked for a $6,750,000 judgment, triple the amount of alleged damages to the state and shippers doing business therein during the last 10 years.

TRIBUNE LONG AIDS MIDWEST RAIL INTERESTS

Morgan Deals Told Back in 1897.

How THE TRIBUNE nearly 50 years ago, as today, was the champion of middle west interests in the operation of the nation's transportation system was brought to light recently by research in connection with the preparation of the centennial history of THE TRIBUNE, the second volume of which is now in the hands of the publishers. THE TRIBUNE in 1897 told how J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder, was gaining domination of the nation's big railway systems—a control which threatened to place middle western industry at a disadvantage with competitors along the seaboards.

J. P. Morgan.

When the stories were printed Morgan held a dominating position in American finance, with interests extending to every section of the country. Few dared to challenge him.

Morgan Moves Detailed.

A story on July 30, 1897, detailed Morgan moves to extend his domination over major railroads operating from the west, south, and northwest to the seaboards.

"Developments during the last few days leave no further room for doubt that nearly all the outlets to the sea from the productive centers of the continent are now in one hand and directed by one mind," THE TRIBUNE said. "It is a consummation of great significance to all interests in the west and northwest, for upon the rates of freight depend the profits alike of producer and manufacturer. If these rates are excessive the producer and manufacturer work for the railroads alone.

"The opinion is the attempt will be made to make rates so high as to pay for all competitive effort; all the extravagance; all the unnecessary lines constructed, and a return upon all the water injected. It is clear that by a colossal combination of all the competitive roads the fixed charges and dividends on all past expenditures will be exacted."

Controled 21 Railroads.

In a story on Oct. 11, 1897, THE TRIBUNE said that Morgan had 21 railroads under his control and that he was moving to get control of four more. It described Morgan as "king of the rail" who, acting for his own interest and that of English bondholders, dictated the policy of the roads he controled.

"Realizing to what extent in the west and south Mr. Morgan's control extends, it is important to recall that in the east he holds, as it were in the hollow of his hand, the destiny of this country because of his ability to regulate the price of coal, rate of freight, and practically the cost of food and equally the cost of transporting the finished product," it said.

"If he uses his enormous power to protect the shippers, merchants, manufacturers, consumers as well as the railroad interests, and establishes reasonable rates for all concerned, he will be given all the credit such action deserves."

Some Failed to Materialize.

Some of the projected mergers mentioned in the stories, such as a merger of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Southern, and the absorption of the Wisconsin Central by the Northern Pacific, did not come to pass.

THE TRIBUNE for years has maintained that if the middle west is to be served best the managements of its transportation systems should be located at the scene of operations. It has held that directors who frame the policies of management should be selected from the communities served by its transportation systems.

House Group Approves Merging Farm Agencies

Washington, D. C., June 17 (AP).—The house agricultural committee today approved legislation consolidating in a single agency the functions of the farm security administration, the Regional Agricultural Credit corporations, and the emergency crop and feed loan program. The single agency would be the Farmers Home corporation, created by the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act.

Santa Fe Tests Radio on Long Distance Haul

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Carrying a radio in the cab for communication by the engineer with the conductor in the caboose, a Santa Fe freight train nearly a mile long loaded with potatoes is puffing toward Chicago from Bakersfield, Cal., in the first long distance test of radiophones for intercommunication on a train.

T. P. Brewster of Chicago, superintendent of telegraph for the Santa Fe, and L. R. Thomas, electronics engineer, head a party of officials and experts aboard the train which is due in Chicago tomorrow. Reports relayed from Winslow, Ariz., indicated the experiment was successful.

Short Run Tests Made.

The road has made short run tests before, but the object of this long run is to subject equipment to varying terrain, elevations, and atmospheric conditions.

Trainmen aboard the "Spud Special" reported from Winslow the system of hand signaling will soon become as outmoded as the Indian's smoke signals. Seated in the cupola of his caboose, the conductor soon became accustomed to starting the train with a "vocal highball" instead of the usual wave of the arm.

Radio is proving faster and more dependable than the old signal system, railroad officials said. The installation enabled trainmen to study air brakes on the trip. A. E. Harris, assistant supervisor of air brakes, said radio equipment had enabled his department to learn how air takes hold and how long it takes air to set the brakes after application has been started at the head of the train.

Tests Will Eliminate Damage.

Harris said the brake tests would prove important in the elimination of slack action and consequent damage to freight and equipment which occurs on long trains where grades are steep.

Many future uses were visualized in handling passenger and freight movements. Included were facilitation of spotting and picking up freight cars at plants, closer relationship between train, dispatcher, yard office, and switching crew, and radio telephone hookups so that passengers may talk with their offices or homes while traveling.

GRAIN FUTURES MARKET CLOSES MOSTLY HIGHER

Grain futures prices were unsettled yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade as a result of "rumors" about what will happen to the price control bill and its controversial amendments in conference, but the market closed mostly higher. Wheat ended unchanged to 1⅛ cents a bushel higher; oats, ⅞ to 1 cent higher, and rye, ½ to 1⅞ cents higher. September barley closed ⅛ cent higher.

An early advance in wheat carried prices as much as ½ cent higher, but attracted renewed hedging, which sent prices lower. The market was down most of the session, influenced by the belief that price control will be extended mainly in its present form.

Goodrich Says Synthetic Tires Are Satisfactory

Akron, O., June 17 [Special].—The B. F. Goodrich company announced today that GR-S synthetic rubber passenger automobile tires manufactured by it since May, 1943, have traveled a total of 3 billion miles and are rolling up approximately 33 million additional miles daily. The company said that users report general satisfaction with the service and performance of the tires.

STOCK PRICES RISE IN MILLION SHARE TRADING

Average Is Highest Since Late 1937.

New York, June 17 (AP).—The stock market's post-invasion advance pushed higher today under a new wave of buying that sent the Associated Press 60 stock composite to the highest figure since late 1937.

With volume at 1,064,480 shares, first million share Saturday since December, 1941, many leading industrials and rails extended the week's advances by fractions to about 2 points.

The carrier stocks were uniformly strong. Steels, farm equipments, coppers, and specialties were nearly as good, but some other issues favored earlier in the week fell under profit taking. Douglas, up 2¼ points, was the strongest of the aircrafts.

Week's Gain Is Large.

At its closing level of 55.2 the stock average was up 0.3 on the day and up 2.2 points on the week for the widest six day rise since early January, 1942, when the market rebounded from the Pearl Harbor slump.

The week's advance verified predictions heard in Wall Street in recent weeks that a successful invasion of the European continent would release a large amount of pent up securities buying.

The broad demand reflected confidence of an early victory over Germany, an influence that later was bulwarked by the bombing of Yawata and other heavy attacks on Japanese positions.

War Stocks Supported.

In the buying rush even so-called "war stocks" were well supported in contrast with the "peace scare" selling which had upset the markets for such shares over the last year.

Wall Street explained the new victory psychology and its bullish manifestations as based on belief that big corporations generally had made progress recently on plans for conversion and that even such industries as the railroads and aircraft, big money makers on war business, would get thru the post-war transition without too much strain.

RAIL BONDS GAIN.

New York, June 17 (AP).—Rail loans made further gains in today's bond market, the Associated Press carrier average rising 0.2 to 90. Utility liens also advanced slightly and the industrial composite was unchanged.

Brazilian issues were strong in the foreign department. United States government liens were steady.

CHICAGO STOCKS RISE.

Prices rose yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in turnover of 30,000 shares. Of 97 issues traded, 47 advanced, and 23 declined. Chicago corporation and Spiegel were among active issues making fractional gains. Gillette Safety Razor, Hupp Motor Car, Zenith Radio, and Utah Radio Products set new 1944 peaks.

RITES TUESDAY FOR J. V. FARWELL IN LAKE FOREST

Pioneer Merchant Dies at Age of 85.

Services for John Villiers Farwell, 85, pioneer Chicago merchant and civic leader, will be held at 4;15 p. m. Tuesday in First Presbyterian church, Lake Forest. Mr. Farwell died of a heart attack early yesterday in his home, 121 S. Stone Gate, Lake Forest.

Mr. Farwell was president of John V. Farwell company, wholesale dry goods firm, which was founded in 1865 by his father, John Villiers Farwell Sr., one of the merchants who helped to build Chicago.

Business Sold in 1925.

In 1925 the business was sold to Carson Pirie Scott & Co., but the original Farwell company is still in existence as owner of the former Carson Pirie Scott & Co. warehouse at Monroe st. and the river, now leased to the government.

Mr. Farwell was born Oct. 16, 1858, in the old Farwell home at 19 S. La Salle st. He was graduated from Lake Forest academy in 1874 and from Yale university in 1879. He was a director of the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 and had been a member of the executive committee of the Chicago Plan commission since its organization. He was also chairman of the board of the Y. M. C. A., and president of the First State Pawner's society, 12 S. Clark st.

Helped Raise Funds for Y.

In 1862, his father donated the Farwell home on La Salle st. to be used as headquarters for the then newly organized Y. M. C. A. In 1983, the son, along with Cyrus H. McCormick, helped raise funds for the Y. M. C. A. building which now stands on the site of the old Farwell home.

Mr. Farwell is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Katherine Farwell Carpenter of New Haven, Conn.; four stepsons, Perry Dunlap Smith, Hermon Dunlap Smith, Lawrence Smith, and Elliott Smith; a stepdaughter, Mrs. W. D. Harvey; a brother, Arthur L. Farwell, and a sister, Mrs. Henry N. Tuttle of New Haven. Mr. Farwell married Miss Ellen Sheldon Drummond in 1884. She died in 1912, and in 1919, he married Mrs. Harriet Flower Smith, who died in 1938.

CALCIUM 'NOOSE' CUT FROM HEART SAC IN OPERATION

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 17 [Special].—Details of an operation in which a quarter-inch deposit of calcium was removed from a patient's heart sac were told here today by a Grand Rapids surgeon who asked that his identity remain undisclosed.

The patient is George Kloppe, 25, of Grand Rapids, a truck driver. The surgeon said a deposit of calcium resulting from an attack of rheumatic fever which Kloppe suffered three years ago slowly was enclosing the heart and would have caused Kloppe's death in a few years.

The operation was performed March 15 at the University of Michigan hospital in Ann Arbor. The surgeon removed a rib and three sections of cartilage to reach the calcium. The operation required seven hours. Kloppe left the hospital June 3 and expects to return soon to his job. He will wear a shield to protect the section of the chest from which the rib and cartilage were removed.

KATE MAYHEW, 91, ACTRESS NEARLY 80 YEARS, DIES

New York, June 17 (AP).—Kate Mayhew, 91, believed to be the oldest living American actress, who played 500 roles during nearly 80 years on the stage and in motion pictures, died here last night.

She had appeared with John Drew, Maurice Barrymore, Lotta Crabtree, and Charlotte Cushman during a career that began at the age of 4 when she was carried on the stage during a performance of "Pizarro."

Miss Mayhew, who was born in Indianapolis, played Eva to Lotta Crabtree's famous Topsy in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" during the Civil war. Her last appearance on the New York stage was in "Alice Takat" in 1936.

FATHERS TO GET TRIBUTES TODAY FOR DUTY DONE

Today is Father's day and thruout Chicago dads are being honored for their performance of duty toward families and country.

This year countless dads are in uniform while others, many of whom have sons and daughters in the service, are busy on the home front working for victory. Tribute is being paid to one and all today in various churches and during the week more than 2,500 civic organizations and business institutions paid tribute to fathers in patriotic gatherings.

The idea of a day of homage to dads was originated 34 years ago by Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane, Wash., but it was not until 1910 that the first official observance was held. For several years various dates were observed, but in 1923 the third Sunday in June was proclaimed as national Father's day.

Various flowers have been proposed for Father's day and recently roses have been recognized as the official flower. Today Chicagoans will wear red roses to honor living fathers and white roses in memory of those who have died.

Daniel A. Bickheart.

Services for Daniel A. Bickheart, 50, 1417 S. 11th av., Maywood, former county agent for the Phoenix Insurance company, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at Lake st. and 2d av., Maywood. M., and a member of Maywood commandery, the American Legion, Odd Fellows, and Rebekas.

Stanley Sniegocki.

Stanley Sniegocki, 73, Democratic captain of the 1st precinct of the 33d ward, died yesterday at his home, 2234 N. Campbell av. He was a trustee of St. Hedwig's church and active in the Polish National alliance and the Polish Roman Catholic Union of America. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Margaret Sniegocki, an employe of the internal revenue bureau. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning in St. Hedwig's church.

Albert S. Smith.

Services for Albert Stanley Smith, 57, of Alton, Ill., meat packing executive, will be held at 8 a. m. tomorrow from the chapel at 1503 W. 51st st. to St. Augustine's church. He died Wednesday in Alton. He was superintendent of Luer Bros. Packing company. He had worked for Swift & Co. in Chicago and with packing plants in Philadelphia, Pa., and Pueblo, Colo. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Anna Labuhn Smith, and a daughter, Margaret Mary Smith of Alton.

Mrs. Hannah C. Kearns.

Services for Mrs. Hannah Callahan Kearns of 3432 Jackson blvd., widow of Michael Kearns, a fire department captain, and a resident of the west side for about 60 years, will be held at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday from the chapel at 3246 Jackson blvd. to Our Lady of Sorrows church. She died of a heart attack Friday in St. Elizabeth's hospital. She is survived by six sons, four of whom are in service, and two daughters.

Miss Catherine E. Noonan.

Miss Catherine E. Noonan, 67, who taught in Chicago's public schools for 46 years until she retired two years ago, died yesterday in her home at 403 Wisconsin av., Oak Park. For 28 years she was the girls' gym teacher at Austin High school. Survivors are two sisters, Mrs. Oliver H. Barry and Mrs. Crees F. Jones. Services will be held at 9:30 a. m. REAL ESTATE—RESORT PROP'TY

Indiana

Once in a lifetime is a home like this offered for sale. "Hilltop House" the creation of a great architect is built atop a lofty dune near Michigan City, only 1 hr. and 20 minutes from Chicago's loop. Hilltop appears to have sprung from the soil because it is of stone and rare wood and follows every contour of the land. Here you view Lake Michigan not thru but above the roof of the surrounding trees. The house has 8 rms., 4 baths, gas heat, double refrig., double garage, its own water supply. This is an all year round estate of 9 acres with orchard, fish pond, bird sanctuary, outdoor grille. Its furnishings include rare but usable antiques. This is the climax of ten years of planning, landscaping and adding acres for complete protection. Restricted community. Mile-long private beach for home-owners. Now the owner has to move away. He will discount his investment heavily for some gentleman who seeks the best in living. Circular on request. Brokers protected. Earle A. Shilton, 605 N. Michigan-av., Chicago. Superior 4373.

—REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS—

Wisconsin

WISCONSIN FARMS

Farm land priced right is the only thing in the world not inflated. You can buy farms at inflated prices, but the farms we list can be bought at practically the same price they would have brought 30 years ago, or during the depression 10 years ago.

We sell you a farm worth the money, that you will like and prosper on. We look out for you when you buy and ever after. We maintain an office and an organization here and take great pride in the fact that 99% of our customers always stop to see us and ask favors of us, which we are glad to grant. Our big business has been built on square dealing and superlative service.

At this time we have a nice 5 acre place at the edge of town, a very nice 12 acre chicken farm located in the lake district, a nice 50 acre going farm, a nice 59 acre going farm, 2 grand 190 acre flat black farms, and an 80 acre farm between Delavan and Geneva Lakes and midway between Elkhorn, Lake Geneva, Williams Bay and Delavan, and several others of all sizes and prices. Write for a list or come up and see us.

Gerald Nye—Man of Courage

He Has Never Run Away from a Fight

By WALTER TROHAN

Washington, D. C.

THIS IS THE STORY of a man to set your heart by—Gerald Prentice Nye, senior senator from North Dakota. Since the day h entered the senate he has never run away from fight nor compromised with a foe. Right or wrong his is a courageous heart, and its beat is true.

In appearance Nye is not senatorial. He do not have the ample waistcoat with the cable watc chain or the shaggy mane and glowering eyebrow popularly associated with senators. He is rath slight, immaculate in dress, and his handsome b by no means pretty face has something of the peren nial youth of the actor.

It is in his steel blue eyes that his charact shows. They are grim and uncompromising. The are the eyes of a man of courage, great physica endurance, and great spiritual resolve.

Nye is not one of the most popular member of the senate. He seldom laughs aloud, altho he is not humorless, as some would picture him. Among friends he can join in good-humored banter. On the floor of the senate or in committee sessions he is possessed of a grim earnestness that thrusts aside all employment of humor except the sardonic.

Nye seldom snatches time to play, altho he delights in flicking a fly for trout in Rocky mountain streams, has proudly turned in a golf card in the 80s—with one hole in 1—at the difficult Burning Tree course, and is an enthusiastic amateur gardener. He is the crusader in natty double-breasted woolens. He was a crusading country editor for years and has leveled his crusading lance—now and then at a windmill—in the senate for almost 20 years.

The senior senator from North Dakota is the despair of his friends because of his bluntness and refusal to dodge issues. He says exactly what he thinks even in campaign years, which is distinctly not the thing to do by ordinary senatorial standards.

Many times Nye says things people are afraid to whisper to themselves. Before Pearl Harbor it was known that Britain was working to get the United States into the war and was receiving the enthusiastic altho not acknowledged help of the administration. Yet any one who said Britain was seeking to get America into war was immediately shouted down as anti-British in such accents as suggested they were also pro-Nazi. Nye ignored the shouts and leveled his accusations whenever he felt like it. After Pearl Harbor Prime Minister Churchill boasted, in a radio address widely applauded in this country, America's entry into the war was his major achievement and the effect of two years of unflagging effort.

Even now, when he is engaged in the major political battle of his career against two opponents and a smear brigade financed by his old foes—Wall street internationalists—Nye is pulling no verbal punches. He listens to his friends' advice solemnly and bears their scoldings patiently, but he goes on his determined way unflinchingly and slashes furiously at the idols he has battered over the years.

Let it be clearly understood that Nye is not anti-British, altho he is blunt in his criticism of Britain's historic policy. He admires the fixity of purpose of the Britons in working for the empire. Above all he admires Churchill, who makes no secret of placing the empire welfare above all else with an almost holy zeal. Nye would like to see that philosophy adopted and enshrined by American leaders for America.

Nor is Nye pro-Nazi, as smear critics have screamed. In response to a bear trap question from a hostile reporter for an administration-controled newspaper Nye was quoted as saying he didn't believe fascism is essentially any more aggressive than other forms of government the world has known. Under further questioning he said that if Germany wanted to continue fascism after the war he didn't see any way to blot out the swastika goosesteppers if this country lived up to its announced intention of giving all peoples the right to determine their own rule. He added, of course, that he could hardly imagine Germany wanting to continue a government which had brought her so much disaster, but this qualification was carelessly or studiously ignored by the New Dealers as they howled their abuse.

It will be recognized fascism is not essentially more aggressive than any other form of government the world has known. Alexander was no fascist, but he conquered most of the then known world. ncient Rome, which began as a republic and declined nto an empire, also had a large share of world mastery. very form of government, including our own republic, has had a fling at aggression. Nye was not only strictly academic but also historically accurate.

He has been accused of being a demagog, of being anti-British or being pro-Nazi and the entire catalog of reprehensibles peculiar to representatives of the people. Many of these accusations have arisen out of his bluntness. He has never sidestepped a congressional slugging match or weaseled an issue, and he has risked his political future a thousand times, as he is risking it today—because he is certain that he is right and has a firm faith in the ability of his constituents to determine that he is right.

When the first OPA bill was before the senate, Nye cast the lone vote against it. His friends besieged him with importunings and wails. They told him he had wrecked his career. They reminded him that it wouldn't have hurt him to go along. They shouted that he had left himself open to the charge of being an obstructionist who couldn't support the ten commandments. They dinned in his ears that he was just a plain garden variety of political fool. "It's wrong, and I couldn't vote for it," was Nye's answer to all.

Several months later the second OPA bill, renewing the price control unit, was brought before congress. Its provisions were essentially the same as those of the first. The measure squeezed thru the senate by the breadth of a comma.

What had happened? Nye had read the first bill thoroly and recognized that it granted dictatorial powers to the executive branch of the government. While he acknowledged necessity for price control in many fields, he could not stomach the dictator features of the measure. After the senate saw the bill in action many senators were given visual demonstration of what Nye had seen behind the mass of legal verbiage, and fought the second OPA bill.

And Nye is no lawyer. He is a country editor. The smell of printers' ink was not far from him at any time in his early years. And he has been close to the soil, because his readers were farmers. Altho he never approved the New Deal's farm program, he went along with it as a minority member because it was the only thing available, and even fought for some phases of it when New Deal fathers of the program disowned their child.

He has been vicious in his criticism of the nation for its collection policy on small farm loans. Farmers who ran up debts during the depression and drouth years have been hounded by administration collectors of an administration which never hesitates to proclaim itself the farmer's friend, Nye charges. He has repeatedly offered bills to cancel the old seed and feed loans which hang over many farmers' heads, but the prodigal New Deal

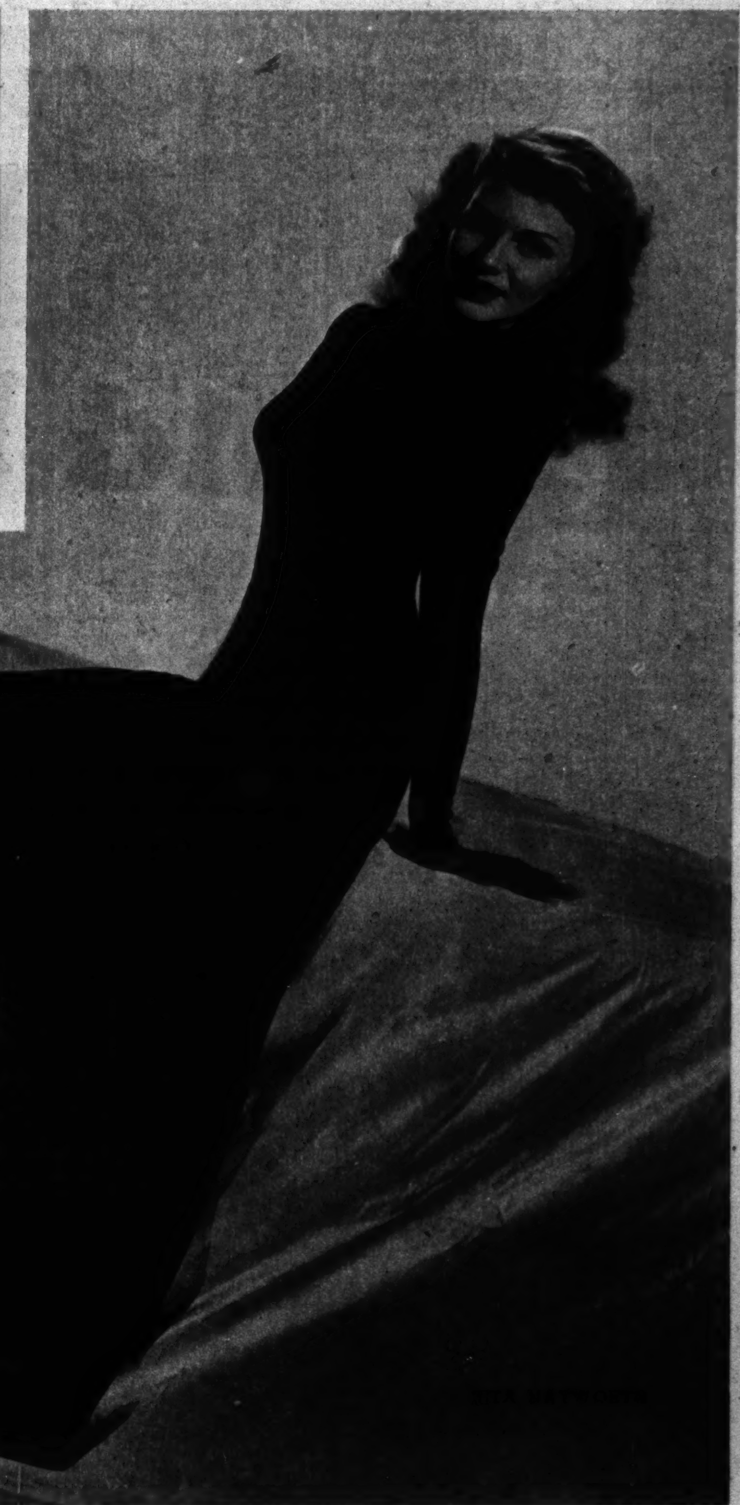
Rita's Doing All Righta

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

Rita Hayworth dances with Gene Kelly in "Cover Girl."

When she was Rita Cansino.

With Jacqueline Wells in "Paid to Dance."



RITA HAYWORTH

(Copyright: 1944: The Chicago Tribune.)

Hollywood.

I NEVER thought Rita Hayworth could act until I saw her in "Cover Girl." Neither, I might add, did a million other folks. The little lady did all right. Before that she put verve into her lovemaking and sparkle into her dancing, and that was that.

Now something new has been added. She acts, too.

It's somewhat confusing that this should come about in a musical, of all things. Not much is expected of leading ladies in musicals. But it happens there were several acting scenes written into "Cover Girl," and Rita stood right up to them when they came along.

And from what Rita has told me no one was more surprised than little Marguerita Carmen Cansino herself. Despite the Shakespearean forebears on her mother's side of this half Latin from Manhattan—one of whom, Joseph Haworth, trouped with Edwin Booth—Rita had never made serious pretensions to being a dramatic actress. She did what was given her, and it was usually not too exacting.

If she had acting aspirations she kept them to herself and never pouted when the studio put other actresses in the dramatic roles she may have envied.

Rita's new picture, "Tonight and Every Night," with its setting a London theater that never misses a show thruout the great blitz of 1941, is a vehicle highly surcharged with drama, along with the traditional gayety of show folks and the romantic speedup that is a phase of the war. And that, my friends, will call for real trouping.

It is quite reasonable that it should. After all, one either catches on to acting or one doesn't. And if one does, then one improves with each picture, provided the story and direction are right. Then, too, Rita's marriage with Orson Welles did something for her, even if it was only being cut in halves by him during his magic show. Orson is like a whirling dervish—never still and always thinking about some new angle either of politics or show business. Well, you can't be with a person like that constantly without having some of it rub off.

But I really believe it was more Gene Kelly's influence than Orson's when it came to her acting in "Cover Girl." It was Gene's big chance, and he worked like a galley slave morning, noon, and night. Not only with his own part but with every other part in the picture. Such unselfishness and diligence is bound to have its reward, and it rewarded Rita just as much as it did him.

Mamma Cansino (nee Haworth) wanted Rita to be an actress, of course. Papa Cansino wanted her to grow up to be a dancer, a vocation at which the Cansinos, in Spain and here, too, have done right well.

So now both parents are happy.

Rita was born in New York, Oct. 17, 1918. Her father was born in Seville, Spain; her mother in Washington, D. C. Rita's two brothers, Eduardo Jr. and Vernon, are both in the army.

She started dancing with her father at the age of 4, made her professional debut with him at 6. She was quickly retired, however, because the Cansino act was so agile and robust they were afraid little Marguerita might get in the way and get hurt.

No one has complained about Rita getting in the way lately except when she forgets she's an actress and is persuaded to go on the stage or radio and discuss politics, of which she knows very little, if anything.

There again is the influence of Orson Welles. And when it comes to politics I'm afraid we don't see eye to eye. Orson tried to tell me that when he introduced Charlie Chaplin at Carnegie hall to talk about our opening a second front he didn't know what the subject matter of Charlie's speech was to be. Well, he was either misled or very careless. When an entertainer goes before his public he (or she) should know his subject. Politics can kill a star's career quicker than smallpox. No one knew that better than the late Will Rogers. Let's take a look at his career. Many people wanted Will to run for public office, but he preferred remaining an entertainer. And while he knew more about politics than any of our Hollywood pseudo-politicians will ever know, he'd never run for office. He poked fun at all those in high places, but in doing so never lost his balance or his public. But enough of this.

At 14 Rita really joined the Dancing Cansinos. Two years later she was dancing with her father in Hollywood movie road shows. This led to a four weeks' engagement at Agua Caliente Casino, outside Tia Juana.

The four weeks stretched out to more than two years, in the course of which Rita became the toast of tourists who went over the line from San Diego to lose their bank rolls. During that time she commuted to Hollywood to do a dancing turn in "Dante's Inferno." The picture failed, but not Rita. Fox studio saw in Senorita Cansino what looked to be a good bet. She was lined up for the lead in "Ramona," but a switch in a top executive spot cost Rita the part. It was played instead by Loretta Young. Instead of pouting, Rita did a mess of "B" pictures.

Her real chance was with Warner Baxter in "Under the Pampas Moon," and her first good part was with the late Warner Oland in "Charlie Chan in Egypt."

Not long after that she moved to Columbia and adopted her mother's family name, plus a "y" to simplify its pronunciation.

She still has the castanets with which she first danced, along with a silver cigaret box Hollywood photographers gave her some years later as the "most photogenerous" actress of that year.

Her fan following dates from a small role with Cary Grant and Jean Arthur in "Only Angels Have Wings." Soon after that Ann Sheridan refused to do "Strawberry Blonde" with James Cagney and Olivia De Havilland. Rita stepped in, and her stock flew up. After that it was the Spanish charmer in "Blood and Sand." Then a co-starring role with Fred Astaire in "You'll Never Get Rich." Following that, "My Gal Sal" and a repeat with Astaire in "You Were Never Lovelier."

But it remained for "Cover Girl," with its sincere tale of a hoofer from Brooklyn, to really put her on top. And now it's time out until another "Cover Girl" or a little "Man from Mars" makes its appearance, and maybe later on—history.

IT'S EASY TO MAKE CLOTHES LAST LONGER IN WARTIME CHICAGO WOMEN DECLARE!

American Family Flakes Preferred 3 to 1 Over All Other Package Soaps for Wartime Washings, Amazing New Survey Shows

"No hard rubbing needed to get my clothes white when I use American Family Flakes—that's why they last so long," says Mrs. Ed. Vincent, 855 Lawrence Ave. . . . Mrs. Vincent is right. The American Family Flakes way actually helps clothes last longer.

"Now my pretty colored things stay bright so much longer, since I switched from strong granulated soaps to American Family Flakes," writes Mrs. C. Harbin, 1832 S. Allport. . . . And no wonder—because with all their washing power, American Family Flakes are amazingly mild and gentle.

DON'T WASTE SOAP! It's Made of War Materials

1 Soak clothes in clear, cool water first.

2 Don't use your washer until you have enough clothes to run a full load.

3 Fill washer with water at desired temperature. Start machine. Measure American Family Flakes in cup and add slowly until suds are about 2 inches thick.

PREMIUMS

American Family Flakes and American Family Bar Soap both give you valuable coupons—which you can exchange for practical, useful articles for yourself, or your home without a penny's extra cost. Use American Family and save coupons for thrilling premiums at the American Family Premium Store, 57 W. Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I would appreciate very much a little news about the late Lynne Overman. He was in my opinion one of the grandest character actors of our time. His untimely death will be felt by all moviegoers. Could you please print a picture of him, also the date of his death? Thank you very much.

MARK SHERIDAN.

Lynne Overman

Dear Mr. Sheridan: Mr. Overman was a great favorite of mine also. His death was truly a loss to the world. He was born in Marysville, Mo., Sept. 19, 1887. He died Feb. 19, 1942. He had a colorful life—was a jockey, went to college, toured with the Ward and Wade minstrels, showed stereopticon slides in Alaska, singing during the intermission; was entertainer in a dance hall, worked in vaudeville, legit, and pictures, and in the first war served as an ensign aboard the SP-104. He was 5 feet 11½ inches tall and weighed 145 pounds. Horses were his hobby. Here's his picture, and I am glad to have heard from you.

Editor's Note.—While on the subject, my thanks to the many who wrote in answer to the communication from the "Club of Twelve Girls." I read all of the letters, and they made me happier than I can ever tell you. Only lack of space prevents my printing every one of them.

Say Goodbye to that Corn!

How to get instant relief from painful pressure and remove corn

Wouldn't you like to say goodbye to that corn—walk freely without pain? Then stop home-paring! For "whittling" gets only the top, usually leaves the hard core behind. Instead—remove that corn, with the core—with medicated Blue-Jay!

Here's how Blue-Jay works: first, the soft felt pad lifts off pressure, gives you instant relief from pain! Then, while you walk, the Blue-Jay medication gently softens, loosens the corn so it can be easily removed—with its hard, imbedded core.

Don't go on suffering! Get Blue-Jay at any drug counter and try it today!

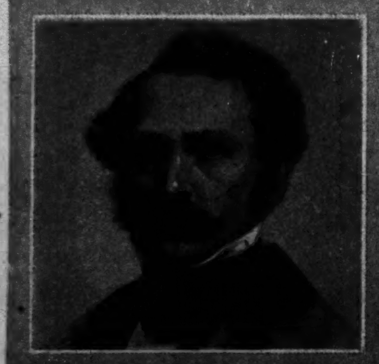
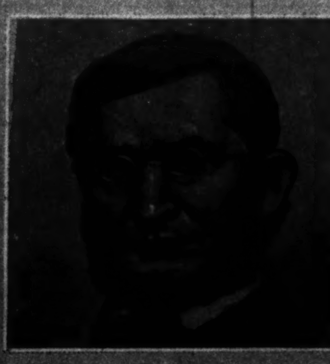
The DEATH of PAIN!



Dr. William T. G. Morton

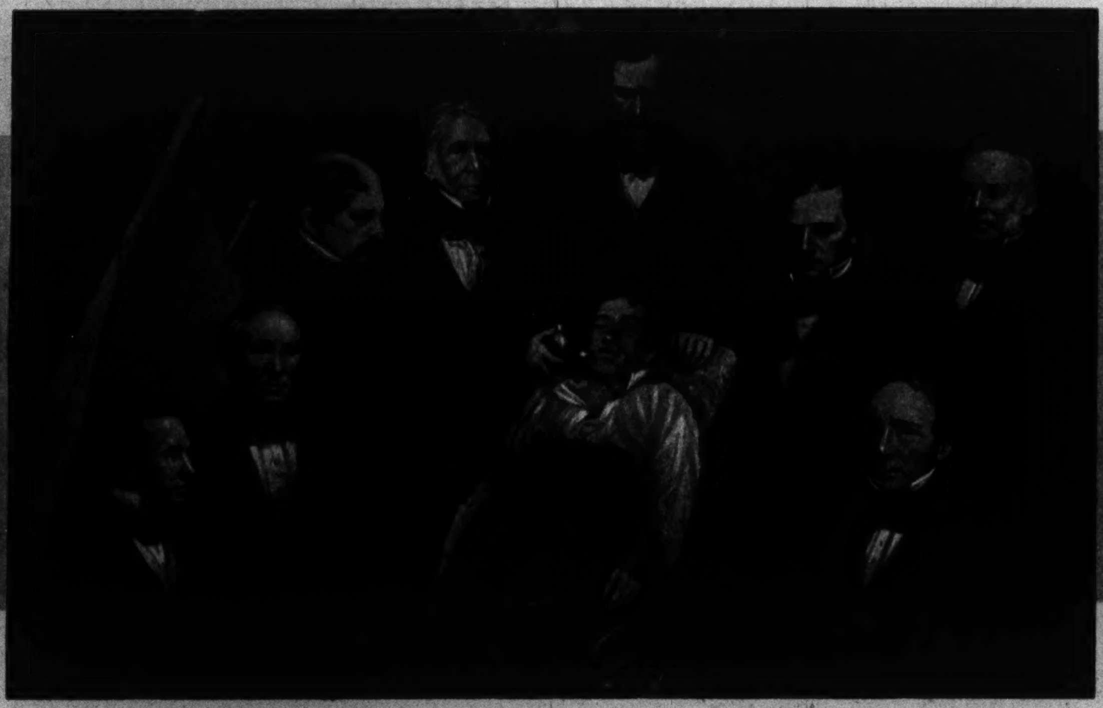
Dr. Horace Wells



Dr. Charles Thomas Jackson

Dr. Crawford W. Long

FOUR MEN WHOSE NAMES ARE LINKED TO ANESTHESIA



Dr. Morton, surrounded by medical staff, makes first public demonstration of etherization.

By IRVING S. CUTTER, M. D.

> And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and He took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof.—Genesis 2:21.

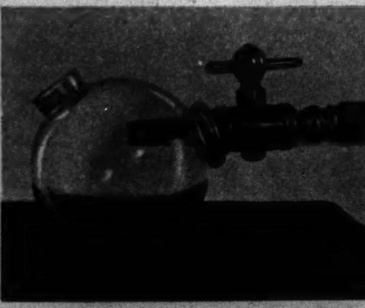
THUS RUNS the record of the first use of anesthesia. Like the story of so many of man's discoveries, that of relief from pain is full of hopes and disappointments, comedies and tragedies, successes and failures. Ancient man sensed that in bruises, sprains, and rheumatic twinges discomfort was soothed when the injured area was exposed to cold or heat. But many regarded these visitations as the work of demons and endeavored to frighten them away with charms and incantations.

From the soothing Egyptian nepenthe of the "Odyssey," which Helen cast into the soldiers' wine, to the drowsy sirups of Shakespeare, the narcotic virtues of opium, Indian hemp (Cannabis indica, or hashish), henbane, hemlock, lettuce, and many others were well known to the oriental and the western worlds.

Mandragora, or mandrake (belonging to the potato family), was popular as a hypnotic. The root or tuber was the useful part. But its gathering was said to be hazardous, because when lifted from the earth the plant uttered shrieks, causing insanity in those who heard them. For this reason it was customary to attach a dog to the stalk, then run away and let the animal do the pulling. Furthermore, this plant was resorted to for centuries by the Chinese and Hebrews in cases of criminal investigation. The ensuing confused mental state ofttimes led to confession. Paradoxically, it was also given to ease the tortures endured by persons undergoing punishment. Thus it was called "the potion of the condemned."



The original Morton inhaler.

The eminent Chinese physician Hua, who lived about 200 B. C., allowed his surgical patients to breathe in the fumes of hemp (marijuana). The Greeks and Romans favored the "Memphis stone" (composed of carbonates), which, coming into contact with vinegar, liberated carbon dioxide. This combination was supposed to numb the affected nerves.

During the middle ages physicians utilized a medicated sponge (spongia somnifera), steeped in various sedatives and then dried. When called for it was soaked in boiling water and placed over the face so that the fumes could enter the lungs. Due, however, to lack of standardization and dosage regulation, the action was dangerous and uncertain. Death often resulted from asphyxia or congestion. Gradually its use and that of other soporifics ceased and was generally abandoned by the end of the 15th century. Later, surgeons came to rely upon opium and alcohol.

Toward the close of the 18th century, thru the studies of Lavoisier, Black, and Priestley, interest was aroused in certain gases. Experiments were begun with carbon dioxide, nitrogen, and oxygen. In 1798 Thomas Beddoes, who established a "Pneumatic institute" at Clifton, England, prescribed gases for asthma and other bronchial and lung diseases. His 19-year-old assistant, Humphrey Davy (1778-1829), found that nitrous oxide (laughing gas) could be inhaled without harm. Tradition has it that he administered it to Priestly, Robert Southey, and Samuel Taylor Coleridge. In 1800 Davy published his "Researches, Chemical and Philosophical," in which he called attention to the pain-killing powers of this chemical. It is curious that neither he nor Dr. Beddoes followed up this observation.

In the United States G. B. Wood and Franklin Bache, in their "Dispensatory," had ascribed the same properties to ether, but all these scientists failed to grasp the true significance of these facts. It was almost anticipated by a young Englishman, Henry Hill Hickman, who in 1824 wrote a pamphlet, "A Letter on Suspended Animation, Showing That It May Be Safely Employed During Operations on Animals, with a View to Ascertaining Its Probable Utility in Surgical Operations on the Human Subject." The medical profession in both England and France proved unreceptive to the idea. In 1839 Velpeau, the most noted surgeon of his day, stated, "To escape pain in surgical operations is a chimera which we are not permitted to look for." Mankind was as profoundly asleep in this regard as tho it were under the influence of ether.

It was left to an American country doctor first to utilize this preparation to allay sensibility. Crawford Williamson Long (1815-'78), a native of Danielsville, Ga., had as fine a medical education as the era afforded and was a man of culture and wide reading. In the town of Jefferson, where he practiced, the young and frivolous were wont to entertain themselves with "ether frolics" instead of cocktail parties. Itinerant lecturers had put the idea into their heads by exhibitions of the antics caused by inhalation of so-called laughing gas. Dr. Long had observed that the participants were curiously unaware of cuts and bruises at the time they were encountered.

On March 30, 1842, he removed a small cystic tumor from the neck of James M. Venable, who was placed under the influence of sulphuric ether. When the patient awoke he knew nothing of what had occurred. Dr. Long subsequently availed himself of this chemical in other cases, which fact has been amply certified and vouched for by residents of Georgia. But he made no report of his experiments until 1849, when he published an account in the December issue of the Southern Medical and Surgical Journal.

Various reasons have been offered for his reticence. Perhaps he hoped to meet an individual who needed to undergo a major procedure so that he might have a more convincing tale to tell. But in such a small community none came his way. It is possible that he feared a furor like that which attended the assertion that pain could be completely eradicated under hypnotism. Altho this latter theory has been revived in some quarters, at that time it fell by the wayside as practical applications failed.

He may have wanted to reassure himself that it was actually the vapor which was responsible and not merely the psychic effect. At any rate the medical world knew nothing of his work for many years. Nevertheless Dr. Long shares in the glory of the introduction of painless surgery, and he is Georgia's claim to fame in Statuary hall, Washington.

The next star on the horizon was Horace Wells (1815-'48), the centennial of whose employment of nitrous oxide we celebrate this year. He was born in Vermont, studied dentistry with the leading members of the profession of Boston, and started practice in Hartford, Conn., where he soon became a leader. In 1838 he wrote an "Essay on Teeth" which portrayed much original thought. An inventive genius with mechanical skill, he constructed his own instruments. In those days it was customary to attach artificial teeth to old roots. Dr. Wells devised a new and superior adhesive and also wisely insisted on extracting decayed stumps, altho the experience was harrowing.

Since dental colleges did not exist prior to 1839, it was necessary for aspiring students to study with a practitioner of that art. Wells, popular and celebrated, attracted many young men, among whom was one William Thomas Green Morton (1819-'68), from the neighboring town of Farmington. In 1842 he took his dental degree in Baltimore in the college which had been founded a few years before. A short time thereafter Wells and Morton formed a partnership in Boston. This association did not last long and Wells soon returned to Hartford.

On the night of Dec. 10, 1844, Dr. Gardiner Q. Colton, whose sole occupation was "laughing gas" entertainments, lectured at Hartford. Samuel A. Cooley, a drug clerk, volunteered to become a subject. Taking just enough whiffs to produce exhilaration, he careened crazily about the stage, then spied an imaginary enemy and started in pursuit. His innocent victim, terrified, dodged and vaulted over a settee and sped up the aisle. The large and fashionable audience applauded in delight. Suddenly Cooley came to himself and, feeling foolish, slid into a seat near Dr. Wells. He then rolled up his trousers and gazed with astonishment at his excoriated legs. He had scraped his shins on the back

The Question Box

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer" and "Smarter and Smoother.")

HERE COMES the mail man again! Q.—I am 16 and like a particular boy very much. He in turn liked me—until I spoiled everything. It all started when I went to a party with him. I had a wonderful time, but later found out that he had asked two other girls first, and when they refused he asked me. Naturally I was angry. After the party he kept calling for a date, but I turned him down again and again. He seemed to like me a lot and urged me to accept, and finally he stopped calling altogether. And now I'm sorry. I see him on the street quite frequently, but he seems so distant now. How can I get him interested again?

A.—Maybe you're just a hot-tempered honey chile who ought to look before she weeps! What if the Joe in question did ask two other girls to the party first? At the time he didn't know you were so wonderful. But the fact that he called you so often after that first evening proved he had discovered you were in the lush 'n' lovely department. Now all you can do is turn on the charm and be as friendly as possible every time you do see him—till he begins to realize that you've had a change of heart. It he doesn't react at once, just snow him again—he's bound to get the drift.

Q.—It is difficult, I realize, to pass judgment, not knowing me or my friends, but perhaps you can give me your opinion. I have never limited my associates to one specific group, for I've found it more fun and more "profitable!" to go out with a number of different people. Of course I go around with one group more than I do any other and with one or two girls more than any others. That, I think, is natural. Recently a club was formed with more datable material than the crowd with which I'd been going most. I was invited to join and now am spending more time with them than before. Just recently I was accused of social climbing. This isn't my intention, and I have loathed such a quality in other people. I want every one to like me, naturally, and yet I don't want to hurt any one's feelings. It is quite a dilemma. What would you suggest?

A.—Do exactly as you have been doing—make and keep as many friends as possible. Stay loyal to old friends, but don't let any one else's green-eyed thinking influence your making new friends if you find particularly smooth characters who appeal to you. Just because you've been knitting, playing bridge, or attending movies with a certain group of girls during your freshman and sophomore years in high school doesn't mean you're bound by a 10 year contract! Make sure your actions are based on sincerity, try not to hurt any one—and then do exactly what you please.

Make sure your actions are based on sincerity; try not to hurt any one.

Q.—My problem is exactly the same problem as the one bothering my girl friend—so you can hit two birds with one answer. I dated a boy for about 10 months, and we both liked each other a great deal. He'd asked me to go steady more than once, but since I don't like the idea of going steady in high school, I refused. When I stopped dating him he began to date my good friend. She liked him, and he seemed to like her, and everything was fine until he asked her to go steady. After having been refused twice (my girl friend has the same dating principles as I) he began to date a third and asked her to go steady on their third date. They went together until he went into the army.

I had always believed him to be sincere until my friend and I checked letters recently (he now writes to all three of us) and found he was telling us both the same thing—that when he comes home again he'd be seeing us, things would be different, and that he loves all three of us—he's just trying to make up his mind! I really believe he likes all of us very much, tho it can't be love, split three ways! In spite of everything we all think he's a fine fellow. Putting yourself in our position, what would you do?

A—Nothing, except continue writing casual, noncommittal letters, keep on thinking he's a fine fellow — but don't take him too seriously, especially when he gets talking in the true love department. He is evidently afraid that when this war is over there won't be any honey chile left for him, so he's putting the finger on three dolls at once just to be sure! He likes all of you as a kind of "date insurance." In case he gets a surprise furlough, at least one of you ought to be available!

Q.—This may not be the kind of thing to ask you, but I would like an outside opinion. I am a senior in high school and have one very lame leg. I would like to go to our prom, but am shy about asking a girl, because I do not know if any one would like to go with me under the circumstances. She might feel cheated because I cannot dance very long or very well.

A.—Don't worry about the dancing angle. If a girl finds you good company and fun to be with she won't mind sitting this one out. Have fun — if you do, your date will, too.

NYE—Man of Courage

(© Harris & Ewing.)

Senator Nye, second from right, just after he had been seated in the senate. With him are the three senators who led successful fight to have his appointment approved—left to right, E. D. Smith (D., S. C.), Hubert D. Stephens (D., Miss.), and M. M. Neely (D., W. Va.).

has knotted its purse strings for once. Nye feels that the help given by the federal government to farmers in the drouth years was simply national insurance of the food supply.

In hundreds of speeches and thousands of letters he has reiterated:

"Without a sound agricultural economy, there can be no national prosperity."

Agriculture, he explains patiently, is basic. The farmer is not only a producer—the biggest producer in the country—but he is also the country's biggest consumer. This point is often overlooked in industrial areas whose representatives wonder why times are hard for them when the farmer isn't making money, he adds.

It is because he has his roots in America and American soil that Nye is the target of a powerful drive from the eastern seaboard. The international social set and the Wall street bankers, especially those curious members of the breed who have one hand across the seas in international finance and the other down in Union square clasping the clenched fists of the communist brethren, fear Nye.

Nye is not just another senator. He is the ranking member of the appropriations committee and will be chairman of that committee when November brings a Republican victory. The unholy alliance of left wingers and the ultra wealthy do not want any midwestern farm man in the driver's seat of such a powerful committee and they especially don't want a man who has no taste for their international spending programs. The New Deal is aware that it has lost the farm vote and is muddying up the scene by painting the farmer in city areas as a greedy, horned devil.

"Actually the farmer is not an enemy of the consumer, because he is a consumer himself," Nye patiently explains. "The highest consumer in the country even of foodstuffs. North Dakota farmers, for example, don't grow citrus fruit or cotton, but are as interested in stuffing their youngsters with vitamin C and putting clothes on them as anybody else and they have to buy oranges if they want them and they have to buy dress goods, both of which are farm products."

The eastern consumer need not fear Nye because his own farmers are sympathetic to consumer problems, Nye's friends say. But they add that "middle men" who are responsible for the wide spread between what the farmer gets and what the consumer pays and who contribute nothing to the value of a farm product, can expect no mercy at the hands of Nye as chairman of the appropriations committee.

A heavy criticism of Nye in his own state is that he has done nothing for North Dakota. The implication is that he has failed to bring pork barrel projects to his state. The more specific charge is that he has failed to bring defense projects to North Dakota. Actually, Gov. John Moses, a Democrat, has said North Dakota does not want any defense projects because such projects, including imported labor, would undoubtedly be liabilities after the war.

What Nye has done for North Dakota makes an impressive record. During drouth years North Dakota received more money from the federal government per capita than any other state. The New Deal did not want to favor North Dakota. Nye did. By shrewd and adroit maneuvering in the appropriations committee he had funds allocated and earmarked for his own state.

Chairmanship of the important committee is not the impossibility that New Dealers would have voters believe. The Republicans need to capture only 12 seats to control the senate. Thirty-two seats are to be filled in November. Giving the Democrats traditionally southern states, including even Kentucky, where Senator Alben W. Barkley is facing defeat, the Republicans have 15 possibilities. If they capture 12 of these in November, it is generally agreed they are certain to win control of the senate in 1946 so that Nye is certain to get the committee post in two years if not upon reëlection.

North Dakota has not had a major congressional committee chairmanship since the late Porter J. McCumber was chairman of the senate finance committee a quarter of a century ago, altho it is one of the stanchest Republican states in the Union. It has never elected a Democrat to either house of congress. There have been two Democratic senators from North Dakota, but they received their seats by appointment from Democratic governors. Both were succeeded by elected Republicans.

Senator and Mrs. Nye.

In the present congress the south is in the saddle on almost every major committee. In the south shrewd politicos for generations have made a practice of sending young men to the senate and having them attain sufficient seniority to head committees and, in a large measure, control congress. The west and north have not followed this example, with the notable exception of Nye.

Nye was an unknown and a senate baby when he was appointed in 1925. He was born in Hortonville, Wis., on Dec. 19, 1892, and passed his boyhood in another Wisconsin village, Wittenberg. Here his first name received the hard "G" pronunciation which is puzzling on first acquaintance. His pious mother adopted that pronunciation, because the town drunkard was named "Jerry" and she did not want that nickname to descend to her son—or Jerry's habits for that matter. The latter devout wish has also been realized.

Nye's father was a country editor. Incidentally, the late Bill Nye, the humorist, was a cousin of the senator. At 18 Nye was graduated from high school. The following Monday he became a publisher on his own by taking over his father's paper. He eventually bought the paper. Nye says he never made a go of the Review, his father's paper, before or after buying it.

He then set his eyes on wider horizons and became manager and editor of the Daily Plain Dealer at Creston, Ia., and was a reporter for a few months on the Des Moines Register. He was convinced that weekly journalism was a better field and went to Fryburg, N. D., where he purchased the Fryburg Pioneer.

Editor Nye thought that Fryburg, a town of 50, would grow and become the county seat. Altho the town failed to live up to the editor's enthusiastic expectations, he more than lived up to the expectations of its citizens

He attracted the attention of founders of the nonpartisan movement and was persuaded in 1919 to go to Cooperstown to look over the plant of a newspaper the league had purchased there. He found the place to his liking and became editor of the Griggs county Sentinel-Courier.

In 1924 he was persuaded to run

BATTLE-READY...

IN the misty dawn along an English street roll the day's newly arrived Thunderbolts. Tear off the "wrappings", condition them for flight—and they're battle-ready! For changes and improvements to meet the Army's latest fighting techniques were built into them as they rolled along the Republic assembly line.

All such alterations in design and equipment are hard to make. The re-design or re-location of even a small element in the airplane may sometimes affect the design of a much larger section. And to build such changes into the plane without halting production poses the severest problem of all.

Republic anticipated this critical problem. It was determined that no change in battle tactics would ever find the Thunderbolt unready. Republic accordingly created a new kind of production system in which high speed was combined with extreme flexibility in assembly methods. When something new is to be added to the Thunderbolt, or a strategic change is to be made, the production line doesn't stop for the changes. It simply absorbs them! The line keeps moving!

WRITE THAT BOY TODAY ... V-MAIL

There is nothing easy about maintaining a production system which is at once fast and flexible. It only sounds easy. But it does deliver Thunderbolts in quantity, and on time, to all theaters of this war, equipped and battle-ready to meet the latest tactical requirements. Republic Aviation Corporation, Farmingdale, Long Island, New York, and Evansville, Indiana.

The Death of Pain!

of a bench, but had not realized that he was injured. Wells was intrigued and arranged for a test in his office the following morning, with himself as the patient. Dr. Colton handled the anesthetic and his colleague, Dr. Riggs, painlessly extracted an infected molar. Thereafter both Wells and Riggs used the gas frequently, and Wells communicated his findings to Morton.

Wells then asked for a public demonstration at the Massachusetts General hospital. Consent was obtained thru the good offices of the kindly senior surgeon, Dr. John Collins Warren (1778-1856). Unfortunately, the "show" was a failure. The patient cried out, and Wells was booed and jeered by the physicians and students present. It is now believed that the gas must have been inert or that it was not absorbed. The sensitive-natured Wells was discouraged and disheartened, but he knew that he was right. He decided to go abroad, where his claims were recognized, and he received an honorary M. D. in Paris. On his return he encountered so many rebuffs and disappointments, however, that his mental health deteriorated, leading to death by his own hand.

John Collins Warren . . . sponsored anesthesia demonstration.

Humphrey Davy . . . discovered laughing gas was harmless.

J. Y. Simpson . . . employed ether in obstetrics.

But Morton showed pugnacious persistence. In addition to running his "tooth mill" (manufacture of artificial teeth) and practicing dentistry, he studied medicine at Harvard, having as his preceptor the accomplished chemist Charles Thomas Jackson (1805-'80). He "pumped" Dr. Jackson dry of his knowledge of various ethers and continued to experiment with nitrous oxide. He tried sulphuric ether on animals, humans, and himself, and constructed a special apparatus by means of which the compound was vaporized. This seemed unnecessary, as Morton knew that a saturated handkerchief or towel was really all the equipment needed. Morton then visited Dr. Warren and persuaded him to give his "new" preparation a trial, without, however, disclosing the name of the drug.

The operation took place at Massachusetts General hospital on Oct. 16, 1846, the patient being Gilbert Abbott, who had a "superficial vascular tumor just below the jaw." Grouped about the table were Drs. J. Mason Warren, Henry J. Bigelow, Samuel Parkman, George Hayward, and A. A. Gould (as shown in the famous painting). The benches were crowded with spectators. Morton arrived late, having nervously brought along Eben Frost, one of his dental patients, on whom he had tried out the anesthetic. Morton administered the ether and Dr. John Collins Warren dissected out the growth in five minutes. As Abbott regained consciousness Dr. Warren exclaimed, "Gentlemen, this is no humbug!"

The next day a large fatty cyst of the shoulder was removed by Hayward, with Morton as anesthetist, and again with success. On Nov. 18, 1846, the discovery was proclaimed in a discussion by Henry J. Bigelow in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal. It was largely due to the high character and repute of such men as Warren and Bigelow that ether was taken up all over the world.

Meanwhile Morton attempted to patent the drug as "letheon," squabbling with Jackson about their respective rights. He did not announce the substance as ether until 1847, altho the odor revealed its nature. Morton was ungracious and disingenuous in his treatment of Jackson, altho the latter had taught Morton all that he knew about the chemical. Had Morton been honest and candid he would have advanced the cause of science and have shared more fully than he does today in the honors due pioneers. However, he may have remembered that Jackson had acquired notoriety by claiming that Morse had stolen the telegraph from him and thus feared a repetition.

Morton offered to sell his apparatus to the government, but, unfortunately for him, during the Mexican war ether was used freely by the army and navy, thus giving a death blow to the patent. Agents to whom he had farmed out rights now demanded return of their fees. Supported by the staff of Massachusetts General hospital, he appealed to congress in November, 1847. Jackson and the friends of Horace Wells opposed him, and the controversy dragged on for several years. When Crawford Long read his paper alleging priority to the Georgia Medical and Surgical association Jackson journeyed to Georgia and verified Long's claim. Thereafter he took but little part in the controversy. Overwhelmed with debt and beset with lawsuits, Morton failed in health and wealth, but was rescued by a national subscription which brought him a suitable income for life.

Impartial historians must recognize that, as in the case of many scientific discoveries, such as evolution and electricity, the concept was in the air. Anesthesia involves the names of all four investigators—Long, Wells, Morton, and Jackson—altho orchids are due also to John Collins Warren, Humphrey Davy, and the Russian surgeon Pirogoff, whose little manual on etherization, based on his Crimean experiences, appeared in 1847. However, many give unstinted credit to Morton, who was the revealer. As Francis Darwin put it, "In science the credit goes to the man who convinces the world, not to the man to whom the idea first occurs."

The words anesthesia and anesthetic were proposed by the physician-poet Oliver Wendell Holmes, altho the term occurs in Plato's "Timaeus" and also in the writings of Dioscorides (first century A. D.). Subsequent to Bigelow's proclamation, etherization was promptly adopted by the British, and as early as December, 1846, Robert Liston had amputated the thigh of a blissfully unconscious patient. Syme took it up in Edinburgh (1847), and in January of that year Sir James Young Simpson (1811-'70), the Scottish midwife, employed ether in obstetrics. Simpson, son of a baker, became a distinguished leader in his specialty. He developed an enormous practice among the nobility and was accoucheur to the British queen. Possessed of deep sympathy, he had long been desirous of alleviating distress incident to childbirth without interfering with the free and healthy play of natural functions. In the midst of his daily work he tested various drugs upon himself.

Chloroform had been discovered in 1831, but it seemed unsuitable, as it was heavy and reputed to be less volatile. Simpson apparently did not know that early in 1847 the French chemist Flourens had remarked on the sleep-producing power of chloroform on animals. In November of 1847 Simpson and two friends tried it on themselves with startling and well-nigh fatal results. He believed that he had a substance superior to ether, and even now chloroform is widely favored by British physicians.

Simpson made no attempt, as Morton had done, to patent his discovery under a fanciful name for his own pecuniary profit. But he had his troubles with the scientific and moral prejudices of the day. After laborious and statistical investigations he proved eventually that chloroform did not increase mortality and that the travail of childbirth was by no means a desirable, salutary, and conservative manifestation of the life force. To his religious antagonists he quoted the Bible in the original, showing that the Hebrew word translated "sorrow" really meant "labor," and that elsewhere the Bible had an entirely different word to express pain incident to parturition.

The effect of anesthesia upon the medical world was remarkable. Before this the surgeon had to rush thru an operation at lightning speed and under disadvantages occasioned by the struggles of the patient. Now he could take his time and explore new fields. With anesthesia ended slap-dash, race track surgery. Furthermore, the method paved the way for the adoption of the advances of Louis Pasteur concerning the cause of disease and the antiseptic doctrines of Joseph Lister. Again, ether or chloroform enabled the lying-in woman to confront the pangs of labor with greater ease and security, and the obstetrician was able to work under the same advantages as the surgeon.

After the death of Horace Wells nitrous oxide was discarded. But it was revived by its promoter, G. Q. Colton, in 1862, and in 1868 was combined with oxygen by Edmund Andrews of Chicago. Since then there have come many improvements in the three types of anesthesia—general, local, and spinal. Today laymen talk glibly of cocaine, novocaine, and scopolamine.

LEFTOVERS MAKE GOOD MENUS

By MARY MEADE

LARGE CUTS of meat such as leg of lamb, pot roast of beef, baked ham, or pork roast are frequently more interesting the second time they're served, for ingenuity is required in the utilization of left-overs. A small amount of cooked meat can be extended by using it in crusty brown hash, in stews, meat loaves, patties, croquettes, or in combination with cereal pastes like macaroni, rice, spaghetti, and noodles.

If your imagination doesn't cope with the left-over meat situation, you can depend on the recipe given here to produce an appetizing main dish.

MEAT AND VEGETABLES WITH BROWNED RICE

(Serves six)

4 tablespoons meat drippings
½ cup diced onion
½ cup diced green pepper
5 tablespoons flour
1¼ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2½ cups milk
1 cup diced, cooked celery
1 cup sliced, cooked carrots
2 cups diced, cooked meat

Melt drippings in top of double boiler. Add onion and green pepper and cook 5 minutes, but do not brown. Add flour and seasonings; gradually add the milk. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Add celery, carrots, and meat. Heat thoroly and serve with browned rice.

BROWNED RICE

3 tablespoons meat drippings
¾ cup rice
3 cups boiling water
1¼ teaspoons salt

Melt fat in skillet. Add well washed rice and cook until golden brown, stirring frequently. Add water and salt. Cover and simmer 25 minutes, stirring occasionally, until rice is tender and fluffy. Pour rice into casserole, arranging it around the sides of the dish. Pour meat-vegetable mixture into the center and serve.

A cup and a half of diced, cooked meat will provide five generous servings when combined with 2 cups cooked macaroni, spaghetti, or noodles and 2 cups medium white sauce in a casserole. Top the dish with buttered crumbs and bake for about 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven, 325 degrees. A little minced onion, parsley, sliced olives, green pepper, or pimiento may be added to the combination for extra flavor if desired.

Fresh strawberries are at their best right now. And they're never better than when served as dessert with thick cultured sour cream fresh from the dairy. Sprinkle the berries lightly with sugar, then heap the sour cream over them.

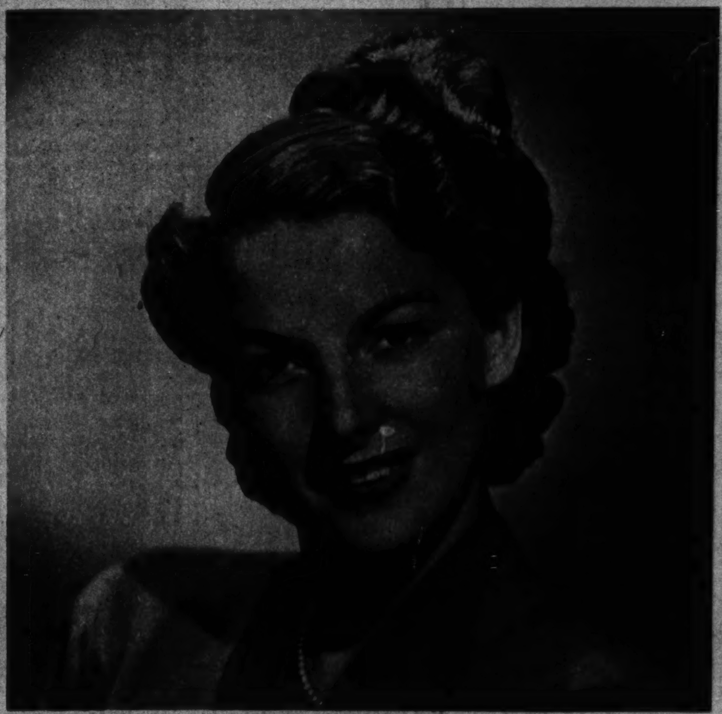
Homemade Hair-Do



Here is a hair-do you can set for yourself at home.

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

TO BE YOUR OWN good hairdresser, or reasonable imitation thereof, is something to be grateful for these days. But you're smart girls. With practice you can put up a mighty snappy coiffure show, granted you do not attempt too complicated a coiffure. The hair-do illustrated herewith is a smart style and can be easily set at home.

First: A few hours before washing the hair, or the night before, condition the hair with a warm oil rub. Use any vegetable oil—corn, cottonseed, or olive oil. Part the hair in sections and rub oil into the scalp over entire head.

Second: Give the hair a thoro shampoo first by brushing it vigorously with a good, sturdy brush. Wet it before applying shampoo. Use half the shampoo on the first cleaning round. Then rinse with clear water and apply the rest of the shampoo. After this rinse in warm, then cool water. Rinse until the hairs literally squeak. Use a turkish towel to soak up excess moisture.

Third: For the setting keep hair slightly damp, rewetting it at times if need be. Apply a little wave lotion before setting if hair does not take wave easily.

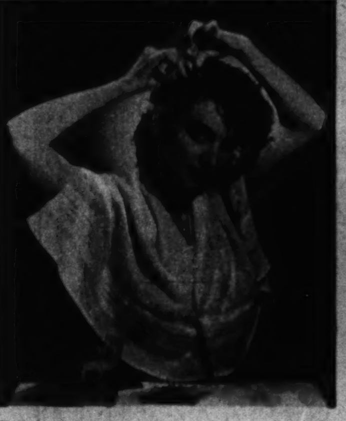
Part the hair and set the shorter side in pin curls turned toward the face. The pin curls are large so they'll brush into wide, soft waves. For the other side, comb the hair straight over the center section of the brow to get the flat-top effect. Push the hair into a wide wave ridge at the side, flattening it into place with the back of the comb.

Set a row of wide pin curls in the ridge, turning them toward the side part. Right behind this row of curls set another row turned in the opposite direction. At the back the pin curls are set in three or four rows to allow the hair to fall in soft ringlets.

Fourth: When the hair has dried thoroly, brush it out on the short side so that it forms soft upward waves. Next brush it smoothly over the center of the head, then sweep it upward into wide, high waves, as illustrated.

First step: Conditioning hair with oil (see story for details).

Second step: The shampoo itself.



Third: Setting the slightly damp hair.

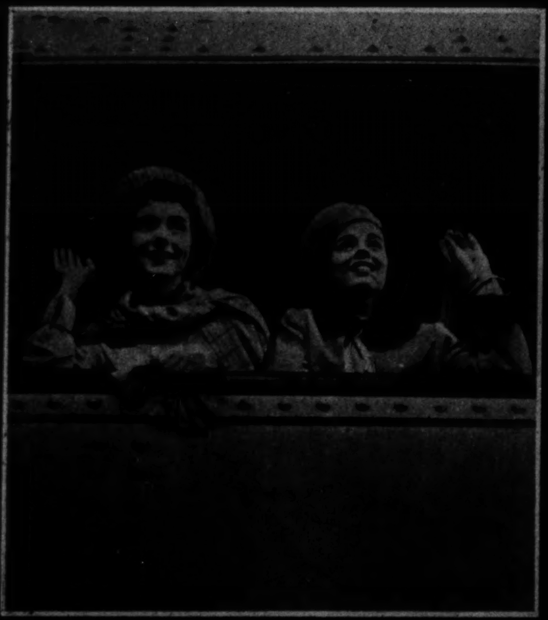
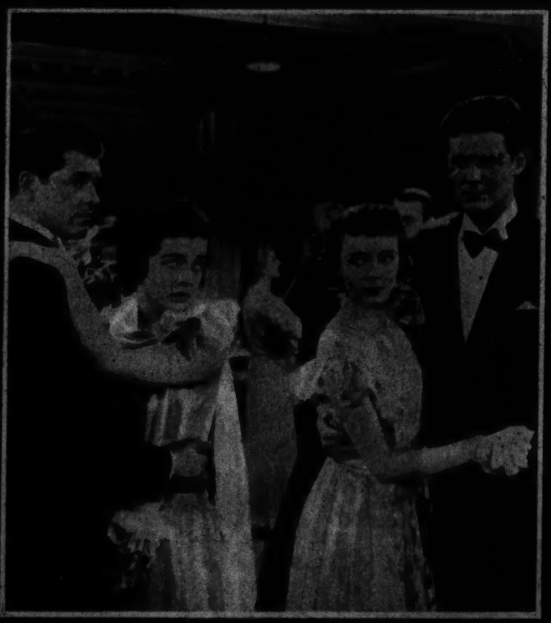
GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER presents Gail Russell and Diana Lynn in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay"



1 These would-be sophisticates of the '20s, Emily Kimbrough (Diana Lynn) and Cornelia Otis Skinner (Gail Russell), embark on an unchaperoned journey to Europe.



2 Aboard ship the girls meet the Princeton All-American Avery Moore (James Brown) and Dr. Tom Newhall (Bill Edwards). Their attempts at being poised don't always end happily.

3 Unworldly Emily, mistaking a "ship's pool" for something to swim in, enthusiastically dons bathing togs. As she shamefacedly discovers her error, it's time for fire drill. Emily is appropriately dressed!

4 The girls find in their stateroom a lost pocketbook belonging to Mrs. Ethel Lamberton (Alma Kruger). They are afraid of being mistaken for thieves, and bungle the attempts to restore it, thus pointing suspicion to Mrs. Lamberton's companion, Miss Horn (Beulah Bondi).

5 Just as the ship is about to dock, Cornelia gets measles. Measles also strikes Avery Moore, which brings about misunderstanding between the boy and Cornelia. Emily patches up matters.

6 In Paris the girls climb to the towers of Notre Dame cathedral. To their horror, they find themselves locked in all night. In a futile attempt to attract rescuers, Cornelia and Emily drop clothing and shoes on the streets below.

7 Outraged Father Otis Skinner and his wife (Charles Ruggles and Dorothy Gish) decide the hour has come for the girls to give up this foolish idea of emancipation and order them home to America. Cornelia and Emily, however, make plans to meet Avery and Tom at a school dance upon their return. (THE END)

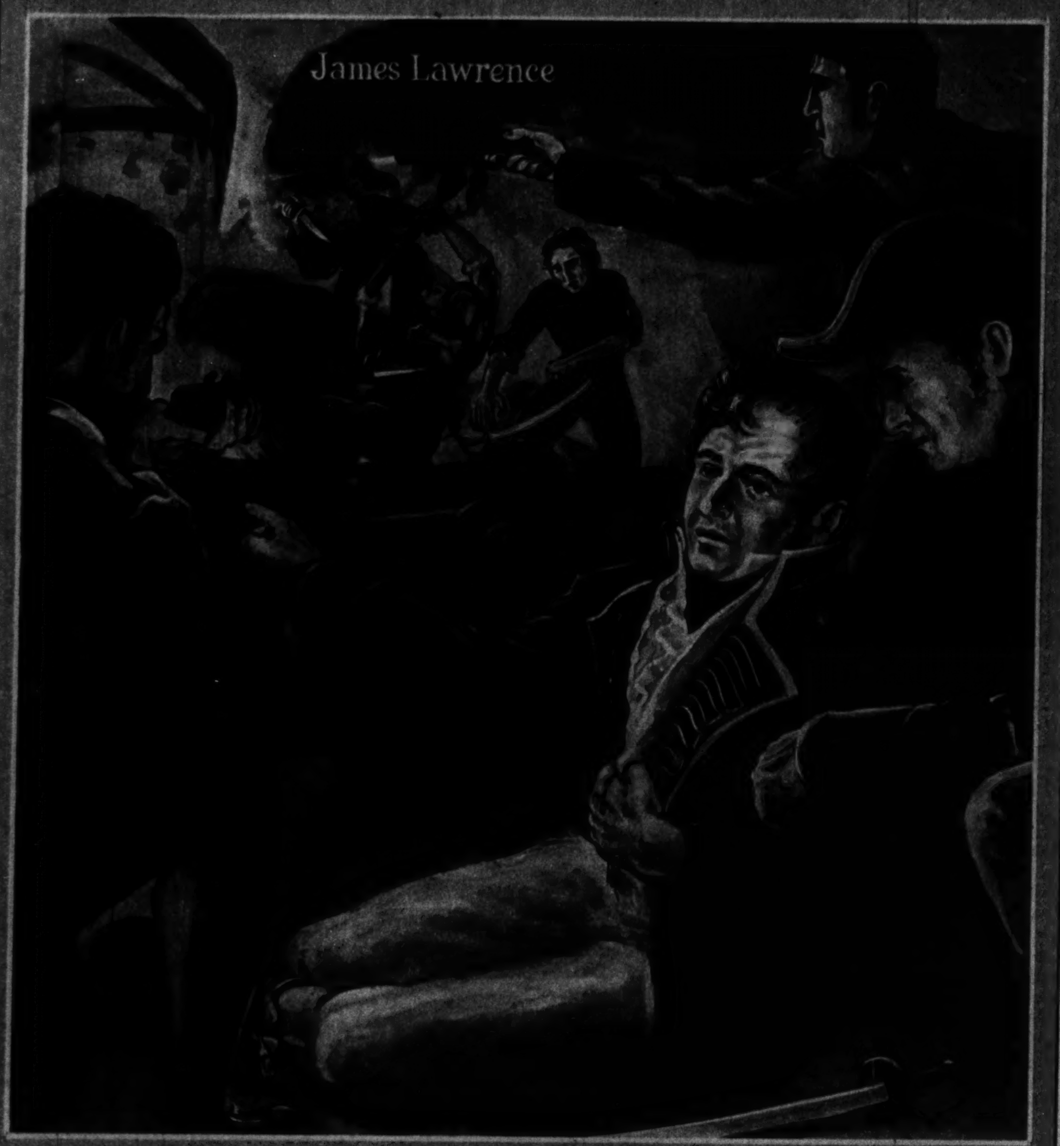
ROMANTIC FIGURES of AMERICAN HISTORY



The dramatic illustration above, by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Varnak, is another of the series appearing currently in this section with biographical sketches. Watch for this series every Sunday.

SHOT DOWN upon the deck of his ship, the American frigate Chesapeake, Capt. James Lawrence realized that he had only a few hours to live.

In these last hours, however, he was not thinking of himself, but of the safety of his vessel, and as he was carried below deck by members of his crew he is said to have exclaimed:

"Don't give up the ship!"

Altho the Chesapeake and the British frigate Shannon were closely matched in fire power, the enemy was superior in seamanship and gunnery, and the action between the two craft, off Boston harbor in June, 1813, lasted only about 15 minutes. The Chesapeake's flag was hauled down by the British, who sailed away with the captured ship and its dying commander.

Lawrence was born in Burlington, N. J., Oct. 1, 1781. After receiving an elementary education in the schools of his native town and studying law for a short while, he determined to seek a career in the navy. In the autumn of 1798 he was accepted as a midshipman and ordered to duty aboard the U. S. S. Ganges. Two years later he was promoted to acting lieutenant and assigned to the U. S. S. Adams.

He served in the war with Tripoli (1801-'05) as first lieutenant of the Enterprise, then as commander of that vessel, then as first lieutenant of the John Adams, and finally as commander of Gunboat No. 6. Taking part in the attack on the city of Tripoli and in the burning of the American frigate Philadelphia, which had fallen into the hands of the Tripolitans, he was highly commended for his valor and mentioned in resolutions adopted by congress.

After his services in the conflict in the Mediterranean he served as first lieutenant of the Constitution and then as commander successively of the Vixen, Wasp, Argus, and Hornet. In 1811 he carried state department dispatches to Europe in the Hornet. It was the unsatisfactory nature of the answers to these dispatches which he carried back to America in the spring of 1812 that brought on the War of 1812.

After the declaration of war Lawrence, who had been elevated to master commandant in December, 1811, put to sea in the Hornet and captured a number of prizes. Later he sailed into the South Atlantic, where his vessel operated as a part of Commodore Bainbridge's squadron. On Feb. 24 (1813) he defeated and captured the British brig of war Peacock in an action fought off the mouth of the Demerara river, British Guiana.

Lawrence was promoted to captain on March 3, just three weeks before he arrived back in New York to win acclaim for his victory. On May 1 he was given command of the New York navy yard, but five days later was ordered to relieve the commander of the Chesapeake, then at Boston.

Altho under instructions to proceed to sea to intercept British transports and supply ships, he sailed on June 1 with the intention of engaging the Shannon, which then was blockading Boston harbor. Historians have criticized his action in not obeying instructions, but he is not held to have been foolhardy, for it is recognized that he had a fair chance of success against the enemy vessel.

In the brief engagement with the Shannon the Chesapeake lost 145 of its crew, against a loss of 83 on the enemy ship.

The wound which Lawrence received during the action caused his death on June 5 (1813), and three days later he was buried by the British at Halifax with military honors.

A ship owner of Salem, Mass., sailing under a flag of truce, brought Lawrence's body back to Salem in August of that year, and on Sept. 16 it was reinterred in Trinity church yard, New York City.

"Don't give up the ship!" became the navy's rallying cry in the months of war that followed.

DUTCH MASTERS CIGARS

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

Notre Dame, Ind.

THE LIFE of the marine or the seaman in a V-12 unit lacks social frills. The ever-present fear of washing out, the struggle with physics and math in intensified lots, the unbending discipline of the navy keeps noses in constant proximity to the grindstone. Here at Notre Dame, where the V-12 unit is the second largest in the country, there is no more than one social shindig a semester. This semester's was "maneuvers week," which was really a week-end, but a packed one, especially interesting for the organization and the enthusiasm that lay behind its execution.

Contact with V-12 trainees, not only on this campus but on every one where such a unit exists, proves that in the navy boys learn two important things. One is manners. The other is organization.

The trainee's easy, consistent use of "sir" or "ma'am" is as music to adult ears, and his lightning speed to open doors, to whip out a light for the guest's cigaret, or to spring to his feet when an older person enters a room impresses and enchants the civilian.

Maneuvers week at Notre Dame was a brilliant example of the wheels within wheels of trainee organization. The unit's welfare and recreational officer, Lt. (j. g.) James J. Collins, gave able over-all advice, but the whole program was planned and executed down to the minutest detail by the boys themselves. Seaman William Ferrick was general chairman; Marine Pvt. Thomas Young was week-end activity chairman. Eight committees, headed by an equal number of seamen and marines, were responsible for decorations, transportation, tickets, publicity, entertainment, music, refreshments, and the thousand and one details that are of major importance in bringing off a party of such proportions.

Embracing as it did a military ball on Friday night, a regimental review on Saturday morning, an all-afternoon picnic on Saturday, an all-V-12 circus revue on Saturday night, and a tea dance on Sunday, it was an ambitious undertaking—flawlessly executed.

At least 900 navy and marine candidates and their girls attended the military ball in the enormous drill hall that has been built beside old Cartier field. With fantastic speed—and no time off from studies—the boys in charge of this detail had transformed the familiar, unbeautiful calisthenics chamber into a bower. The walls were draped in sea-foamy blue and yellow muslin; a green, fragrant fir hedge encircled the floor, and small tables, each with its lamp shades of various colors, gave a gala cabaret touch. The boys had even made the shades, as, indeed, they had done everything else. Outdoors, under starry skies and a youthful moon, there were more tables and a buffet from which flowed oceans of fruit punch.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Next morning, starting at 6 o'clock, work details, operating again under marvelous organization, cleared away every trace of the party in one hour.

By 11 o'clock on Saturday the boys were out in the hot sun for the regimental review before Capt. J. R. Barry, U. S. N.; Capt. J. W. Finney, U. S. M. C. R., and their week-end guests. In the afternoon maneuvers were transferred to South Bend's Potawatomie park for a picnic. There were races and games between the marines and the seamen, and food appeared as tho by magic—soft drinks, potato chips, rolls, and hot dogs in abundance.

There are 25 huge outdoor ovens in this park; pre-party organization saw to it that fires were ready to light before the guests arrived. After dark, on time and with no amateur breakdowns of lighting, sound effects, or continuity, came "Nites and Daze," a hilarious revue directed and produced by Seaman Casey Snyder with an all-V-12 cast and orchestra. The night was beautiful, the trees whispered softly, and the revue was good. The audience of boys and their dates, sitting on benches that some magic genie of a trainee work detail had produced, laughed and sang and had a wonderful time.

Before Sunday's tea dance, scheduled for the afternoon, there were religious services for those who wished to attend them. The Council of Churches of South Bend, as a special concession to the 3,000 military trainees in various units on the Notre Dame campus, arranged for Memorial day services on May 28 instead of the 30th, when the boys would be confined to classes. There were services in the churches of all denominations; for the boys of the Roman Catholic faith it was a military mass, celebrated out of doors on the campus on an altar erected in the memorial door of the ivy-clad Sacred Heart church. Several hundred service men, marines, seamen, midshipmen, and N. R. O. T. C.'s paraded to the green lawn before the altar. Presentation of the colors preceded mass.

An address by Captain Barry followed it, and then, simply and solemnly, Father Hugh O'Donnell, president of the university, read the roll call of Notre Dame's dead. In brilliant sunshine and utter stillness the men stood somberly at attention while a platoon fired a volley and their bugle corps sounded "taps" in notes that seemed, at that moment and in that setting, more expressive of anguish and sweetness and beauty than they ever did before.

Students and naval trainees attend the special Sunday Memorial day services before memorial door of Sacred Heart church.

The semester for the V-12 boys at Notre Dame ends this week. Those who have not completed their studies return for the next semester on July 1; the others go on active duty. In the group on the campus this semester there are approximately 250 boys who have, because of special qualifications, been detached from the fleet for college training, among them veterans of many naval battles, survivors from the Wasp and the Hornet, and several who were wounded and decorated.

WARNING ON PUBLIC HEALTH

"Toothbrushes are essential to national health. More than half of the people of America do not possess one. To be well and to keep well every American should have a good toothbrush and should use it regularly."

DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor of "Hygeia", published by the American Medical Association

Dr. Fishbein sounds a timely warning that everyone should heed—especially today when our nation is counting on the good health of all of us to see it through to victory. Know Your Horses

JACKASS Because it is a member of the same genus as the horse, interbreeds with the horse, and is employed for the same general purposes as the horse, the jackass is included in this series of articles.

The term jackass or jack designates the male of the ass breed, which is represented by the wild ass of North Africa and numerous domesticated types thruout most of the world. The ass first was domesticated in ancient times, and today it flourishes almost everywhere except in the cold countries.

Most highly esteemed of the asses in years past were those of Spain, and a majority of the jackasses in America today are descended from the Spanish type. Among the Spanish type animals of great value are the asses of the Balearic Islands, large numbers of which have been brought to America. Thru crosses of different imported strains and scientific selection a relatively large form of jackass has been developed by American breeders. This type, strong and heavy-boned, is used to sire the kind of mules favored in this country. (The mule will be discussed in next Sunday's article.)

The jackass of the type most popular in America is about the size of a small work horse, the larger ones being as much as 15 hands 2 inches in height and weighing from 900 to more than 1,000 pounds.

The ass, of which the female is termed jennet or jenny, is not an attractive animal as compared with a well bred horse. It has a disproportionately large head; long, loose ears; a straight, thin neck, and ungainly outlines. Moreover, it often possesses stubborn and clownish habits which have given rise to the use of the word jackass or ass to describe an oafish human being. Asses are relatively slow animals and their gaits at both the trot and the run are awkward.

The diminutive burro of the west and southwest is a type of ass. It is descended from the small animals introduced into Mexico by the early Spaniards. Biggest members of the breed are the asses of Poitu, France, while the smallest are those of western India and Ceylon, some of which are barely 7 hands 2 inches (30 inches) in height and thus even smaller than the burro. The term donkey is often applied to small asses.

Registration of the breed in this country is under the supervision of the Standard Jack and Jennet registry of Kansas City, Mo. The animal pictured above is a typical jackass.

A Hussey Who's a Lady

● RUTH HUSSEY was born in Providence, R. I., and had definite New England manners when she arrived in Hollywood in 1937 as a leading character in "Dead End." The talent scouts who saw her and got her a contract realized her great possibilities, but it took Ruth some time to impress upon others that she was not actually prim and aristocratic, even those who thought she acted that way. Ruth had had much experience in high school and college dramatics, especially at the University of Michigan drama school.

She had also attended Pembroke college and a Boston business college, and had been with the famous Provincetown Players. It was while in New York on vacation that she got her first Broadway offer. She's 5 feet 5, weighs 125. Next picture, "Marine Raiders."

for congress so that the Progressive party, headed by the late Sen. Robert M. La Follette, could have a complete ticket in the field. He was defeated. The next year Sen. Edwin F. Ladd died. Gov. Sorlie declined on grounds of economy to call a special election. There were a number of candidates for the post. Nye was consulted on the vacancy, but was not a candidate for it. He impressed the governor and was named for the post in a surprise announcement.

Twelve days before his 33d birthday Nye presented his credentials to the senate. It must be noted for the record that he came in yellow shoes, a gaudy tie, and a high-water haircut. The senate kept him scuffing the shoes in an anteroom while the question of the governor's power to fill the vacancy by appointment was debated. On Jan. 12, 1926, he was seated by the scant majority of two votes, 41 to 39.

The people of North Dakota made him feel better by electing him to the senate by a six to one majority the next year and returning him by an even greater majority in 1932.

Nye was not awed when he came to Washington. He laughingly suggested the password for cabinet meetings in the Coolidge administration was "knub," which, he explained, was "bunk" spelled backwards. He criticized fiscal policies and the lack of a sound farm policy. In no time at all he was in the center of fights, where he has been ever since.

By a set of fortuitous circumstances he was made a member of the committee on public lands and within a year became chairman of the committee. That body wound up the famous Tea Pot Dome oil inquiry, which was started by the late Sen. Thomas Walsh, (D., Mont.). From this old wheelhorse Nye learned a lot about conducting investigations. Tho he is no lawyer he is acknowledged one of the most formidable investigators on the hill.

The senator's most ambitious investigation was launched early in 1934, when he introduced a resolution calling for the investigation of the munition makers and their influence in making wars. The senate good-naturedly offered $15,000 for the investigation, but Nye persuaded his colleagues to make it $50,000.

For three years he dug into corners and uncovered a sinister array of influences in the American body politic. The investigation resulted in awakening the public to the danger of these influences, with the result that neutrality legislation was enacted. This legislation was withdrawn over Nye's vigorous protests. Strangely enough, the influences which he uncovered are now engaged in pouring funds and propaganda into North Dakota in the effort to defeat him.

Smear brigaders have charged this investigation with partial responsibility for the war, alleging it prevented preparedness. They have as falsely charged Senator Nye with failure to fortify Guam. Recently the smearers were given a setback when Admiral King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, absolved the senate of any blame for failure to fortify Guam.

During the munitions investigation Nye protested against the exportation of iron and steel scrap to Japan under the administration's appeasement policy toward the Nipponese. On Aug. 10, 1937, the mantle of prophecy was on the senator from North Dakota when he rose in the senate and solemnly warned his colleagues:

"It can hardly be said, then, that the return from this foreign trade is in keeping with our best interests in this country. Indeed, it seems to me that the only return we may expect from a continuation of this exportation, aside from the munificent return in dollars to the several exporting companies, is the probability that one day we may receive this scrap back home here in the form of shrapnel in the flesh and in the bodies of our sons."

He is a ferret after the facts and merciless in driving questions at a witness. One of his most recent coups was to harrass Wendell Willkie, 1940 Republican candidate for President, until the latter acknowledged that his 1940 charges against New Deal war mongering were mere "political oratory." This slip played an important part in the killing of Willkie's 1944 aspirations.

Nye is still a small town boy and common as an old shoe in his official and private life. Few men are as accessible and no senator is a more patient listener to the corner store business man or the powerful executive. And like a small town boy he enjoys nothing so much as his small, attractive home with its garden patch, where the mortgage gleams brighter than the candle light, as he puts it, and where he and Mrs. Nye hope the North Dakota voters will let him live six more years.

This is the kind of a dog most owners feel sorry for. It's a stray picked up by the Anti-Cruelty society and brought to its headquarters. Most of these street dogs have the blood lines of so many breeds that they cannot be identified by any definite breed name, but the coat, ears, and face of this specimen indicate that it is mostly Spitz.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

WHEN hot weather arrives many dogs run into that old bugaboo of summer, skin trouble. Most owners call any kind of a skin eruption mange, altho the common skin disorder that comes with hot weather might properly be called summer eczema.

We have a dog that, as we told a veterinarian a few weeks ago, seems to be a perennial so far as a mild outbreak of skin trouble is concerned. After treating this dog (and others) for what usually is called eczema, reading hundreds of letters from dog owners on their troubles with this ailment, and talking to several veterinarians on this subject, we find it quite evident that so-called eczema is one of the most common skin disorders of family pets. Incidentally, the word eczema is used very loosely among most dog owners.

The first thing an owner should keep in mind about any skin disorder is this: When your dog develops inflamed spots on its body, starts to scratch, and the hair comes out and the skin turns red, don't jump to the conclusion that it's mange and rush out to buy a mange remedy. True mange is caused by a tiny living parasite. None of us who own dogs is competent to tell the difference between true mange (caused by parasites burrowing into the dog's skin) and a skin disorder due to other external or internal causes. The veterinarian takes a scraping from the dog's skin and puts it under a microscope to make sure if it is true mange. And the microscope also can tell him which one it is, sarcoptic or follicular. Treatment for true mange (not as common as the mine run of eczema) is one thing. Treating an eczema is another.

The causative factor of an eczema is hard to determine. As your veterinarian will tell you, one of the most difficult jobs he has is finding out what may be causing a dog to break out. Some cases clear up quickly; others are very stubborn. Without half trying any veterinarian can list a dozen causes of common eczema. For example, there are dogs which must be allergic to certain things, and these allergies can cause a skin eruption. In the case of one of our dogs which we took to the veterinarian some time ago we never did find out why she developed the spot on her breast. It's still a mystery.

About 2½ months ago our Labrador developed a skin eruption on her stomach. The skin became very inflamed. We couldn't figure what was causing this unless it was something she had picked up on the ground or from the straw in her outside kennel. Recently it has been discovered that a very tiny fungus plant found on many types of vegetation affects the skin of dogs and causes either light or severe cases of so-called summer eczema or summer itch. We wondered if this trouble with our Labrador was due to this fungus.

The veterinarian took a scraping from the dog's stomach and put it under a microscope. He was unable to see the tiny plant on the slide, but he felt pretty sure the skin disorder was due to the fungus or other similar cause. So we treated the dog with the medicine which recently has been discovered as a specific for this type of skin eruption. It kills the living plants on the dog. It's a heavy oily preparation. The dog was given at least two treatments a day by having the medicine rubbed on the inflamed parts of her stomach. In about four days one area was healed. In two more days the other spot was normal and her skin trouble was cured.

However, not all cases of eczema are that easy. We know that because we've had the job of treating our own dogs, and sometimes it takes a long time to get rid of the inflamed "hot spots" and induce the hair to grow on them. Veterinarians tell us that fleas, lice, dirty kennels, and even strong soaps may cause a dog with a sensitive skin to break out, especially in the summer. But it is fortunate for dog owners that at last there is a specific for those cases of skin disorder due to the dog picking up a certain form of plant life when it romps thru the grass and woods.

a little lamb–

GOLDEN SHEPHERD'S PIE

1 lb. raw ground lamb
2 tbsps. Crisco
2 tbsps. chopped onion
2 tbsps. chopped green pepper
1 tsp. salt • ½ tsp. pepper
2 cups cooked carrots
2 cups cooked potatoes

Lightly fry lamb, onion and pepper in hot Crisco. (Be sure to use Crisco for all your frying. Foods fried in pure, all-vegetable Crisco are so digestible even youngsters may eat 'em!) Add salt and pepper. Turn into 9-inch pie plate. Mash carrots and potatoes together. Season to taste. Spread over meat. Dot liberally with Crisco. Brown in hot oven (400°F.) about 20 min. All Measurements Level. Serves 4-6.

COOK WITH CRISCO! No other shortening does so much to make wartime meals EXCITING and DIGESTIBLE!

Can you fix thrifty cuts of lamb so they'll be exciting to eat? Easy to digest? It's no trick at all when you cook with Crisco.

It's True! Crisco does more for your cooking than any other shortening. For Crisco has a special cooking secret. It gives you lighter, more tender cakes. A sure way to get flaky, tender pie crust every time! And with Crisco, there's no need to worry about digestions. Even Crisco fried foods are so digestible children may eat 'em!

Begin Today! Make a flaky Crisco biscuit topping for that Barbecue Pie! Fry those Lamb and Rice Balls in Crisco and you'll know they're digestible! Any time a recipe calls for shortening—reach for pure, all-vegetable Crisco and be sure!

BARBECUE LAMB PIE

1½ to 2 lbs. stew lamb, cut in pieces
2 tbsps. Crisco
¼ cup catsup • ¼ cup vinegar
1 tbsp. Worcestershire Sauce
3 tbsps. chopped onion
1 tsp. salt
1 cup tomato juice
1½ cups water

Roll lamb in seasoned flour. Brown thoroughly in skillet in hot digestible Crisco. Combine other ingredients. Pour over lamb. Cover and simmer till tender—about an hour. Add a little hot water if gravy is too thick. Pour into shallow baking dish and top with—

CRISCO DROP BISCUIT: Sift 1½ cups flour with 3 tsps. baking powder and ½ tsp. salt. Cut in 3 tbsps. Crisco. (No other shortening beats Crisco! Just see what mouth-melting, easy-digesting biscuit it gives you.) Stir in ¾ cup milk to make a soft dough. Drop by spoonfuls over meat. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 20-25 minutes until brown. All Measurements Level. Serves 4-6.

LAMB AND RICE BALLS

½ lb. raw ground lamb
¼ cup uncooked rice
1 tsp. poultry seasoning
Salt, pepper
2 tbsps. Crisco
1 cup tomatoes, pulp and juice
2 cups boiling water.

Mix lamb, rice and seasonings. Shape into 8 small balls. Brown quickly in hot Crisco. (It's a joy to fry with Crisco! There's no heavy smoke or smell—no "frying-pan" taste. And Crisco-fried foods are digestible—doctors tell you that!) Add tomatoes and water to frying pan. Cover tightly; cook slowly 50 min. Remove meat balls; thicken gravy with flour. All Measurements Level. Serves 4.

9 OUT OF 10 DOCTORS SAY:

"It's Digestible!"

Look...

Softer, Smoother Skin

with just One Cake of Camay!

Tests by doctors prove Camay is Really Mild!

Oh, how happy you'll be... to see the fresher, softer look that comes to your skin with just one cake of Camay! Simply change from improper care to regular mild cleansing... to the Camay Mild-Soap Diet. Doctors tested this care... on over 100 complexions... on girls with skin like YOURS! And the very first cake of Camay made most complexions fairly bloom! Made them softer!—more velvety!

...it cleanses without irritation!

"Camay is really mild," reported the doctors, "it cleansed without irritation." With such striking proof of Camay's mildness, don't you want to try this helpful care? Surely you can expect your skin to glow with new loveliness! So get Camay tonight.

Go on the Camay Mild-Soap Diet!

Take one minute, night and morning. Simply cream Camay over your face—nose and chin especially. Rinse warm. If your skin is the oily type, add a lively C-O-L-D splash. That's all you do! And—with just one cake of Camay—your skin will glow with radiant new freshness, feel softer to touch!

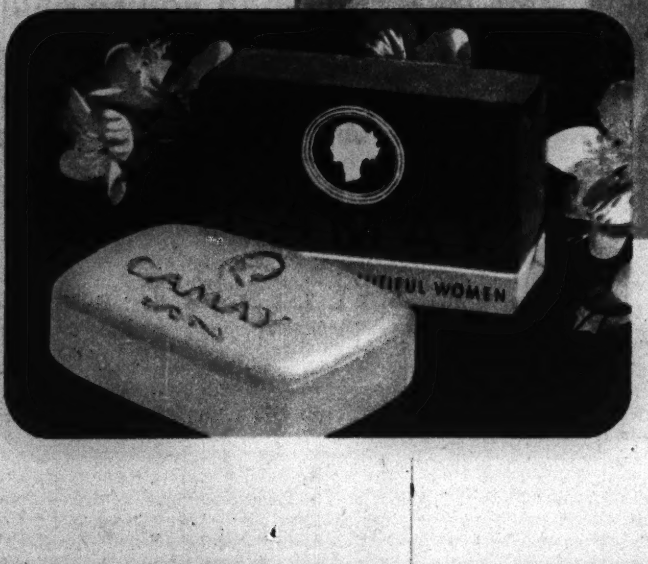
Be wartime-thrifty—Save Soap!

Precious materials go into soap—so make your Camay L-A-S-T!

SEE WHAT GOOD LATHER you get with just a few rubs on Camay!

TAKE CAMAY FROM THE WATER after lathering—keep the cake dry. Wipe your soap dish dry.

TUCK CAMAY SLIVERS inside a bathmit. You'll get grand lather for bath or shower!



Mrs. John H. Ridley OF SAN DIEGO, CAL., SAYS:

"Camay's mild lather helped my skin look lovelier—the very first cake I used! And now, when friends ask me about my skin care, I suggest the Camay Mild-Soap Diet."

"Here's how I feel about parties in wartime..."

Says Kate Smith

"I GUESS some people think wartime parties are a luxury we haven't any right to.

"But honestly, I think an occasional party in wartime is almost as important as salvaging tin cans.

"When a boy or girl in service is home for a few precious days . . . when there's a furlough bride to wish happiness to . . . I just can't imagine not having a party!

But let's keep it simple!

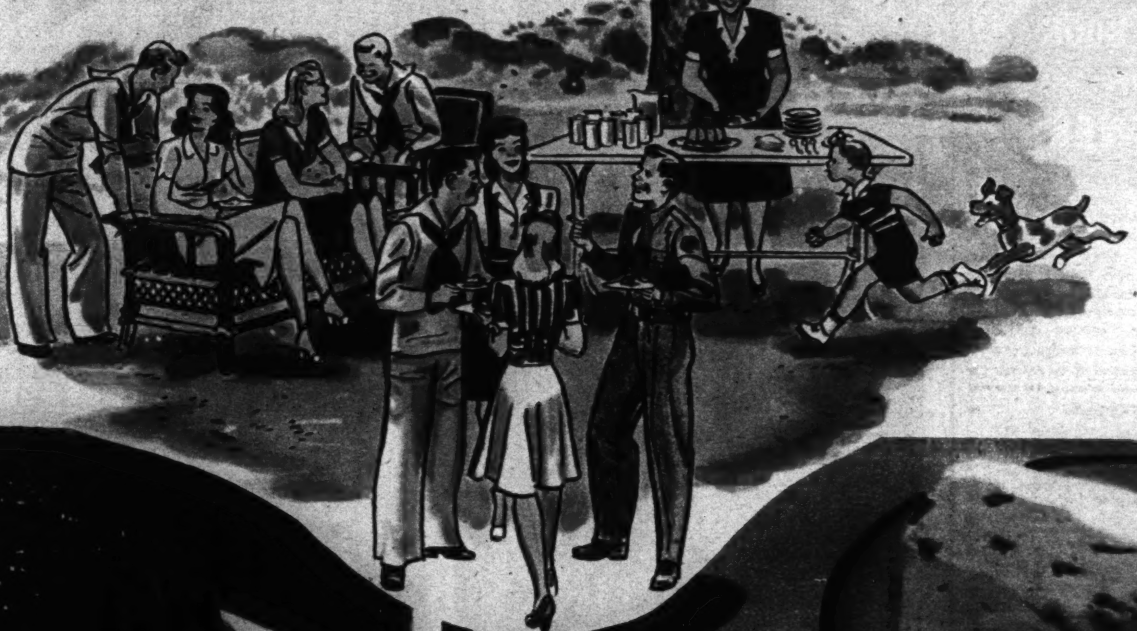
"Let's have only things that are easy on the ration books and that will stay looking lovely until you're ready to serve them.

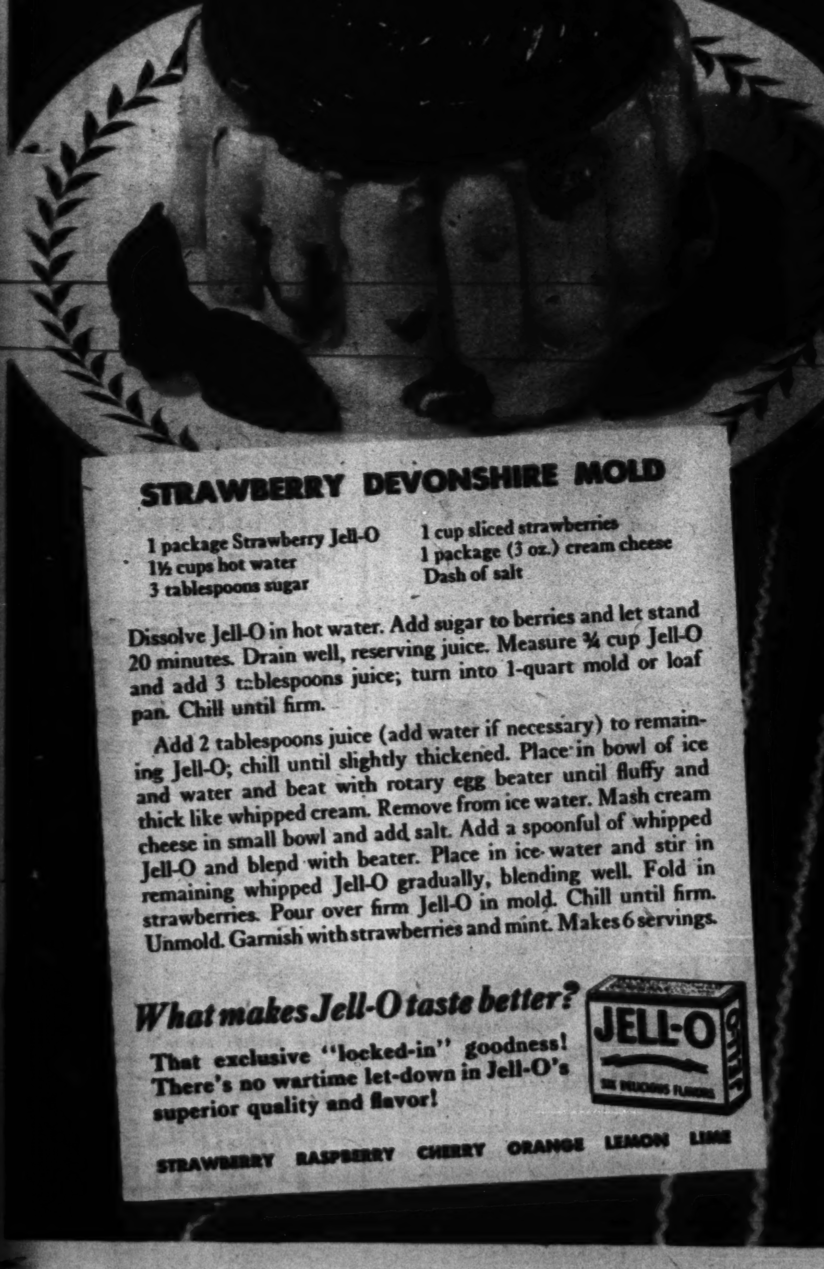
"These two recipes are just about 'party perfect.' Jell-O's richer flavor and lovely shimmering color are especially appealing in this heavenly Strawberry Devonshire Mold. Or if it's ice cream you're hankerjng for, serve this delicious Two-Toned Ice Cream—so easy to make with smooth Jell-O Pudding for the foundation! You'll love 'em both!"

Send for "Bright Spots for Wartime Meals"

Don't miss this grand new booklet full of wonderful, ration-wise ideas! For your copy, send 6¢ in stamps to General Foods, Dept. F.T.M.6-44, Battle Creek, Michigan. This offer, good only in the U.S.A., will expire December 31, 1944.

How to get your fair share. Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings go off your grocer's shelves awfully fast these days—and of course the supplies are limited by sugar rationing. But every effort is being made to distribute the supply fairly, and your grocer will try to see that you get your fair share, if you ask him. Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings are products of General Foods.





STRAWBERRY DEVONSHIRE MOLD

1 package Strawberry Jell-O
1½ cups hot water
3 tablespoons sugar
1 cup sliced strawberries
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
Dash of salt

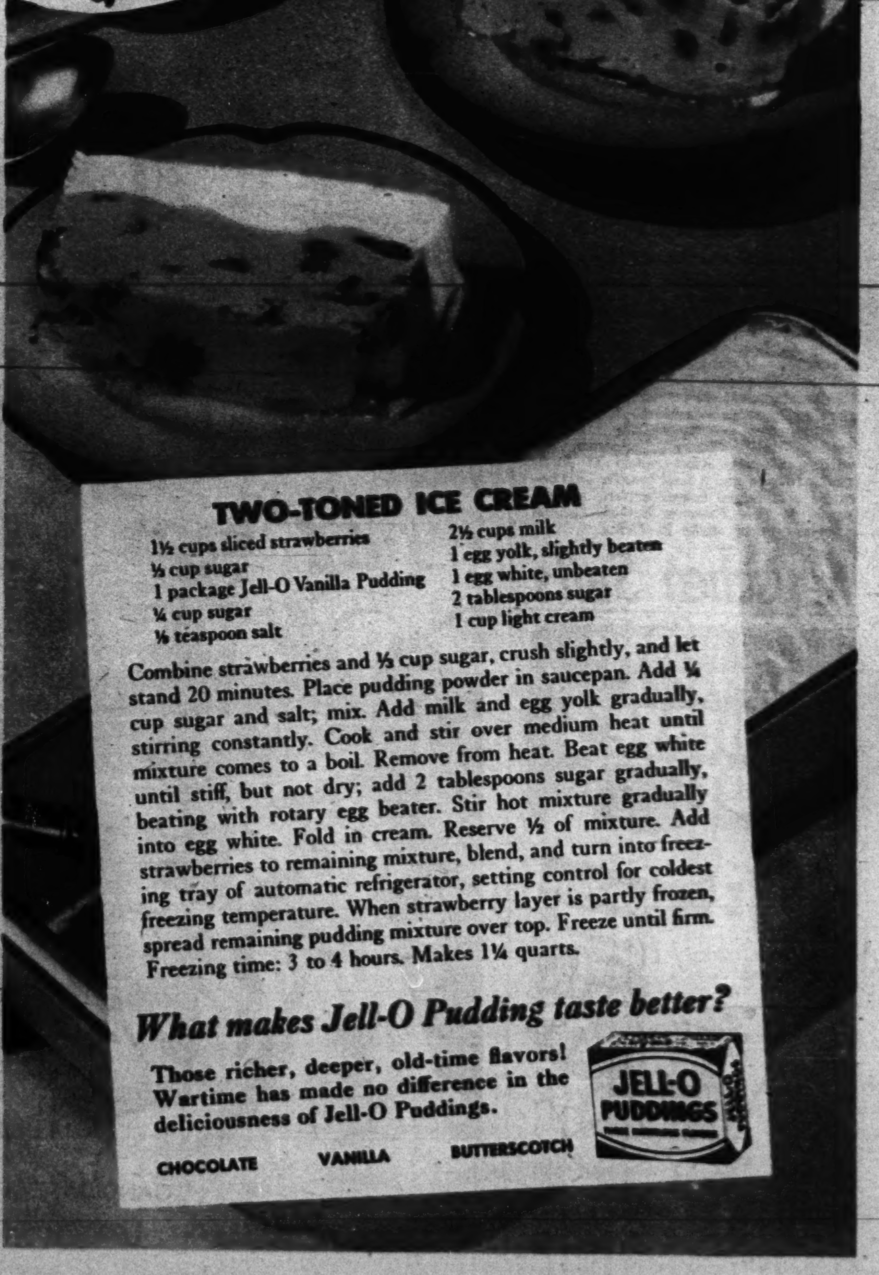
Dissolve Jell-O in hot water. Add sugar to berries and let stand 20 minutes. Drain well, reserving juice. Measure ¾ cup Jell-O and add 3 tablespoons juice; turn into 1-quart mold or loaf pan. Chill until firm.

Add 2 tablespoons juice (add water if necessary) to remaining Jell-O; chill until slightly thickened. Place in bowl of ice and water and beat with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Remove from ice water. Mash cream cheese in small bowl and add salt. Add a spoonful of whipped Jell-O and blend with beater. Place in ice water and stir in remaining whipped Jell-O gradually, blending well. Fold in strawberries. Pour over firm Jell-O in mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with strawberries and mint. Makes 6 servings.

What makes Jell-O taste better?

That exclusive "locked-in" goodness! There's no wartime let-down in Jell-O's superior quality and flavor!

STRAWBERRY RASPBERRY CHERRY ORANGE LEMON LIME



TWO-TONED ICE CREAM

1½ cups sliced strawberries
⅓ cup sugar
1 package Jell-O Vanilla Pudding
¼ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2½ cups milk
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
1 egg white, unbeaten
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup light cream

Combine strawberries and ⅓ cup sugar, crush slightly, and let stand 20 minutes. Place pudding powder in saucepan. Add ¼ cup sugar and salt; mix. Add milk and egg yolk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Beat egg white until stiff, but not dry; add 2 tablespoons sugar gradually, beating with rotary egg beater. Stir hot mixture gradually into egg white. Fold in cream. Reserve ½ of mixture. Add strawberries to remaining mixture, blend, and turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. When strawberry layer is partly frozen, spread remaining pudding mixture over top. Freeze until firm. Freezing time: 3 to 4 hours. Makes 1¼ quarts.

What makes Jell-O Pudding taste better?

Those richer, deeper, old-time flavors! Wartime has made no difference in the deliciousness of Jell-O Puddings.

NEEDS GOOD CARE

You want your child to have lovely hair now and later in life, don't you? Well, that's why you should care for your child's hair with Packer's Tar Soap.

There's no safer soap for the "tender age." Its thick, quick suds cleanse so gently, rinse so easily . . . leave the hair so soft and gleaming . . . the scalp so clean and refreshed. And children find the rich pine-cone color and piney odor so delightful.

Remember, too, that shampoos with Packer's average only about one-fourth the cost of bottled shampoos. Another reason it's been a favorite with mothers for 75 years. Get a large 25¢ or 10¢ cake of Packer's Tar Soap today.

WIN THE FIGHT!

NOW YOURS TO ENJOY

YES, even in vitamins the American soldiers get an approved special multiple vitamin formula—the multiple vitamins that leading doctors and Government nutritional authorities endorse. And when you take DEFENDER Vitamins . . . you get the IDENTICAL type vitamins as supplied the U. S. Army by The Grove Laboratories, one of the army's leading sources of vitamin supply. So the questions that have puzzled millions — WHICH vitamins to use, and WHAT brand to buy, need never again puzzle you.

You can imagine how effective they must be, when they are given to American soldiers under combat conditions to help prevent dietary deficiency and resulting nervousness, fatigue, lowered fighting energy, constipation and nutritional night blindness — and to aid in keeping up their normal resistance to colds! Think how DEFENDER Vitamins should help YOU!

DEFENDER Vitamins give you all the known essential vitamins—the three essential B-Complex vitamins, plus vitamins A, C and D—all in one tiny, potent capsule.

So, for complete health-protection against vitamin dietary deficiencies, insist on DEFENDER—the IDENTICAL type Multiple Vitamins issued to American soldiers. Regular Size — nearly a month's supply — only $1.25. Family Size—(138 capsules)—$3.00. Money can't buy finer quality—unit for unit. Ask your Druggist today for DEFENDER Multiple Vitamins.

ADVERTISMENT

Local Business Man Retires Because of Lost Hearing

Edward D. Wilk, well-known sales promotional executive, was compelled to retire from an active business career because of a progressive hearing loss, and remained in retirement for some time.

Today, Mr. Wilk finds himself again an active, energetic, driving executive as of former years. Because science has made it possible for him to successfully rehabilitate himself in society, he has decided to devote the rest of his lifetime to aiding others who may have lost, through defective hearing, their place in the social scheme of things.

Recently in a talk before a group of prominent Chicago business men, Mr. Wilk said in substance: "Through the miracle of modern science I have regained an amazing part of my life that I thought was utterly lost to me, lost to me for so long a time that I had actually forgotten how much it meant to me. You who are listening to me tonight cannot possibly imagine what a tremendous effect on one's whole well-being, on one's very personality, deafness or even a partial hearing loss can mean.

"When I realized fully that I was becoming progressively deaf, I tried everything in a frantic attempt to regain my hearing—all to no avail. People with normal hearing do not realize how easily they can offend the deafened . . . and often are unintentionally cruel, cutting short their conversation. It is then that the deafened individual usually gives up the effort to listen.

"In my case I had never been subject to the common ailment of the deafened—a feeling that they are being talked about and pointed out as eccentric individuals; nevertheless, I found myself making embarrassing or ridiculous comments because I misunderstood others, and felt that I was a kill-joy in a group. I had a tendency to back out smiling, nodding, and pretending.

"A blind person makes no pretense at seeing, yet the deaf are always pretending that they hear and usually grumble at people, saying that all people mumble. Poems and music have been written about the blind, but only 'funny' stories have been told about the deaf. I felt that I had no friend to unlock the door of escape from the soundproof cell of silence. In other words, my whole life was changing; I began to lose interest in business, friends, and even my own family.

"Then, just as I thought that everything was lost, through the help of a dear friend, science came to my assistance. My eyes widened in startled, joyful amazement, then filled with tears, for the first note of a new horizon of hearing burst on my consciousness and I realized with a sweep of emotional ecstasy that I could hear again, and was the Ed Wilk of old. With this realization came a decision to aid the many millions of those who, like myself, have been on the brink of despair, that they might rehabilitate themselves as I did and again be useful to society."

Mr. Wilk has not only regained his lost hearing but has edited a booklet which he calls HE WHO HATH EARS LET HIM HEAR. This booklet is dedicated to the hard-of-hearing and brings them inspiration and hope. It is free; it will be mailed in a plain wrapper to any one addressing E. D. Wilk, Suite 1602, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.

EDWARD D. WILK after short retirement again enters business field.

Thanks to American Women—for these new uses for Wax in Industry

Let's give credit where credit is due.

To the women who keep watch over our homes, the use of wax for protecting and beautifying surfaces is an old story. Floors, furniture and woodwork in your home have long known the protecting hand of wax.

But these American women, seeking greater beauty and ways to save work, made further discoveries. They learned the use of wax for protecting many other surfaces besides wood—metal, leather, rubber, paper. And it is from them that industry, with a need for protecting vital war products, learned this valuable lesson in surface-protection and surface-beauty.

A few of these new industrial uses for wax are detailed below. Out of this war experience, many products of tomorrow will be better protected, more attractive in appearance, easier to sell, easier to clean because of new Industrial Wax Finishes made by the makers of Johnson's Wax.

In the meantime, we have but one job—to give all we can: our work to speed production; our money to buy War Bonds; our will to win the victory.

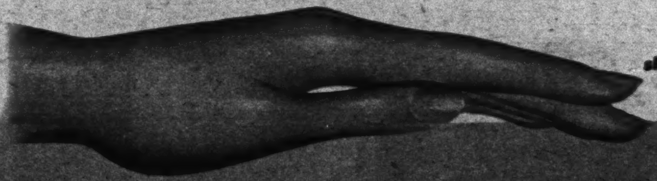
RACINE, WISCONSIN



The protecting hand of WAX shields surfaces, adds beauty

COPYRIGHT S. C. JOHNSON & SON, INC., 1944

Wax for Metal • Shell cases, gun clips, rifle pins, bayonets—many metal parts of war equipment are being surface-protected with special wax finishes. Wax guards metal against corrosion—in many cases acts as a dry lubricant. Hundreds of metal products of tomorrow—small hardware, tools, automobile and airplane parts, electrical equipment, airplane surfaces—will be wax-protected.

Wax for Paper, Leather, Rubber • For rubber, wax retards oxidation and sun checking (especially important for synthetic rubber) and improves appearance. For leather, wax helps prevent drying out, adds beauty. For overseas war packages, wax helps prevent penetration of water, guards against spoilage. For playing cards, games, other paper products, it adds "eye" appeal.

Wax for Airplanes, Trains, Busses • Lustrous, weather-resisting Johnson's Waxes protect the surface of planes, streamliners, busses, trucks, other transportation. For airplane surfaces, "skin friction" is reduced, speed increased. For all surfaces, the wax finish provides labor-saving, lower-cost maintenance—besides offering protection as well as greater beauty.

Wax for Fabrics • Many military textiles (uniforms, parachute cords, webbing, etc.) are being made water-repellent, stain-resistant with special finishes. One of these is Johnson's DRAX. Used widely today for war fabrics, it will be used in peacetime for work and play clothes, curtains, drapes, uniforms, etc. DRAX water-repellency can be renewed 100 per cent when materials are laundered or cleaned.

Wax-Fortified Paints (WAX-O-NAMEL) • Newest development in Product Finishes! Because they actually contain WAX, they resist marring and soiling. Products are easier to clean, both in production and in use; have great beauty and added sales appeal. Available tomorrow not only for product finishes, but also for hospitals, schools, institutions, apartments.

PART AND PARCEL OF A HAPPY CHILDHOOD

The feast in the picnic basket . . . with lots of bread'n Nucoa!

Ideal for these times . . . the nourishing deliciousness of point-thrifty Nucoa!

From America's own farms exclusively come the fresh pasteurized skim milk and pure vegetable oils which make Nucoa such a satisfying and nutritious spread for bread. The skim milk is cultured for flavor and the ingredients are churned to a luscious, even smoothness—never "flaky" even when cold. That is why Nucoa spreads, or creams, so easily . . . looks so attractive . . . tastes so good!

Nucoa's dependably fresh flavor delights you particularly when you season vegetables with Nucoa, or taste Nucoa melting into hot toast or muffins. Nucoa wins this supreme test of flavor—always tastes deliciously sweet and fresh—because there is no "storage" Nucoa. Nucoa is freshly made the year around, on order only. No wonder regular Nucoa users are spoiled for other spreads!

"Food energy and Vitamin A are provided as well by fortified margarine as by the most expensive spread for bread," says Mrs. Jane Olliver, Home Economist. "That is why Nucoa is included in the 'Basic 7' food groups recommended for daily good nutrition." Each pound of Nucoa furnishes 3,300 food energy calories and—winter or summer—never less than 9,000 units of Vitamin A.

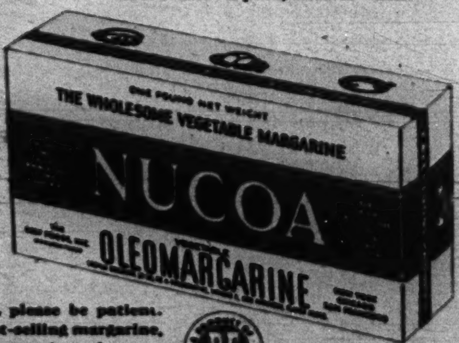
For table use, tint Nucoa golden yellow with the pure Color-Wafer included in each package. For seasoning, use it just as it comes—a pure, natural white.



Nutritious NUCOA

IF YOUR GROCER IS OUT OF NUCOA SOMETIMES, please be patient. He'll have more soon. Nucoa is America's largest-selling margarine, and we're trying, as far as wartime conditions permit, to keep up with the demand. Help your grocer serve you by giving him a little time on your order. You'll find Nucoa is worth waiting for!

"Those engines sure have the power!"

THE brother of a waist gunner on a Boeing Flying Fortress wrote Studebaker quoting him as saying: "Those Wright Cyclone engines that Studebaker builds are really dependable and sure have the power."

Comments like that are fully appreciated, of course. But Studebaker men and women know that what count most are the accomplishments of the stout-hearted air crews and rugged ground crews of our country's warplanes and the achievements of our fighting forces everywhere.

In fact, whatever amount of satisfaction the Studebaker organization may derive from the extent and consequence of its war work is always tempered by the realization that Studebaker is only one unit in a vast American fighting and producing team where everyone's effort is important.

Studebaker takes pride in its assignments on that team. That's why huge quantities of Wright Cyclone engines for the Boeing Flying Fortress—big multiple-drive military trucks—and other units of vital war matériel continue to stream forth from the five great Studebaker factories.

THE ENTIRE ROOMING HOUSE IS UNDER SURVEILLANCE, CAPTAIN, AND WE EXPECT TO FIND OUT MORE AND GET THE FIELD GLASSES BEFORE LONG.
H'M! SPYING ON TROOPS AND SUPPLY SHIPS, EH?
I TELL YOU, MAY, SOMETHING'S HAPPENING IN THIS BUILDING. THOSE WERE COPS NEXT DOOR. WE'VE GOT TO GET OUT OF HERE!
BUT WE HAVEN'T ENOUGH MONEY TO RENT ANOTHER ROOM.
YOU'RE RIGHT. WE'RE — SAY, WE COULD HOCK THOSE FIELD GLASSES.
BUT THEY'RE NOT OUR FIELD GLASSES. SOMEBODY PUT THEM ON THE WINDOW SILL.
WE HAVEN'T EATEN IN TWO DAYS. WE CAN'T JUST ROT UP IN THAT ROOM. COME ON. LET'S GO!
BUT IF WE HOCK THOSE GLASSES WE'LL BE MIXED UP IN WHATEVER IT IS THAT'S GOING ON HERE.
BUT MY TIME, SIR, IS VALUABLE. I TOLD MR. TRACY I'D SHOW HIM THE LOCATION OF THE SUMMER SISTERS' ROOM LAST WEEK. WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR?
EASY, VITAMIN.
TRACY'S BUSY THIS MORNING WITH THE NAVAL INTELLIGENCE DEPARTMENT. HE'LL BE HERE LATER.
LATER, HE SAYS. BAH! TEMPUS FUGITS AND HE SAYS LATER!

HELLO, GIRLS. YOU'RE A LITTLE LATE. I'VE BEEN WAITING FOR YOU.
LATE? WHO ARE YOU?
WE HAVE NO DATE WITH YOU! WHERE ARE—
KEEP YOUR TRAPS SHUT OR I'LL CHOKE THE LIFE OUT OF BOTH OF YOU— AND I'LL TAKE THAT PACKAGE.
AND ABOUT TWENTY MINUTES LATER IN ANOTHER PART OF TOWN
HE'S HERE, BROW.
GOOD. SEND HIM IN.
I RETRIEVED OUR FIELD GLASSES, BROW, AND I ALSO BROUGHT ALONG THE TWO CHARMING GIRLS WHO HAD THEM.
WE'RE THE SUMMER SISTERS. I'M MAY AND SHE'S JUNE.
CHARMED! CHARMED INDEED. SIT DOWN, LADIES. THE BROW WELCOMES YOU.

Don't be a Dumb Dora about "pin-point" danger zones.
Better start using this
"PRESCRIPTION FOR YOUR TEETH!"

You're undoubtedly using a tooth paste you like—but are you sure that it is getting after those debris-ridden "pin-point" cracks on precious enamel?

Some authorities say that these are danger zones that you've got to look after—the places where 75% of beauty-robbing tooth decay is likely to start.

We think our Listerine Tooth Paste is just about ideal in helping to clean many of these tiny danger zones—and we have made a 60-year study of oral hygiene.

You'll discover, also, that this "prescription for your teeth" makes your mouth "feel like a million." The three thousand tiny taste buds in your mouth register "welcome" every time.

And don't forget—the big tube lasts and l-a-s-t-s and L-A-S-T-S.

LAMBERT PHARMACAL CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Some authorities declare
75% OF DECAY STARTS IN "PIN-POINT" CRACKS IN ENAMEL

BETWEEN THE TEETH particularly the thread-thin crevices where germs frequently lodge undisturbed by brushings

ON THE FRONT AND BACK OF TEETH especially the areas near the gum lines, not regularly rubbed by food in ordinary chewing.

ON BITE SURFACES
with their tiny pits, cracks, and fissures, in which many old type dentifrices may never penetrate

How to keep your weight down and your energy up in wartime

I'M SO WORRIED, MISS RICH_I'M GETTING FAT IN SPITE OF RATIONING
MY DEAR_HERE'S A MOST SENSATIONAL AND EASY WAY TO REDUCE

Read These Sensational Facts About Amazing Welch Way To Reduce

"In these energetic days, it's more important than ever for us women to guard our weight and our energy," says Irene Rich. "Many women have the mistaken notion that food rationing will help them lose weight. But nothing could be further from the truth. Actually, we are all probably eating more starchy, fattening foods than ever before—because they're easier to get. That's why the Welch Way to reduce is such a tremendous help."

The sensational Welch Way to reduce, established by Dr. Frederic Damrau of New York, is probably the easiest, most pleasant way to lose weight you've ever read about. It eliminates strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or distasteful drugs. All you do is mix ¾ glass* of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. This remarkable action follows: You have less desire to eat rich, fattening foods. In this way you reduce caloric intake without suffering a hungry moment. Most amazing, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime, not only aids nature in consuming excess fat, but actually provides increased energy.

Do this one important thing! Be sure to use only genuine Welch's Grape Juice, proved effective by Dr. Damrau of New York, in his convincing tests!

OXYDOL Washes Clothes White Without Bleaching

Its New "Hustle-Bubble" Suds are Richer in Washing Power!
Even Biggest Washes Come Sparkling White and Clean with OXYDOL'S Wonderful Sudsing Action!

SPARKLING WHITE 'cause We Wash So Clean!
SAFE!.. For Washable Colors and Rayons, too!
WHITE? SURE! We're OXYDOL'S "HUSTLE-BUBBLE" SUDS!
OXYDOL

★ SAVE CLOTHES IN WARTIME! Why don't you enjoy a wash that comes white without bleaching? It's easy the Oxydol way. You see, Oxydol's new "Hustle-Bubble" suds are so active they lift dirt out. All your white things, except of course for unusual stains, come white without bleaching. Clothes last longer, too, because there's no need for hard rubbing or harsh bleaching. And Oxydol is so safe—safe for wash colors, rayons and your own precious hands. Try it!

★ ★ AVOID SOAP WASTE! ★ ★

Soap is made of vital war materials—so don't waste it! These 3 simple rules will help you save soap when doing laundry and dishes.

1—Measure Oxydol—don't pour! A little goes a long way.

2—Save up clothes until you can do a full wash at a time.

3—Scrape dishes before washing. This way you need less soap.

OXYDOL WASHES WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING

A HARD JOB

THE Teenie Weenie swimming pool, which is merely an old sauce dish, had been cleaned out, the diving platform painted and the little people had been patiently waiting for rain to fall and fill it. It hadn't rained for many days under the rose bush where the Teenie Weenie village stands and the little folks became impatient for a swim.

"Shucks!" exclaimed the Dunce. "It isn't going to rain and so we might just as well carry the water up from the creek."

"'We' is right," answered the Turk, glancing at the wooden leg the Dunce had strapped to his knee.

It was an old cast off wooden leg belonging to the Old Soldier. The Dunce had fallen off a chicken, sprained his ankle and he preferred to hobble around on the wooden leg rather than use crutches.

"Say!" said the Dunce a little peeved at the Turk's remark, "I'd help if I wasn't crippled."

"O sure," grinned the Turk, winking at the Cook. "You like to work."

The Dunce complained a great deal about his sprained ankle and even more over the lack of water in the swimming pool. The other Teenie Weenies complained over the empty pool, too, for the weather was very warm and the little people needed more baths than usual. Finally the Teenie Weenies grew tired of waiting and set to work carrying water from the creek.

The pool held about fifty thimblefuls of water and that meant many tiresome trips up and down the hill to the creek, but the little men stripped off their tiny sweaters and set to work. The Chinaman carried two thimblefuls on each trip by fastening a thimble to either end of a toothpick which he balanced on his stout little shoulder. Most of the other men carried water in hazelnut or acorn buckets and it was a very long and hot job.

Nick the squirrel came along while the Teenie Weenies were carrying the water and he offered to help. The Turk rigged up half an English walnut shell with a string handle and Nick carried water, too. The shell held two and a half thimbles of water and with Nick's help the pool was finally filled—at least full enough for a Teenie Weenie swim.

As the pool filled up the Dunce's ankle grew rapidly well and by the time it was full enough to swim in he kicked off the wooden leg and dove into the water.

ATTRACTIVE AIRLINE STEWARDESS SPILLS A "TRADE SECRET"!
WITH SHINOLA WHITE YOU DON'T JUST COVER THE DIRT—YOU CLEAN THE SHOES
IN OUR WORK, YOU HAVE TO BE WELL GROOMED AT ALL TIMES. ONE OF THE TRICKS I LEARNED EARLY (FROM OUR STEWARDESS SUPERVISOR) WAS HOW TO KEEP WHITE SHOES LOOKING NEAT.
KEEPING YOUR WHITE SHOES SPIC AND SPAN ISN'T HARD WHEN YOU USE SHINOLA WHITE.
THANKS FOR THE TIP. YOU USE IT JUST LIKE MOST OTHER LIQUIDS, DON'T YOU?
YOU GET BETTER RESULTS BY REMOVING SURFACE DIRT AND GOING OVER THE SOILED SPOTS WITH A LITTLE SHINOLA WHITE BEFORE WHITENING THE WHOLE SHOE.
THAT SOUNDS EASY.
SEE THE DIFFERENCE! SHINOLA WHITE DOES MORE THAN COVER THE DIRT—IT CLEANS THE SHOES. THAT'S THE REAL SECRET.
GOSH, THAT'S GOOD TO KNOW!
THAT WAS MY INTRODUCTION TO SHINOLA WHITE-AND I'VE USED IT EVER SINCE!

2 out of 3 stewardesses on major U. S. airlines recommend Shinola Polishes

● Shinola White contains no harsh alkalis to shrink and crack leather. It's safe for all types of white shoes. Made from the whitest white pigment available, Shinola White whitens shoes smoothly and beautifully. It's easy to put on . . . but hard to rub off. Be sure to ask for the liquid that cleans as it whitens . . . SHINOLA WHITE.

Shinola White removes surface stains, but of course no cleaner will remove penetrating stains of ink, dyes, etc.

SIX NORTH SIDE HIGHS TO GIVE 2,514 DIPLOMAS

Exercises Will Be Held This Week.

Discussions by graduates of plans and problems relative to the future peace of the world will keynote graduation exercises in six north side public high schools this week.

Of the 13,407 high school students receiving their diplomas in commencement exercises thruout the city, 2,514 are from these north side institutions. Lake Technical High school has the largest class, with 697 graduates.

The first of the commencement exercises will be held by Amundsen High school in the auditorium of Lane Technical High school at 8 p. m. Tuesday. L. Day Perry, principal, will speak on "Youth Makes Good," and will award diplomas to 321 seniors. Marcus Kulyan, class president, will give the address of welcome and Julia Febsamen the valedictory.

Orchestra to Play.

The musical portion of the program will present Christine Nicholas, violinist, accompanied by Ann Gustafson, Arthur Matschke, accordionist, and Lillian Rickan, who will sing Victor Herbert's "Thine Alone." The Amundsen orchestra, directed by Forrest L. Buchtel, will play. Alta Franks, graduation committee chairman, will present the class gift.

"Education Faces Changing Horizons" is the theme chosen by the 303 seniors of Waller High school for their graduation program at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the auditorium of Lake View High school. Five members of the class will discuss aspects of that theme, Richard Rockwell, "Changing Horizons of Our Future"; Patrick Kimball, "Security in Defense"; Johan Donald, "The Growing Strength of Labor"; Arthur Nakata, "The Advance of Science," and Hazelyn Melconian, "The Practicality of a Living Faith."

Others Will Speak.

Rosann Bugarsky, class president, and James Joichi, valedictorian, also will speak. Marie Cappadora, Harold Schyberg, Thallis Hoyt, Margaret Agoston, Virginia McCaslin, and the senior chorus will present musical selections. Diplomas will be awarded by Principal M. C. Lipman.

Mayor Kelly and James J. McCahey, president of the board of education, will speak at Lane Technical High school exercises at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the school stadium. Edmund Sadowski, president of the graduating class will give the welcome address in the name of the 697 graduates.

James Smith, assisted by members of the faculty, will award the diplomas. Music will be by the combined Lane band and orchestra under the direction of Gardner P. Huff and Paul W. Schneider.

351 in Lake View Class.

"New Horizons for Onward Looking Men" will be the theme of graduation speeches by the Lake View high school seniors at the commencement at 8 p. m. Thursday. Lois Atlas will discuss "New Outlook for the Scientific World"; Paul Schultz, "A New World in New Hands"; William Karatz, "Our Debt—Can We Pay It?", and Patricia Tunis, "In an Ascending Scale." Presentation of the class gift will be made by Richard Benner.

The Lake View High school orchestra and a cappella choir will join in "Ode to America" by Cain, followed by the announcement of honors and the awarding of diplomas by Olice Winter, principal of the school. The exercises will conclude with the singing of the Lake View loyalty song. The class has 351 candidates.

Senn Program Wednesday.

Senn High school graduation will be held at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday in the school assembly hall. The exercise will be opened by the Senn R. O. T. C., presenting the colors. Charles Pounian, class president, will give the address of welcome followed by a talk, "City of the Big Shoulders," by Frances Norager. Two other members of the class, Marion Astin and Edith Rodems, will speak on "Understanding Each Other" and "The Fork in the Road."

Class achievements will be announced by D. M. Davidson, principal, who will award the diplomas. The singing of the class song, written by Belle Gottlieb of the graduating class, will conclude the exercises. The Senn graduates number 547.

Sullivan Theme "Peace."

Graduates of Sullivan High school have chosen as their commencement theme "Education for Permanent Peace." Mary Lucas, Jean Bannister, George Karafotias, and Wayne Knapp will take part in a symposium during the exercises at 8 p. m. Thursday. They will speak on "The Roots of Peace," "Free Enterprise," and "The Pursuit of Happiness."

Jules Gershon and Marilyn Lord will represent the student body with the class prophecy and the presentation of the class gift. Janice Oberman will make the farewell address. George E. Anspaugh will award diplomas to 295 graduates. Music will be by the Sullivan orchestra under the direction of Edward Meltze.

Berry Memorial Church Choirs to Give Program

A program of religious and secular music will be presented at 4:30 p. m. today by the four choirs of Berry Memorial Methodist church, Giddings and N. Leavitt sts.

Rogers Park Cradle Roll Holds Its First Party

Dressed in their Sunday best, members of the Cradle Roll, a children's club, attended their first Cradle Roll party recently in the recreation rooms of the First Methodist church of Rogers Park, Ashland and Greenleaf avs. Cradle Rollers range from a day to 3 years in age. All live in Rogers Park community.

After playing games and singing songs, each child received a gift before departing homeward. While Linda Hubbard, 7353 N. Damen av., awaits her turn, George Kendrick, 1360 Jarvis av,. accepts his from Mrs. John Chitwood, director of the Cradle Roll group. Mrs. Chitwood visits hospitals and enrolls babies in the club at birth. Membership now numbers 103.

Only twins on the Cradle Roll, Donald and Judith Frakes, 2450 W. Ardmore av., wide eyed and wondering, survey the festivities while their mother, Mrs. William Frakes, smiles proudly. The babies, now 14 months old, were registered in the club at birth.

CHICAGO YOUTH JOIN IN PUSHING PAPER CAMPAIGN

First Summer Curb Pickup Saturday.

Chicago's school boys and girls hope to chalk up another waste paper record for the summer months as they swing into a city wide program beginning Saturday with the second city curb collection of paper.

With school doors closing for the summer, boys and girls will direct their paper collecting efforts toward three city wide drives during June, July, and August, working thru the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and other youth groups. Their goal for Saturday has been set at 3,000 tons. A total of 2,700 tons was collected at the first city wide curb pickup on Jan. 15, directed by the Chicago waste paper campaign committee under the auspices of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association.

50,000 Push Drive.

Fifty thousand youth organization members are working with the Chicago waste paper campaign committee in mapping out this week's collection. These are the same boys and girls who since January have helped haul 38,669,538 pounds of paper to their individual schools where it was sold. The money realized, $209,960.67, went to the various school funds.

More than 2,500 Boy Scouts will man the 500 trucks which will pick up waste paper in each of the city wards.

To Teach Bundle Tieing.

Another 17,000 Boy Scouts, 8,000 Girl Scouts, and 5,000 Camp Fire Girls will be in the bell ringing brigades. Members of the various boys' clubs in the city, the junior B'nai B'rith groups, and the junior victory army also will be among the solicitors.

In addition to soliciting paper from every householder this week, the boys and girls will instruct them on how to tie their bundles, and on Saturday will assist the trucks by assembling bundles where possible in the center of the various blocks.

Help Direct Campaign.

The pickup will be under the management of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee with William L. McFetridge as general chairman, and W. H. Bennett, chairman of pickup arrangements. The other two pickups for this summer are scheduled on July 22 and Aug. 19.

Members of the executive committee directing the north side groups in the summer drives are George Simmons, 7117 Oleander av., Boy Scouts; Jeanette McCarthy, 4933 Wolfram st., and Mrs. Alva A. Buss, 4217 N. Keeler av., Girl Scouts; Mrs. Jean Small, 628 Arlington pl., Camp Fire Girls, and Lawrence Glass, 1725 Orchard st., Boys' club.

14 N. SIDERS AID SALVATION ARMY DRIVE FOR FUNDS

The annual Doughnut day sale of the Salvation Army will be held Tuesday in the city and suburbs.

Fourteen north side women will serve as colonels and will supervise the taggers, all volunteers, who will be stationed at street corners and other busy points selling the paper doughnut tag, emblematic of Salvation Army service.

North side women serving as colonels are: Mrs. Robert Aldrich, 3306 Hollywood av.; Mrs. Ethel Berg, 1508 W. Addison st.; Mrs. Mary Bosley and Mrs. Mary Stanwich, Northbrook; Mrs. Charlotte Carlson, 6614 N. Campbell av.; Mrs. Nathan Goldblatt, Wilmette; Mrs. Olive Hill, 244 E. Pearson st.; Mrs. Gilbert Jones, 999 Lake Shore dr.; Mrs. Roy Junglas, 5240 Sheridan rd.; Mrs. Olive Kramer, 1321 W. Winnemac av.; Mrs. Gladys Leinbach, Drake hotel; Mrs. Elizabeth Marks, 10 W. 2 NORTH SIDERS RECEIVE AWARDS AT ART SCHOOL

The Art institute school held graduation exercises recently at the Goodman Memorial theater. Chauncey McCormick, president, presented the degrees. Hubert Ropp, dean, presented the candidates receiving special awards.

Two north side residents received travel scholarships. They were Marian Witt, Wilmette, and Lois Koenig, 7033½ Sheridan rd. Miss Witt was awarded the $2,000 James Nelson Raymond fellowship. During her five years at the institute she specialized in textile design. She is planning to travel in Latin America.

Lois Koenig was winner of the Anna Louise Raymond fellowship of $1,500. She has specialized in painting and sculpture. Miss Koenig will use her fellowship for study and travel in New Mexico or South America.

Northwest Women.

The Northwest Women's Improvement and Social club will hold a luncheon at noon tomorrow, in the Home Arts Guild.

Sil Fruhost to Start Day for Svithiods

A husband-calling contest, sack races, band concerts, a parade, and dancing are among the events planned for the annual Svithiod day next Sunday at St. Paul park in Morton Grove. A crowd of 25,000 persons is expected to attend the Swedish celebration.

The program will begin at 10 a. m. with the serving of Sil Frukost, a herring breakfast. At noon there will be a two hour concert by the Svithiod band, followed by a parade, a drum and bugle corps exhibition, and a flag raising ceremony.

Choral Chorus to Sing.

Included in the afternoon's events will be choral singing by the Svithiod Singing club, under the direction of Knute Hansen, an overture played by the Svithiod drum and bugle corps, instrumental and vocal solos, and dance numbers. Lt. Col. Lauris M. Eek of the army air forces will speak.

An evening program of music, novelty acts, and dancing will begin at 7 p. m. Admission to the park will be free. The outing will be postponed a week if it rains next Sunday.

NORTH SIDE OFF TO GOOD START IN BOND DRIVE

Kenilworth Passes Quota 1st Night.

With thousands of north side OCD bond wardens canvassing steadily from house to house, subscriptions and sales of bonds in the fifth war loan drive are pouring into community headquarters.

Many north side communities are well on their way to meeting their quotas, bond drive chairmen said. One village even exceeded its quota the first night of the campaign.

A sales goal of $792,000 had been set for Kenilworth. In a few hours residents had bought more than $1,000,000 worth of bonds. "Our total sales so far are $1,273,000," Mrs. Harry S. Demaree, chairman of the drive, said. "More than 90 per cent of our people are buying." Mrs. Walter Marx and Mrs. John Nuveen Jr. are co-chairmen, aided by 140 workers.

Wilmette Rally Success.

More than 1,700 persons attended the rally last week at the Michigan Shores club which opened Wilmette's bond drive.

"Altho the primary purpose was to build spirit for the drive and not to sell bonds," William J. Gerwe, chairman of the special events committee said, "individuals purchased over $200,000 worth of bonds."

Wilmette's quota is $2,341,276. No goal for corporate sales had been set, but subscriptions for $1,500,000 were turned in. S. L. Davis is the Wilmette drive chairman.

Participants in Rally.

Taking part in the home town rally were the Great Lakes choir, the Glenview Wildcats, a band composed of former members of many well known orchestras, the marine corps women's reserve color guard, color guards of North Shore American Legion posts, and the Evanston drum and bugle corps. Don McNeill was master of ceremonies.

Wilmette Opens War Bond Campaign

At the home town rally which opened Wilmette's bond drive Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Foley (right) gave their bond order to S. L. Davis, drive chairman, while Miss Louise Happ (far left) of Northfield, Mrs. Nicholas Werdell, and William J. Gerwe (center), rally chairman, look on.

Lake County Starts Drive.

Sales figures are not yet available in other north side suburbs, but James F. Stiles, Lake county chairman, said the drive there is "well under way." A quota of $8,643,000 has been set. Workers are organized into committees for each town, while the county has been divided into four sections to facilitate tabulations.

Libertyville is planning a rally for July 7, Stiles said, and Waukegan will hold a celebration as soon as its quota has been met.

Fort Sheridan recently was awarded a minute man flag by the treasury department for the more than 99 per cent of its civilian employes who have authorized pay roll deductions.

Evanston "Going Well."

August Knight, general chairman of the drive for Evanston, described community sales as "going well." Evanston has an individual sales quota of $7,291,244. "We are better organized than ever," Knight said, "and we have the largest group of workers of any bond drive thus far."

Lee Ross, director of OCD division 6 on the north side, said that the drive there "got off to an auspicious start." Tentative figures on the result of the first two days showed approximately $1,000,000 in sales and credit slips, with the number of sales predominating.

Poster thermometers have been set up in each block to show the progress of sales. More than 10,000 bond wardens already are at work in division 6, which has a quota of $50,843,833.

Plan North Center Parade.

Ministers in north side churches will appeal to their parishioners today to volunteer as wardens, to increase the coverage in each block. In insufficiently staffed blocks "flying squadrons" of OCD workers will be assigned to help out.

Many communities will hold rallies to stimulate interest in the drive. Among these will be a parade and rally in the North Center district at 8 p. m. July 1. John B. Bobzien, community commander, said that OCD workers, members of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the North Center Commercial association, and other civic groups will take part. The parade will start from Welles park on Lincoln and Montrose avs.

The largest quota for any block in the city, $2,000,000, has been assigned to the block bounded by Lake Shore dr. on the north and west, Walton pl., and N. Michigan av. Louis C. Sudler is block captain. The smallest block quota on the north side, $175, has been assigned to a section of the Indian Boundary community, in which only one family, a man and his wife, reside.

12 NORTH SIDERS WILL GRADUATE AT ILLINOIS TECH

Twelve north siders will be among the 103 candidates to receive degrees from the Illinois Institute of Technology during commencement exercises at 4 p. m. today at the Museum of Science and Industry, Jackson park.

Operating on a speedup schedule to meet war time demand for trained men, today's class is graduating six months ahead of time. The normal June class of 215 students was graduated last February. Thru release of these two classes, 131,840 man hours will be added to the nation's war program.

Lt. Arthur Goldsmith, U. S. N. R., 519 Cornelia av. is one of three candidates receiving his doctor of philosophy degree in electrical engineering. Bernard Goodman, 1205 W. Sherwin av., is the only senior to receive his bachelor of science degree in architecture.

Paul Stux, 4233 Kenmore av., will take his bachelor of science in chemistry.

Yoshikuki Henry Nurata, 17 W. Superior st., and Harold Schultz, 1332 Byron st., will be bachelors of science in chemical engineering.

Bachelor of science in electrical engineering will be conferred on Frank Inami, 17 W. Superior st., and bachelors of science degrees in mechanical engineering will go to Thomas N. Dressler, 7346 N. Bell av.; George Loeffler, 7342 N. Bell av.; Mortimer Lewy, 5417 Kenmore av.; John Morse, 6215 N. Rockwell st.; Victor J. Taylor, 1740 Touhy av., and Thomas Artingstall, 1305 Thorndale av.

Academy Graduates

Three north siders were graduated recently from Riverside Military academy, Gainesville, Ga. They are, left to right, Warren J. Quinlan, son of R. J. Quinlan, 33 Bellevue pl.; Robert L. Steiner, son of F. G. Steiner, 829 N. Franklin st., and Melvin E. Levinson, son of I. H. Levinson, 7739 Eastlake ter.

N. SHORE CITIES PROVIDE CLUBS FOR TEEN-AGERS

The corner as a rendezvous for teen age youngsters is going out of fashion in two north side suburbs.

In Zion a Teen Age canteen was opened recently in the basement of the Bicket & Ingram building. Smoking and dancing are not allowed, but the center is equipped with a soft drink bar, ping-pong tables, shuffleboard courts, and a music machine.

Two Hundred Join Canteen.

More than 200 boys and girls 13 to 19 already have enrolled. Under direction of the Rev. Robert Lichty, a former missionary to British East Africa who is acting as superintendent of the recreation room, they cleaned and decorated the premises themselves.

The canteen is supervised by eight students of Zion-Benton Township High school, Principal Hubert Pearce, Miss Marcella King, faculty member, and William J. Bicket, who is general overseer of the project. Officers and members of the board are Samuel Grodzin, president; Charles Paxton, vice president; Elaine Johnson, secretary; Joan Rewey, treasurer; and Clark Offner, Lewis Robinson, Janet Schwager, and Jean Clover.

Evanston Also Has Club.

Evanston young people are awaiting the opening next month of the Plantation room in the basement of the Y. M. C. A. The room will be decorated with a manor house porch, gnarled oaks, a floor decorated to resemble a lawn, and a large space for dancing. Red barn doors will open into a snack bar.

The teen age group will use the room on Friday and Saturday evenings, Wednesday night parties for service men will be held there, and on other nights Y. M. C. A. clubs will use it for their meeting place.

Dedication in Fall.

Murals will be painted on the walls by the boys and girls and by several Evanston artists. These are not expected to be finished until September, when the formal dedication will be held. A fund of $18,000, two-thirds of which already is subscribed, is required to finance the project.

Roscoe Page, a member of the Y. M. C. A. board, is chairman of the committee in charge. Courtney H. Reeves is finance chairman. General secretary of the Y. M. C. A. is Norman J. Weston. A committee of 22 boys and girls is helping with the plans.

La Rabida Circle.

La Rabida circle, Daughters of Isabella, will celebrate its 31st birthday tomorrow evening at Orange temple, 68th and Green sts.

ANN LLEWELLYN, AT 12, SEES LONG, VARIED CAREER

Drama, Music Beckon to Young Trouper.

Ann Llewellyn.

In her busy life Ann Llewellyn, a north side miss of 12, has accomplished things in the fields of music and dramatics that an old trouper might well envy, but that's not what she's excited about just now. She recently won a scholarship to Immaculata High school, where she intends to study more dramatics, and after that she wants to go to Northwestern university, and then on to a career as an opera singer.

These ambitious designs on the future are just a matter of course to Ann, who was a radio actress, queen of State st., an opera performer, and a model, and who had screen tests before she reached the age of six. Blonde and pretty, she has twice appeared on the Quiz Kids radio program as a specialist in music and dancing.

Father Manages Hotel.

Ann is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Llewellyn, 4506 Beacon st. Her father is a hotel manager and her mother formerly taught dancing.

"I'd like a lot of things," Ann said with a rapt expression. "I'd like a literary career, too; I write some stories, but most of all I want to be an opera singer. They all go hand in hand, tho, don't you think?"

"We've never gone out of our way to get her into things," Mrs. Llewellyn said. "Chance has played the biggest part."

Gets Opera Chance.

She told how Ann happened to take part in a performance of "Madame Butterfly" at the old Auditorium theater. The child the manager had engaged for the role got stage fright, and when the manager began hunting for someone in the building to step into the part the elevator operator suggested Ann, who was upstairs rehearsing for a radio show.

She has been studying piano for six and a half years, and frequently plays for women's clubs. Her voice lessons began two years ago and before that she had studied dancing for a time.

Youngest in Class.

She was made the queen of State st. in 1937 when the Showmen's League of America had a benefit for the American hospital, 850 Irving Park rd.

"She's done a lot for a girl of her age," Mrs. Llewellyn said happily. "She was the youngest graduate in her class at Our Lady of Lourdes school."

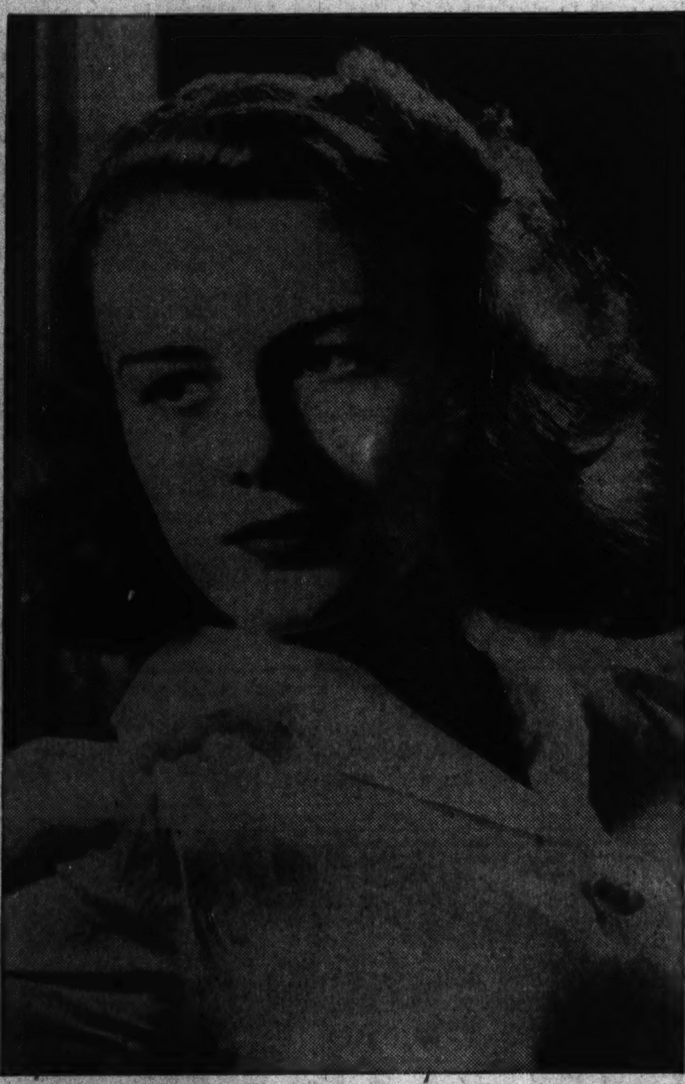
NAVY PROMOTES N. SIDE YOUTH TO PILOT 1ST CLASS

Advancing in two and a half years from apprentice seaman to commissioned officer is the record of Earl Richards, 19, aviation pilot 1st class, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Richards, 4032 Kenmore av.

Earl received his wings last week at Pensacola, Fla., one of three out of an original group of 200 enlisted men who began flight training together. Of the 204 graduates, only four began as seamen; the remainder were officers. He will be commissioned an ensign at Pensacola Tuesday and will go to Jacksonville, Fla., for more experience in flying twin engine bombers.

The young pilot, who is spending a week's leave with his parents and sister, Dorothy, 18, attended Lane Technical High school. After the war he plans to stay in the navy as a pilot.

Wed to Marine Flyer



MRS. EDGAR J. BEAM.

Mrs. Edgar J. Beam is the former Miss Barbara Jane Lareau, daughter of Mrs. Virginia Lareau, 807 Judson av., Evanston, and N. J. Lareau, 1040 Lake Shore dr. Lt. Beam, marine air corps, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Beam, formerly of Canton, Ill., and Wilmette. The couple is living in El Centro, Cal., where Lt. Beam is stationed.

HERE'S HOW ONE GROCER SOLVES HELP SHORTAGE

Spindles, Bills Prove a Boon Now.

BY PHYLLIS FORD.

John Scholl has solved the help shortage problem in his grocery at Brompton av. and Halsted st., where customers wait on themselves, write out their own order slips, put them on a spindle, and then settle the bill at the end of the week.

"I had to give up my regular delivery service some time ago," he said, "and now my customers just come in, pick out what they want, leave a note, and go out with their order."

Has Had Store for 20 Years.

Scholl is a tall, stoop shouldered, friendly man of 48 who wears a grocer's smock, a white apron, and a cap while at work. He has had the store for 20 years and estimates he knows nine-tenths of his customers by name. They call him John, discuss personal problems, and give him messages to pass on to their friends.

His help now are boys who come in after school and arrange the stock on the shelves. "I open at 7 in the morning and close at 7 at night. Then, on Friday nights I stay late and total the accounts," John said.

Shop Has Informal Air.

His shop has the informal air of a general store in a small country town. Racks of toothbrushes are displayed beside boxes of soap and raisins, and packets of rouge are wedged on the shelves between cans of soup and corn. At either end are a coal stove and a gas burner, painted aluminnum.

The way his sales system works was shown by the customers who came in on a recent afternoon. A woman in a denim slack suit with a dog on a leash picked out some cans of vegetables and some tomatoes from behind a counter. Since John wasn't particularly busy at the time he wrote down the order, starting a conversation with "How's the baby?"

Chats with Customers.

As more people came in, he wrapped such things as asparagus or lettuce, handed out sacks and chatted for a minute with those who put their notes on the spindle.

"My customers stick with me," John said. "Some of them I helped thru the depression, and they don't forget."

He is of German-Irish descent and worked in cigar stores before he opened his grocery. "I'm here so much of the time I'm almost a stranger in my own neighborhood," he said. He lives at 3140 Mango av. "A lot of people say I'm foolish for running my business this way, but it gets to be a habit, and besides, I like it better."

WILMETTE MOTHERS SEAT OFFICERS; PLAN AUTUMN ACTIVITIES

Mrs. Frank Geisler.

Mrs. Frank A. Geisler of Skokie recently was installed as president of the Mothers' club of Mallinckrodt High school in Wilmette. Other new officers are Mrs. Raymond Brausch, vice president; Mrs. Frank Klauke, recording secretary; Mrs. Patrick Hall, treasurer, and Mrs. Peter von Frantzius, corresponding secretary. At the installation meeting plans for the club's activities in the fall were discussed.

Evanston Woman's Club to Entertain Daughters

TWO WAUKEGAN BROTHERS MEET IN NEW GUINEA

Mrs. Alice Short of Waukegan recently received letters from her two sons, Paul, 34, and Daniel Jr., 33, telling of their meeting in New Guinea. They had last seen each other in January, 1943.

The destroyer on which Daniel was a ship fitter 1st class stopped at a New Guinea port and near the dock he saw a truck with the number of his brother's outfit on it. Daniel got a two hour leave and met Paul, a carpenter's mate 1st class in the Seabees.

Paul enlisted Dec. 24, 1942, and went overseas a year later. Daniel has been in the navy since March, 1942.

AUTO INVENTOR POKES NAZIS BY PUNCHING CLOCK

Machine Tool Expert, 77, Works 48 Hour Week.

BY GENEVIEVE FLAVIN.

Each morning as Kent McNaughton of Evanston punches the time clock at the Erla plant he feels he is taking a punch at the enemy. According to him his job there is a small one, but necessary to the production of radio equipment for our fighting men.

Seventy-seven years old, this McNaughton is following a pattern set by more than 200 years of American thinking and action, his family having come to this country in 1737. Some member of the clan has fought in each of the nation's wars. He is doing his best to carry on the tradition, fighting in his own way, while two of his grandsons carry on at the front.

Works 48 Hour Week.

At the Erla plant, McNaughton works eight hours a day, six days a week, retapping and inspecting small parts and making adjustments. There are times when he finds it fatiguing. So far as he can learn, he is the oldest employe at the plant. "Most folks won't believe me when I tell them my age," he said with a slight grin, but the keen, blue eyes were proud behind the thin lensed spectacles.

Mr. and Mrs. McNaughton term the present Evanston interlude a "working vacation." Because winter in the small Michigan village where they lived was particularly difficult for them to endure, they came to the north shore and settled near Northwestern university campus. "That was so Mrs. McNaughton could study journalism. She's always wanted to do that," McNaughton explained.

Pioneer in Machine Tools.

Before long, McNaughton had discovered the Erla plant. His retirement came to an abrupt end. He was working. "I was much happier with something to do. I've worked all my life, and working is a habit hard to shed."

McNaughton is happy in his job. He has always liked the mechanical field and was for many years a recognized authority on the manufacture of small instruments. He began his career in the machine tool industry in Detroit in 1892.

"I started out with a broom, sweeping out the store of Charles A. Strelinger & Co.," he remembered. Strelinger supplied practically all the parts and equipment to the early automobile manufacturers. "I remember the first Cadillac. I saw it the day of its completion. Henry M. Leland, in whose shops it was built, came over to the store and took us to the shop. There the Cadillac stood in all its shining glory. It was certainly a handsome sight."

Invention in Own Right.

Before leaving the Strelinger concern to open his own business, McNaughton had become purchasing director and was in charge of world correspondence.

In the winter of 1908, he designed the direct connected gasoline driven car. "Patents didn't amount to anything then, so nothing came of my invention. That is, no money," he added. "I designed my own carburetor, and the engine was of the two cylinder type that was later used in the Brush car. Brush was the designer of the Cadillac, you know."

McNaughton has known Henry Ford for 50 years. "Henry was an engineer in the downtown direct current plant of Edison & Co., when I was still in the Strelinger store." He chuckled reminiscently. "I remember getting a friend from Branch county, Mich., where I lived, a job in the Strelinger store.

Helped Ford Build Racer.

He was almost fired for allowing Henry to take home some castings without paying for them. That was about the time Ford was building the 999, one of the two racing cars he manufactured. Henry had bought out his backers and was taking a flyer in racing cars before organizing the Ford Motor company.

"Machine tools could keep me talking forever. Guess I'd rather putter around with them than most anything I know. It's certainly better than just sitting and growing old. That's why I like working at Erla. Then, too," in contemplation, "I've seven great-grandchildren whose future is in this country. I want to do whatever I can to keep it for them."

LAWYER LEAVES WAUKEGAN POST TO BE A MARINE

Mark H. Beaubien, 29, a Waukegan lawyer, resigned recently as probation officer of the Circuit court of Lake county to take a commission as a second lieutenant in the marines. He has gone to Quantico, Va., for an 11 weeks' course in the marine air corps intelligence division.

Beaubien was appointed probation officer in January, 1943. He was a member of the Lake county Republican central committee and was secretary of the 7th judicial circuit division of the Illinois Bar association.

He is a graduate of Waukegan Township High school, received his law degree in 1938 from the University of Illinois, and practiced with his father, A. F. Beaubien. He has two children, Joan, 3, and Mark Jr., 18 months. He is the great-great-grandson of Mark Beaubien, Chicago's first hotel owner.

NEW RECREATION CENTER OPEN ON NEAR NORTH SIDE

On the near north side where there are few places for children to play, a new recreation center has been opened at 610 N. Clark st.

Sponsor of the center is William Dillon, superintendent of the Sunshine Gospel mission at 604 N. Clark st.

It took six weeks and $1,000 to fix up the second floor of the hall, with carpenters and painters donating their services. A gymnasium, 50 by 17 feet, was built for basketball, volley ball, and badminton.

At the opening party 100 children came to play and feast. The center is open regularly from 7 to 9 p. m. Dillon plans to keep it open from 3:30 to 5 o'clock every afternoon as soon as he has signed enough young people to act as leaders.

Each Saturday night a party will be held at the center for boys and girls from 12 to 16, with games, dancing, and refreshments.

The expense of remodeling was paid by backers of the mission. Dillon has been superintendent two and a half years, and his father was in charge for 25 years before.

Two hundred neighborhood children will attend the mission's camp near Winona, Ind., from June 28 to July 9.

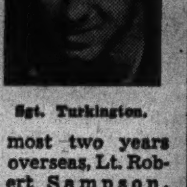
PURPLE HEARTS AWARDED EIGHT N. SIDE FIGHTERS

Citations Made at Pacific, European Bases.

The Order of the Purple Heart has been awarded to eight north siders who have been wounded in the Pacific and European theaters of war.



Sgt. Turkington.

Pvt. Page.

Recently returned to this country after almost two years overseas, Lt. Robert Sampson, bombardier, wears the Purple Heart for hand and face wounds received in a raid over Sophia, Bulgaria, when flak fragments crashed thru the bomber in which he was flying. Survivor of a crash landing in Italy, Lt. Sampson also holds the air medal with nine oak leaf clusters. He is the son of Mrs. Florence V. Sampson, 2054 Estes av.

Reames Wounded in Italy.

Pvt. James Richard Reames, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Reames, 1735 North Shore av., was wounded in action while taking part in the Italian invasion.

Wounded when the bomber on which he was tail gunner was attacked by Nazi fighter planes, Staff Sgt. Calvin Turkington, son of David T. Turkington, 1648 Waveland av., is now recovering in a British hospital. "It was a good fight while it lasted" wrote Turkington to his father, "I'm glad I was there." He suffered a broken arm and a leg injury to his right leg.

Three Marines Cited.

Three of the Purple Heart awards went to marines for wounds suffered in action against the Japanese. Marine Pvt. Wiley A. Page, 518 Eugenie st., was wounded in action on Eniwetok atoll. Marine Lt. George B. Stewart, recuperating in a hospital in the Central Pacific, was shot when he went to the rescue of one of his men in the Marshall Islands operations. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Stewart, Evanston. The third marine is Corp. Henry C. Schultz, 1835 Addison st., injured at Tarawa.

Albert James Keith, seaman 2d class, Evanston, was presented with the Purple Heart for wounds suffered during the battle of the Marshall Islands.

Twice wounded at Bougainville, Corp. Richard P. Dietzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Dietzel, 2342 Rosemont av., received the Purple Heart and was cited for heroic action in the machine gunners' division, which drove the enemy from the beaches of Bougainville.

IMPROVEMENT OF GRAND AV. IS POST-WAR PLAN

The final step in the preliminary planning for the post-war improvement of Grand av., from Navy pier to Cicero av., was completed when Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways, asked the Chicago Surface lines to program the removal of street car tracks from the street in favor of buses when work actually gets under way.

The request was made by letter at the direction of the city council committee on local transportation, headed by Ald. Quinn [50th].

The Grand av. project, first to be recommended by the new city engineering board of review, calls for the expenditure of $3,500,000 in the construction of a new bridge over the river, a new viaduct over the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks immediately west of the river, and new approaches from both the east and the west to the connected viaduct and bridge. New pavement from Sacramento blvd. west to Cicero av. also will be installed.

In a report recently submitted to the mayor by the engineering board it was pointed out that the street, despite its unsatisfactory condition, carries a heavy traffic flow. Money for the improvement for the most part is expected to come from the city's share of the motor fuel tax fund.

Fraternity Mothers Plan Luncheon in Kenilworth

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon Mothers' club will meet for luncheon at 12:45 p. m. Friday in the home of Mrs. Lawrence Lawson of Kenilworth.

EVANSTON HIGH HONOR ROLL HAS 62 GOLD STARS

A service honor roll for 4,052 former students of Evanston Township High school was dedicated at the school's recent commencement exercises in Beardsley gymnasium. On the honor roll were 62 gold stars.

Francis L. Bacon, principal, awarded prizes for the two highest scholastic records to Mary Chambers and Robert Allman. Honor plaque awards for scholarship were given to William Sherman, James Serrin, James Horne, James Jensen, Virginia Schultz, Frances Farlinger, Mitchell Campbell, and Joan Cahail.

Barbara Rose Anderson received a prize for excellence in art and James Horne was given an award for general excellence. The graduating class numbered 662.

INVASION, G. O. P. CONVENTION TO KEEP RADIO BUSY

W-G-N Plans Full Hour Welcome Program.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Regular radio program schedules are likely to be upset considerably next week with the Republican convention, which opens June 26, and invasion needs both demanding considerable air time. Numerous top radio performers, however, already have left the air for the summer—several to go overseas and visit the troops—and the convention schedules call for an evening opening hour of 9 p. m. By that time most of the regular radio attractions are out of the way.

The major networks are bringing scores of reporters, commentators, editorialists, analysts, and other experts here to cover the convention. W-G-N and Mutual are planning to cover every newsworthy period of the sessions. All regular programs will be subject to cancellation or interruption.

Gov. Green to Speak.

A full hour welcome to the delegates will be broadcast exclusively over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Sunday night from the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, headquarters for the convention.

Gov. Green of Illinois will speak briefly, extending the hospitality of the state to the visitors. Other speakers will be Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican National committee, and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts. Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington commentator for Mutual, and other reporters will extend greetings to the delegates.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, with Henry Weber as conductor, will present a program of music. Other outstanding W-G-N singers and entertainers will contribute to this curtain raiser broadcast.

Plan Wire Record Tests.

The opening session of the convention is scheduled for 11:30 a. m. Monday, June 26, with Mr. Spangler calling the meeting to order and a formal welcome by Gov. Green. At 9 p. m. Monday Gov. Warren of California will deliver the keynote address. Rep. Martin, the permanent chairman, is expected to be heard at noon Tuesday, and Herbert Hoover and Rep. Clare Booth Luce at the Tuesday evening session.

W-G-N expects to have available five of the Armour magnetic wire recorders for recording the convention broadcasts. W-G-N besides testing the capabilities of the recorder for post-war broadcasting this experiment will make available the convention proceedings for playback over distant radio stations.

SEEN THIS WOLF'S SOCK?
. . . We lost it last week!
. . . It's a gorgeous thing . . . pale lavender with a design that simply and utterly defies description. Folks, you can't help but spot it . . . it surpasses the wildest dream of hosiery surrealism . . .
. . . This Casanova's plans for sundry invasions have been somewhat hampered by his temporary loss (we hope). It seems this particular pair of not-to-be-described socks is an intimate part of his very soul . . . something about squirrel fever going up about 50% when he has 'em on or something of that sort . . .
. . . We, here at Skokie, are not only perturbed at "One Touch of Venus" loss—we're completely abashed! We definitely, because of the shortage of eligible Lobos, must find it—BUT QUICK! In fact this guy is raising the sweetest kind of hades with us . . . so please look, will you! We simply have to put this answer to "Man-Shortage" back in circulation . . .
. . . During the same week Lothario's passion sock went astray, the Skokie Valley Laundry handled approximately some 515,000 pieces of linen and clothing. With the aid of a MAGIC system of identification, we successfully laundered, packaged and delivered these thousands of items to their owners with a minimum of loss. This in itself was a miracle of organization. Of those pieces lost some have been returned (as we're hoping Umbrago's will be). Those items not returned will be quickly replaced or a satisfactory settlement made. We don't claim perfection —only 99½%.

MARINES MEET MAIN FOE DAILY—IT'S CORNED BEEF

'Beef' Sessions Regular as Morning, Noon, Night.

BY STAFF SGT. WARD WALKER.

[Marine combat correspondent on leave from The Chicago Tribune.]

CAPE GLOUCESTER, NEW BRITAIN [Delayed].—One of the most deadly snares for the men in this war is corned beef. The other day Sgt. Vernon C. Stimpel, 24, 3539 N. Hamilton av., and I met in the chow line and the conversation inevitably worked its way to corned beef, or corned willie, if you prefer.

Vern and I had met a couple of weeks before on a PT boat mission into enemy territory. We'd had more pressing things to talk about that night. But right now corned beef held the floor.

"It's funny, too," he observed, "I used to like corned beef. As a matter of fact I don't even mind it so much now when I can recognize it and brace myself for it. It's when it jumps out at you from different sized patties, kind of sneaks up on you—"

One Recalls Pork Chops.

"For breakfast it isn't so bad," said another sergeant who had joined the chow line. "For lunch, and even for dinner, I can stand it. That's the first week. But when that same diet runs for three weeks, I get the willies."

We all winced, whether at the thought of corned willie for 21 straight meals or at the pun, I don't know. Some Pollyanna in the line mentioned there had been pork chops at one meal, not so long ago.

He was silenced with a look: This was a "beef" session.

It's Beef Again.

A stocky marine, Pvt. Charles B. Hansford, 26, 4824 St. Paul av., joined the group, bellowing, "I like corned beef! It's good! It's good for me!"

We looked at him sadly. "It must be the heat," some one said.

Hansford, who was also on the PT excursion, used to be a foreman for the Mars Candy company.

"Wonder if my wife, Flora, could get a box out to me?" Hansford suggested. We all agreed he should try, altho the bars would probably be one mouldy mass by the time they'd crossed the equator.

By that time our mess gears were empty and we wandered off, ending the corned beef discussion for the day.

A day or two later I wandered into a tent area housing an army radio unit temporarily assigned to the marines. There were three Chicagolanders in the group, engaged in a variety of activities.

Sweeps Dirt Decks.

Sgt. Emerson Mitchell, 35, of 321 N. Laurel av., an army air force radio operator, was sweeping the dirt deck of his tent, a seemingly useless operation indulged in at the behest of first sergeants.

And Capt. Clarence M. Berry, 43, who used to clerk in the postoffice at 3334 Lincoln av., was taking an after lunch snooze in his tent. He is in charge of the unit.

The three helped to set up their unit soon after the marines consolidated their positions on the air field, and have maintained liaison between the marines and the army air force.

Wins Tribune Medal

Cadet Maj. Elwood Jerome, 3941 Pine Grove av., receives The Chicago Tribune gold medal as the outstanding cadet at Roosevelt Military academy, Aledo, Ill., from Col. Glen G. Millikan, academy superintendent. The award was made at commencement exercises recently.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 19.

Do not neglect cultivating the vegetable garden, for on this may depend the success or failure of an entire crop. One has only to observe the fine crops that are raised without using artificial watering to realize that constant care in keeping down weeds and stirring the soil is about all that is necessary.

Grass clippings can be saved and utilized as a mulch, and can be used to great advantage to mulch the perennial border, for usually the border is so filled with roots and plants that adequate cultivation cannot be given.

Mulch spring planted shrubs, vines, and trees. Water can be applied thru the mulching materials. Keep all beds edged with a sharp spade or edging tool.

Tuesday, June 20.

Thin the rows of plants that may be growing too close together. Give each plant its full share of room and it will produce. Never neglect the fight against insect pests, for if allowed to increase unchecked or without any attempt to reduce their numbers much injury to all the plants will result.

Roses are likely to be affected with mildew or black spot. Keep all old leaves removed and destroy them. Spray with triogen, which is a three way material. The aphid is a pest that may cover the tips of plants in a few days unless sprayed with a contact spray.

Many gardeners are fully aware of the spray that is most effective, but many fail to adopt a regular program to keep pests under control. Keep after all pests.

Wednesday, June 21.

Keep delphiniums well watered and cut the stems down after flowering. If there is indication of black blight, spray with a solution of one ounce of dry sulphur and ½ ounce of blackleaf 40 to two gallons of water. If spraying fails, destroy the infested plants.

Watch for the iris borer, which indicates its presence by soft and slimy leaves. Chrysanthemums may yet be planted. It is a good time to sow perennial seeds. Select a good, open spot in the garden; a coldframe is better. Rake to a fine seedbed and sow sparingly in rows.

After sowing, spread a layer of burlap over the bed and water thru it; remove the burlap when the seeds germinate. When sown in the coldframe the seedbed is easily under control as to watering and shading.

Thursday, June 22.

Gardeners who find that chiggers annoy them may find relief if they will roll down their stockings to below the tops of their shoes and dust with sulphur. A perforated can is suitable for dusting.

A better display of flowers in the garden usually can be enjoyed if extra care is given to tying up all the plants needing it and this does not mean that tying should be confined to strong plants like the dahlias, peonies, delphiniums, and other tall plants.

Many low growing things need attention which should be given them if they are displayed properly. Sow dandelion seed for early greens next spring. Never allow plants to form seed for it may be scattered over a wide area.

Beans, beets, carrots, kohlrabi, and turnips can be sown now for a late crop. Sow a little deeper than in the spring.

Friday, June 23.

Lift and divide pyrethrum to have strong plants by fall. This flower is good for cutting or for the perennial border. Water spring planted shrubs abundantly so new roots will be formed in abundance. Shade newly transplanted material for a few days during hot weather.

When cutting material for bouquets, do the job during early morning and plunge the stems at once in deep cool water. Change water each morning. Make the cuts long and slanting for heavy stems.

Tulips may be lifted if it is necessary to move them; place in a box with the tops on and they will remain slowly ripening. Clean and replant in early October. Soft wood cuttings can be made from many kinds of plants at this time. Place the cacti in a partially shaded location out of doors.

Large plants like the hedge hog will stand full sun without injury. You can enjoy good material for winter bouquets by sowing some Chinese lantern seed in an out of the way spot.

Saturday, June 24.

You can lift many of the minor bulbs now and store in a dry place untill fall. These consist of the well known squills, grape hyacinth, crocus, snowdrop, calico flower or fritillaria, and snow on the mountain or chionodoxa.

The long known and brilliant sun plant or portulaca can yet be sown. It thrives in the hottest place and furnishes an abundance of brilliant flowers in early morning. Try a few in a bright, sunny spot.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

Here's a Hobbyist Who Can Hit the Jackpot When He Chooses

Occupying a prominent position on the desk of Alden Scott Boyer, owner of the Boyer Laboratories, 2700 Wabash av., is this $1,500 vase from Sevre, France, which Doris White, 7944 Jeffery av., an employee at the laboratories, is admiring.

Alden S. Boyer, who makes a hobby of collecting, shows Whiskers, one of his four trick dogs, how to play the Admiral Dewey slot machine, which was built in 1898. Boyer's collection of 100 slot machines is one of the largest in the world and includes many unusual ones.

If Pocahontas could talk, she'd be able to tell Alma Kurtz, 712 Diversey pkwy., the story of the Chicago fire, which she viewed from Joseph Eder's cigar store at State and Van Buren sts. She came thru the fire and was in storage until Mr. Boyer ferreted her out several years ago. Pocahontas is one of 12 wooden Indians in the hobby man's collection.

Indians Dance to '90 Tunes in Hobby House

The house of Boyer's chemical works holds some of the strangest objects in the world. It is a house of hobbies, containing cigar store wooden Indians, slot machines, daguerrotypes, music boxes, high wheel bicycles, and rare perfume bottles, to mention a few collections. Alden Scott Boyer has more than enough oddities to fill a museum and intends to start one as soon as he can obtain a building long enough.

"It all started 50 years ago, when I was 7 years old and started to collect the metal tags that came with tobacco purchases. I collected 1,600 of them—still have 'em too. I went from tags to stamps and then to coins. I eventually sold the coin collection."

It's Strange Work Atmosphere.

"My next hobby," he laughs and the gleam in his eye prepares his listeners for a surprise, "was books on 'How to Make Women Beautiful.' I have 100 of them, mostly in French. By that time I was studying the cosmetics business in Grasse, France, the home of the perfume industry."

Boyer's employes are accustomed to stumbling over ancient French treasure chests or bumping into an old English lamp post. Strange sounds coming from one of the downstairs rooms don't perturb them one bit. "The fancy player piano?" one will venture. "No, it's the 1893 music box," another will declare. The largest part of Mr. Boyer's collection is strewn about the laboratory which occupies a seven story building at 2700 Wabash av.

Indian Guards Desk.

On his desk is a vase from Sevre, France, which is valued at $1,500 and on either side of the desk are music boxes, with their large steel disks. He has 12 music boxes, one of the largest groups in the country.

A wooden Indian stands behind Boyer's chair, as if on guard. The Indian is hand carved and 90 years old. It is one of a dozen. One of the most colorful of the group is a Pocahontas Indian, beautifully carved and painted in brilliant hues of red and yellow. Pocahontas graced the entrance of Joseph Eder's cigar

OCD TO ENLIST CHILDREN'S AID IN BOND DRIVE

South side school children sold so many bonds in previous drives that OCD commanders, recognizing the appealing salesmanship of children, are offering prizes to those who sell the largest amount of bonds in the 5th war loan drive.

A bond rally and show will be held for the children of the Oakland division at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the Oakenwald school, 4701 Lake Park av. The OCD expects to have a war hero and entertainment. Mrs. Ethel C. Watts, principal of the school, and Edward Froderman, war finance committee chairman of the Oakland and Kenwood districts, will talk.

Froderman, who is vice president of the Drexel National bank, 3944 Cottage Grove av., said that a set of four prizes will be offered to the children of the Oakenwald, Shakespeare, Kenwood, and St. Ambrose schools.

Four Prizes to Each School.

A $50 war bond will be offered to the first prize winner of each of the schools. Second prize will be a $25 bond, third will be $10 in war stamps, and fourth $5 in stamps.

The students of Oakenwald sold $50,000 worth of bonds in the 4th war loan drive by house to house solicitation and expect to exceed this amount. Andrew Nelson is OCD commander for the Oakland district and Frank Rainey is commander for the Kenwood district.

Pacing city workers in the 5th war loan drive are eight south side volunteer bond wardens led by Arthur E. Hast, 11122 Vernon av. On the first day of the drive they visited 99 families in their block and tripled their quota, $31,744, by ob-

KANGAROO FINE PET, BUT JULES LIKES HIS SNAKE

Condition of Terry Is the Problem, Tho.

Jules was the kind of boy who would bring home anything from garter snakes to turtles. Now he's a lieutenant in the army air forces with 90 missions to his credit, but he still has mascots. Among them are Terry, a cocker spaniel; Kate, a kangaroo, and Monty, a snake.

Terry was acquired in Australia and has been flying since puppy days. At present Lt. Jules J. Brasseur is worried because the flight surgeon is on leave and may not return in time to handle Terry's confinement case.

What Would You Do?

Lt. Brasseur, in a recent letter to his mother, Mrs. Oscarine Brasseur, 6427 Greenwood av., mentioned an uncomfortable experience. A box of ant powder broke open in the plane cockpit while he and Terry were flying. Terry and Jules evacuated their position as rapidly as possible.

Kate met a sad ending. She was a joey [young kangaroo] who found army life very satisfactory and the G. I's found her amusing. One day a dog bit her. The bite was not fatal, but Kate, being a gentle creature, died of fright.

Monty Diets on Rats.

Monty entered army life when he was found munching on a rat. The GI's argued about his fate, and then decided to put him on probation. Monty turned out to be a good natured snake, and he joined the mascots and more than earned his keep by killing rats.

One day the captain accidentally stepped on Monty when emerging from the shower. "Thought he was a rope," commented the captain. Monty just shuffled off on snake locomotion, casting a reproving eye at the captain.

Wins D. F. C.

Jules has been in the Southwest Pacific more than a year, winning the air medal and the distinguished flying cross. Asked why he was awarded the D. F. C., he said: "For flying 60 missions and never being late for lunch." That was several months ago.

At the time he was sketched by Gary Sheahan, Tribune staff artist, he had marked up 90 missions. He is believed to have reached the 100 mark by now.

Phil and Ted Also Wait.

When he turned in the Miss Jacqueline because he had flown too many hours in it he was given a new plane, the Jackson Park Express. He said he gave the ship its name because he missed the noise of the Jackson Park elevated, which passes near the Greenwood av. home.

Mrs. Thomas J. Lee, the pilot's sister, also lives at the Greenwood av. address. Her husband, a sergeant, has been in the army three years, two of them overseas. He is now in Africa.

Philbert and Teddy are also those who patient await Jules' return. Phil and Teddy—they're his two canine buddies he left at home.

Chicago Youth Join Forces for Paper Pickup Saturday

Chicago's school boys and girls hope to chalk up another waste paper record for the summer months as they swing into a city wide program beginning Saturday with the second city curb collection of paper.

With school doors closing for the summer, boys and girls will direct their paper collecting efforts toward three city wide drives during June, July, and August, working thru the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and other youth groups. Their goal for Saturday has been set at 3,000 tons. A total of 2,700 tons was collected at the first city wide curb pickup on Jan. 15, directed by the Chicago waste paper campaign committee under the auspices of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association.

50,000 Push Drive.

Fifty thousand youth organization members are working with the Chicago waste paper campaign committee in mapping out this week's collection. These are the same boys and girls who since January have helped haul 38,669,538 pounds of paper to their individual schools where it was sold. The money realized, $209,960.67, went to the various school funds.

More than 2,500 Boy Scouts will man the 500 trucks which will pick up waste paper in each of the city wards.

To Teach Bundle Tieing.

Another 17,000 Boy Scouts, 8,000 Girl Scouts, and 5,000 Camp Fire Girls will be in the bell ringing brigades. Members of the various boys' clubs in the city, the junior B'nai B'rith groups, and the junior victory army also will be among the solicitors.

In addition to soliciting paper from every householder this week, the boys and girls will instruct them on how to tie their bundles, and on Saturday will assist the trucks by assembling bundles where possible in the center of the various blocks.

Housewives, too, will join the drive. Under the direction of Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, OCD fats salvage director, housewives will deliver 800,000 circulars this week explaining the drive.

Help Direct Campaign.

The pickup will be under the management of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee with William L. McFetridge as general chairman, and W. H. Bennett, chairman of pickup arrangements. The other two pickups for this summer are scheduled on July 22 and Aug. 19.

Members of the executive committee directing south side groups in the summer drives are Meyer Friedstein, 5315 Greenwood av., and Conrad E. Miller, 3923 Vincennes av., Boy Scouts; Mrs. E. W. Sanders, 8103 Blackstone av., and Betty Hanstrud, 26 E. 100th pl., Girl Scouts; Mrs. Jessie Lyon, 12135 Normal av.; Mrs. Anabel Bergner, 8411 Paxton av., and Mrs. William E. King, 4140 South Park way, Camp Fire girls, and Glenn Fischer, 6344 Harper av., boys' clubs.

NOT SEXTUPLETS, BUT SIXTH BIRTH STILL A RECORD

Mrs. Edward Kelly's sixth baby was born at the Jackson Park hospital. "O, no, not sextuplets," the nurse said. "All were born separately. This is her sixth child and all arrived in this hospital."

The birth set a record for the hospital, located at 76th st., and Stony Island av., and in celebration the hospital presented Mrs. Clare Kelly's youngest daughter, Mona Kathleen with a $50 bond. Mrs. Kelly's husband is employed by the Chicago park district. The family, Mary Clare, 7; Edward, 6; Bernard, 4; Michael, 3, and John, 2, lives at 2614 E. 74th pl.

Christian League Elects Two S. Siders to Offices

Two south side girls recently were elected to offices in the Christian Service league at Frances Shimer college, Mount Carroll, Ill., where they are freshmen. Janet Stoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stoll, 7705 Oglesby av., is vice president and chairman of the social service committee. Bonnie Jean Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Clark, 8342 Langley av., is secretary and chairman of the fellowship committee.

Woodlawn Study Club.

The Woodlawn Study club will sponsor a luncheon and party at noon Monday, June 26, at the promontory, 55th st. and the lake. Mrs. Edwin B. McKee is in charge.

S. SIDE SENIOR TOTAL IS EQUAL TO LAST YEAR'S

2,337 Graduate Despite Drain of War.

War time has not caused south side students to desert their pencils and books as is evidenced by the number of graduates compared to last year. This week 2,337 south side graduates will receive diplomas; last year there were 12 more, or 2,349.

Thruout the city there are 1,697 less graduates. This year 13,407 students will take diplomas, compared to last year's total of 15,104. "Youth Looks Forward," the title of one commencement symposium, is the central theme of most of the programs.

Bowen Theme: 'War Service.'

"War Service of Our School" is the title of the valedictory talk by Marcia Taylor, and "War Service of Our Homes" is the salutatory speech to be given by Rosanna Vrdoljak at the Bowen High school graduation program Wednesday night in the school auditorium. The class president, George Gugich, will talk on "War Service of Our Boys."

Dr. A. C. Ivy, professor of physiology at Northwestern university will discuss "The Importance of an Objective."

Among the musical selections will be, "When Day is Done," and "With a Song in My Heart," sung by the senior girls chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Lillian Pope. William P. Hearne, principal, will present 284 diplomas to the graduates at the termination of the program.

Du Sable to Graduate 208.

With the processional, the "War March of the Priests" Du Sable will open its graduation program at 8 p. m. Thursday in the school assembly hall. The concert band will follow with "Allessandro Stradella", and Gordon Humphrey will talk on "Youth Faces the Future."

Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, will address the graduates and John E. Meegan, principal, will present the diplomas to 208.

Henry Verboomen, class president, will welcome the audience to the commencement program of Hirsch High school at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school. "Youth Looks Forward" is the title of the symposium to be discussed by John Bradford, valedictorian, and Joan Ohlwein, salutatorian.

Principal to Give Diplomas.

An oration by Melvin Cornfield is titled "The Bill of Rights: Guardian of Mankind's Fundamental Privileges." Two hundred and forty scholars will receive diplomas from Marie A. McCahey, principal.

The "Jolly Robbers" will open the program of Hyde Park High school Thursday evening at the school auditorium. Todd May, class president, will address the assembly and Dr. Harry S. Everett, extension professor of mathematics at the University of Chicago, will discuss "Thorofare for Freedom." Susan Spaulding, Ruth-Claire Shalett, and Lois Shamberg will be among the soloists.

Hyde Park has the largest graduating class on the south side, with 468 students receiving their diplomas from Joseph F. Gonnelly, principal.

Phillips Band to Play.

The processional, "Land of Hope and Glory," will be played by the Phillips band to open the school's program at 8 p. m. Thursday. Louistine Ford will give a salutatory address and Horace Owens will present the class gift. James E. Stamps will be the guest speaker.

Maple Harris will sing the "Lord's Prayer." Fredis Burton will give the valedictory address and a piano solo, "Claire DeLune" will be played by Esma Williams. Mrs. Maudelle Bousfield, principal, will present diplomas to 243 students.

House Speaker to Talk.

"The Challenge of War Time America" is the title of the address to be delivered by Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., 13th], speakr of the Illinois house of representatives, at the South Shore High school program at 7:15 p. m. Wednesday in the school auditorium. Eleanor Dzur will sing the "Hymn to the Sun" and the choral club will offer "On Wings of Song."

Dana Olsen, Dorothy Campbell, Richard McLaughlin, Lois Lee, Theodore Rall, and Barbara Sward will participate in a quadrennium discussion. Marie Voy Brewster, principal, will reward 351 graduates with diplomas.

Bond Sales Squad Triples Its Quota

Members of the war bond squad which tripled its quota by obtaining subscriptions for $92,406.25 worth of bonds on the first day of the 5th war loan drive are congratulated by Philip R. With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Marvin Sartain, 9863 Avenue H, son of Mrs. L. S. Sartain, is one of the Seebees who stormed the shore of Bougainville Island. He is with a naval construction battalion.

Marvin Sartain.

Marine Pvt. Samuel L. Galkin, 4637 Ellis av., said his closest brush with death came when he was on a mission as a gunner in the South Pacific. As his plane arrived over the target with other bombers he found a heavy overcast obscuring the target. The bombers decided to go back without an attack. Two escort fighters took a dive thru the overcast and there were 30 Japanese Zeros waiting for the bombers to come down. "If our dive bombers had popped down into the middle of that gang I don't think I'd be telling this story," he related.

Charles S. Christensen, 8245 Ridgeland av., recently was commissioned an ensign after serving two years as an enlisted man. He is now at sea.

Charles S. Christensen.

Corp. Leon Ostrowski, son of Mrs. Julia B. Ostrowski, 7965 Kingston av., recently returned to the United States to be processed thru the airforce's redistribution station after 26 months as an aircraft welder in the Panama.

Pvt. William H. Gillette, son of Mrs. E. R. Gillette, 1972 E. 73d pl., is a member of a 15th airforce group stationed in Italy, which recently completed its 250th combat mission. He wears the distinguished unit badge.

Lt. Arthur W. Nordstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Nordstrom, 836 E. 74th st., a pilot with the 9th air force light bombardment group in England, recently was awarded the air medal.

Robert L. Kreiner, 1134 E. 45th st., member of the dental corps at Eagle Pass, Tex., army air field, recently was promoted to captain.

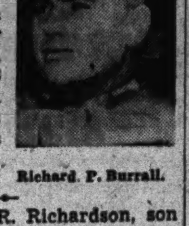
Lt. Cornelius A. Engel, pilot of an 8th airforce Flying Fortress, was recently awarded the air medal. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Engel, 9227 State st.

Lt. Robert L. Adler, navigator of an 8th airforce Flying Fortress, recently received an oak leaf cluster for missions over occupied Europe. He was later reported missing in action. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Adler, Southmoor hotel, and husband of Mrs. Betty J. Adler, 7130 Jeffery av.

Petty Officer Wilbert E. Lundgren, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lundgren, 2810 E. 80th st., has been transferred to sea duty after serving in the Marshalls as marine radio man.

A bronze oak leaf cluster was added to the silver star of Col. Frank Allen, 1426 E. 66th pl., for leading an entire wing formation thru severe weather conditions and constant fighter opposition during a daylight bombing mission over France. Col. Allen, who has a personal combat record of more than 46 successful missions against the enemy, also holds the distinguished flying cross and a commendation from Lt. Gen. Doolittle for his performance as a group leader.

Capt. Edward P. Burrall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Burrall, 7263 South Shore dr., recently returned from the Aleutians and Alaska on the Texas Queen, a plane which flew men and supplies over the fog bound islands for 18 months. Capt. Burrall is now at South Plains army air field, Lubbock, Tex.



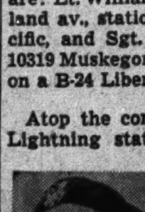
Richard. P. Burrall.

Capt. Warren R. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richardson, 2537 E. 73d st., recently was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received during an air raid. He is now back on duty with an engineer battalion in Italy.

Double honors were recently bestowed on Lt. Edward J. Brisick, son of Mrs. Mary Centracchio, 9122 Essex av., stationed with a bombardment group in the South Pacific. He was promoted to first lieutenant on the same day that he was presented with an oak leaf cluster. He is a pilot with the 13th airforce.

Oak leaf clusters were presented recently to two south siders. They are: Lt. William J. Moore, 8337 Maryland av., stationed in the South Pacific, and Sgt. Richard M. Kramer, 10319 Muskegon av., engineer-gunner on a B-24 Liberator bomber in Italy.

Atop the control tower at a P-38 Lightning station in England, Lt. Maurice H. Watt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Watt, 6335 Harrison st., Hammond, Ind., provides the essential link between the air and the ground. No plane takes off or lands without permission and directions from the tower.



Maurice H. Watt.

Lt. Seymour M. Schafer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schafer, 6603 Ridgeland av., recently was awarded an air medal for his achievement as navigator aboard a bomber transporting supplies and troops to advance positions in the Southwest Pacific. He completed 25 operational flights in five weeks. He has served with the 7th bombing command in Hawaii and in New Guinea with the 5th airforce.

Lt. Delbert J. Reiter, son of Sam Reiter, 7741 Phillips av., and husband of Harriet Reiter, 6932 Jeffery av., recently returned to this country after seven months in the European theater, where he flew on 25 missions and was awarded the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with three oak leaf clusters.

EXPECT 25,000 AT SVITHIOD DAY OUTING SUNDAY

Five south siders are among the chairmen making plans for the annual Svithiod day outing at St. Paul park, Morton Grove, for next Sunday. More than 25,000 people are expected to attend the 48th such event.

The serving of a Sil Frukost [herring breakfast] at 10 o'clock in the morning will mark the beginning of the day's events. At noon there will be a two hour band concert by the Svithiod Concert band.

Plan Afternoon Parade.

The afternoon program will get under way at 2 o'clock with a parade, a drum and bugle corps drill, a baton twirling show, and a flag raising ceremony in which the combined musical groups, instrumental and choral, will lead the audience in honoring the flag.

Lt. Col. Lauris M. Eek of the army air corps will be the principal speaker.

There will be many choral numbers by the 50 voice Svithiod Singing club, under the direction of Knute Hanse; music by the 30 piece band, led by Fred Meyer, and a musical overture by the 50 piece drum and bugle corps under the direction of Robert Olson. There will also be numerous trios, duets, and solos in a variety of vocal, instrumental, and dance numbers.

Plan Several Contests.

Striking a lighter vein on the program will be music by the Hungry Five and comedy numbers by the Fun Makers.

Sports and games for the day will include nail driving contests, sack races, tugs-of-war, egg rolling contests, three legged races, horse shoe pitching, women's race, men's race, and a husband calling contest.

Starting at 7:30 p. m., there will be an evening program of choral singing, band music, and novelty numbers. There will also be dancing.

South side chairmen are David Allen, 1116 143d st., East Chicago; Theodore Carlson, 10450 Avenue G; Joel Johnson, 13525 Buffalo av.; Mrs. Agda Fornander, 2913 E. 78th st., and Mrs. Hulda Marell, 7614 Champlain av.

10 S. SIDERS JOIN SALVATION ARMY DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Ten south side women will serve as volunteer colonels for the Salvation Army Tuesday in the Doughnut day drive for funds. Under each colonel will be 10 captains, each of whom will supervise taggers in various neighborhoods. The women will sell paper doughnuts, emblematic of Salvation Army service at street corners. "All proceeds will go toward helping the Salvation Army help others," Mrs. Charles Clarke, president of the Army's women's division, said.

The Salvation Army is dedicated to caring for the unfortunates thru its social service institutions. It also is serving with allied fighting men on war fronts thruout the world.

The south side women are: Mrs. Jay H. Brown, 6144 Ingleside av.; Mrs. William T. Davis, 4340 Vincennes av.; Georgianna Ferguson, 8525 Rhodes av.; Mrs. Zetella Ford, 3322 Michigan av.; Mrs. Elizabeth Gillis, 8210 Rhodes av.

GRUEN
We, your Gruen jeweler, run this advertisement as another way of saying BUY A GRUEN WATCH . . . BUT BUY A WAR BOND FIRST!
This is a war story with two endings...
Johnny Carter was nineteen . . . and just about the nicest kid you'd ever want to meet. You couldn't know him five minutes without seein' pictures of his girl, his folks and his young sister . . . He'd haul 'em out and tell you how they were the best people in the best town in the best country on earth . . . And you'd believe him. Well, Johnny fought in Tunisia in the mud and rain and heat. He fought in Italy . . . in Germany . . . He fought and sweat and did without all the way to Tokyo. He wanted to get home bad . . . He wanted to see the best people in the best town in the best country 'til it hurt! And he came within one day of doing so . . . But twenty-four hours before the war ended, an Axis bullet put Johnny to sleep . . . forever.
That's one ending...here's a better one...
. . . He wanted to get home . . . and he did! . . . Because some folks who didn't know Johnny bought war bonds and those bonds put more fighting weapons on the front . . . and they lopped twenty-four hours off the war. Remember this . . . that every bond you buy speeds victory, saves life. Think it over. Then . . .
BACK THE ATTACK WITH EVERY WAR BOND YOU CAN BUY!

INVASION, G. O. P. CONVENTION TO KEEP RADIO BUSY

W-G-N Plans Full Hour Welcome Program.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Regular radio program schedules are likely to be upset considerably next week with the Republican convention, which opens June 26, and invasion needs both demanding considerable air time. Numerous top radio performers, however, already have left the air for the summer—several to go overseas and visit the troops—and the convention schedules call for an evening opening hour of 9 p. m. By that time most of the regular radio attractions are out of the way.

The major networks are bringing scores of reporters, commentators, editorialists, analysts, and other experts here to cover the convention. W-G-N and Mutual are planning to cover every newsworthy period of the sessions. All regular programs will be subject to cancellation or interruption.

Gov. Green to Speak.

A full hour welcome to the delegates will be broadcast exclusively over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Sunday night from the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, headquarters for the convention.

Gov. Green of Illinois will speak briefly, extending the hospitality of the state to the visitors. Other speakers will be Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican National committee, and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts. Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington commentator for Mutual, and other reporters will extend greetings to the delegates.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, with Henry Weber as conductor, will present a program of music. Other outstanding W-G-N singers and entertainers will contribute to this curtain raiser broadcast.

Plan Wire Record Tests.

The opening session of the convention is scheduled for 11:30 a. m. Monday, June 26, with Mr. Spangler calling the meeting to order and a formal welcome by Gov. Green. At 9 p. m. Monday Gov. Warren of California will deliver the keynote address. Rep. Martin, the permanent chairman, is expected to be heard at noon Tuesday, and Herbert Hoover and Rep. Clare Booth Luce at the Tuesday evening session.

W-G-N expects to have available five of the Armour magnetic wire recorders for recording the convention broadcasts. W-G-N besides testing the capabilities of the recorder for post-war broadcasting this experiment will make available the convention proceedings for playback over distant radio stations.

AIR PARATROOP STORY TONIGHT ON W-G-N SHOW

A story of paratrooper action on D-day filed by Howard Cowan of the Associated Press will serve as the basis for a drama to be broadcast on W-G-N's They Give Their Lives at 9:30 tonight. A second episode will tell of an American glider troop mission that resulted in the capture of 800 Germans. Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the 5th war loan drive, and Patricia Dunlap of W-G-N's Crime Files of Flamond, will speak in behalf of the bond drive.

Patricia Dunlap.

Dad's To Be Saluted.

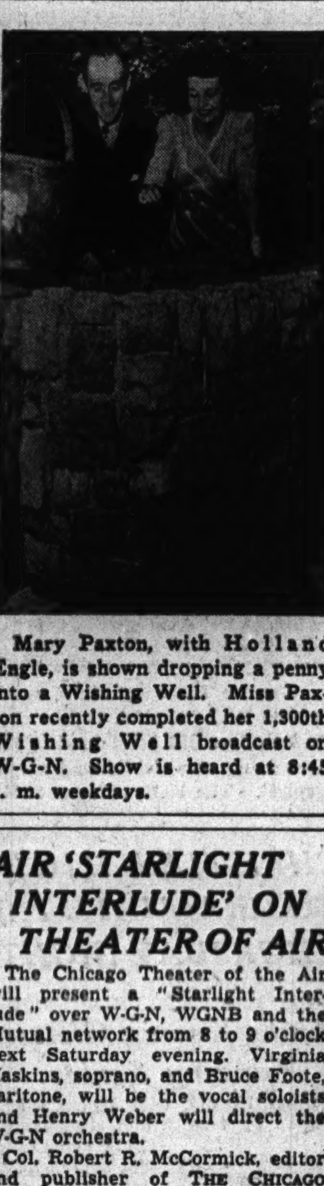
In salute to Father's day the WENR-WCFL Amateur hour at 12:30 p. m. today will feature interviews with fathers of the young contestants.

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON.

BBC news reports are currently broadcast from London on the following schedule. The frequencies [wave lengths] are given in megacycles: 5 and 6 a. m.—11.68 meg.; 8, 10, and 11 a. m.—15.31; 4 p. m.—11.68; 4:45 p. m.—11.93 and 9:58; 4:59 p. m.—11.68; 5:45 p. m.—11.93, 9:58, and 11.68; 8 p. m.—9:58, 6.11, and 7.26; 9 p. m.—9.69 and 6:01; 9:45 p. m.—9.58, 6.11, 7.26, and 9.51; 11:30 p. m.—9.58, 6.11, and 7.26.

At Wishing Well



Mary Paxton, with Holland Engle, is shown dropping a penny into a Wishing Well. Miss Paxton recently completed her 1,300th Wishing Well broadcast on W-G-N. Show is heard at 8:45 a. m. weekdays.

AIR 'STARLIGHT INTERLUDE' ON THEATER OF AIR

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present a "Starlight Interlude" over W-G-N, WGNB and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening. Virginia Haskins, soprano, and Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the vocal soloists and Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N orchestra.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

The program will open with a group of songs from the east with Miss Haskins as soloist. Miss Haskins also will sing Delibes' "Maids of Cadiz," and with Mr. Foote, an aria from "Don Giovanni." Mr. Foote will sing "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser." A feature of the program will be selections from "Blossom Time."

HOUR OF CHARM FINALISTS TO BE NAMED TONIGHT

Phil Spitalny, conductor on the Hour of Charm program aired at 9 p. m. Sundays over WMAQ-NBC, tonight will name Marie Rogndahl of Portland, Ore., Monica Mais of the Island of Jamaica, and Gloria Halliday of Baltimore, Md., as the program's voice audition finalists. They are to appear on next week's show. Ten thousand young women tried for a spot in the finalist group. Music devoted to June brides will be offered by the all-girl orchestra tonight.

Father's Day Sketch on Green Valley Show

In observance of Father's day the story of a father whose was killed fighting the Japs will be dramatized on Green Valley, U. S. A., over W-G-N-Mutual at 4 p. m. today. J. Edward Bromberg, stage and screen actor, is to guest star in the sketch.

Women at War

Seaman Catherine J. Truesdell of the WAVEs is in training at Hunter college, New York City. She was a Link trainer instructor for the navy before enlisting. Seaman Truesdell is a licensed flyer with 175 hours in the air and was a first lieutenant in the civil air patrol in 1942. She is also a member of the Ninety-Nines, international organization of women pilots. Her home is at 7945 Drexel av.

Catherine J. Truesdell.

Rosalyn Hughes, daughter of Mrs. Lena Urban, 4524 Drexel blvd., recently was promoted to corporal technician 5th grade in the WAC. She has been in service two years and has been overseas since December. She is with the peninsular base section in Italy.

Elsbethanne J. Baker, storekeeper 3d class, has reported for duty in the disbursing office at the Great Lakes naval training center. She received boot training with the WAVES at Hunter college, New York City. She is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Auten, 7841 Michigan av.

Apprentice Seaman Florence Falk Nesbitt is taking boot training at the naval training school in New York City. Seaman Nesbitt has a brother, Ben J. Falk, a sergeant in the marines, who was aboard the U. S. S. Lexington. Her husband, Fred James Nesbitt, enlisted the day of the Pear Harbor attack. He has been at sea in the South Pacific since February, 1942. The couple formerly lived at 7105 Champlain av.

NBC Orchestra Plays 5 Symphony Movements

Five well known movements from five famous symphonies will be played by the NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Frank Black, over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The first movement from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," the second movement from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5 in E minor, the third movement from Mozart's Symphony in G minor, the second movement from Franck's Symphony in D minor, and the fourth movement from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 in E minor will constitute today's Symphony of the Air hour program.

John Thomas to Sing 'Largo,' 'Last Roundup'

John Charles Thomas, baritone, will sing Handel's "Largo" on his broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 1:30 p. m. today. Thomas also will sing Billy Hill's "The Last Roundup."

BOYER'S HOBBY HOUSE HOME TO WOODEN INDIANS

Pocahontas Rules Land of Antique Oddities.

store at State and Van Buren sts. until the Chicago fire. She was rescued and put in storage until she was found by Boyer, who seems to find anything of interest which any storehouse may hold.

Has Early American Bike.

There is probably no other office in the country whose furnishings feature a high wheeled bicycle. This is not an ordinary bicycle either, it is a high wheeled wooden one, void of any tires and possessing pedals which look like huge red spools.

"Oh that," Boyer remarked. "I dug that up on W. Madison st. It was made by the Nicholas Toy company in 1878. But I've got 14 more of them, including one which is supposed to be the first one made in America." The collection includes only high wheeled bikes and bone shakers.

"Come, let me show you one of my largest collections. It is the largest privately owned one of its kind," he added leading the way thru a maze of curios. Finally he paused, turned on a light and there were dozens and dozens of slot machines.

Calling Mr. Vogel.

"My collection includes 100 of these machines and the first one ever built." He reached into his pocket, put a nickel in one of the more antiquated looking ones, "did you know," he commented as he was about to pull the lever, "that Chicago is the birthplace of the slot machine?"

He put another nickel in and pulled the lever. There was a loud ringing noise, "We've hit the jackpot!" he exclaimed overjoyed. "People really knew when they hit it in those days."

He took a few more quick steps and stopped before an unusual machine, which had an imitation hen setting in it. "I'll bet you've never seen anything like this before," he said with a triumphant grin. "It's an egg laying machine. Of course this goes back to the days when eggs were eight cents a dozen. The housewife would put a penny in the machine, pull the lever, and a fresh egg would drop out.

Native of Iowa.

Slot machine manufacturers discovered there was a bright future in player pianos and each firm vied with the other to make the finest automatic music. The father of them all was the automatic piano built in 1880 in Trutnov, Bohemia, which is still capable of music when Boyer drops a slug in the slot.

The fabulous Boyer, a vigorously built man, with alert eyes and a ready smile, is as interesting as his collection is fascinating. Born in Cresco, Ia., of an American mother and French father, he made his first trip to his father's native land in 1919 to study the cosmetics business. Since then he has made 25 trips to France and spent 14 years there, where he has a company branch.

Most of all, Boyer treasures his photography collection. He has 3,000 books on the subject of photography and a collection of old cameras dating back to the 1840's. His, he says, is the only historical collection of antique photography in Chicago and the largest private collection in the country.

He has the lens used by Alexander Hesler in taking one of the most popular photographs of President Lincoln. Among his cameras is a four lens tintype which dates back to 1856.

Owns Largest Portrait Camera.

He claims the largest portrait camera in the world. The lens on the life size camera was valued at $1,040. He cherishes a collection of Daguerrotypes, one of the largest, which includes 65 prints of great men, dating to 1839 when Daguerre invented photography.

Boyer, the man who makes a hobby of hobbies, says he is not thru collecting items that intrigue him and he doesn't think he ever will stop. What's more, there's nothing in his house of wonders that he will sell, he said as he sat at his desk, the oldest one in Chicago.

He hasn't made up his mind what he'll call the museum and as to making a statement on the value of the collection, he says, "I can't." He lives with his wife, Marie, at 845 Drexel sq.

"Yes," he nodded, "she collects old lace."

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, June 19.

Do not neglect cultivating the vegetable garden, for on this may depend the success or failure of an entire crop. One has only to observe the fine crops that are raised without using artificial watering to realize that constant care in keeping down weeds and stirring the soil is about all that is necessary.

Tuesday, June 20.

Thin the rows of plants that may be growing too close together. Give each plant its full share of room and it will produce. Never neglect the fight against insect pests, for if allowed to increase unchecked or without any attempt to reduce their numbers much injury to all the plants will result.

Wednesday, June 21.

Keep delphiniums well watered and cut the stems down after flowering. If there is indication of black blight, spray with a solution of one ounce of dry sulphur and ½ ounce of blackleaf 40 to two gallons of water. If spraying fails, destroy the infested plants.

Thursday, June 22.

Gardeners who find that chiggers annoy them may find relief if they will roll down their stockings to below the tops of their shoes and dust with sulphur. A perforated can is suitable for dusting.

Friday, June 23.

Lift and divide pyrethrum to have strong plants by fall. This flower is good for cutting or for the perennial border. Water spring planted shrubs abundantly so new roots will be formed in abundance. Shade newly transplanted material for a few days during hot weather.

Saturday, June 24.

You can lift many of the minor bulbs now and store in a dry place untill fall. These consist of the well known squills, grape hyacinth, crocus, snowdrop, calico flower or fritillaria, and snow on the mountain or chionodoxa.

The long known and brilliant sun plant or portulaca can yet be sown. It thrives in the hottest place and furnishes an abundance of brilliant flowers in early morning. Try a few in a bright, sunny spot.

SERVICE CENTER WILL PICK S. SIDE QUEEN OF DANCE

Nominations among the junior hostesses at the Training School Servicemen's center, 8276 South Chicago av., for Eagle and Anchor queen will close Friday. Thirty will be nominated and one will be elected to reign at a formal dance at the center July 2.

The party will mark the opening of the summer dancing pavillion adjoining the canteen. The service center, now in its second year, is attended mainly by service men from the naval air technical training center, 87th st. and Anthony av., but is open to all service men.

Final plans for the dance will be made at 8 p. m. Tuesday by the executive committee. The Rev. James A. Walsh, pastor of St. Sallicita's church and a director of the center, will be chairman.

Miss Lundquist attended Morgan Park Junior college and her fiance attended Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y.

PUSH FUND DRIVE FOR NEW SOUTH SHORE Y CENTER

Members of the South Shore Y. M. C. A. will meet at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Southmoor hotel, 67th st. and Stony Island av., to plan further their drive to raise funds for a new center, to be built at 71st st. and Bennett av.

Approximately $100,000 of the $275,000 goal has been pledged, Arthur W. Mall, general chairman of the drive, said. The campaign will continue thru June.

If South Shore members reach their goal, the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago has promised to complete payments on a million dollar center, provided with residence rooms, gymnasium, and swimming pool, Mr. Mall said.

Jones High Summer Classes Open July 3

Jones Commercial High school, 607 Plymouth ct., will hold a six weeks' summer term of day and evening classes beginning July 3. Registration is from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on week-days. Jones is the only public school in the city offering summer commercial classes.

NAME MARIE STRAHL ELMHURST COLLEGE JUNIOR PROM QUEEN

Marie Strahl.

Miss Marie Strahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Strahl, 360 S. Michigan av., Villa Park, has been chosen queen of the junior prom to be held Friday night at Elmhurst college. Ruth Mathison, June Mulvey, and Lois Witt will be the queen's attendants. Miss Strahl was honored by her fellow students because of her high scholarship, her expertness as a swimmer, her trained speaking voice, and her happy disposition.

Oak Park Boys Learn Baseball at Playground School

Boys of the Oak Park playground are for the first time attending a baseball school this summer. Urban (Red) Faber, former White Sox pitcher, explains how to grip a ball to George Menkick, Thomas Loper, Dick Hauck, Peter Nelson, Michael Ullman, Bob Nelson, Anthony Duuila, Edwin Boswell, Dick Hedstrom, Edwin Tooke, and Charles Starman.

The call to "put it right over the pan" comes from Billy Wilson holding down the catcher's post in the picture at the left, while Robert Mayer, up at the plate, is all set to knock a homer. Five hundred boys have enrolled for the four weeks' course.

Chicago Youth Join Forces for Paper Pickup Saturday

Chicago's school boys and girls hope to chalk up another waste paper record for the summer months as they swing into a city wide program beginning Saturday with the second city curb collection of paper.

With school doors closing for the summer, boys and girls will direct their paper collecting efforts toward three city wide drives during June, July, and August, working thru the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and other youth groups. Their goal for Saturday has been set at 3,000 tons. A total of 2,700 tons was collected at the first city wide curb pickup on Jan. 15, directed by the Chicago waste paper campaign committee under the auspices of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association.

50,000 Push Drive.

Fifty thousand youth organization members are working with the Chicago waste paper campaign committee in mapping out this week's collection. These are the same boys and girls who since January have helped haul 38,669,538 pounds of paper to their individual schools where it was sold. The money realized, $209,960.67, went to the various school funds.

More than 2,500 Boy Scouts will man the 500 trucks which will pick up waste paper in each of the city wards.

To Teach Bundle Tieing.

Another 17,000 Boy Scouts, 8,000 Girl Scouts, and 5,000 Camp Fire Girls will be in the bell ringing brigades. Members of the various boys' clubs in the city, the junior B'nai B'rith groups, and the junior victory army also will be among the solicitors.

In addition to soliciting paper from every householder this week, the boys and girls will instruct them on how to tie their bundles, and on Saturday will assist the trucks by assembling bundles where possible in the center of the various blocks.

Housewives, too, will join the drive. Under the direction of Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, OCD fats salvage director, housewives will deliver 800,000 circulars this week explaining the drive.

Help Direct Campaign.

The pickup will be under the management of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee with William L. McFetridge as general chairman, and W. H. Bennett, chairman of pickup arrangements. The other two pickups for this summer are scheduled on July 22 and Aug. 19.

Members of the executive committee directing west side groups in the summer drives are Edward A. Lhotka, 3355 N. Oak Park av., Boy Scouts; Mrs. Margaret Cullerton, 5117 Monroe st., and Lenore Silver, 5098 Monroe st., Girl Scouts; Mrs. Ethel McBride, 2106 N. Oak Park av., Camp Fire girls, and Henry Lopez, 1300 Newberry av., boys' clubs.

Berwyn Bows to Year's Toll of War Today

Berwyn American Legion post at 3 o'clock this afternoon will conduct its second annual gold and silver citation service honoring those from the community who have made the supreme sacrifice in the service of their country.

A short parade will start at 2 o'clock from Cermak road and Ridgeland av. and proceed south on Ridgeland av. to 26th st., west on 26th st. to East av., and south on East av. to Janura park.

Will Honor Families.

Andrew Hunter, chairman of the war activity committee of Berwyn post, has planned the program at which families of those honored will be presented framed gold or silver citations.

L. J. Walsh will be parade marshal. L. Raymond Warnock will be in charge of the program. Speakers will be Col. Paul G. Armstrong, past commander of the Illinois department of the American Legion, now state director of selective service, and Mayor Fred Mraz of Berwyn.

Music on Program.

There will be songs by the Anderle Sisters, and the Berwyn Baptist church choir directed by C. A. Habermann.

Col. J. L. Griffes, chaplain of Berwyn post and of the 5th district posts of the American Legion, will offer prayer. Participating groups will include the auxiliary and drum and bugle corps of Berwyn post, the Berwyn Boy Scouts, and Paul Revere American Legion post. William J. Soske is Berwyn post commander.

VICTIM OF POLIO HANDED DIPLOMA IN HOSPITAL BED

A victim of infantile paralysis for seven months, Mary Alice Moore, 13, who has been confined in the Sarah Morris hospital, received a surprise recently when the Rev. John Henry of St. Thomas Aquinas school, Washington blvd. and Le Claire av., presented her with her graduation diploma. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Moore, 174 N. Lamon av., Mary Alice has kept up with her classmates despite her illness.

SLOGANS PACE WEST SUBURBS TO BOND GOALS

$100 Per Resident Quota of Many.

West suburbs have chosen their own slogans and their own methods in conducting the fifth war loan drive which officially started last Monday. In Maywood it's "Join the Fighting Fifth—Buy Bonds." Near the railroad station in Riverside there is a sign that reads "Back the Attack, Buy More than Before." Attitude of the many solicitors in La Grange appears to be "Let's do the job right off and get it done with."

Earle K. Broberg, village president, officially opened the drive in Maywood at a noon meeting of workers in the Lido theater. Up to June 26, residents will be called upon by the Citizens Service corps, which will solicit purchases of extra bonds. Harold F. Hammond is chairman of the war loan campaign in the suburb.

Plan Bond Movies.

Art Wartha, manager of the Lido theater, has arranged for two movies, one June 29 and another July 6, when seats will be free to every bond purchaser. The Lido, the First National Bank of Maywood, and the Maywood postoffice are the three bond issuing agents in the village.

A $100 bond for every resident is the goal in Riverside where the quota, as revealed by Chairman James J. Kelly, is $816,000. Mr. Kelly explained that the goal is for individual sales only and does not include industrial or corporation purchases, altho the community will receive credit for extra bond purchases made by its residents thru employe purchase plans.

The Riverside campaign has been conducted by mail and purchase application blanks are filled out and mailed to the committee or taken to the postoffice or the woman's bond

Ocheltree, and Herbert J. Bassman.

In Berwyn, 500 Boy Scouts and a large number of OCD workers distributed application blanks to every home in the city previous to the official opening of the drive. Pledgers will have until July 8 to redeem their promise to make bond purchases. Charles Bohan is chairman of the drive and Arnold Stephan is chairman of the war finance committee.

Joseph F. Hahn is in charge of Scout participation in the campaign, and C. H. Coyle is coördinator of civilian defense. Henry Boss, Lew Posner, and W. C. Cervenka are zone chairmen.

La Grange Quota Up.

Workers began early Monday in the campaign in La Grange and La Grange Park where the quota has been stepped up to $1,408,790 from individuals and small business houses. Herbert Pemberton is general chairman of the drive. Jake Danner is in charge of the campaign in La Grange and Robert Coulter is campaign chairman in La Grange Park.

As the population of the two villages is approximately 15,000, a per capita sale of a $100 bond for every man, woman and child in the two suburbs is required.

Chairmen of La Grange districts are Jesse Wylie, 1; Gale Clowes, 2; W. J. Condon, 3; Eugene Kuhne, 4; Leighton C. Meyer, 5; H. L. Hope, 6 and 7; M. J. Creighton, 8 and 9; R. A. Deabler, 10; Charles Waddington, 11 and 12; Mrs. Helen Herlihy, 13, 14, and 15; C. C. Wilson, business district, and L. H. Schroeder, special committee.

Hinsdale Goal $1,000,000.

Archibald MacLeish is chairman of the war finance committee in Hinsdale which is confident that more than a million dollars worth of bonds have been bought by Hinsdale residents in every previous war loan, much of it thru offices and plants outside the village.

A determined effort is being made in the 5th war loan drive to assure every resident's coöperation in at least buying part of their bonds to Hinsdale's credit, so as to reach the avowed goal of $1,000,000.

Members of the executive committee in Hinsdale are W. B. Burr, Douglass Doolittle, A. H. Klein, H. T. Moore, N. M. Symonds, and N. H. Whiteside Jr.

On the general committee are Colwell Beatty, E. P. Brooks, W. C. Castle, A. F. Cook, Winfield Foster, Jay L. Hench, Julian O. Heppes, John F. Hurst, S. E. Karlson, Marshall Keig, William A. Kendall, E. W. Kettering, W. W. Kimball, James S. Knowlson, John S. Lord, F. H. McElhone, C. D. F. Merrill, George A. Mizer, H. F. Mossman, John C. B. Parker, Robert E. Pearsall, John McC. Price, G. A. Schilling, Ray J. Soukup, R. I. Tiffany, Harold G. Townsend, M. B. Travis, the Rev. T. K. Vogler, James Walker, R. E. Wallin, and Thomas H. Willis.

SOUTH AUSTIN

A concerted effort to reach the $3,026,000 goal in war bonds is being made by the South Austin community, according to Comdr. Ralph A. Neff. Within the next three weeks every home will be canvassed by block wardens in an effort to render a thoro job using a theme of "Give More Than Ever Before."

At a rally held last week at Cicero ac. and Quincy st., Comdr. Neff, OCD workers, and block wardens assembled before a paper mountain topped by their quota amount to spur the sales in the community.

Other west side communities as well as south Austin meet once a week to give reports on the campaign so that the committees will be able to put workers into blocks that are lax in making house to house contracts.

Each block has a thermometer with the simulated mercury rising as sales increase. A giant thermometer for the community gives a summary of the total sales.

FIRST MAYWOOD SERVICE PARTY RATED SUCCESS

So successful was the first service men's party held recently in Maywood that similar events are planned by interested groups in the village.

The welcome party for men now stationed at the army's new Vaughan General hospital as well as for Maywood's own service men and women home on furlough was held at the First Congregational church. Ninety-seven men from the hospital were registered, and the number from Maywood and neighboring suburbs swelled the total to more than 150 guests. There were dancing, games, community singing and refreshments.

Groups Arrange Party.

The start off party was arranged by groups from the Congregational church, Episcopal church, American Legion and its auxiliary, and the Jewish Community organization.

Those who attended the party termed it one of the warmest welcomes they had received during their service careers. Plans are now under way to sponsor a party late in June at St. Eulalia's church.

Committee Listed

Members of the executive committee for planning the parties are the Rev. John Tredrea, chairman; Mrs. Blanche Hey, Mrs. Freida Elisco, Louis Nelson, Julius Breliant, and Mrs. Muriel Newell.

YORKFIELD HALL, LIKE CITY ITSELF, GOES UP IN A DAY

18 Men Travel 500 Miles for Old CCC Building.

Team work on the part of public spirited residents of Yorkfield has assured the establishment of a community building for the suburb that recently has sprung up on rolling acres south of Elmhurst.

On a Sunday in May, 18 men of Yorkfield journeyed by automobile to distant Greenville, Ill., where they dismantled a civilian conservation corps structure that had been used for officers' quarters. By sections, the portable building was loaded on trucks and brought back to Yorkfield where it will be reërected and become a part of the community's civic center.

Hope for Fall Opening.

A new foundation is being built for the transplanted building which will require repainting and a new roof. It is the hope of the Yorkfield folks that the new meeting place for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, woman's club, civilian defense and other groups, will be ready for a formal opening at the time of the town's annual fall festival.

Those who motored to Greenville and labored from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. at tearing down and loading the CCC building under the chairmanship of Walter Stange were Joe Chvojka and Marvin Hackett, members of the building committee, Rudolph Belobraydish, John Bigelow, John Cunnington, Samuel Davies, Frank Geiss, Don Hamlin, Joe Lacompte, Rudolph Mueller, William Prosek, William Rohlfing, James Sherry, Thomas Snell, Al Southon, George Suchy, and Charles Worth.

Building 20 by 90 Feet.

Volunteer workers represented a variety of trades and callings, and each was assigned to a task for which he was considered best fitted. The men made their own breakfast on the camp grounds. There was rejoicing in Yorkfield when grain trucks, employed for the purpose, drove into the suburb and unloaded the dismantled building next to the fire house. The building, 20 by 90 feet in dimension, will be given a concrete foundation. Plumbing and heating equipment came with the building.

Rudolph Mueller, one of those who made the 250 mile trip to Greenville, is chairman of the Yorkfield Civic association.

OAK PARK BALL SCHOOL SIGNS 500 HOPEFULS

Red Faber Will Coach Suburban Youths.

Five hundred hopeful home run kings, ranging in age from 9 to 18, lined up at the Oak Park High school stadium last Monday to register for the new baseball club sponsored by the Oak Park Playground board and coached by Urban [Red] Faber, former White Sox pitcher.

The club officially opened with a lecture by Lew Fonseca, former manager of the White Sox, accompanied by movies of the world series. Baseball bats and balls autographed by Faber were given as prizes by the directors of the club, Dr. Theodore M. Nelson, chairman; Joseph Rigali, chairman of the athletic program; Ashley Smith, commissioner, and F. W. Stevens, secretary.

Two Sets of Classes.

The boys, divided into two divisions, will go to school Monday thru Friday for four weeks and try to emulate their instructor, Faber, who in 1917 won three games for the White Sox against the New York Giants in the world series. The younger boys will attend the afternoon classes and the older boys the twilight classes.

Among the eager young baseball enthusiasts, who in most cases want to become professional players, are Mark Kelso, 10, 432 Wisconsin av.; Peter Nelson, 11, 612 Wesley av.; Jimmy Damiani, 13, 1133 Wisconsin av.; Bob Rigali, 13, 602 Winona av.; Bill Cavanagh, 11, 801 S. RAIN OR SHINE, FOLKS KNOW ED BY HIS GREETING

Naperville Policeman Finds It 'Fine.'

Those who have known Ed Fairbanks, Naperville policeman, for many years, are accustomed to his greeting, "It's a fine day," regardless of weather conditions. Students at North Central college, aware that in the Chicagoland area the perfect day arrives only at rare intervals, have been puzzled by the consistency of Ed's salutation.

The uniformed Mr. Fairbanks guards the corner of Naperville's main business intersection at Washington and Jefferson sts. There he encounters villagers old and young and the motorists passing thru. He had taken up a position near the bank building for a pause in the day's operations, and he turned to defend as well as explain the optimistic phrase by which he was known among those who come and go on the near-by college campus.

Tells His Philosophy.

"I figure it this way," Ed insisted, "it's a fine day if you're able to get out of bed and be in the out of doors."

Growing old as a policeman in Naperville was not Mr. Fairbanks' dream when he was a boy in County Sligo, Ireland, yet the career and the locality are entirely to his liking. At 23, he left his homeland and on coming to this country first made a stop-off with relatives in Salem, O. Before long he journeyed on to Chicago where he had cousins, and became a milk wagon driver on the west side.

Marries Naperville Girl.

During his Chicago days Mr. Fairbanks met and married a girl from Naperville, and her father asked the couple to come to the suburb and keep house for him. That was in 1906.

"I must admit I was lonesome for the city at first," said Mr. Fairbanks. "There were only three automobiles in Naperville at the time. For seven years I worked at the Kroehler Manufacturing company. Then, in 1913, I was asked to join the police force."

Mr. Fairbanks was sworn in officially as a policeman under the newly formed commission system of government. Another veteran with a similar period of service is Clifford Ashley, city engineer.

MARINES MEET MAIN FOE DAILY—IT'S CORNED BEEF

BY STAFF SGT. WARD WALKER.

[Marine combat correspondent on leave from The Chicago Tribune.]

CAPE GLOUCESTER, NEW BRITAIN [Delayed].—One of the most deadly snares for the men in this war is corned beef. The other day Sgt. Vernon C. Stimpel, 24, 3539 N. Hamilton av., and I met in the chow line and the conversation inevitably worked its way to corned beef, or corned willie, if you prefer.

Vern and I had met a couple of weeks before on a PT boat mission into enemy territory. We'd had more pressing things to talk about that night. But right now corned beef held the floor.

"It's funny, too," he observed, "I used to like corned beef. As a matter of fact I don't even mind it so much now when I can recognize it and brace myself for it. It's when it jumps out at you from different sized patties, kind of sneaks up on you—"

One Recalls Pork Chops.

"For breakfast it isn't so bad," said another sergeant who had joined the chow line. "For lunch, and even for dinner, I can stand it. That's the first week. But when that same diet runs for three weeks, I get the willies."

We all winced, whether at the thought of corned willie for 21 straight meals or at the pun. I don't know. Some Pollyanna in the line mentioned there had been pork chops at one meal, not so long ago.

He was silenced with a look: This was a "beef" session.

The chow line moved slowly forward. The main dish was hidden under an appetizing brown crust. We all pretended not to notice the filling until we sat down.

It's Beef Again.

Vern tentatively poked with his fork. Jumped as if he'd been stung. "It is," he whispered. "Why, O why, do they have to hide it? Are the cooks ashamed? Don't they think it's strong enough to stand on its own feet and face the world?"

A stocky marine, Pvt. Charles B. Hansford, 26, 4824 St. Paul av., joined the group, bellowing, "I like corned beef! It's good! It's good for me!"

We looked at him sadly. "It must be the heat," some one said.

Hansford, who was also on the PT excursion, used to be a foreman for the Mars Candy company.

"Just think of all those creamy, delicious, mouth watering—" he started.

"Knock it off," I warned him. "There's no room for commercials in this column. Besides we're just finishing a corned beef dinner."

"Wonder if my wife, Flora, could get a box out to me?" Hansford suggested. We all agreed he should try, altho the bars would probably be one mouldy mass by the time they'd crossed the equator.

By that time our mess gears were empty and we wandered off, ending the corned beef discussion for the day.

A day or two later I wandered into a tent area housing an army radio unit temporarily assigned to the marines. There were three Chicagolanders in the group, engaged in a variety of activities.

Sweeps Dirt Decks.

Sgt. Emerson Mitchell, 35, of 321 N. Laurel av., an army air force radio operator, was sweeping the dirt deck of his tent, a seemingly useless operation indulged in at the behest of first sergeants.

Sgt. Francis L. Brout, 23, of Oak Park, another radio operator, was shaving out of his helmet with his mirror propped against a tree limb.

And Capt. Clarence M. Berry, 43, who used to clerk in the postoffice at 3334 Lincoln av., was taking an after lunch snooze in his tent. He is in charge of the unit.

The three helped to set up their unit soon after the marines consolidated their positions on the air field, and have maintained liaison between the marines and the army air force.

Engaged to Sailor

FLORENCE N. BAEBL.

The engagement of Florence Nadine Baebl to Ralph E. Kostka, gunner's mate 2nd class, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Baebl of Cicero. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kostka of Riverside, recently returned to the United States to enter a V-12 training class after 27 months in the Pacific area. He will be stationed in San Diego, Cal.

HOUSE EXTERIOR REPAIR FOLLOWS WINTER'S WEAR

Now Is Time to Check Roof, Chimney.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Right now is an excellent time to check on the condition of the roof. Spring rains may reveal some weak spots in the house tops, spots which have weathered a long winter. If there are any missing or damaged shingles, have them replaced and the loose ones nailed firmly.

Chimneys, flashings, and all masonry work should be thoroly inspected, as these points are as open to leakage as damaged shingles and often can affect the interior surfacings of walls and trim if allowed to go unrepaired.

Asbestos Shingles Available.

One excellent type of roofing available and on the noncritical list is an asbestos cement shingle. If any part of a roof is really in need of repair, a roof can be re-covered with these shingles and they are a good protection against fire as well as weather.

In most instances this type of roofing can be applied directly over the old roof, after its surface has been properly prepared. In this way labor costs are saved and much debris is kept from being scattered around the house and lawn.

Nail Old Shingles Securely.

No new roofing should be applied before all the old shingles are securely nailed in place, and nails must be long enough to fasten the new shingles securely.

One home owner writes in that he has just finished a neat little lean-to on one side of his garage for all his garden tools. He covered wood framework with asbestos cement board.

His usual lawn tending equipment had been supplemented by so many extra tools and supplies for his war garden that he had to have more space. Now he has a little shed which provides ample room for hose and fertilizer bags, wheelbarrow and lawn mower and other precious and hard-to-replace garden tools.

HOUR OF CHARM FINALISTS TO BE NAMED TONIGHT

Phil Spitalny, conductor on the Hour of Charm program aired at 9 p. m. Sundays over WMAQ-NBC, tonight will name Marie Rogndahl of Portland, Ore., Monica Mais of the Island of Jamaica, and Gloria Halliday of Baltimore, Md., as the program's voice audition finalists. They are to appear on next week's show. Ten thousand young women tried for a spot in the finalist group. Music devoted to June brides will be offered by the all-girl orchestra tonight.

NBC Orchestra Plays 5 Symphony Movements

Five well known movements from five famous symphonies will be played by the NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Frank Black, over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The first movement from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," the second movement from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5 in E minor, the third movement from Mozart's Symphony in G minor, the second movement from Franck's Symphony in D minor, and the fourth movement from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 in E minor will constitute today's Symphony of the Air hour program.

John Thomas to Sing 'Largo,' 'Last Roundup'

John Charles Thomas, baritone, will sing Handel's "Largo" on his broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 1:30 p. m. today. Thomas also will sing Billy Hill's "The Last Roundup."

INVASION, G. O. P. CONVENTION TO KEEP RADIO BUSY

W-G-N Plans Full Hour Welcome Program.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Regular radio program schedules are likely to be upset considerably next week with the Republican convention, which opens June 26, and invasion needs both demanding considerable air time. Numerous top radio performers, however, already have left the air for the summer—several to go overseas and visit the troops—and the convention schedules call for an evening opening hour of 9 p. m. By that time most of the regular radio attractions are out of the way.

The major networks are bringing scores of reporters, commentators, editorialists, analysts, and other experts here to cover the convention. W-G-N and Mutual are planning to cover every newsworthy period of the sessions. All regular programs will be subject to cancellation or interruption.

Gov. Green to Speak.

A full hour welcome to the delegates will be broadcast exclusively over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Sunday night from the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, headquarters for the convention.

Gov. Green of Illinois will speak briefly, extending the hospitality of the state to the visitors. Other speakers will be Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican National committee, and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts. Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington commentator for Mutual, and other reporters will extend greetings to the delegates.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, with Henry Weber as conductor, will present a program of music. Other outstanding W-G-N singers and entertainers will contribute to this curtain raiser broadcast.

Plan Wire Record Tests.

The opening session of the convention is scheduled for 11:30 a. m. Monday, June 26, with Mr. Spangler calling the meeting to order and a formal welcome by Gov. Green. At 9 p. m. Monday Gov. Warren of California will deliver the keynote address. Rep. Martin, the permanent chairman, is expected to be heard at noon Tuesday, and Herbert Hoover and Rep. Clare Booth Luce at the Tuesday evening session.

W-G-N expects to have available five of the Armour magnetic wire recorders for recording the convention broadcasts. W-G-N besides testing the capabilities of the recorder for post-war broadcasting this experiment will make available the convention proceedings for playback over distant radio stations.

W. SIDE SCOUTS TRAIN LEADERS IN NEW SCHOOL

To meet increased demand for trained Boy Scout leaders caused by the current organization campaign on the west side, Scout officials have opened a leaders' training course in the Lawndale community in the Chicago Boys' club, 2801 S. Ridgeway av.

The class, which meets each Monday for the next three weeks, is open to all men interested in scouting. Harold Kopta, 2815 S. Avers av., is scoutmaster for the course; Frank Popper, 2748 S. Lawndale av., scribe, and Anthony Zurawski, 2536 S. Washtenaw av., quartermaster.

Steven Sendziak, 2654 W. 21st st., is chairman of the training committee.

HERZL TO OFFER SUMMER COURSE OF EIGHT WEEKS

Herzl Junior college, 2245 W. Jackson blvd., will offer an eight weeks' summer session this year from June 26 to Aug. 18, Harvey Klein, dean of the summer school and acting dean of the college, announced recently.

For students wishing to accelerate their college work before entering the army or navy, Herzl will grant a two year certificate to students attending one college year and two summer terms, Dean Klein said.

Teachers will be regular members of the college faculty. As much as nine semester hours of fully accredited work in a wide variety of subjects may be taken. Classes will meet daily from 7:55 a. m. to 1:05 p. m.

Post-War Transportation Is Review Stand Topic

"Post-War Transportation" will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 11 a. m. today. Ralph Budd, W. A. Patterson, Norman Damon, and Robert Black, all leaders in the field of transportation, will participate. They will analyze the nature of passenger and freight movements in post-war economy, methods of improving and increasing transportation facilities following the war, and changing conceptions of traffic control.

Dad's To Be Saluted.

In salute to Father's day the WENR-WCFL Amateur hour at 12:30 p. m. today will feature interviews with fathers of the young contestants.

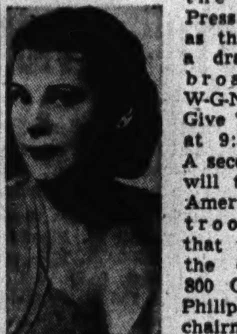
AIR PARATROOP STORY TONIGHT ON W-G-N SHOW



Patricia Dunlap.

A story of paratrooper action on D-day filed by Howard Cowan of the Associated Press will serve as the basis for a drama to be broadcast on W-G-N's They Give Their Lives at 9:30 tonight. A second episode will tell of an American glider troop mission that resulted in the capture of 800 Germans. Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the 5th war loan drive, and Patricia Dunlap of W-G-N's Crime Files of Flamond, will speak in behalf of the bond drive.

Father's Day Sketch on Green Valley Show

In observance of Father's day the story of a father whose was killed fighting the Japs will be dramatized on Green Valley, U. S. A., over W-G-N-Mutual at 4 p. m. today. J. Edward Bromberg, stage and screen actor, is to guest star in the sketch.

At Wishing Well

Mary Paxton, with Holland Engle, is shown dropping a penny into a Wishing Well. Miss Paxton recently completed her 1,300th Wishing Well broadcast on W-G-N. Show is heard at 8:45 a. m. weekdays.

AIR 'STARLIGHT INTERLUDE' ON THEATER OF AIR

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present a "Starlight Interlude" over W-G-N, WGNB and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening. Virginia Haskins, soprano, and Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the vocal soloists and Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N orchestra.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

The program will open with a group of songs from the east with Miss Haskins as soloist. Miss Haskins also will sing Delibes' "Maids of Cadiz," and with Mr. Foote, an aria from "Don Giovanni." Mr. Foote will sing "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser." A feature of the program will be selections from "Blossom Time."

West Side Royal League to Give Awards to Vets

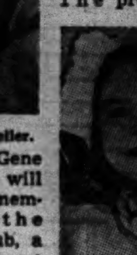
OFF-THE-STREET CLUB WILL GIVE MUSICAL FRIDAY

Marks West Side Group's 44th Anniversary.

The Off-the-Street club, 2413 Jackson blvd., will celebrate its 44th anniversary Friday evening with the presentation of a musical comedy, "Marching Along Together." The production, directed by Gene Esposito, 15, will be given by members of the Talent club, a group of west side youngsters, who furnish entertainment free for all patriotic or civic functions.

Marilynn Mueller.



Agnes Wilson.

Organized at the turn of the century, the first boys' and girls' club west of New York was born on the west side of Chicago to serve youth who at that time had little more to play in than alleys and streets. The Off-the-Street club has graduated some 100,000 boys and girls from its program and assumed the role of taking youngsters off the street and offering them recreation as well as education.

Show in Kimball Hall.

The club activities are in the physical education field for the most part, however they have an active program in crafts, music, aviation, dramatics, and the Talent club organized after the Pearl Harbor attack to band together the talented youngsters of the club who are too young for duty in military services. The Talent club has performed for the treasury department, the Red Cross, the U. S. O., and other organizations.

Participants in the show to be held at 8 o'clock in Kimball hall, will present acrobatics, novelty tap dances, and vocal selections.

Will Take Part in Show.

The group includes Lorraine Nowry, Nick Alvin, Fred Schiavo, Bob Schiavo, Rose Marie Alex, Dorothy Arnold, Janet Roussel, LaVone Foster, Phyllis Balata, Mickey Scalise, Helen Koseh, Jacqueline Swinney, Marion Jusko, Carmella Storinao, Agnes Wilson, Marillyn Mueller, Jill Mahoney, Norma Colbert, and Rosemary Fosco.

Auguste Mathieu has been the executive director of the club for the past 14 years. Officers include Maurice Rothschild, president; Charles Schattuck and Isaac Metcalf, vice presidents; Seward M. Davis, secretary; Hugh M. Driscoll, treasurer, and E. D. Wheeler, assistant treasurer. Chester Price is chairman of the finance committee.

NORTH OAK PARK WOMEN SPONSOR FLOWER EXHIBIT

The garden circle of the North Oak Park Woman's club will give a party and flower show Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. F. Henkel, 816 Woodbine av., Oak Park.

Following luncheon, ribbons will be awarded for exhibits in the flower show. Mrs. Mary R. Young, former vice president of the Mid-West Horticultural society and chairman of gardens of the 6th district, will read a group of garden poems.

Await War's End to Start Grand Av. Improvement

The final step in the preliminary planning for the post-war improvement of Grand av., from Navy pier to Cicero av., was completed when Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways, asked the Chicago Surface lines to program the removal of street car tracks from the street in favor of buses when work actually gets under way.

The request was made by letter at the direction of the city council committee on local transportation, headed by Ald. Quinn [50th].

The Grand av. project, first to be recommended by the new city engineering board of review, calls for the expenditure of $3,500,000 in the construction of a new bridge over the river, a new viaduct over the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks immediately west of the river, and new approaches from both the east and the west to the connected viaduct and bridge. New pavement from Sacramento blvd. west to Cicero av. also will be installed.

In a report recently submitted to the mayor by the engineering board it was pointed out that the street, despite its unsatisfactory condition, carries a heavy traffic flow. Money for the improvement for the most part is expected to come from the city's share of the motor fuel tax fund.

A Gasless Carriage Before Automobiles

C. M. Hogue, 5825 Augusta blvd., recently found a picture in the family scrapbook which shows the first "automobile" he and his brother, Burl Hogue of Sodus, Mich., owned when they were boys in Michigan. A steering gear was made from a pitchfork handle and the engine was 24 year old Maud, who pushed from the rear. Burl Hogue sits in the middle on the carriage's front seat.

W. SIDE ALBUM RECALLS EARLY 'ONE HOSS SHAY'

No Gasoline Worries in Those Days.

C. M. Hogue, 5825 Augusta blvd., and his brother, Burl, of Sodus, Mich., had the solution for a gasless carriage long before gasoline and tire rationing. A look thru an almost forgotten family scrapbook brought forth a snapshot of the boys' invention back in 1905 when the brothers' father decided they were too young for one of the new gasoline conveyances.

"It was really my brothers' invention," C. M. Hogue reminisced. "His and a boyhood pal, Leslie Hart, who now lives in Ios Angeles, Cal. I was a little too young to have a car of my own."

Using an old buggy the boys invented their own automobile which, except for the horsepower, wasn't much different from the first cars the neighbors were driving at the time.

Here's How They Did It.

Collecting an old saw, a hammer, a piece of rope, a pitchfork handle, and a pair of thills, the boys went to work on the buggy. They attached the thills to the rear of the buggy, chopped a hole in the floor of the buggy at the front, and fastened in the fork handle as a steering tiller, using a piece of rope to attach it to the front axle.

The horsepower was furnished by faithful Maud, the 24 year old family horse, who pushed from the rear. Perched on the front seat the boys yelled "giddap" to the horse behind and they were off—in "low gear."

"Old Maud provided steady power but was a little slow," Hogue reflected. "We were the envy of every boy in Sodus township. Automatic gear shifting is nothing new either. Maud settled down into the harness on the hills and up we went."

Everything went well, Hogue remembered, until the boys decided they wanted more horsepower. They persuaded their father to loan them a faster horse—one which did approximately 8 miles an hour—and that was when the automobile got out of control with several runaways on the part of the "engine."

Night Driving Provided Dangers.

Hogue has a vivid memory of the time his brother and pal tried night driving. They attached a lantern and reflector to the dashboard of the buggy and started out. They soon met a physician who was returning home from a call and the weird contraption with its headlight frightened the doctor's horse and the animal bolted into the ditch, overturning the buggy and spilling the doctor, his pills, and instruments all over the road.

"Boy, were we scared!" Hogue recalled. "We thought sure Doc would sue our folks but he was a good sport and laughed it off. That was the end of night driving, however."

The snapshot, a little faded with age, is all that is left of the "invention." Old Maud finally went to her deserved rest and the carriage, like most "one hoss shays," fell to pieces in time.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, June 19.

Do not neglect cultivating the vegetable garden, for on this may depend the success or failure of an entire crop. One has only to observe the fine crops that are raised without using artificial watering to realize that constant care in keeping down weeds and stirring the soil is about all that is necessary.

Grass clippings can be saved and utilized as a mulch, and can be used to great advantage to mulch the perennial border, for usually the border is so filled with roots and plants that adequate cultivation cannot be given.

Tuesday, June 20.

Thin the rows of plants that may be growing too close together. Give each plant its full share of room and it will produce. Never neglect the fight against insect pests, for if allowed to increase unchecked or without any attempt to reduce their numbers much injury to all the plants will result.

Roses are likely to be affected with mildew or black spot. Keep all old leaves removed and destroy them. Spray with triogen, which is a three way material. The aphid is a pest that may cover the tips of plants in a few days unless sprayed with a contact spray.

Wednesday, June 21.

Keep delphiniums well watered and cut the stems down after flowering. If there is indication of black blight, spray with a solution of one ounce of dry sulphur and ½ ounce of blackleaf 40 to two gallons of water. If spraying fails, destroy the infested plants.

Watch for the iris borer, which indicates its presence by soft and slimy leaves. Chrysanthemums may yet be planted. It is a good time to sow perennial seeds. Select a good, open spot in the garden; a coldframe is better. Rake to a fine seedbed and sow sparingly in rows.

Thursday, June 22.

Gardeners who find that chiggers annoy them may find relief if they will roll down their stockings to below the tops of their shoes and dust with sulphur. A perforated can is suitable for dusting.

A better display of flowers in the garden usually can be enjoyed if extra care is given to tying up all the plants needing it and this does not mean that tying should be confined to strong plants like the dahlias, peonies, delphiniums, and other tall plants.

Friday, June 23.

Lift and divide pyrethrum to have strong plants by fall. This flower is good for cutting or for the perennial border. Water spring planted shrubs abundantly so new roots will be formed in abundance. Shade newly transplanted material for a few days during hot weather.

Saturday, June 24.

You can lift many of the minor bulbs now and store in a dry place untill fall. These consist of the well known squills, grape hyacinth, crocus, snowdrop, calico flower or fritillaria, and snow on the mountain or chionodoxa.

DOWNERS GROVE, SCHOOL TO HOLD SUMMER CAMP

A summer day camp at Avery Coonley school in Downers Grove will start tomorrow and continue for six weeks. The camp will be for boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 10, but a group for younger children is possible if there is need for it.

Teacher to Direct Camp.

The school building, playgrounds adjoining the forest preserves, the rock pond, and other facilities of the school will be available for camp activities that will include outdoor games, outdoor dramatics, nature study, and swimming. Hours will be from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. on Mondays thru Fridays.

Bertha Stevens, author, scientist, and educator, who is a member of the school faculty, will be the summer camp's director. Shirley John, who assisted at the school this year and who has been awarded the senior life saving certificate from the American Red Cross, will serve as assistant.

The day camp will offer an opportunity for children of Downers Grove and neighboring communities to obtain specialized help in reading, spelling, and arithmetic.

School Has Guidance Department.

For children who may have difficulty with some of their school work there is provided the school's guidance department with its modern scientific equipment.

Announcement is made that those wishing to take advantage of the facilities of the guidance department should make special arrangements with Lucille Kaut, faculty member, who will direct the remedial work.

JUNE 18, 1944.

3,777 SENIORS WIN DIPLOMAS AT 10 SCHOOLS

Commencements to Be This Week.

Ten northwest side public high schools will hold their commencement exercises this week, three on Wednesday evening, and seven on Thursday evening, with diplomas going to 3,777 graduates. This figure is 277 under that for the June, 1943, graduating classes.

The war will be reflected in the commencement programs at most of the schools, with students discoursing on such topics as "The Individual's Responsibility for Winning the Peace," "Blueprints for Tomorrow," and a student symposium on "The Drama of Democracy." There will be the traditional class gifts, class prophecies, valedictories, and salutatories.

Classes Are Smaller.

All but three of the schools have smaller graduating classes this June than last year. Showing gains were Von Steuben, whose senior class rose from 277 last year to 331 this year; Tuley, with an increase from 323 to 367, and Roosevelt, with an increase from 324 to 342.

Following the city-wide trend, which showed a decrease from 15,104 students in 1943 to 13,407 this year, were the other seven schools. Lane Technical High school had 129 less graduates, 697 in this year's class against the 826 last year. Other schools have from 10 to 99 graduates less than last June. This year's figures were: Schurz, 582; Steinmetz, 462; Foreman, 271; Kelvyn Park, 252; Wells, 238, and Taft, 235.

Von Steuben Service Wednesday.

Von Steuben High school's commencement exercises will be held at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Roosevelt High school auditorium, 3436 Wilson av. Miss Varian M. Shea, principal, will address the graduates and present the diplomas. There will be a violin solo by Ronald Rothenberg, and a piano duo by Myron Schulz and Dawn Silleson.

Harold Allswang, class president, will give the welcoming address, and there will be short talks by Gladys Savitt, Mary Gottschalk, and Rachell Feder. The Symphonic choir, under direction of Charles Schell and Clare J. Thomas, will sing. Roland O. Marsh, assistant principal, and Marguerite Z. Rudd, class sponsor, will assist with the program.

George F. Cassell to Speak.

Commencement exercises for Steinmetz High school will be held Wednesday night at O'Hearn hall in the school, 3030 N. Mobile av., with George F. Cassell, assistant superintendent of schools, as the principal speaker. He will be introduced by Daniel F. O'Hearn, school principal. Musical numbers on the program will include the graduating chorus, directed by Miss Ruth Kilgour, and with Walter Kribs as accompanist and Vincent Becker as soloist; orchestral numbers under the direction of Willard L. Groom; a duo piano selection by Alice Jane Barr and Audrey Huettenrauch, and songs by the graduating class.

There will be speeches by Gordon Young, class president; Shirley Anderson, valedictorian; Corp. C. H. Duckworth, military instructor; Ralph Logar of Hilmar J. Behrentz Jr. American Legion post, and Gover C. Ramsey, assistant principal.

Foreman High Ceremony.

Foreman High school graduates will receive their diplomas in a ceremony to begin at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Lane Technical High school auditorium, Addison st. and Western av. Musical numbers will be presented by the Foreman choir, directed by Miss Helen Meek, and with Myrtle Raedeke as soloist, and by the Foreman orchestra, under the direction of Capt. Guy Reid. There will be brief speeches by Hoel Haase, salutatorian; Lois Sailor, valedictorian; John Kolimas, class president; Miss Catherine A. Ryan, principal; and Harry P. McHale, assistant principal.

Graduation exercises for Taft High school seniors will be held in the Steinmetz auditorium, 3030 N. Mobile av., at 8 p. m. Thursday. Dr. Leland H. Carlson of Northwestern university will speak on "The Issues of Life." There also will be speeches by Robert A. Moreau, salutatorian; Robert C. Forney, valedictorian; Louis J. Micjels, class president, and L. A. Hoefer, principal. Music will be furnished by the Taft symphony orchestra, conducted by John C. Rapier, and the mixed chorus, under direction of Helen B. Scanlon.

Tuley Exercises Thursday.

Exercises for Tuley High school graduates will be held in the school auditorium, 1313 N. Claremont av., Thursday evening. Leona Bobrzecki will give the valedictory address, Alfred Fleischman and Richard Schulman the hatchet orations, and Betty Rumney the class oration. Harold Blum will make the welcoming address, and Theana Brotsos will read an essay. There will be a violin solo by Bernard Resnik, accompanied by Edith Brooker, and selections by the girls' chorus. Diplomas will be presented by Hazel L. Stillman, principal.

Lane Technical High school commencement will be held in the school stadium, Addison st. and Western av., at 7:30 p. m. Thursday with Mayor Kelly making the principal address. Lane's combined band and orchestra, under the direction of Paul W. Schneider and Gardner P. Huff, will play. Edmund Sadowski will make the address of welcome, Ivan Sistar will present the

Des Plaines Minute Men Launch Bond Drive on First Night

With the principal effort of their 5th war loan drive concentrated in an hour's canvassing on the first night, Des Plaines minute men called on every home in town, seeking bond pledges. When Stephen McNamara called at the C. J. Overtoom residence, 584 Webford av., he found Mr. and Mrs. Overtoom ready to make their pledges for bonds that will help their small daughters, Linda Kay, 5 weeks old, and Judith Lee, 6, with their education. Mr. Overtoom is employed at the Buick Aviation plant.

When they had finished their calls, the volunteer minute men in Des Plaines checked in their pledges with the committee, located at the office of the Des Plaines Business Men's association in the old First National Bank building. Checking in, left to right, are Peter Mazurek, William O. Rathke, and Mrs. Albert Tosch, while Murray S. Smith, a member of the Des Plaines war finance committee, is behind the grill to receive the pledges.

A number of Des Plaines housewives joined the ranks of minute men last Monday night, calling on their neighbors to secure war bond pledges. Mrs. Savenna Gorsline, 1555 Thacker st., summoned her neighbor, Lawrence B. Kenny, 1554 Thacker st., so that she could sign him up for another bond. [TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]

IMPROVEMENT OF GRAND AV. IS POST-WAR PLAN

Bridge, Paving Cost Set at $3,500,000.

The final step in the preliminary planning for the post-war improvement of Grand av., from Navy pier to Cicero av., was completed when Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways, asked the Chicago Surface lines to program the removal of street car tracks from the street in favor of buses when work actually gets under way.

The request was made by letter at the direction of the city council committee on local transportation, headed by Ald. Quinn [50th].

The Grand av. project, first to be recommended by the new city engineering board of review, calls for the expenditure of $3,500,000 in the construction of a new bridge over the river, a new viaduct over the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks immediately west of the river, and new approaches from both the east and the west to the connected viaduct and bridge. New pavement from Sacramento blvd. west to Cicero av. also will be installed.

In a report recently submitted to the mayor by the engineering board it was pointed out that the street, despite its unsatisfactory condition, carries a heavy traffic flow. Money for the improvement for the most part is expected to come from the city's share of the motor fuel tax fund.

Bible School to Start at Des Plaines Tomorrow

The daily vacation bible school will convene at the Methodist church in Des Plaines tomorrow, for a 10 day session. All children of the church between 4 and 13 may attend. The Rev. Theodore Potter is pastor of the church and Miss Edith Goodyear is church school superintendent. The school will include, besides bible study classes, handwork, art, story telling, nature study, and supervised play.

SCHURZ HIGH SCHOOL MATES REUNITED IN SOUTH PACIFIC PLANE

Two former classmates at Schurz High school staged a reunion in the South Pacific recently. They were Lt. E. J. Becker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Becker, 3329 N. Karlov av., and Sgt. Robert Van der Hagen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Van der Hagen, 3351 N. Kilbourn av.

Lt. Becker.

Sgt. Van der Hagen.

The boys were chums when they attended Schurz, and now they man a Dauntless scout bomber out of a South Pacific base, with Lt. Becker as the marine pilot and Sgt. Van der Hagen as gunner.

Lt. Becker is engaged to Miss Dolores Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cummings, 3411 Milwaukee av., a WAVE now stationed at Glenview. Sgt. Van der Hagen's fiance is Miss Anne Fahrberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fahrberger, 3432 N. Kolmar av. All were classmates at Schurz.

FOUR N. W. GIRLS NAMED TO POSTS AT WEST SIDE 'Y'

The Monday Business Girls club of west side center Y. W. C. A. has announced the appointment of four northwest Chicago members to posts. Lorraine Heinrich, 4912 N. Hamlin av., was named secretary-treasurer; Shirley Niemann, 4939 N. Pulaski rd., will represent the club at the city-wide council of Y. W. C. A. business girls, and Dorothy McKinnon, 3508 N. Springfield av., and Shirley Betcher, 3705 W. Addison st., will be representatives to the business and professional committee of west side center Y. W. C. A.

OLE, HILDA, SVEN, THE AIR HAS AN ODOR OF HERRING

Svithiod Outing Is Set for Next Sunday.

More than 25,000 persons are expected to attend the annual Svithiod day outing next Sunday at St. Paul park, Morton Grove. Sponsored by the 48 Svithiod lodges in Illinois, the day's program will feature entertainment in which more than 150 people will participate.

The serving of a Sil Frukost, Swedish herring breakfast, at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, to the accompaniment of suitable music, will open the day's events. At noon a two hour band concert by the Svithiod concert band will begin.

The afternoon program will begin at 2 o'clock, with a parade, drum and bugle corps exhibition, a baton twirling show, and a flag raising ceremony in which the combined musical groups will participate.

Singing Club on Program.

Included on the afternoon program will be choral singing by the 50 voice Svithiod Singing club, under direction of Knute Hansen, music by the 30 piece Svithiod concert band directed by Fred Moyer, and an overture by the 50 piece Svithiod drum and bugle corps, led by Robert Olson. In addition to group members, there will be trios, duets, and solos in a variety of vocal, instrumental, and dance numbers.

Lt. Col. Lauris M. Eek of the army air forces will be the principal speaker. The afternoon's program will also include a number of sports events.

Offer Choral, Band Music.

The evening program, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, will include choral and band music, and novelty numbers. There will be dancing at both afternoon and evening sessions. In event of postponement on account of rain, the outing will be held July 2 at the same place, with the same program.

Bernard Johnson is serving as general chairman of the outing committee. Assisting him are Gustaf E. Johnson and Joseph Sholin, vice chairmen; Lillian Pedersen, secretary, and Knut J. F. Johnson, treasurer. Chairmen from northwest side Svithiod lodges include Harriet Collin, Peter Bostrom, Ebba Carlson, Andrew A. Anderson, and Myrtle Anderson.

Des Plaines Clinic.

The monthly clinic sponsored by the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook county will be held at 1561 Ellinwood av., Des Plaines, from 10 a. m. to noon tomorrow.

Chicago Youth Join Forces for Paper Pickup Saturday

Chicago's school boys and girls hope to chalk up another waste paper record for the summer months as they swing into a city wide program beginning Saturday with the second city curb collection of paper.

With school doors closing for the summer, boys and girls will direct their paper collecting efforts toward three city wide drives during June, July, and August, working thru the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and other youth groups. Their goal for Saturday has been set at 3,000 tons. A total of 2,700 tons was collected at the first city wide curb pickup on Jan. 15, directed by the Chicago waste paper campaign committee under the auspices of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association.

50,000 Push Drive.

Fifty thousand youth organization members are working with the Chicago waste paper campaign committee in mapping out this week's collection. These are the same boys and girls who since January have helped haul 38,669,538 pounds of paper to their individual schools where it was sold. The money realized, $209,960.67, went to the various school funds.

More than 2,500 Boy Scouts will man the 500 trucks which will pick up waste paper in each of the city wards.

To Teach Bundle Tieing.

Another 17,000 Boy Scouts, 8,000 Girl Scouts, and 5,000 Camp Fire Girls will be in the bell ringing brigades. Members of the various boys' clubs in the city, the junior B'nai B'rith groups, and the junior victory army also will be among the solicitors.

In addition to soliciting paper from every householder this week, the boys and girls will instruct them on how to tie their bundles, and on Saturday will assist the trucks by assembling bundles where possible in the center of the various blocks.

Housewives, too, will join the drive. Under the direction of Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, OCD fats salvage director, housewives will deliver 800,000 circulars this week explaining the drive.

Help Direct Campaign.

The pickup will be under the management of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee with William L. McFetridge as general chairman, and W. H. Bennett, chairman of pickup arrangements. The other two pickups for this summer are scheduled on July 22 and Aug. 19.

Members of the executive committee directing the northwest side groups in the summer drives are J. Sinclaire Armstrong, 2337 Commonwealth av., Boy Scouts; Mrs. George Ziegler, 5813 N. Sacramento av., and Charlotte Becker, 829 Waveland av., Girl Scouts.

HOLD JEFFERSON PARK JUVENILE OLYMPICS TODAY

The Nor'Wes'Ton junior olympics, for the Jefferson park district, will begin at 10 a. m. today in the Jefferson park athletic field, Long av. and Higgins rd. This event is sponsored by the Nor'Wes'Ton congress and its affiliate organizations, with the coöperation of the Chicago park district. There will be no admission charge or entry fee.

Vincent C. Rozycki is general chairman, and Joseph Winkates is co-chairman. Emil Meier is serving as grounds chairman and official starter; Louis Skulski as timer, and Amedee Caboor, Gustave Reich, Charles Porter, John Kerr, J. C. Elliott, Edward Johnson, C. J. Koerper, L. E. Horak, Daniel Campbell, Arthur Lenzini, and Edward Goetz as judges, entry clerks, and weighers.

Ernest Vogt of Gladstone post will be chairman of the Americanism day program this afternoon. He will be assisted by Frank Radde, Edward Johnson, C. J. Koerper, William Wurzbacher, and John Stieber. Invocation will be by Earl Cooper, the Scout program is to be directed by W. W. Luedtke, and Ray Wilkins is in charge of entertainment.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

E. J. Trawle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trawle, 2928 N. Oak Park av., has been promoted to captain. Stationed at Westover field, Mass., Capt. Trawle is a weather officer. A graduate of St. Michael's High school, he entered the army as a private in October, 1940, receiving his preliminary training at Chanute field. His wife, the former Corrinne Michaud, is with him at Westover.

Capt. Trawle.

Newly assigned chief of the purchasing and contract branch at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., is Lt. Henry Spitzner, 2214 N. Drake av. Lt. Spitzner, who entered the army as an enlisted man in June, 1942, previously was employed by the City National bank and the Commercial Credit company. He was commissioned last May at the army administration school, Fargo, N. D.

The good conduct medal was presented recently to Corp. Richard D. Folfas, 4018 N. Albany av., who is serving at an 8th air force station in England.

FAST PACE SET BY MINUTE MEN IN DES PLAINES

Pledges Total 500 in Hour Drive.

Des Plaines residents were typical of men and women hruout the Chicago area this week as their interests became focused on the 5th war loan drive. Under direction of the Des Plaines war finance committee, with Russell L. Peters as chairman, more than 500 minute men canvassed the village between 7 and 8 Monday evening, giving all wage earners the opportunity to pledge purchase of additional war bonds.

Russell L. Peters.

This concentrated drive met with encouraging success, according to committee members. More than 100 Minute Men turned more than 500 pledges during the evening and other Minute Men reported extra pledges to swell the total. Committee members are optimistic that the village will exceed its quota of $575,000. In the 4th war loan drive residents nearly doubled their quota, and the village has been commended as one of the six best towns in Illinois for the last four drives.

Assistants Named.

The committee announced that, after the first two days of the current drive, E bond pledges exceeded by 20 per cent the total E bond pledges made during the entire 30 day periods of previous drives.

Assisting Mr. Peters on the Des Plaines committee are S. F. Webster, vice chairman; R. Douglas Duthie, A. L. Webster, J. R. Lawrence, Walter Merriam, T. J. Montgomery, Stephen McNamara, Don

SHEAHAN DRAWS THREE N. W. SIDE MEN IN PACIFIC

Artist Sketches Trio at Outposts.

Among the portrait sketches of service men made by Gary Sheahan, Tribune staff artist, during his trip to the Southwest Pacific, were those of three northwest siders. They are Pvt. Manuel Illion, 3534 Palmer st.; John Hayes, naval aviation machinist first class, 6232 N. Mozart st.; and Edmund S. Osuch of the amphibious engineers, 4241 N. Mozart st.

Pvt. Illion, who has been in the Pacific for the last two years, was "at ease" in the jungle when Sheahan happened to pass by with his sketch pad. "I was sitting there relaxed with the chin strap of my helmet left open," he wrote in a recent letter to his sister, Evelyn Illion, describing the circumstances. He also urged her to "keep her eye peeled" for the sketch when it appeared and to send him a copy of it.

Hayes on Second Cruise.

A member of the army engineers, Pvt. Illion was inducted Dec. 8, 1941. Before being transferred overseas, he was stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and at San Luis Obispo, Cal. He is a graduate of Crane Technical High school, and was employed by the Cragin Belt railroad before entering service.

John Hayes, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Hayes of the Mozart st. address, was on his second cruise in the South Pacific when Artist Sheahan sketched him. THIRD OF TAFT HIGH STUDENTS ARE EMPLOYED

L. A. Hoefer, principal of Taft High school, last week announced results of an all-school part time work survey conducted by Mrs. Mary H. Farrell, placement counselor, during April. Lester J. Schloerb, director of the bureau of occupational research of the Chicago board of education, also released figures which show comparisons between Taft and other high schools.

The survey shows that 712, or 36 per cent, of the Taft student body are working part time. There are 40,847 students in the entire city who are employed, representing 38 per cent of the high school enrollment.

Only 48 Unemployed.

It is estimated that 635 students attending Taft are 16 years old or over. Of this number, 509 are employed, and 78 assume responsibilities at home after school, leaving only 48 students unemployed.

A total of 211 students must assume home responsibilities because both parents are working. This brings to 923, or 47 per cent, the Taft students working. The all-city total is approximately one per cent lower.

Some Work Too Long.

There are 52 students at Taft who work more than 28 hours a week. On the recommendation of the war man power commission, shortening of hours has been urged since long work hours and a full school program are believed too heavy for the student.

Of the students not now working, 536 under 16 years and 267 over 16 will take summer jobs. Added to the 712 already employed, the total working this summer will reach 1,515, approximately 80 per cent of the student body. Included in the remaining 20 per cent are many with home responsibilities.

Wages Average 53 Cents.

Average hourly wage for high school students is 53 cents, an increase of 7 cents over the average disclosed in a survey made in October, 1943. Largest percentage of students working in any class is in 4-A, where 70 per cent is employed, averaging 21 hours a week at 56 cents an hour.

Mrs. Farrell, placement counselor for Taft, is acting as liaison between students seeking work and factories in the community. Government agencies are contributing, thru dissemination of information on child labor laws, work permits, and in setting up part time programs for industries.

Men's Club Picnic.

The Men's club of the Washington Boulevard temple will hold its annual picnic this afternoon at Eldorado park, 7325 W. Pershing av.,

TWO DES PLAINES YOUTHS WILL GO TO STATE CAMPS

Boys', Girls' State to Open Wednesday.

Marjorie Fullmer and Dick Funk will represent the Des Plaines American Legion auxiliary and the Legion post, respectively, at the annual Girls' State and Boys' State camps this week and next at Jacksonville, Ill. The camp is operated by the Illinois department of the American Legion and auxiliary.

Marjorie Fullmer.

Dick Funk.

Mrs. C. L. Safford is the Americanization chairman for the auxiliary unit, and Einar J. Anderson is the Boys' State chairman for the post. All expenses connected with the week's camps will be assumed by these two organizations.

Travel in Special Coach.

Marjorie and Dick will leave for Jacksonville on Wednesday with several students from the Chicago area, traveling in a special coach on the Alton railroad. These two students from Maine Township High school were selected by their classmates from among 60 of the highest ranking students in American history at the school.

The girls' camp will be held on the campus of MacMurray college, and the boys' camp in the dormitories of the State School for the Deaf. The camps close June 28. Both encampments are conducted to train young men and women in constructive attitudes toward the American form of government, and in effective participation in the operation of that government. This is the tenth boys' camp, and the fifth for the girls.

Active in School Affairs.

Marjorie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fullmer. She has been active in many extracurricular activities while at Maine, becoming a member of the chemistry, math, camera, riding, senior '44, and historical clubs. She has also been a representative to the student council, and last year was president of the girls' athletic association.

She has been a senior Girl Scout, and an active member of the Epworth league and the senior choir at the First Methodist church. She has also served as Americanization chairman and historian of the juniors, sponsored by the Des Plaines American Legion auxiliary unit. Marjorie was graduated from Maine on June 8 with a "B" average.

Captains Basketball Team.

Dick, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Funk, has won recognition in athletic and scholastic fields at Maine High. This year he captained the lightweight varsity basketball team. He was vice president of his home room during his freshman and sophomore years, and is president this year, as well as vice president of his junior class. He has been elected president of his graduating class for next year.

This year he was a history honor, and tied for second place in the all-school American history quiz given annually by the Park Ridge D. A. R. chapter. He was one of 10 finalists in the annual American Legion constitutional contest sponsored by the Mel Tierney post of Park Ridge. Recently he was elected to the national honor society.

EXPECTANT DADS CAN RELAX NOW WHILE ON ALERT

BY MAURINE MYERS.

After today, pacing the floor will be done with more luxury and privacy by expectant fathers at Norwegian-American hospital, 1004 N. Francisco av. For today, on Father's day, the new waiting room for fathers, furnished and decorated by the women's auxiliary to the medical board of the hospital, will be dedicated.

The auxiliary decided some time ago to do something for the "forgotten man," who traditionally strides up and down hospital corridors leaving a trail of half smoked cigarets. A committee, comprised of Mrs. Ralph H. Warden, auxiliary president; Mrs. O. E. Venekiasen, and Mrs. R. C. Williams, was delegated to look into the matter.

Cook Books Help Cause.

Money was raised thru the sale of cook books, compiled of the choice receipes from auxiliary members. The cook book committee included Mrs. C. M. Culver, Mrs. M. S. Corbett, Mrs. Cyril Hale, Mrs. F. M. Nicholson, and Mrs. John M. Pedersen under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph Basile, chairman, and Mrs. H. F. Weller, co-chairman.

The book was edited, sprinkled with sayings of gourmets thru the ages, and printed between attractive covers. It met with a wide sale and money for the project was assured.

Birth Rate Mounts.

The room the auxiliary will dedicate today is furnished with chairs of natural walnut, upholstered in red leatheret, and a davenport in green leatheret. There are writing and lamp tables conveniently placed, and magazines and books in abundance. The walls, done in beige and brown, are decorated with pictures of dogs. Green corduroy drapes rang at the windows.

Last month more than 500 babies were born at Norwegian-American hospital. During 1942 and 1943 the figure reached 2,998. The auxiliary, reading predictions that the birth rate will rise still higher, anticipates that their expectant fathers' room will be much in use in the months to come.

Berry Memorial Church Choirs to Give Program

A program of religious and secular music will be presented at 4:30 p. m. today by the four choirs of Berry Memorial Methodist church, Giddings and N. Leavitt sts., under the leadership of Mrs. Mary Frances Eldredge and Mrs. Margaret Borchers Heim. The Rev. William H. Evans is pastor of the church.

The bridegroom was graduated from Salinas Junior college, and from the navy school of music in Washington, D. C.

WAR LOAN DRIVE HITS FAST PACE IN DES PLAINES

Over 500 Pledges Are Reported in Hour.

Corby, Murray S. Smith, and Donald Hevner.

As the fifth war loan drive in Chicago and Cook county completed its first week, scattered reports from the 16,740 blocks and 86 suburban communities indicated a definite wedge has been made in the quota of $894,014,000 which has been given Cook county.

The second block to report in the city-wide campaign was that under the leadership of Charles Lang, 5713 N. Central av., wherein 30 families purchased 35 bonds totaling $20,475. This was nearly twice the quota of $10,800. Other first day leaders included: James Bubna, 5221 Wellington av., with sales of $9,434 against a quota of $7,965, and Mrs. Hazel Mann, 5646 N. Christiana av., with $43,987 in sales against a block quota of $40,800.

In Arlington Heights, D-day spurred volunteer workers in the war loan drive. J. Fred Meyer and C. H. Mills, assisted by 30 men from the agricultural area surrounding the village, are canvassing farm communities. Fred Gieseke Sr. is in charge of the campaign among business men.

Potter in Charge.

Frank Potter, chairman of the Park Ridge war finance committee, is in charge of the drive there.

One of the most important phases of the country's 5th war loan drive is spearheaded by the trade and industries division, which is charged with soliciting employes and executives of approximately 1,600 companies employing 100 or more persons, and having a pay roll savings plan in operation. These 1,600 concerns are classified in 51 trades and industry groups, with a prominent executive from each trade group serving as chairman.

Since manufacturing concerns are scattered thruout the city, every community's quota is reflected by the purchases made thru these groups. All such sales are credited to the block in which the purchaser resides, thru the new device designed especially for this drive by Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the 5th war loan drive for Chicago and Cook county.

Thru this method, every block's achievement is reflected on a block thermometer, which, before the drive's end, will be brought to every block resident's attention.

His First Birthday

SEEK ADDITIONAL SCOUTING UNITS IN N. W. DISTRICT

Boy Scout officials of the Northwest community, one of five in Douglas district, are conducting a drive to organize additional troops.

ROBERG FAMILY SENDS 4 MAJORS, CAPTAIN TO WAR

Four majors and one captain, all doctors, have gone from the Roberg family to serve in this and the last World war. Dr. and Mrs. O. S. Roberg Sr., 3812 N. Keeler av., were informed recently that their two sons, now in the army medical corps, have been promoted to major. Both sons left medical practices on the northwest side to enter the army.

One son, Maj. O. T. Roberg Jr., chief of general surgery at the Bruns General hospital, Santa Fe, N. M., has been in the army two years. The other, Maj. Norman Bridge Roberg, is second in command of the medical division stationed at Amarillo, Tex., and has been in the service a year and a half.

Dr. Roberg Sr., who has been chief of staff of Swedish Covenant hospital for 42 years, reached the rank of major during World War I. His brothers, also physicians, were Maj. Fred Roberg and Capt. David Roberg.

Northwest Women.

The Northwest Women's Improvement and Social club will hold a luncheon at noon tomorrow, in the Home Arts Guild, 205 N. Michigan av.

INVASION, G. O. P. CONVENTION TO KEEP RADIO BUSY

W-G-N Plans Full Hour Welcome Program.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Regular radio program schedules are likely to be upset considerably next week with the Republican convention, which opens June 26, and invasion needs both demanding considerable air time. Numerous top radio performers, however, already have left the air for the summer—several to go overseas and visit the troops—and the convention schedules call for an evening opening hour of 9 p. m. By that time most of the regular radio attractions are out of the way.

The major networks are bringing scores of reporters, commentators, editorialists, analysts, and other experts here to cover the convention. W-G-N and Mutual are planning to cover every newsworthy period of the sessions. All regular programs will be subject to cancellation or interruption.

Gov. Green to Speak.

A full hour welcome to the delegates will be broadcast exclusively over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Sunday night from the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, headquarters for the convention.

Gov. Green of Illinois will speak briefly, extending the hospitality of the state to the visitors. Other speakers will be Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican National committee, and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts. Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington commentator for Mutual, and other reporters will extend greetings to the delegates.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, with Henry Weber as conductor, will present a program of music. Other outstanding W-G-N singers and entertainers will contribute to this curtain raiser broadcast.

Plan Wire Record Tests.

The opening session of the convention is scheduled for 11:30 a. m. Monday, June 26, with Mr. Spangler calling the meeting to order and a formal welcome by Gov. Green. At 9 p. m. Monday Gov. Warren of California will deliver the keynote address. Rep. Martin, the permanent chairman, is expected to be heard at noon Tuesday, and Herbert Hoover and Rep. Clare Booth Luce at the Tuesday evening session.

W-G-N expects to have available five of the Armour magnetic wire recorders for recording the convention broadcasts. W-G-N besides testing the capabilities of the recorder for post-war broadcasting this experiment will make available the convention proceedings for playback over distant radio stations.

HOUR OF CHARM FINALISTS TO BE NAMED TONIGHT

Phil Spitalny, conductor on the Hour of Charm program aired at 9 p. m. Sundays over WMAQ-NBC, tonight will name Marie Rogndahl of Portland, Ore., Monica Mais of the Island of Jamaica, and Gloria Halliday of Baltimore, Md., as the program's voice audition finalists. They are to appear on next week's show. Ten thousand young women tried for a spot in the finalist group. Music devoted to June brides will be offered by the all-girl orchestra tonight.

NBC Orchestra Plays 5 Symphony Movements

Five well known movements from five famous symphonies will be played by the NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Frank Black, over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The first movement from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," the second movement from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5 in E minor, the third movement from Mozart's Symphony in G minor, the second movement from Franck's Symphony in D minor, and the fourth movement from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 in E minor will constitute today's Symphony of the Air hour program.

At Wishing Well

Mary Paxton, with Holland Engle, is shown dropping a penny into a Wishing Well. Miss Paxton recently completed her 1,300th Wishing Well broadcast on W-G-N. Show is heard at 8:45 a. m. weekdays.

AIR PARATROOP STORY TONIGHT ON W-G-N SHOW

A story of paratrooper action on D-day filed by Howard Cowan of the Associated Press will serve as the basis for a drama to be broadcast on W-G-N's They Give Their Lives at 9:30 tonight. A second episode will tell of an American glider troop mission that resulted in the capture of 800 Germans. Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the 5th war loan drive, and Patricia Dunlap of W-G-N's Crime Files of Flamond, will speak in behalf of the bond drive.

Patricia Dunlap.

AIR 'STARLIGHT INTERLUDE' ON THEATER OF AIR

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present a "Starlight Interlude" over W-G-N, WGNB and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening. Virginia Haskins, soprano, and Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the vocal soloists and Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N orchestra.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Chicago Tribune, will speak.

The program will open with a group of songs from the east with Miss Haskins as soloist. Miss Haskins also will sing Delibes' "Maids of Cadiz," and with Mr. Foote, an aria from "Don Giovanni." Mr. Foote will sing "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser." A feature of the program will be selections from "Blossom Time."

Post-War Transportation Is Review Stand Topic

"Post-War Transportation" will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 11 a. m. today. Ralph Budd, W. A. Patterson, Norman Damon, and Robert Black, all leaders in the field of transportation, will participate. They will analyze the nature of passenger and freight movements in post-war economy, methods of improving and increasing transportation facilities following the war, and changing conceptions of traffic control.

Father's Day Sketch on Green Valley Show

In observance of Father's day the story of a father whose was killed fighting the Japs will be dramatized on Green Valley, U. S. A., over W-G-N-Mutual at 4 p. m. today. J. Edward Bromberg, stage and screen actor, is to guest star in the sketch.

MARINES MEET MAIN FOE DAILY—IT'S CORNED BEEF

BY STAFF SGT. WARD WALKER.

[Marine combat correspondent on leave from The Chicago Tribune.]

CAPE GLOUCESTER, NEW BRITAIN [Delayed].—One of the most deadly snares for the men in this war is corned beef. The other day Sgt. Vernon C. Stimpel, 24, 3539 N. Hamilton av., and I met in the chow line and the conversation inevitably worked its way to corned beef, or corned willie, if you prefer.

Vern and I had met a couple of weeks before on a PT boat mission into enemy territory. We'd had more pressing things to talk about that night. But right now corned beef held the floor.

"It's funny, too," he observed, "I used to like corned beef. As a matter of fact I don't even mind it so much now when I can recognize it and brace myself for it. It's when it jumps out at you from different sized patties, kind of sneaks up on you—"

One Recalls Pork Chops.

"For breakfast it isn't so bad," said another sergeant who had joined the chow line. "For lunch, and even for dinner, I can stand it. That's the first week. But when that same diet runs for three weeks, I get the willies."

We all winced, whether at the thought of corned willie for 21 straight meals or at the pun, I don't know. Some Pollyanna in the line mentioned there had been pork chops at one meal, not so long ago. He was silenced with a look: This was a "beef" session.

The chow line moved slowly forward. The main dish was hidden under an appetizing brown crust. We all pretended not to notice the filling until we sat down.

It's Beef Again.

Vern tentatively poked with his fork. Jumped as if he'd been stung. "It is," he whispered. "Why, O, why, do they have to hide it? Are the cooks ashamed? Don't they think it's strong enough to stand on its own feet and face the world?"

A stocky marine, Pvt. Charles B. Hansford, 26, 4824 St. Paul av., joined the group, bellowing, "I like corned beef! It's good! It's good for me!"

We looked at him sadly. "It must be the heat," some one said.

Hansford, who was also on the PT excursion, used to be a foreman for the Mars Candy company.

"Just think of all those creamy, delicious, mouth watering—" he started.

"Knock it off," I warned him. "There's no room for commercials in this column. Besides we're just finishing a corned beef dinner."

"Wonder if my wife, Flora, could get a box out to me?" Hansford suggested. We all agreed he should try, altho the bars would probably be one mouldy mass by the time they'd crossed the equator.

By that time our mess gears were empty and we wandered off, ending the corned beef discussion for the day.

A day or two later I wandered into a tent area housing an army radio unit temporarily assigned to the marines. There were three Chicagolanders in the group, engaged in a variety of activities.

Sweeps Dirt Decks.

Sgt. Emerson Mitchell, 35, of 321 N. Laurel av., an army air force radio operator, was sweeping the dirt deck of his tent, a seemingly useless operation indulged in at the behest of first sergeants.

Sgt. Francis L. Brout, 23, of Oak Park, another radio operator, was shaving out of his helmet with his mirror propped against a tree limb.

And Capt. Clarence M. Berry, 43, who used to clerk in the postoffice at 3334 Lincoln av., was taking an after lunch snooze in his tent. He is in charge of the unit.

The three helped to set up their unit soon after the marines consolidated their positions on the air field, and have maintained liaison between the marines and the army air force.

Dad's To Be Saluted.

In salute to Father's day the WENR-WCFL Amateur hour at 12:30 p. m. today will feature interviews with fathers of the young contestants.

N. W. SIDERS HELP IN FUND DRIVE OF SALVATION ARMY

Appoint 9 Colonels for Doughnut Day.

Nine northwest side women will serve as volunteer colonels for the Salvation Army in its Doughnut day drive Tuesday in Chicago and suburbs, Mrs. Charles S. Clarke, president of the women's division, said.

Working under each colonel will be 10 captains, each of whom will supervise taggers in their neighborhoods. The women, all volunteers, will stand at street corners selling doughnuts to passersby. All proceeds will go toward helping the Salvation Army to help others.

Army Helps Unfortunate.

The Salvation Army is dedicated to caring for the unfortunate thru its social service institutions. Among the army's institutions in Chicago are the Women's home and hospital, 5040 N. Pulaski rd., which affords pre-natal and post-natal care for unwed mothers and wives of service men; the Settlement and Day nursery, 3053 S. Normal av.; a medical and dental clinic, 426 Wisconsin st., and a women's and children's emergency lodge, 426 Wisconsin st.

The Salvation Army also serves the allied fighting men on war fronts thruout the world, offering refreshments and spiritual guidance.

List Colonels.

Northwest side women who will act as colonels in Tuesday's campaign include Mrs. Clara How, 2728 N. Francisco av.; Mrs. J. K. Jensen, 4837 N. Bernard st.; Mrs. Loretta Lynge, 1626 N. Talman av.; Mrs. Francis Nystrom, 3913 N. Kenneth av.

Mrs. George E. Olson, 4333 N. Kedvale av.; Mrs. R. T. Schuettge, 705 Fairview av., Park Ridge; Mrs. Marie Swideck, 3007 N. Keating av.; Mrs. James Wax, 111 Louis av., Mount Prospect., and Mrs. Lillian Webb, 3552 Dickens av.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, June 19.

Do not neglect cultivating the vegetable garden, for on this may depend the success or failure of an entire crop. One has only to observe the fine crops that are raised without using artificial watering to realize that constant care in keeping down weeds and stirring the soil is about all that is necessary.

Grass clippings can be saved and utilized as a mulch, and can be used to great advantage to mulch the perennial border, for usually the border is so filled with roots and plants that adequate cultivation cannot be given.

Mulch spring planted shrubs, vines, and trees. Water can be applied thru the mulching materials. Keep all beds edged with a sharp spade or edging tool.

Tuesday, June 20.

Thin the rows of plants that may be growing too close together. Give each plant its full share of room and it will produce. Never neglect the fight against insect pests, for if allowed to increase unchecked or without any attempt to reduce their numbers much injury to all the plants will result.

Roses are likely to be affected with mildew or black spot. Keep all old leaves removed and destroy them. Spray with triogen, which is a three way material. The aphid is a pest that may cover the tips of plants in a few days unless sprayed with a contact spray.

Wednesday, June 21.

Keep delphiniums well watered and cut the stems down after flowering. If there is indication of black blight, spray with a solution of one ounce of dry sulphur and ½ ounce of blackleaf 40 to two gallons of water. If spraying fails, destroy the infested plants.

Watch for the iris borer, which indicates its presence by soft and slimy leaves. Chrysanthemums may yet be planted. It is a good time to sow perennial seeds. Select a good, open spot in the garden; a coldframe is better. Rake to a fine seedbed and sow sparingly in rows.

Thursday, June 22.

Gardeners who find that chiggers annoy them may find relief if they will roll down their stockings to below the tops of their shoes and dust with sulphur. A perforated can is suitable for dusting.

A better display of flowers in the garden usually can be enjoyed if extra care is given to tying up all the plants needing it and this does not mean that tying should be confined to strong plants like the dahlias, peonies, delphiniums, and other tall plants.

Friday, June 23.

Lift and divide pyrethrum to have strong plants by fall. This flower is good for cutting or for the perennial border. Water spring planted shrubs abundantly so new roots will be formed in abundance. Shade newly transplanted material for a few days during hot weather.

When cutting material for bouquets, do the job during early morning and plunge the stems at once in deep cool water. Change water each morning. Make the cuts long and slanting for heavy stems.

Saturday, June 24.

You can lift many of the minor bulbs now and store in a dry place until fall. These consist of the well known squills, grape hyacinth, crocus, snowdrop, calico flower or fritillaria, and snow on the mountain or chionodoxa.

The long known and brilliant sun plant or portulaca can yet be sown. It thrives in the hottest place and furnishes an abundance of brilliant flowers in early morning. Try a few in a bright, sunny spot.

Win Salvation Army Commissions

Three northwest side residents were commissioned officers of the Salvation Army last week at ceremonies held in Orchestra hall. Completing the training they started last September were Alvin Nelson, left, 3725 N. St. Louis av.; Margaret Ander, center, 3004 N. Cicero av., and Ethel Slayden, 1634 N. Kedzie av.

HERE'S HOW ONE GROCER SOLVES HELP SHORTAGE

Spindles, Bills Prove a Boon Now.

BY PHYLLIS FORD.

John Scholl has solved the help shortage problem in his grocery at Brompton av. and Halsted st., where customers wait on themselves, write out their own order slips, put them on a spindle, and then settle the bill at the end of the week.

"I had to give up my regular delivery service some time ago," he said, "and now my customers just come in, pick out what they want, leave a note, and go out with their order."

Has Had Store for 20 Years.

Scholl is a tall, stoop shouldered, friendly man of 48 who wears a grocer's smock, a white apron, and a cap while at work. He has had the store for 20 years and estimates he knows nine-tenths of his customers by name. They call him John, discuss personal problems, and give him messages to pass on to their friends.

His help now are boys who come in after school and arrange the stock on the shelves. "I open at 7 in the morning and close at 7 at night. Then, on Friday nights I stay late and total the accounts," John said.

Shop Has Informal Air.

His shop has the informal air of a general store in a small country town. Racks of toothbrushes are displayed beside boxes of soap and raisins, and packets of rouge are wedged on the shelves between cans of soup and corn. At either end are a coal stove and a gas burner, painted aluminnum.

The way his sales system works was shown by the customers who came in on a recent afternoon. A woman in a denim slack suit with a dog on a leash picked out some cans of vegetables and some tomatoes from behind a counter. Since John wasn't particularly busy at the time he wrote down the order, starting a converstation with "How's the baby?"

Chats with Customers.

As more people came in, he wrapped such things as asparagus or lettuce, handed out sacks and chatted for a minute with those who put their notes on the spindle.

"My customers stick with me," John said. "Some of them I helped thru the depression, and they don't forget."

He is of German-Irish descent and worked in cigar stores before he opened his grocery. "I'm here so much of the time I'm almost a stranger in my own neighborhood," he said. He lives at 3140 Mango av. "A lot of people say I'm foolish for running my business this way, but it gets to be a habit, and besides, I like it better."

TWO NEW SCOUT TROOPS RECEIVE THEIR CHARTERS

Two new Scout troops recently received their charters. A cub pack sponsored by the Watson Park Congregational church, Cornelia and Narragansett avs., received its charter from Elmer Lenk, 5446 Addison st., assistant district commissioner.

Henry May, 6109 Eddy st., was appointed Cubmaster of the pack and K. W. Haverlah, 6245 Cornelia av., was made chairman of the pack committee.

An Air Scout squadron received its charter from Mervin Lescure, 6860 Forest Glen av., assistant district commissioner, at Albany Park Hebrew Congregation, 4601 N. Lawndale av.

HOUSE EXTERIOR REPAIR FOLLOWS WINTER'S WEAR

Now Is Time to Check Roof, Chimney.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Right now is an excellent time to check on the condition of the roof. Spring rains may reveal some weak spots in the house tops, spots which have weathered a long winter. If there are any missing or damaged shingles, have them replaced and the loose ones nailed firmly.

Chimneys, flashings, and all masonry work should be thoroly inspected, as these points are as open to leakage as damaged shingles and often can affect the interior surfacings of walls and trim if allowed to go unrepaired.

Asbestos Shingles Available.

One excellent type of roofing available and on the noncritical list is an asbestos cement shingle. If any part of a roof is really in need of repair, a roof can be re-covered with these shingles and they are a good protection against fire as well as weather.

In most instances this type of roofing can be applied directly over the old roof, after its surface has been properly prepared. In this way labor costs are saved and much debris is kept from being scattered around the house and lawn.

Nail Old Shingles Securely.

No new roofing should be applied before all the old shingles are securely nailed in place, and nails must be long enough to fasten the new shingles securely.

One home owner writes in that he has just finished a neat little lean-to on one side of his garage for all his garden tools. He covered wood framework with asbestos cement board.

His usual lawn tending equipment had been supplemented by so many extra tools and supplies for his war garden that he had to have more space. Now he has a little shed which provides ample room for hose and fertilizer bags, wheelbarrow and lawn mower and other precious and hard-to-replace garden tools.

22 N. W. SIDERS WIN DEGREES AT U. OF CHICAGO

Twenty-two residents of the northwest side were among the 468 graduates to receive degrees in the 10th war time convocation of the University of Chicago in ceremonies held last Friday in Rockefeller Memorial chapel.

One hundred and twenty students, whose ages averaged 19, were granted their A.B. degrees from the college of the university. Of this number 11 were only 17 years old. Conventional bachelor's degrees went to 247, master's degrees to 73, and doctor of philosophy degrees to 28.

Ruth Holland, 5001 N. Central Park av., 17, is one of those who was graduated from the college at an age when most students are just beginning college.

List Northwest Graduates.

Students from the northwest side who received their diplomas and their degrees are as follows:

Bachelor's degrees in the College of the University: Josef L. Elbein, 3837 Wilson av.; Marvin D. Homer, 5056 N. Albany av.; Gene L. Lindgren, 4727 N. Tripp av.; Abe Sklar, 4834 N. Troy st.; Henry Targos, 1338 Huron st.; and Henry L. Wildberger, 546 N. Central Park av., and Miss Holland.

Win Bachelor's Degrees.

Bachelor's degree: Heinz A. Adam, 4518 N. Drake av.; Elaine R. Anderson, 5648 N. Nagle av.; Marjelyn E. Arntzen, 1749 N. Lawndale av.; Reynold E. Best, 2307 N. Lawndale av.; Haskell M. Block, 4726 N. Doctor of law: Sol Applebaum, 4629 N. Lawndale av.

SOLDIER'S GLAD HE AND HELMET WERE FAR APART

Pvt. Joseph Raimondi, 6459 Irving Park rd., is happy he wasn't standing under his helmet during a Nazi shelling of the 5th army front in Italy. Pvt. Raimondi salvaged his bullet peppered head gear from atop a jeep where he had placed it before the evening meal.

"We were eating our evening meal of 'five in one' rations and I took off the helmet because it was so heavy," he said. "Then the shelling began."

When Raimondi lifted the helmet off the jeep he decided to turn it in for a new one. "I only hope my new one will hold up better and longer than the first did," he said.

Wins Essay Contest

Miss Louise Nichol, 4911 Hutchinson st., a 3d year student at Jones Commercial High school, won first prize in a recent contest with her essay on "Pioneer Pattern for the Nation of Tomorrow." The prize was in war stamps.

250 MARQUETTE PARK GARDENERS PLANT BIG AREA

Convert Dump Into a Fertile Farm.

Patriotism, hard work and community coöperation have transformed a hard patch of clay land strewn with tin cans and cinders into 500,000 square feet of level, fertile soil which has become the largest war garden project on the southwest side of Chicago. It is the Marquette park community war garden, 67th st. and California av.

Under the leadership of Bernard J. Downs, 6531 S. Rockwell st., a foreman for the International Harvester company and chairman of the garden committee, 250 gardeners recently began a second season of community farming on the huge plot.

Gardeners Regain Health.

Downs was manager of the International Harvester company's gardens for employes at 95th st. and Crawford av. in 1932. He relates that many of the city dwellers reported gains in health and poise thru daily contact with "the good earth."

Small war gardens were not uncommon when Downs noticed the huge unused area near his home in the spring of 1943. He believed that if many neighbors could work together, perhaps the spirit of friendly rivalry and their common purpose might spur them to greater efforts. He went to his block captain, Ralph Arnold, 6501 S. Rockwell st., and together they got permission from the owners to use the land.

Plots Now Number 250.

Thru combined efforts of 20 members of the Marquette park OCD, working under Downs' direction, the land was cleared, plowed, and harrowed. Using the system with which he managed his gardens in 1932, Downs divided the area into 190 gardens each 40 by 50 feet. Today the Marquette war garden project requires land on two adjacent streets and the plots now number 250.

Block captains and garden wardens rounded up gardeners in 1943 but this year most of them returned without being called on. Each gardener pays 50 cents toward the expense of the project. He receives a card assigning him to a lot. A map four by eight feet made by Robert C. Fletcher, 6615 S. Fairfield av., secretary of the garden committee, contains a corresponding set of cards showing the plot, name and address of every member.

Gardeners Fight Floods.

An example of community cooperation was the manner in which the gardeners fought a sudden rainfall which flooded their plot and threatened to wash away or rot last spring's seedlings. Downs and Michael Durkin, 6643 S. Mozart st., rented a gasoline pump. With John Jacka, 6504 S. Rockwell st., they operated the pump from 10:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. A two foot deep ditch to carry away the water was dug from California av. to Washtenaw av. by Fletcher and Frank Kovacik, 2605 W. 65th st.

By evening the gardens again were visible, but the next morning another rain flooded the area again. The pumping was repeated. Today a permanent drain provides an outlet for excess water.

Last fall Fletcher, Downs, Arnold, and Peter Vainowski, 6803 S. Fairfield av., obtained several trucks from the James Landon Coal company and brought 200 tons of sludge from the nearest sanitary district sewage treatment plant. The fertilizer was applied to the gardens, and now the enriched black soil is already producing early spring vegetables.

Chicago Youth Join Forces for Paper Pickup Saturday

Chicago's school boys and girls hope to chalk up another waste paper record for the summer months as they swing into a city wide program beginning Saturday with the second city curb collection of paper.

With school doors closing for the summer, boys and girls will direct their paper collecting efforts toward three city wide drives during June, July, and August, working thru the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and other youth groups. Their goal for Saturday has been set at 3,000 tons. A total of 2,700 tons was collected at the first city wide curb pickup on Jan. 15, directed by the Chicago waste paper campaign committee under the auspices of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association.

50,000 Push Drive.

Fifty thousand youth organization members are working with the Chicago waste paper campaign committee in mapping out this week's collection. These are the same boys and girls who since January have helped haul 38,669,538 pounds of paper to their individual schools where it was sold. The money realized, $209,960.67, went to the various school funds.

More than 2,500 Boy Scouts will man the 500 trucks which will pick up waste paper in each of the city wards.

To Teach Bundle Tieing.

Another 17,000 Boy Scouts, 8,000 Girl Scouts, and 5,000 Camp Fire Girls will be in the bell ringing brigades. Members of the various boys' clubs in the city, the junior B'nai B'rith groups, and the junior victory army also will be among the solicitors.

In addition to soliciting paper from every householder this week, the boys and girls will instruct them on how to tie their bundles, and on Saturday will assist the trucks by assembling bundles where possible in the center of the various blocks.

Housewives, too, will join the drive. Under the direction of Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, OCD fats salvage director, housewives will deliver 800,000 circulars this week explaining the drive.

Help Direct Campaign.

The pickup will be under the management of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee with William L. McFetridge as general chairman, and W. H. Bennett, chairman of pickup arrangements. The other two pickups for this summer are scheduled on July 22 and Aug. 19.

Members of the executive committee directing southwest side groups in the summer drives are Sidney Wanzer III, 221 E. 68th st., Boy Scouts; Mrs. Harold Nichlaus, 1669 W. 104th st., and Mary Helen Smith, 6140 Thorndale av., Girl Scouts; Mrs. Mabel Harris, 7108 Stewart av., Camp Fire girls, and Theodore Zubrychi, 3400 Emerald av., boys' clubs.

3 TILDEN HIGH R.O.T.C. CADETS ARE PROMOTED

John J. Franz, R. O. T. C. cadet at Tilden Technical High school, recently was promoted to first lieutenant. William J. Oswald and Albert J. Gress were promoted to second lieutenants in the Tilden cadet corps.

Bertram Lee was advanced to cadet captain at Hirsch High school. Ramon Licorish and Richard Wadoz became first lieutenants, and Lester Estrin was promoted to second lieutenant.

BETHEL CHURCH TO HOLD SERVICE FOR ARMY MEN

The Bethel Evangelical Lutheran church, Evergreen Park, will hold a special service at 3 p. m. today in which 125 friends and members of the church who are now in service will participate.

Printed programs giving the exact minute when sections of the service will be held, have been sent to the service men and women.

The purpose of the mailing is to enable members to take part in the service at exactly the same time it is being conducted in Chicago, the Rev. Melvin D. Blume, pastor of the church, said.

The service will include presentation of the Christian and American flags by service men and women on furlough, and a presentation of a plaque of names of persons receiving the program.

Gage Park Red Cross Unit Seeks Volunteers

The Gage Park unit of the Red Cross has issued an appeal for women to make surgical dressings.

BOND WARDENS OF ONE BLOCK TRIPLE QUOTA

S. W. Area Sets Pace in 5th Loan.

Seven volunteer block bond wardens led by Arthur E. Hast, 11122 Vernon av., have set the pace for the 5th war loan drive in Chicago. In the first day of the drive, they visited 99 families in their block, met their quota of $31,744, and tripled it by obtaining subscriptions for $92,406.25 worth of bonds.

All sales were to residents of the block which is bounded by 111th and 112th sts. and South Park and Vernon avs. Several residents had already purchased bonds in this drive to the extent of $11,365.25.

In recognition of their achievement, Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee, presented citations to all eight volunteer bond wardens.

Direct Roseland Drive.

Directing the bond campaign in Roseland are Charles Lachman, 10830 Wallace st., community bond chairman; A. L. Pearson, 211 E. 113th st., commander of the Roseland OCD, and Arthur Gibney, 907 W. 111th st., assistant community bond chairman.

Arthur Hast is leader of the volunteer salesmen who tripled their quota and captain of zone 31 of the community. He believes the invasion plus the fact that his block has sent 27 men into service were factors in the success of his group.

Youngest of the group is Josephine Napoli, 16, 11130 Vernon av., a student at Mercy High school. She and her sister, Madeline, 22, solicited 40 families. They have three brothers in service and Madeline is employed as a key punch operator in a war plant.

Another young bond campaigner is Amy Lu Ward, 17, 11115 South

S. W. PAROCHIAL SCHOOL FINDS 8 TONS OF PAPER

The size of the collector evidently bears no relation to the amount of waste paper he can collect—witness the 17,000 pounds of scrap paper salvaged in one week by children in Our Lady of Good counsel school, 3537 S. Hermitage av.

The pupils achieved this total during the final week of the second city-wide paper salvage campaign sponsored by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers association. Play time was sacrificed so boxes and wrapping for medicines, food, and other equipment for service men would not be lacking.

Outstanding first graders are Eileen Gliwa, 3712 S. Wood st.; Gerald Fortier, 3405 S. Wood st.; Robert Kusch, 3542 S. Marshfield av., and Timmy Prickett, 3636 S. Wood st.

Second Grade Is Winner.

The second grade, which collected 2,500 pounds, won a contest among the first three grades. Honorable mention among these children goes to Ronald Baron, 3646 S. Wolcott av.; Kenneth Fox, 3728 S. Hermitage av.; Paul Piscarcyzk, 3401 Hermitage av.; Robert Kwilosz, 3702 S. Wood st.; Ronald Brabec, 3629 S. Paulina st.; Donald Wassik, 3744 S. Hermitage av., and Jacqueline Foley, 3651 S. Wood st.

Third graders to receive special recommendation are William O'Connell, 1634 W. 32d st.; Richard Gliwa, 3658 S. Wood st.; Richard Chadorowski, 3700 S. Hermitage av., and Joan Schroedle, 3247 S. Wood st.

In the fourth grade, special mention went to Edward Schroedle, 3347 S. Wood st.; William McKee, 1735 W. 35th st.; Marilyn Miller, 1648 W. 33d pl.; Ellen Prickett, 3636 S. Wood st., and Lorraine Rodak, 3622 S. Wood st.

List Fifth Grade Champs.

Raymond Bura, 3738 S. Hermitage av.; Walter Rudolph, 3442 S. Wood st.; and Martin Fitzpatrick, 1900 W. 35th st., were highest ranking in the fifth grade.

The sixth grade was high among the five upper grades with the following winners; Robert Owens, 3660 S. Paulina st.; Daniel Kois, 3706 S. Paulina st.; Michael Trajaniak, 3631 S. Hermitage av., and Louis Glista, 3606 S. Herimtage av.

James McKee, 1735 W. 35th st., and Lawrence Eischen, 1924 W. 34th st., were tops in the seventh grade. Margaret McMahon, 3549 S. Western blvd., achieved the best record in the eighth grade.

Fernwood Women.

Mrs. Judson Nichols, 10029 Parnell av., membership chairman of the Fernwood Woman's club, will conduct a meeting of her committee at 1:30 p. m. Thursday in her home.

R. O. T. C. cadets of Fenger High school recently celebrated their winning second place in the annual federal inspection with a military ball in the Knickerbocker hotel.

By cadet vote, Hope Senter, a senior, was chosen queen of the ball. Her court included Lois Goetz, Marilyn Schultz, Lorraine Kiefer, and Marjorie Helstrom.

Cadets on the ball committee were Lt. Col. William Michalik, Maj. Donald Shively, Capt. John Dalenberg, 1st Lt. Sidney Frank, 2d Lt. Roy Johnson, and 2d Lt. Fred Sander.

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present a "Starlight Interlude" over W-G-N, WGNB and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening. Virginia Haskins, soprano, and Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the vocal soloists and Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N orchestra.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

The program will open with a group of songs from the east with Miss Haskins as soloist. Miss Haskins also will sing Delibes' "Maids of Cadiz," and with Mr. Foote, an aria from "Don Giovanni." Mr. Foote will sing "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser." A feature of the program will be selections from "Blossom Time."

AIR PARATROOP STORY TONIGHT ON W-G-N SHOW

Patricia Dunlap.

A story of paratrooper action on D-day filed by Howard Cowan of the Associated Press will serve as the basis for a drama to be broadcast on W-G-N's They Give Their Lives at 9:30 tonight. A second episode will tell of an American glider troop mission that resulted in the capture of 800 Germans. Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the 5th war loan drive, and Patricia Dunlap of W-G-N's Crime Files of Flamond, will speak in behalf of the bond drive.

John Thomas to Sing 'Largo,' 'Last Roundup'

John Charles Thomas, baritone, will sing Handel's "Largo" on his broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 1:30 p. m. today. Thomas also will sing Billy Hill's "The Last Roundup."

Dad's To Be Saluted.

In salute to Father's day the WENR-WCFL Amateur hour at 12:30 p. m. today will feature interviews with fathers of the young contestants.

INVASION, G. O. P. CONVENTION TO KEEP RADIO BUSY

W-G-N Plans Full Hour Welcome Program.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Regular radio program schedules are likely to be upset considerably next week with the Republican convention, which opens June 26, and invasion needs both demanding considerable air time. Numerous top radio performers, however, already have left the air for the summer—several to go overseas and visit the troops—and the convention schedules call for an evening opening hour of 9 p. m. By that time most of the regular radio attractions are out of the way.

The major networks are bringing scores of reporters, commentators, editorialists, analysts, and other experts here to cover the convention. W-G-N and Mutual are planning to cover every newsworthy period of the sessions. All regular programs will be subject to cancellation or interruption.

Gov. Green to Speak.

A full hour welcome to the delegates will be broadcast exclusively over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Sunday night from the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, headquarters for the convention.

Gov. Green of Illinois will speak briefly, extending the hospitality of the state to the visitors. Other speakers will be Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican National committee, and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts. Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington commentator for Mutual, and other reporters will extend greetings to the delegates.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, with Henry Weber as conductor, will present a program of music. Other outstanding W-G-N singers and entertainers will contribute to this curtain raiser broadcast.

Plan Wire Record Tests.

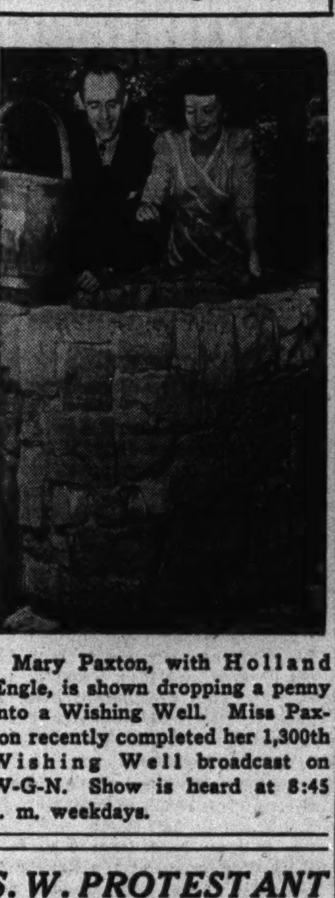
The opening session of the convention is scheduled for 11:30 a. m. Monday, June 26, with Mr. Spangler calling the meeting to order and a formal welcome by Gov. Green. At 9 p. m. Monday Gov. Warren of California will deliver the keynote address. Rep. Martin, the permanent chairman, is expected to be heard at noon Tuesday, and Herbert Hoover and Rep. Clare Booth Luce at the Tuesday evening session.

W-G-N expects to have available five of the Armour magnetic wire recorders for recording the convention broadcasts. W-G-N besides testing the capabilities of the recorder for post-war broadcasting this experiment will make available the convention proceedings for playback over distant radio stations.

HOUR OF CHARM FINALISTS TO BE NAMED TONIGHT

Phil Spitalny, conductor on the Hour of Charm program aired at 9 p. m. Sundays over WMAQ-NBC, tonight will name Marie Rogndahl of Portland, Ore., Monica Mais of the Island of Jamaica, and Gloria Halliday of Baltimore, Md., as the program's voice audition finalists. They are to appear on next week's show. Ten thousand young women tried for a spot in the finalist group. Music devoted to June brides will be offered by the all-girl orchestra tonight.

At Wishing Well



Mary Paxton, with Holland Engle, is shown dropping a penny into a Wishing Well. Miss Paxton recently completed her 1,300th Wishing Well broadcast on W-G-N. Show is heard at 8:45 a. m. weekdays.

S. W. PROTESTANT WOMEN TO MAKE BAZAR CLOTHING

Southwest side members of the Protestant Woman's Service club will meet at 10 a. m. Thursday in the home of Mrs. A. J. Messersmith, 9802 Seeley av., to make aprons for the annual bazaar.

Mrs. J. C. Clasper, 8806 Pleasant av., is head of the sewing committee. Members are Mrs. J. C. Kirk, 9802 Seeley av.; Mrs. Roe F. Reed, 9322 Vanderpoel av.; Mrs. A. J. Leppla, 8939 Justine st.; Mrs. William H. McClellan, 10711 Hoyne av.

Mrs. Arthur W. Nelson, 11317 Union av.; Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, 7156 Normal blvd.; Miss Sophea Rathje, 10106 Prospect av., and Mrs. Messersmith.

TEN S. W. WOMEN TO AID DRIVE BY SALVATION ARMY

Ten southwest women will serve as volunteer colonels for the Salvation Army in its annual Doughnut day drive which will be conducted Tuesday thruout the city and suburbs. They are Mrs. Joel Collins, Palos Park; Mrs. Bertha Hunziker, 7124 Lafayette av.; Miss Ella Murphy, 6643 Lafayette av.; Mrs. R. F. Napier, Blue Island; Mrs. Clarence Palm, 6711 Stewart av.; Miss Margaret Smith, 817 W. 51st st.; Mrs. D. B. Stockton, 7927 Kedvale av.; Mrs. S. H. Swett, 10560 Longwood dr.; Mrs. Elmer Toohey, Homewood, and Elsie A. Wladic, 5932 S. Honore av.

Post-War Transportation Is Review Stand Topic

"Post-War Transportation" will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 11 a. m. today. Ralph Budd, W. A. Patterson, Norman Damon, and Robert Black, all leaders in the field of transportation, will participate. They will analyze the nature of passenger and freight movements in post-war economy, methods of improving and increasing transportation facilities following the war, and changing conceptions of traffic control.

CALLS LINCOLN'S MESSAGE VITAL FOR AMERICANS

Mrs. Ranquist.

All Americans should memorize Lincoln's Gettysburg address and never forget it, says Mrs. Kathryn M. Ranquist, 816 W. 54th pl., who recently retired after teaching for 31 years at the Dewey Elementary school, 5415 S. Union av. All her 1,500 students, including her son and daughter, were able to recite Lincoln's masterpiece before leaving her classroom.

Mrs. Ranquist, a mild mannered gray haired woman of Irish descent, believes the address is the greatest piece of American literature, the finest expression of the creed of America.

"And it only takes two minutes to say," she adds.

Memorizing Essential.

She believes memorizing basic rules and a few of the great literary works is necessary to the training of a systematic, efficient mind. Evidence of her own efficiency is the neat record she has kept of all her expenditures since 1907, the year she was married.

In addition to her duties as assistant principal of Dewey school, Mrs. Ranquist has been active in the Blessed Sacrament society of the Visitation church, 834 W. Garfield blvd. She has lived in the same neighborhood all her life.

Her father was Michael Fitzsimons, a contractor, who, Mrs. Ranquist recalls, built most of the sewers in the neighborhood. She proudly displays a tiny model of a sewer scraper which he invented.

Lifelong Desire.

Mrs. Ranquist liked school. She thinks she was born with the desire to be a teacher, for she cannot remember wanting to be anything else. She recalls, however, rising at 4 a. m. to study.

When she was ready for high school she had to take an entrance examination, for then such schools were open only to serious students. Her grade of 90 put her into the Lake High school, which since has become Tilden Technical High school. But when she entered Chicago Teachers' college her previous high grades make it unnecessary for her to take another entrance examination.

In 1902 she was assigned to watch regular instructors at work and substitute for sick teachers. She remembers one of her first assignments, in a branch of the Belding school in Irving Park. It consisted of two little cottages in an open field.

She was assigned permanently to Dewey in 1903 and remained there until the birth of her son, Robert C. Ranquist Jr., in 1910. Her daughter, Mary, was born in 1913 and seven years later Mrs. Ranquist went back to Dewey to help her husband put their children thru college. His death in 1935 made her the mainstay of the family, and her career became a necessity.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 19.

Do not neglect cultivating the vegetable garden, for on this may depend the success or failure of an entire crop. One has only to observe the fine crops that are raised without using artificial watering to realize that constant care in keeping down weeds and stirring the soil is about all that is necessary.

Tuesday, June 20.

Thin the rows of plants that may be growing too close together. Give each plant its full share of room and it will produce. Never neglect the fight against insect pests, for if allowed to increase unchecked or without any attempt to reduce their numbers much injury to all the plants will result.

Wednesday, June 21.

Keep delphiniums well watered and cut the stems down after flowering. If there is indication of black blight, spray with a solution of one ounce of dry sulphur and ½ ounce of blackleaf 40 to two gallons of water. If spraying fails, destroy the infested plants.

Thursday, June 22.

Gardeners who find that chiggers annoy them may find relief if they will roll down their stockings to below the tops of their shoes and dust with sulphur. A perforated can is suitable for dusting.

Friday, June 23.

Lift and divide pyrethrum to have strong plants by fall. This flower is good for cutting or for the perennial border. Water spring planted shrubs abundantly so new roots will be formed in abundance. Shade newly transplanted material for a few days during hot weather.

When cutting material for bouquets, do the job during early morning and plunge the stems at once in deep cool water. Change water each morning. Make the cuts long and slanting for heavy stems.

Saturday, June 24.

You can lift many of the minor bulbs now and store in a dry place untill fall. These consist of the well known squills, grape hyacinth, crocus, snowdrop, calico flower or fritillaria, and snow on the mountain or chionodoxa.

The long known and brilliant sun plant or portulaca can yet be sown. It thrives in the hottest place and furnishes an abundance of brilliant flowers in early morning. Try a few in a bright, sunny spot.

Promising Season in Prospect for Grant Park

First Concert on Lake Front Will Be July 1

By Claudia Cassidy.

For several seasons, there has been growing dissatisfaction with the free concerts in Grant Park, which slipped steadily downhill in interest and prestige. But things look promising for the 10th season which opens Saturday night, July 1, with "Minstrels of the Masses," the Chicago Theater of the Air's tribute to George M. Cohan and Stephen Foster, first of a series of nine productions under the direction of Henry Weber, featuring the W-G-N symphony orchestra and chorus, plus soloists and dramatic casts.

The Chicago park district, Robert J. Dunham, president, is concentrating its budget on three concerts each week for eight weeks. The first four weeks will be devoted to the newly organized Grant Park Symphony orchestra, which will play classical concerts each Wednesday and Friday night and more popular music each Sunday night. There will be one conductor each week, to be announced later. The Woman's Symphony orchestra appears the fifth week, and the Chicago Symphony orchestra the last three weeks. Concerts by the Grant Park orchestra will be in charge of Walter L. Larsen, Chicago concert manager, and George A. Kuyper, manager of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. They will select personnel and coördinate programs.

Thru the coöperation of Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding the 6th service area, and Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, commanding the Great Lakes Naval Training station, army and navy musical organizations will make weekly appearances, the army each Tuesday night starting July 4, the navy each Thursday night starting July 6. Both plan flexible programs of wide variety.

There will be seating arrangements for at least 25,000 people, with ample facilities for handling overflow. The band shell has been enlarged and repainted in cerulean blues, and sound engineers are doing their best to improve acoustics. It looks like a busy summer on the lake front, with only Mondy nights dark—and, of course, the Saturday night, Aug. 19, when the Chicago Music Festival takes over Soldiers' Field.

Have I ever said you can't please every one? Well, consider it repeated. On the heels of my none too enthusiastic report on "Rose Marie," which opened the Civic Opera house's summer season of operetta, came an indignant letter addressed not to me but to the editor. It implored THE TRIBUNE to investigate my mental attitude toward Chicago and Chicago music, adding: "If you don't curb her caustic, unfair, and unwarranted criticisms you may expect a call from some of our Civic Organizations [the upper case is his] who spend much time, money, and thought to build up Chicago." He thought "Rose Marie" enjoyable and asked if I know there's a war on. On the other hand this letter came straight to me and it says: "I was at the opening of 'Rose Marie' and I read your article. I think you were too kind to the whole show." Maybe he has something there. Considering the paper shortage, perhaps I could infringe on Mae Tinee's technique, which said of a bad movie just one word—no.

My mental attitude toward Chicago and Chicago's music really doesn't warrant investigation. It's too simple to justify the delving of a committee which might be out selling war bonds. I simply believe that Chicago is a great city and not the jumping off place of theater and music. As for the war, yes, I know about that. There is a war on in Los Angeles, too. Yet Los Angeles last week saw the world première of an operetta called "a probable and appropriate successor to 'Blossom Time.'" Even if a successor to "Blossom Time" seems to you less than operetta's major need, this is worth investigation. It turns out to be "Song of Norway," which uses the life and music of Grieg, notably the piano concerto, as "Blossom Time" depends on Schubert.

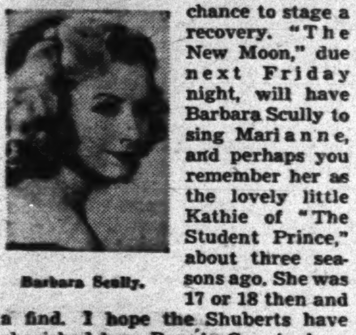
My point is not that Los Angeles had a novelty where we had a revival, but that it apparently had a good production carefully put together, where we got a shoddy substitute. "Song of Norway" was designed by Lemuel Ayers, who did the brilliant décor of "Oklahoma!" Howard Curran spent two years in research on the book. The singing cast employed no great names, but it seems to have been satisfactory. Walter Cassel and Irra Petina of the Metropolitan are in it, as are Helena Bliss of the Philadelphia Opera, and Robert Shafer, who often sings at St. Louis. But take a look at the ballet, with choreography by Balanchine. Alexandra Danilova and Frederic Franklin head a corps de ballet of 30 chosen from the Ballet Russe.

By comparison the Shuberts gave us a half baked production of "Rose Marie" so poorly put together and so inadequately rehearsed that 45 minutes were cut from playing time after the opening. It was true the management ran into bad luck. Both its promised stage director and dance director were unable to come in time, and hasty substitutes did what they could. But the problems of management mean exactly nothing to the man who pays his money at the boxoffice. When I, who happen to be incurably stagestruck, sit thru a show reluctantly, wishing I could escape to the movies on the chance of a good news reel and maybe a Donald Duck, I can't quite persuade myself to rush out and recommend it.

FALLS DOWN

Sonia Wojcikowska, crackling little Polish ballerina, who plays "the girl who falls down" in "Oklahoma!" At the Erlanger.

With six more productions scheduled, the operetta season has a chance to stage a recovery. "The New Moon," due next Friday night, will have Barbara Scully to sing Marianne, and perhaps you remember her as the lovely little Kathie of "The Student Prince," about three seasons ago. She was 17 or 18 then and a find. I hope the Shuberts have cherished her. Ronnie Cunningham will be new as Julie, Arthur Maxwell is held over, and Ruth Gillette and William Marel, last here in "Blossom Time," are due. Billy Kent, Roy Barnes, and Vannessi are staying, and Karen Conrad and Pittman Corry will dance in some more Komarova ballets. "Boots" McKenna, who missed the "Rose Marie" boat, is expected to stage the dances.



Barbara Scully.

By the time this article appears another venture in Chicago production will have been launched with "Alaskan Stampede" at the Coliseum. This musical on ice, which employs everything from singers and skaters to deer and malemutes, is designed as the first of a series of shows planned to open here and then go on a tour of large auditoriums thruout the country. According to Leo Seltzer, the producer, the next show will have a Mexican locale and the one after that will be a western. If it employs the Lone Ranger I hope all the "Information Please" experts will attend. The whole lot of them flunked a question asking who is Tonto's more important friend.

THE BUILDING OF JALNA

By
MAZO DE LA ROCHE

(Copyright: 1944: By Mazo De La Roche.)

INSTALMENT XIII.

A SLOW smile spread over Hettie's face. There was a brightening of her eyes. But Mrs. Wilmott paled, as the news of the husband's death had not made her pale. She looked with a kind of horror at Hettie. Then she said rather tremulously to Adeline:

"What do you advise me to do?"

"I advise you to go straight to New York and make inquiries from the two gentlemen whose names I shall give you. Then, when you are satisfied of your husband's whereabouts or of his departure from this life, you can sail from there. I am told their sailing clippers are unequaled for comfort, and their new steamships, too."

"That is just what I shall do! And if I can locate Mr. Wilmott it will be due entirely to you."

"I never liked him either," put in Hettie.

Mrs. Wilmott looked meaningly at Adeline. Then she said—"Stop scratching your limbs, Hettie."

"They itch."

"You must control yourself."

"I hate the midges."

Mrs Wilmott opened her reticule and took out a small memorandum tablet. She handed it to Adeline. "Will you be so kind as to write down the names and addresses of the gentlemen in New York." A feeling of benevolence came over Adeline. She had the feeling of taking care of Mrs. Wilmott, guiding her in the way she should go. She wrote the names of D'Arcy and Brent in her bold handwriting, and returned the tablet.

Mrs. Wilmott rose. "I want you to believe, Mrs. White," she said, "that my daughter was not like this at home."

"That is what traveling does to them. My own daughter has not the manners she had."

"It is deplorable." Mrs. Wilmott held out her hand. "Well, good-by," she said. "I cannot tell you how thankful I am that we met."

"Faith, so am I!" Adeline's benevolent clasp enfolded Mrs. Wilmott's small dry hand. "I should ask you to drink a dish of tea with me but my little girl has whooping cough" — this was indeed true — "and yours might contract it."

The very thought of such a contingency was upsetting to Mrs. Wilmott. Again she told, and this time in detail, all she had been thru with Hettie since leaving home. Hettie interrupted her by saying—"The carriage is going."

The livery horses were indeed ambling dejectedly down the road, for the driver had fallen asleep and let the reins drop from his hand.

Mrs. Wilmott gave a cry and began to run after it.

The driver had been woken by Mrs. Wilmott's cries. He possessed himself of the reins, and the carriage was stopped.

Mrs. Wilmott's bonnet had fallen back on her nape but she still was dignified. She opened her reticule and took out her handkerchief which she waved in farewell. Hettie looked on in complete pessimism. She said:

"I hope we don't find him."

"Really!" exclaimed Adeline.

"Yes. I never liked him."

Laughing, in sudden hilarity, Adeline mounted her horse. She trotted to where Mrs. Wilmott waited. Her face sobered. She said genially:

"A pleasant journey to you, Mrs. Wilmott."

"Thank you and thank you again for your help. Dear, O dear, when I think of all that lies before me!"

"Say good-by to Mrs. White, Hettie, and thank her prettily."

"Good-by," said Hettie morosely.

"Good-by, Hettie."

The driver chirruped to his horses. As they moved off he turned to look at Adeline. He contorted one side of his face into what seemed to be a wink of derision toward the occupants of the carriage. A cloud of dust rose and, in its midst, a white handkerchief fluttered.

• • •

Adeline did not go on to Jalna but returned to Wilmott's log house. She felt a strangeness in returning there. So much had happened since she had left. Again she knocked and again she saw Tite's dark hand draw aside the curtain. He opened the door at once.

"You want to see my boss?" he asked.

"Yes."

"All right, Missis. You wait here. I get him." He glided barefoot toward the shed but before he reached it Wilmott came out of it.

"It's a pretty sort of life I lead," he exclaimed. "Like a criminal! And I suppose that, in a degree, I am."

When they were alone, Adeline said that breathlessly — "I've seen her!"

He paled. "Not Henrietta?"

"Yes."

"My God!" He looked about him wildly. "Is she here then?"

"She was. She's gone. I had no time to find Philip. When I had reached the road I met her coming in a hired carriage."

"I tell you," he said between his teeth, "I will never go back to that woman. But I am done for in this place! Where is she?"

"On her way back to the town. Tomorrow she will go to New York in search of you. I told her it is said you went to Mexico and died of a fever there. Ah, the lies I've uttered on your behalf!"

"And she believed you?" He cared nothing for the lies. He turned a look of concentrated anxiety on Adeline.

"Do I do things well or do I not? Of course, she believed me. I told her you had lived near here with a cow, a pig, and an Indian. You lived in a swamp, I said, and when you left you were in debt to all the neighborhood."

He could not restrain a look of consternation. "Good God, and that is my epitaph in England! Henrietta will tell every one. She can't control that tongue of hers."

Adeline turned to him fiercely. "Follow her then and deny it! She'll be easy to find."

He made an excited turn about the room. "Don't be angry with me," he said. "Don't expect me to say the right thing at such a moment. Don't imagine that I'm not overflowing in gratitude to you. But I'm fairly dazed by it all."

"You resent my blackening your character. Don't deny it. Who cares for character! You are not seeking a situation! O, James Wilmott, the thing was to be rid of that woman! I could see meanness and cruelty sticking out all over her."

"I resent nothing you told her. I don't know what I have done to deserve all you do for me. But I am grateful, with my whole soul. Just think—if it were not for you—she might have her feet on this land at this moment!" He just touched Adeline's shoulder with his thin hand. "There you stand—beautiful and strong—and my protector."

"Don't thank me. I loved getting the best of her. Faith, if ever she comes back, I stand ready for another bout!"

"If only we had some way of finding out if she really goes to New York and if she sails from there!"

"We have!" said Adeline triumphantly. "Michael D'Arcy and Thomas Brent will tell us."

"D'Arcy and Brent!" cried Wilmott, stiffening. "How could they know anything of the matter?"

"I gave her their address so she could find out all the truth about your trip to Mexico from them."

"You must have been mad!" almost shouted Wilmott. "What do they know of this affair?"

"Nothing. But I shall write post haste and tell them to expect her. I know those two Irishmen. D'Arcy is a rip and Brent a regular play boy. They'll like nothing so well as to tell fairy tales to Henrietta for my sake."

"I would not have taken a thousand pounds and had those two told this of me."

"Then I shall not write to them."

"Naturally they will have to know everything — now you have sent Henrietta to them."

"You need not care. You will never see them again."

"No. I possibly never shall. but will Messrs. D'Arcy and Brent refrain from telling this good story to their friends after dinner?"

"I will swear them to secrecy, James."

"Do you think they will remember to be secret when they have drunk well. No. All their friends will hear this story."

"You need not care. You are dead."

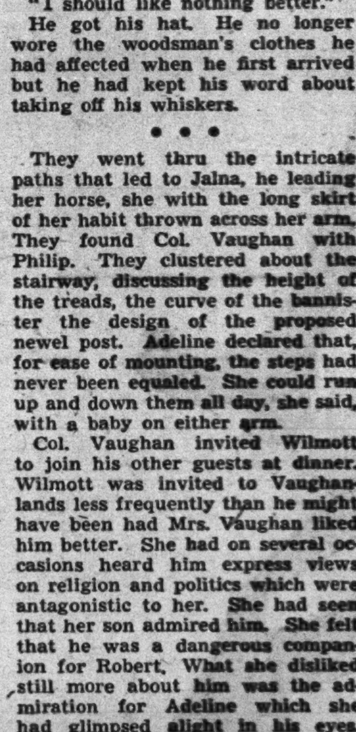
"I had better be," he returned bitterly.

They eyed each other coldly. Then Adeline exclaimed in exasperation—"What in the name of God did you expect? Did you expect me to meet Henrietta with a full fledged plan in my head, with no weak spots in it? I think I have done very well but what thanks does one ever get for interfering between husband and wife?"

"She is no wife to me, nor has been for five years."

Wilmott turned to her, his features working, his eyes full of sudden tears. "If I am happy here," he said, "it is because you are near me."

Adeline gave a little laugh. "Come back with me," she said, "to Jalna. I will not leave you alone here. We'll go to Jalna and see the staircase. The men are just building it and Philip has found a wood carver who is carving a beautiful newel post for it. The newel post is to be of walnut and done in a design of grapes and leaves, with a grand bunch at the top. Shouldn't you like to see it, James?"



Mrs. Vaughan intercepted one of those glances. . . . She had a sense of being surrounded by intrigue.

"I should like nothing better."

He got his hat. He no longer wore the woodsman's clothes he had affected when he first arrived but he had kept his word about taking off his whiskers.

They went thru the intricate paths that led to Jalna, he leading her horse, she with the long skirt of her habit thrown across her arm. They found Col. Vaughan with Philip. They clustered about the stairway, discussing the height of the treads, the curve of the bannister the design of the proposed newel post. Adeline declared that, for ease of mounting, the steps had never been equaled. She could run up and down them all day, she said, with a baby on either arm.

Col. Vaughan invited Wilmott to join his other guests at dinner. Wilmott was invited to Vaughanlands less frequently than he might have been had Mrs. Vaughan liked him better. She had on several occasions heard him express views on religion and politics which were antagonistic to her. She had seen that her son admired him. She felt that he was a dangerous companion for Robert. What she disliked still more about him was the admiration for Adeline which she had glimpsed alight in his eyes. She thought it was reckless of Adeline to visit his home alone and so make herself the subject of gossip. She thought it lax of Philip to allow her to do so. She said as much to Adeline that same afternoon before dinner.

"Dear Mrs. Vaughan," said Adeline smiling, a little dangerously, "please don't take me to task for something entirely innocent."

"I am not taking you to task, Mrs. Whiteoak. I am only warning you."

"Warning me of what?"

"That you will find yourself talked about."

"You mean that I am already talked about?"

"You must acknowledge that what you are doing is unconventional."

"Philip and I are unconventional people. We don't care a fig what gossips or busybodies say."

"But these people are not gossips or busybodies. They are nice people and your future neighbors, you must remember."

"O, Mrs. Vaughan, please don't take a chiding tone with me!" Adeline's cheeks were scarlet but she added more calmly—"While I am here with you I shall not go again alone to Mr. Wilmott's house. I hope that will satisfy everyone."

• • •

She went off to dress for dinner, feeling the constriction of a prolonged suit. She stopped at the children's door and opened it. Nicholas had just been given his bath and was sitting on his nurse's knee, wet and shining as a shell just lifted from the sea.

"You angel!" cried Adeline. "O, nurse, how he grows! Aren't his dimples enchanting?"

"They are indeed, ma'am," answered the nurse, as smugly as tho she had put them in with her own finger.

Gussie came forward carrying a doll Wilmott had given her. It had a pink and white face and black curls all painted on its china head. It wore only a chemise.

"Look," said Gussie, holding up the doll.

"O, how pretty!" said Adeline.

Gussie laid the doll in the bath and pressed it firmly down. As it sank an odd look came into her eyes. She remembered something. She turned to her mother.

"Huneefa," she said.

Adeline was startled, almost horrified. What did the child remember? Why had she said the ayah's name?

"There she goes, at her naughtiness!" exclaimed the nurse. "All day long I can't keep up to her. If it isn't one thing it's another. If you would punish her, ma'am, it might do some good."

Gussie began to cough from whooping cough, ending in that strange crowing noise.

A step came on the stair. There was a quick knock at the door.

"It is the doctor," said nurse, enfolding Nicholas' nakedness in a huge bath towel.

Adeline opened the door and Dr. Ramsey came in. He was a young man of just under 30, of bony frame but particularly healthy appearance. After greeting Adeline he turned to his little patient.

"Hullo," he said. "Another bout of coughing, eh?"

Gussie gravely assented. She passed her hand across her forehead, putting back the curls that clung moistly there.

Dr. Ramsey sat down and took her on his knee. He laid his fingers on her tiny wrist but his eyes were on Adeline.

"I wish," he said, "we had some way of isolating her. I shall be very sorry if you develop whooping cough, Mrs. Whiteoak."

"There is little likelihood of that, since I did not take it when six of my brothers had it at one time."

"I wish you had taken it then," he returned.

"Indeed then I don't, for I should have missed the races in Dublin to which my grandfather took me, and all my six brothers whooping away at home!"

"Better the miss of some races," he returned, "than the miscarriage of a child."

Adeline varied between having complete trust in Dr. Ramsey and disliking him. She said:

"All I worry about is my baby. He has never yet had a day's illness."

Dr. Ramsey turned to Nicholas, sprawling in supreme comfort in his nurse's lap.

"If he contracts this cough," he said, "it will take off some of that fine flesh of his."

"If only Miss Augusta would keep away from him," said the nurse, "but she won't."

"If only Mrs. Whiteoak would keep away from Augusta!" said Dr. Ramsey.

Philip found Adeline dressing in their room. Between Mrs. Vaughan's criticism of her visits to Wilmott's house and a certain irritation provoked by Dr. Ramsey, Adeline's mood was not an amenable one.

"I declare," she said. "I am sick and tired of considering other people's feelings. From morning to night I am put to it not to give offense."

"What's up?" asked Philip. "Was it about going to Wilmott's that Mrs. Vaughan spoke of to you?"

She withdrew her head from the wardrobe and faced him with disheveled locks and flushed cheeks. "Yes. Who told you?"

"Vaughan. He thinks it is rather too unconventional of you and I expect he is right. I have given you a loose rein, Adeline, because I think it is the best way with you, and I believe Wilmott is a decent fellow. I told Vaughan I would speak to you."

"You needn't have troubled. I've told Mrs. Vaughan I shall not go to Wilmott's again while I am here. Dr. Ramsey says it will go hard with me if I get whooping cough."

Philip looked aghast at the thought. "You are to keep away from those children. I command you."

She had taken a green taffeta dress from the wardrobe. It was cut very low and to Philip seemed extreme in fashion for such an occasion. He told her so.

Adeline threw it on the floor and desired him to find her something hideous enough to grace the moment. He looked at his watch.

"We are going to be late for dinner," he said. "Your head is like a hayrick. If you want to appear with your head like a hayrick and your body overdressed, I shall try to endure it but, I promise you, I shall be ashamed."

She did not wear the green dress to dinner but a much simpler dress of corn colored India muslin, and had time only to twist her hair into a sleek knot. But she was able to show off a little with long yellow diamond earrings and a late yellow rose in her hair.

Wilmott was extraordinarily lively at table. When his eyes met Adeline's they would exchange a look of understanding. The image of Henrietta flashed between them. Mrs. Vaughan intercepted one of these glances and she had a disconcerting sense of being surrounded by intrigue.

The behavior of her niece did not make her any happier. Daisy, so obviously was straining to capture the attention of Dr. Ramsey. She had made up for the simplicity of her dress by an elaborate arrangement of her hair that hung in a glossy dark waterfall to her shoulders. Mrs. Vaughan had a dreadful suspicion that Daisy had rouge on her cheeks. She laughed too much, showing too many teeth. She leaned too far across the table to attract the young doctor's eye. He had just returned from a hunting trip and Philip was eager to hear its details. He planned next year, when he had his family installed at Jalna, to join the party. Daisy cried out to hear of the hazards endured by the hunters, and the magnificence of the quarry. Deer, a moose, and a bear had been killed. Daisy declared that, if she were a man, she would go to India and shoot tigers as Capt. Whiteoak had. She had a mind to marry some big game hunter and accompany him on his expeditions.

"You would very soon get enough of it, Miss Daisy," said Philip.

"It would depend entirely on the man," she returned. "With the right man, I would face any danger."

"You had better come with us on our hunting trip next year, as a preparation," said Dr Ramsey.

"Ah, but would the right man be there to give me the moral support I need?"

"At any rate, Dr. Ramsey could attend to your physical injuries," said her uncle.

What Has Gone Before

Having inherited a legacy, Adeline Court, an Irish beauty, visits in India, where she marries Philip Whiteoak, dashing officer of the hussars. When Philip's uncle in Canada dies and leaves Philip heir to his property they decide to venture to the new world. When they sail, Patsy O'Flynn, the coachman, and Adeline's two young brothers, Conway and Sholto, accompany them. On the ship they become friendly with two Irish gentlemen, D'Arcy and Brent, Mrs. Cameron and her daughter, Mary, and an Englishman, Mr. Wilmott. The ship springs a leak and turns back. On second sailing Conway, Sholto, and Mary Cameron do not board the ship. They land in Quebec, where they learn of the marriage of Conway and Mary. A son is born to Adeline and named Nicholas. After a year in Quebec they migrate to Ontario, where Col. Vaughan, a retired Anglo-Indian officer, has settled. The hospitality of the Vaughan home is extended to them while their home is being built. Wilmott buys 50 acres near-by. They name their new home Jalna after Philip's military station in India. Wilmott confides in Adeline that he has run away from a nagging wife and child after providing for them. From Robert Vaughan, Adeline learns of the contemplated visit of his Cousin Daisy. Daisy arrives at Vaughanlands and goes with Philip and Adeline to Wilmott's cottage. Before she left Montreal Daisy met a Mrs. Wilmott who came to Canada to find her husband. Wilmott is upset. Adeline suggests he confide in Philip and is on her way to get Philip when she meets Mrs. Wilmott and her daughter.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

TODAY is Father's day, and a special literary contribution to its celebration was requested by the National Father's Day committee from Mrs. Irma Rombauer, author of "The Joy of Cooking." . . . She wrote two dinner menus, the dream and the reality, fiction and fact, since dad's idea of a thick steak with French fries and lots of onions may be indeed an unrealizable dream. . . . This seems to be the only official literature of the day's celebration, but a local bookseller assures me that many books were bought for father's delectation—and some for his education. . . . For instance, a copy of "Goodbye, Mr. Chippendale," by a young girl who was delighted thus to be able to spoof her father's interest in antiques.

Some fathers can remember the dreamy waltz which used to be played, with the lights dimmed, at college proms. . . . They may remember the time when "Glow, Little Glow Worm, Glimmer, Glimmer" was the "special extra," with sticks of lighted punk glimmering in the dark as the couples swayed in the dips and dipsy doodles of the banal little tune. . . . Those fathers will be amused by Angna Enters' description of the waltz in her autobiography, "Silly Girl," which starts, "Whoever gives himself to the waltz is for its duration held in the voluptuous arms of rapturous enchantments," and continues, "The advent of the waltz brought the first real coming together of men and women on the ballroom floor." . . . Today's young papa may not know that when the waltz was introduced in England a highly incensed Victorian dowager was heard to say, "Of course, it's all right if he intends to marry her."

A Spiritual Father.

One of the most memorable books ever written about a father was Pearl S. Buck's bitter but tender tale of her own father, who was a missionary in China and a man so sure of his vocation as a spiritual father in God's service that he sometimes hadn't time for the gentleness of a mortal father. . . . It was called "Fighting Angel." . . . It has recently been combined with Mrs. Buck's tender and touching biography of her mother, "The Exile," in one volume, called "The Spirit and the Flesh," published both by the John Day company and in a reprint by the World Publishing company.

Fathers who aren't at this moment fighting the battles which will make it possible for all fathers to live again with their children in decent peace, so that there will not be again fatherless Father's days thru the exigencies of war, are probably keeping their eyes glued to maps. . . . One of the most useful of the many atlases is "A War Atlas for Americans." . . . It was prepared under the supervision of the book bureau of the office of war information. . . . The text was drafted under the guidance of Prof. Harold Sprout of Princeton university. . . . There are 84 new maps to illustrate the problems of military geography confronting United States leaders.

Good Atlas Needed.

Many listeners follow the radio commentators with an atlas in their hands. . . . We need a good atlas to know what some of the commentators are talking about. . . . The place names oftenest mentioned now are those which a good many Americans know, but they often become unrecognizable in the mellifluous and dulcet pronunciation of the newscasters. . . . The nearest to a common pronunciation of such place names is to be found in "World Words," published by Columbia University Press. . . . A recent revision and enlargement of their helpful "War Words," it contains the phonetic pronunciation of about 12,000 names and words. . . . Some dads have bought it just to know what the shouting's about—and the shooting.

Easy Lessons in French.

And have you heard of the little pamphlet, "French for the Armed Forces," which gives the phonetic pronunciations for conversation on the march, in billeting, on convoy, on the train, in action, in camp, and in general. . . . A handy gadget for the liberationists. . . . It was created by Basile G. D'Ouakil, Ph. D., LL. B., officier d'Academie of France, now chairman of the modern language department at Fordham university. . . . One of the phrases which M. D'Ouakil has chosen as vital for general conversation is, "I understand French better than I can speak it." . . . Which reminds me of memorable words which the great French surrealist painter, Fernand Leger, spoke to a woman who was talking to him at great speed in English and suddenly realized that he looked blank. "Do you understand me, M. Leger?" she said. "Do you understand my English?" To which M. Leger smilingly replied, "I speak, but I do not understand."

New Hornblower Story.

C. S. Forester, author of the Capt. Horatio Hornblower series, is always a favorite with fathers. . . . The manuscript of the fourth volume on that famous character has just arrived at the Little, Brown & Co. office in Boston after many vicissitudes in the writing. . . . It was planned in 1939, but the war prevented Mr. Forester's working on it. . . . This spring, when he returned to California from the Aleutians, where he had been with the United States navy, he was ill. . . . His doctor forbade him to do any work, but it was impossible for him to remain idle, so he started writing. . . . Part of the book was done in California, a larger part in Rochester, Minn., while he was waiting for appointments at the Mayo clinic, some of it in hasty intervals between writing the accounts of the sinking of the Scharnhorst and the attacks on the Tirpitz. . . . The most unique of the places where he set up his typewriter was in the admiral's quarters of the U. S. S. Proteus. . . . He went to sea in that ship at the invitation of the United States, and was given the admiral's cabin, as there was no admiral aboard. . . . The name of the book? O, I forgot to tell you—it's "The Admiral." . . . Publication date will be announced later.

One for the Ladies.

And since you couldn't have a Father's day without there being a mother somewhere to complete the picture, here is a book for the ladies—a biography of Carrie Chapman Catt, dauntless warrior for woman's suffrage. . . . It is by Mary Gray Peck, and was published on June 4 to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the passage of the 19th amendment—"votes for women" to you. . . . It is a coincidence that on that very day the press all over the country printed the fact that this year there are 600,000 more women than men voters in the country. . . . The old song, "Men must work and women must weep," now reads, "Men must fight and women must vote."

Thrills Packed Into a Tale of Merchant Ships

"SAILORS OF FORTUNE," by Colin Mackenzie. [Dutton, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Al Chase.

Colin Mackenzie was torpedoed three times within 24 hours on two ships during a convoy voyage thru the West Indies, landing in a Trinidad hospital where he spent several months recovering. That's the beginning of "Sailors of Fortune" and it steams along at breathless speed, taking the reader on a Liberty ship to Africa, Sicily, and Italy.

The author found life on an unloading freighter too quiet and he sneaked ashore in Sicily. He wandered up to the front where he was not only under fire but he shot and killed an Italian sniper. At Salerno his ship was one of a huge convoy attacked by Nazi flyers. He witnessed a rocket propelled bomb kill more than 200 men on the cruiser "Savannah."

Mackenzie's story of life on the Yankee merchant marine is packed with thrills and furious action. Recommended to the seeker of fast moving war adventure.

Why Not Snare Leonide Massine Ballet Company for Chicago?

BALLET is a tricky business, full of snares and pitfalls, but a lot of us wouldn't want to do without it. And I can't think of anything more to the ballet point than for Chicago to try to snare that company Leonide Massine may soon be forming. Consider the post-war world, and in it the Auditorium restored to civilian life after its honored career as one of the most hospitable spots in the life of a soldier. Consider that gracious old theater as the home of resident ballet that would desert us only for touring, certain always to return. Crystal gazing? Most crystals hold exactly what vision and hard work put there.

One of the major tenets of my balletic credo is that Massine is the most important of living choreographers. Since Fokine, who can touch him in background or accomplishment? Who has more to offer a ballet company, or anything like as much? It has been a long time since Nijinska turned out a really distinguished work. Balanchine has turned to other than ballet stages, and Lichine has not developed his sketchy promise. Antony Tudor has wit and sensitivity, and his "Pillar of Fire" is a masterpiece of emotional projection in highly individual style, but when he deserted that style for "Romeo and Juliet" he failed. Agnes de Mille has gayety and subtlety, a wayward sense of humor, and the rangy gusto that made "Rodeo" and "Oklahoma!" unmistakably American. No one quite knows how far either of them may go. Jerome Robbins, the newest entrant, has the hit, "Fancy Free," to his credit, a hit described by some of its most ardent admirers as musical comedy in character and without the "heart" that makes you want to see a ballet over and over. I'm out of that argument until I see "Fancy Free" for myself.

The Russian Wonder Boy.

Leonide Massine.

But Massine has been in the world of ballet, at its very nerve center, since the day when Diaghileff, who had broken with Nijinsky, took the 17 year old boy from Moscow's Imperial theater and told Cecchetti to teach him "to dance like Nijinsky." His first big role was in Richard Strauss' "The Legend of Joseph." They called him the Russian wonder boy, and when World War I. broke out he was all of that. He was not only the nucleus of Diaghileff's new company, completely reorganized by necessity, but he created innumerable ballets. Many of them won a lasting place in the repertory.

Massine came into ballet and developed his gifts when the great men of the arts were pouring their talents into Diaghileff's troupe. He worked with Stravinsky, Picasso, Bakst, and dozens more. He experimented and failed, and experimented again, with success. His work ranged from the witty Goldoni comedy, "The Good Humored Ladies," to the cubist "Parade," from the brilliant Spanish "Tricorne" to "Boutique Fantasque" and others of an imposing list. When he left Diaghileff his first work on his own was "Le Beau Danube," that loveliest of Viennese afterpieces that made its Straussian début here with Massine, Danilova, Riabouchinska, Zorina, and Shabelevsky.

But this is not a record of Massine triumphs, any more than it is a wailing wall for such a failure as "Saratoga." Its sole purpose is to jog your memory with the wealth of his contributions to ballet. What other choreographer has to his recent credit such symphonic works as "Choreartium," "Symphonie Fantastique," and "Saint Francis," along with such bouffant frivol as "Gaité Parisienne," such witty foolery as the Dali collaboration, "Bacchanale," or such stylized clarity as the Shostakovich-Matisse work, "Rouge et Noir"?

That Inalienable Imprint of Style.

But these are not so new, you say; how about now? There was "Aleko," to be sure, not the best of Massine, but not dwarfed by anything new of its season. There was "Mlle. Angot," a mere twirl of choreography, but with style. And just last week there was "Fantasie Poetique," created for the guest stars of the Ballet Repertory, almost an impromptu affair, but again with that inalienable imprint of style.

This newest ballet is a Massine sketch in the manner of "Sylphides." Chopin in a moonstruck glade, a gauzy excuse for dancing. He handled the ensemble with gentle tact, so that the girls looked charming. He made the brilliant Eglevsky a focal point, exploiting his impetuosity without suggesting that the stage was too small for so mercurial a leaper. He touched off Hightower's budding resemblance to Danilova, and Marie Jeanne's thistledown suggestion of the early Riabouchinska. He knew, and let you share the knowledge, that Svetlova's arabesque is one of the loveliest in ballet, that Zoritch is a patrician dancer, and Dolinoff a sturdy one. The ballet moved with ease and precision. It was theatrical and it was musical, which is to say it was true ballet.

Massine helped, too, on Nijinska's spotty ballet, "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star." He put Eglevsky and Hightower in leading roles, and perhaps he gave Stanley Herbertt his clew for characterizing the maestro. But there was not much any one could do for "Spanish Rhapsody," Vela Montoya's ballet, which depended more on her castanets than on choreography, and was dwarfed by Marvin Reiss' décor in bloated reminiscence of Berard.

He's Bristling with Plans.

Watching Massine work with this little troupe made it seem imperative that his gifts be salvaged for a major company. He is bristling with plans that need only an outlet. New works, revivals of "Sacre du Printemps" and "Saint Francis," fresh flair for "Beau Danube" and "Gaité Parisienne," which must look to him sometimes as a fond father would see a favorite child in dirty dress and run down shoes.

Well, there it is. If Chicago wants a top flight ballet, Massine could turn the trick. He has great gifts, an artistic conscience, and good judgment. I asked him once who was his favorite ballet conductor. He said Kurtz was a good man, but if I meant his favorite of all the time he had been in ballet, which I did, it was that Frenchman now in San Francisco. Pierre Monteux in person. Didn't I say he had good judgment?

French Singer Will Be Heard Sunday, July 9

Jennie Tourel.
[Abresch Photo.]

Jennie Tourel, French mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, heard in the title role of "Mignon" during that organization's recent season in this city, has been added to the list of soloists to appear during the Ravinia festival. Miss Tourel will sing on Sunday afternoon, July 9, under the direction of Leonard Bernstein, and will be heard in the solo from that composer-conductor's "Jeremiah" symphony and in a Rossini aria.

Further novelty will be added to Mr. Bernstein's programs when, in addition to appearances as composer and conductor, he will play Ravel's piano concerto in G major.

Other Ravinia soloists previously announced include Joseph Szigeti, Hungarian violinist, who will play the Beethoven concerto on July 4 and Bartok's Rhapsody No. 1 on July 11 and Corelli's "La Folia" variations and the Mendelssohn concerto on July 15, under Vladimir Golschmann's baton. Each of the four concerts to be conducted by George Szell will have soloists. Rudolf Serkin will play Mozart's piano Concerto in C major [Köchel 503] on July 18 and Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto on July 22. Kerstin Thorborg, mezzo-soprano, and John Garris, tenor, will sing Mahler's "Song of the Earth" on July 20 and 23. Alexander Brailowsky, pianist, will be the soloist under Désiré Defauw's direction on Aug. 1 and 5, in unannounced vehicles.

No soloists will appear on the programs of Pierre Monteux during the opening week of the festival beginning Tuesday, June 27. Mr. Monteux will be followed as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra by Leonard Bernstein for the week of July 4; Vladimir Golschmann, week of July 11; George Szell, week of July 18; Efrem Kurtz, week of July 25, and Désiré Defauw, week of Aug. 1. The final week of the festival will be devoted to chamber music played by the Budapest quartet. The organization will have a new second violinist this season, Edgar Ortenberg having replaced Alexander Schneider. The regular Tuesday concert will be omitted during the last week and the dates of the quartet's four performances will be Aug. 10, 12, 13, and 15.

The new Chicago Opera chorus, recently selected by audition from more than 1,000 applicants, is now rehearsing four or five times a week at the Civic Opera house under an assistant conductor, pending the arrival of Konrad Neuger, recently appointed chorus master. Mr. Neuger, one of the chorus conductors of the Metropolitan, is scheduled to arrive on June 26 to take charge of rehearsals. The personnel of the new chorus is varied. Some are veterans of former opera choruses, some are young singers making their first venture in this field. Three of the men singers are war veterans with honorable discharges. Ralph Whelan, baritone, was wounded by shrapnel and contracted malaria on Guadalcanal. Rex Hogan, tenor, was wounded while on service in the European war theater, and A. A. Frymark was a marine injured in an accident while in training.

Summer musical events at the University of Chicago are scheduled to begin with a sonata recital by Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Ralph Kirkpatrick, harpsichordist, in Mandel hall on Sunday, July 9, at 8:30. The program is being presented in coöperation with the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation of the Library of Congress. Mr. Schneider is the former second violinist of the Budapest quartet, who recently resigned to devote himself to solo appearances and joint recitals with Mr. Kirkpatrick, one of the best known American harpsichordists and an authority on 17th and 18th century music. The program will consist of two sonatas by Bach and three by Mozart.

The American Opera company will present two operas today in the Eighth Street theater. "Faust," at 3, will be sung by Arthur Wilkinson, William Zane, Harold Willer, Harlan H. Schroeder, Suzanne Stevens, Harriet Bronough, and Mildred Staley. "La Traviata," at 8, will have Ruth Skurnik, George Cliff, and William Friecke in the leading roles. Lawrence Waite will conduct both performances. Bernard Cantor is the stage director and the John Petri ballet will participate.

The American Guild of Organists will hold its fourth biennial regional convention here on Monday and Tuesday. Meetings will be held at various churches in Chicago, Oak Park, and Evanston, and organ recitals will be played by Sara Hammerschmidt, Leo Sowerby, Adrienne Moran, Kenneth Cutler, Mary Porter Gwin, D. Deane Hutchinson, Lester W. Groom, Arthur C. Becker, Whitmer Byrne, Mabel Zehner, Frederick Marriott, Allen W. Bogen, and Frieda Opt-Holt Vogan. The public is invited to attend all church programs.

Music Calendar

THIS WEEK:

Today at 3—American Opera company in "Faust," at Eighth Street theater.

Tonight at 8—American Opera company in "La Traviata," at Eighth Street theater.

COMING:

Sunday, June 25 at 3—Maria Parisi, soprano, and Andrea de Parry, tenor, in Literary Club hall, Fine Arts building.

Tuesday, June 27, at 8:30—Opening of Ravinia Festival. Chicago Symphony orchestra conducted by Pierre Monteux.

Friday, July 21, at 8:30—San Carlo Opera company in "Aida," in Soldiers' field.

Saturday, July 22, at 8:30—San Carlo Opera company in "La Traviata" in Soldiers' field.

Sunday, July 23, at 8:30—San Carlo Opera company in "Il Trovatore," in Soldiers' field.

When Ballet theater opens its new season at the Metropolitan Opera, New York, in late September, two new works will be added to the repertory, David Lichine's "Graduation Ball," originally produced by Ballet Russe, and George Balanchine's "Waltz Academy," with music by Rieti and settings and costumes by Oliver Smith.

Casts for the three operas to be presented by the San Carlo Opera company in Soldiers' field on July 21, 22, and 23 are being assembled by Impresario Fortune Gallo. While the lists are not entirely complete at this date it is determined that "Aida" on the opening night, Friday, July 21, will be sung with Elda Ercole in the title role, Sydney Rayner as Rhadames, Anna Kaskas of the Metropolitan as Amneris, and Mostyn Thomas as Amonasro. "La Traviata" on the second night will have Stella Andreva of the Metropolitan as Violetta, Mario Palermo as the younger Germont, and George Czaplicki as the baritone father. A soprano and contralto for the Sunday night "Il Trovatore" have not yet been selected, but the tenor probably will be Sydney Rayner. Stefan Ballarini is settled upon as the baritone, and Harold Kravitt doubtless will be the bass, Ferrando. The ballet will be headed by the San Carlans, Lydia Arlova, and Lucien Prideaux. A conductor is yet to be named.

Promotion of Education Is Called Nations' Duty

Termed Help to Peace by Vassar Head

By The Rev. John Evans.

Eclipse of the humanities by shadow of war is more apparent than actual, according to President Henry Noble MacCracken of Vassar. As guest speaker at the 102d commencement of Mary Baldwin college, Staunton, Va., he told the graduating class that the liberal arts were immanent in the war and no less essential than even the manual of arms.

"If a liberal education is to mean anything to us," he said, "it means that we must search the periods before, during, and after the war for the materials of our thought. In thus thinking of past, present, and future we are thinking of the things that persist. That country is best able to carry a war to a successful conclusion which possesses a civil life positive, energetic, and integral. These qualities are enshrined in the humanities, and it is the mission of the liberal to give to the people a philosophy to guide them thruout life."

Dr. MacCracken warned that the greatest post-war error possible would be a failure to recognize education as fundamental and primary, and that it should be the first duty of every nation to promote education.

"Just as Washington in his farewell address," he concluded, "looked upon universal education as essential to the preservation of the republic, so the United States should look upon universal international education as fundamental to the spirit of peace in the future."

William Brown Greenlee, trustee of the Newberry library, has presented to Northwestern university his collection of old books which will be housed in the Deering library. Included among these are several Incunabula—books published before 1501—of which there are about 13,000 in America of the estimated 20 million printed in Europe during the 15th century. Of domestic interest in this collection is the September, 1759, issue of the Lady's Magazine. It contains prints of what "the lady of quality is wearing today," with some occasional verse and general information on subjects from botany to music designed for the instruction and diversion of American women.

Buy a Bond and See Authors at Literary Rally

June 27 will be Book and Author Bond Rally day in Chicago. Under the auspices of the women's division of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee, famous authors will visit Chicago, and Chicagoans will have a chance to visit with the famous authors — Chicagoans, that is, who are foresighted enough to invest both in war bonds and in author sightseeing.

Among the distinguished authors to appear will be Carl Van Doren, author of "Benjamin Franklin," Pulitzer prize winning biography; Martha Ostenso, whose first novel, "Wild Geese," won a prize of $13,500; Col. Carlos P. Romulo, author of "I Saw the Fall of the Philippines" and "Mother America," aide de camp to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and Louis Bromfield, whose latest novel in a long series of successes is "What Became of Anna Bolton."

There will be a breakfast at Marshall Field's Walnut room at 9:30, with Peter De Vries, of Poetry magazine, as master of ceremonies. And in the evening at 8:30 in Orchestra hall a great mass-meeting will be held, with distinguished Chicagoans and visitors on the platform with the four leading speakers. Carl Van Doren will act as master of ceremonies. Admission to both events will be a bond whose size will determine the seat its buyer occupies. Representative members of Chicago's literary colony are coöperating with the sponsoring group—of which Mrs. Walter Wolf is chairman—in working for the success of the day.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Charles Collins.

TO SUPPLEMENT this column's remarks of last Sunday on H. P. Lovecraft's expanding vogue, after years of obscurity, August Derleth, his discoverer as a fascinating figure in American literature, submits this new evidence:

"The Outsider and Others," published 1939, out of print December, 1943, is commanding as much as $25 the copy; "Beyond the Wall of Sleep," published December, 1943, is almost out of print also; about 150 copies left.

A little paper bound, selling at a quarter, titled, "The Weird Shadow Over Innsmouth and Other Supernatural Stories," by H. P. Lovecraft, has just been published by Bartholomew House for newsstand sale.

Philip Van Doren Stern of Armed Services Editions, Inc., is currently examining the first Lovecraft omnibus for 15 stories or so to make an Armed Services Selection.

"The Rats in the Walls" will appear again in Derleth's own horror anthology, "Sleep No More!" [Farrar & Rinehart, Sept. 21].

Arkham House will publish late this autumn a third and extra Lovecraft volume, entitled "Marginalia," containing various essays, "revisions" [Lovecraft practically rewrote stories he was paid to revise], a ghost-written piece by Houdini, fragments, photographs—in short, everything which would have no place in the two volume "Selected Letters," which will come out after the war.

Derleth has just signed a contract with World Publishing company for a Tower edition of "The Best Supernatural Tales of H. P. Lovecraft," to come out in the spring or summer of 1945.

When Bennett Cerf of Random House read in this column that Vincent Starrett's detective, Jimmie Lavender, whose "Case Book" is now available, was named after a former pitcher of the Cubs, he had a violent attack of nostalgia, and then wrote:

"How could you fail to add a line about Lavender's greatest claim to fame? It was he who snapped Rube Marquard's record breaking run of 19 consecutive victories. The final score of that game was, Cubs, 4, Giants, 2, and I was pretty annoyed about it at the time. Those were the days when the Cubs and the Giants were the best teams in the land. Look at them today!"

The menace of pins in new shirts is trivial when compared with the occupational hazard of tightly baled packages of books for reviewers. The tools of a literary critic's trade, it seems to us, should be a tinsmith's shears, a cold chisel, and a lather's hatchet. Lacking these, as a dabbler in the business, we have often gouged our fingers with a paper knife as we struggled to find the pearls in the oyster. . . . To avoid lockjaw, our present technique is to open one end of the package with resolute thrusts of a jackknife, and then to lift the blamed thing on high and slam it to the floor. After three such crashes, the books have been jarred slightly out of their shell and are squealing for mercy. They can then be extracted like impacted teeth.

Any household shelf of books that has space for only one volume on music should settle for "What We Hear in Music," by Anne Shaw Faulkner [Mrs. Marx Oberndorfer]. This work, known as a standard authority for 32 years, is now available in its revised 12th edition, and it is capable of answering any question that may come up during intermissions at Orchestra hall. Its publisher is the Victor division of the Radio Corporation of America, and its contents include an almost complete catalog of Victor records in the forms called "classical."

After hearing the highbrows talk ad lib. about the towering stature of Mark Twain, George Ade, Ring Lardner, and other mentionables in the field of American humor, Stanley Johnston of Australia, London, South America, and the U. S. S. Lexington has nominated Damon Runyon for a seat among this nation's comic immortals. He will be glad to know that a new collection of these tales of Broadway characters, entitled, "Runyon a la Carte," will be published within a fortnight by Lippincott.

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake.

ENTRY.	PERFORMANCE.	PAY-OFF.
"TOWARDS ZERO," by Agatha Christie, [Dodd, Mead, $2.]	Nevile Strange shocked Lady Tressilian by having his wife and his divorced wife become her house guests at the same time. She was sure it meant trouble. Actually, it led to murder, and an ordeal for an innocent suspect.	Mrs. Christie adds some neat appurtenances to a marital triangle in order to evolve a puzzle that calls for shrewd deduction. Sharply contrasted characters give vitality to sophisticated mystery drama.
"UNNEUTRAL MURDER," by Hulbert Footner. [Harper, $2.]	German spies aboard a neutral Portuguese ship were not long in learning that the "Mr. Brown" aboard was really Lee Mappin, on a secret government mission. Gestapo espionage and murder were obstacles Lee had to overcome.	Highly successful job of setting up atmosphere of intrigue and trickery. Story filled with exciting action, and hero gives good account of himself. Smart blend of spy work and mystery.
"JOHNNIE," by Dorothy B. Hughes. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.50.]	By following two men he thought were speaking German, Johnnie, first class private, got wedged into delirious events that had to do with a Rudamian conspiracy, and smuggled jewels encased in cheese.	A nightmare of imaginative creation, with all sorts of wacky royalty from a fictional kingdom taking part. For serious mystery readers this offers relaxation at a burlesque. Jolly buffoonery.
"MR ANGEL COMES ABOARD," by Charles G. Booth. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Treachery, greed, and murder were behind disappearance of captain and crew from a ship in mid-ocean. Ann Wingate, newspaper woman, faced peril when she joined the captain's grandson to solve the puzzle.	A highly improbable adventure concocted for exciting entertainment. Plot has unusual ingredients, and a heavy portion of romance. Interesting, but narrative is slow.

10 HEAVY BOMBERS roaring halfway around the world, bombing and fighting every inch of the way—pounding all three Axis partners in four boiling theaters of war—winning glory for America and fame for the ten crews in one of the most amazing odysseys in air history! Manned by . . .

109 AMERICAN BOYS, most of them under 30 years old—gallant, quick-thinking, showing the world what the twin forces of youth and democracy can do—sharing the nerve-shaking thrills of air combat, the salty humor of relaxed moments, the tragedy and comradeship of war, and . . .

555 DECORATIONS FOR BRAVERY making the 513th "the world's most decorated squadron"! 555 intensely dramatic instances of bravery in action—the matter-of-fact bravery of young air veterans who covered . . .

200,000 MILES in two years! Overtaken by war in the middle of the Pacific on that fatal day in December, 1941 . . . then fierce action in the South Pacific . . . on to India . . . the Middle East . . . tragic Greece . . . glorious North Africa . . . Italy!

IT ALL ADDS UP to one of the most magnificent sagas of courage and adventure to come out of the war—and it is superbly told, with a wealth of anecdotes and fascinating details by the man who piloted one of those ten history-making planes—the young Mississippi lawyer, Captain Rowan Thomas. Don't miss it!

LIFE STORY OF EISENHOWER

"EISENHOWER: Man and Soldier," by Francis Trevelyan Miller. [Winston, $2.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons.

Shrewdly timed for publication, this 278 page biography of Gen. Eisenhower must find a prominent place in every library dealing with the war. In it, by prodigious research made more difficult by the inaccessibility of his subject, Dr. Miller has answered the questions that Americans are likely to be asking about the invasion chief.

Dr. Miller [author of 50 other volumes] exhaustively mined the available sources in his nationwide hunt for material, and even adds to his wealth of detail the demerits for which young Ike was cited as a West Point cadet. Sometimes the detail outdoes itself, and here the book cries out for the exercise of a stout blue pencil.

Hard-working, nondrinking, unspectacular Ugly Ike rose to a lieutenant colonelcy in World War I., but afterward was pruned back to permanent rank and was a major as late as 1936. After serving in the Philippines, he distinguished himself as an armored force leader in the Louisiana war games. That made him a marked man, and his rise became incredibly rapid. He was promoted time and again over the heads of senior officers.

Dr. Miller brings out two interesting traits in the general's character. Eisenhower, springing from an extraordinary devout family of German refugees, is himself deeply religious. And, altho born in Texas, he has an unusually high regard for Negroes. He showed this recently by ordering Negro WAC detachments to duty in London.

The book offers hundreds of revealing insights into a personality that will be known to history. It will do until the definitive biography is written.

Leonard Data Wanted.

Clara Leiser, official biographer of William Ellery Leonard, the poet and scholar who died recently, seeks letters and other data concerning Prof. Leonard. She may be reached at 16 St. Luke's pl., New York, N. Y.

Leave Her to Heaven is the story of a woman who cheated earthly justice at every turn.

Ellen's wants always prevailed. She could get the time and the place and the man all together just about all of the time. It did not matter who was in the way. Ellen was judge and executioner. She knew how to escape earth's usual penalties.

Against this volatile force Ben Ames Williams has set the strength of an artist's inward honesty. Here is a struggle between two natures irreconcilably opposed, drawn together by the fatal attraction of equal force.

Tale of How Faith Comes to a Doctor

"THE EMPEROR'S PHYSICIAN," by J. R. Perkins. [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Edw. Wagenknecht.

Dr. J. R. Perkins.

The novelist who would write of the life of Christ labors under a heavy handicap. Tho the story is incomparably the finest and most moving in the world, it has been so well told in the Gospels themselves that any retelling seems futile. No novelist has ever succeeded in making a great character—as great characters go in fiction—out of Jesus of Nazareth; for all the spiritual dynamic which radiates from the Gospel story, the evangelists were apparently not interested in recording the kind of detail upon which a vivid portrait in fiction must submissively depend. Even actors are likely to be so constrained by a sense of reverence [and the fear of offending any substantial group in the audience], that their portrayals of the Christ generally turn out to have about the vitality of a stained glass window.

The remedy, for the novelist, is to be wise enough not to try to compete with the Gospels on their own ground. This wisdom Dr. Perkins has found. What he has written is frankly fiction, and his foreground is occupied by the Roman physician, Sergius Cumanus, who has been sent to Palestine by Caesar on a medical mission, and his half-Jewish professional coadjutor, Luke Galen.

Their mission brings them into contact with Jesus at various points, and as healers they even attempt to compete with Him. But the author has not hesitated to rearrange the chronology of the Gospels, to surround the Master with strange personages, or to invent fresh backgrounds for those we already know. The combination of the familiar and the unfamiliar thus achieved is often of much interest; the old words take on a new challenge in these unexpected settings.

The essential theme of the book is the winning of Sergius Cumanus, whose medical training has left no place in his universe for the supernatural, away from materialistic atheism to Christian discipleship. To bring about his denouement, the author uses John's story of the raising of Lazarus, daringly and with fine effect.

Disdaining most of the tricks of sophisticated modern novelists, Dr. Perkins writes simply and straightforwardly. He knows how to create an illusion, and he achieves a high quality of "reader interest." As "Aborigine," he was once a frequent contributor to the "Line," and Charles Collins has already told Tribune readers that this book may repeat the success of "The Robe." If it does not, we shall simply have one more demonstration of the unpredictable inconsistency of public taste.

Public Invited to Book Club Meeting

His excellency, Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Chicago, will discuss "A World to Reconstruct," by Guido Gonella, at a meeting of the Cathedral Book club, 19 E. Chicago av., Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. The public is invited and no admission is charged.

A panel of Chicago newspaper men will join the archbishop in the discussion. Taking part will be Stanley Johnston of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Eddie Doherty, Clem Lane, Irving Pflaum, and Stanley Pieza. The Rev. Edward Dailey will act as moderator.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

BROADWAY producers, according to the knowledgable Bennett Cerf, writing in the Saturday Review of Literature, are "laughing themselves sick over the spectacle of a reading public making best sellers out of a succession of 'autobiographies' by musical comedy, motion picture, and opera celebrities who can scarcely write a letter home." No names are mentioned by the daring commentator, who is also a publisher, but "while the racket lasts," he asserts, "a lot of underfed but deserving ghost writers are climbing into the 90 per cent surtax bracket [and] the stars themselves are having a wonderful time at autographing parties."

An Ancient Practice.

Ghost writing is a very old practice which has always offered a nice problem in literary ethics. It is impossible to generalize on the subject, for every case has to be judged on its own merits. The practice may be cynical and dishonest or it may be entirely reasonable; it depends on the honesty and general excellence, perhaps the exigency, of the resulting book. The case of military heroes, untrained for writing but with immediate adventures to relate, is, of course, reasonable and understandable. [Mr. Cerf was not talking about such books, nor am I.] In the case of other popular heroes—well, one does not expect songbirds, actresses or baseball players, for example, to be writers too. And it may be doubted whether ghost writers for such heroes romanticize their subjects any more than their subjects would romanticize themselves if they were able to "write." I will agree with anybody, however, who believes that a large majority of these popular "autobiographies" are unnecessary.

As to the practice as a practice, the only point that can safely be made, I think is that the ghost should receive credit for his usefulness or his misdemeanors on the title page. That is an "ethic" not yet universally recognized by publishers, however—hence the hilarity of the Broadway producers reported by Mr. Cerf. There is an element of cynicism in the situation, a note of hysterical humor, and large gobs of what I believe is called human nature. Probably the only persons really fooled are the more naive of the "subjects" themselves and that largish section of the reading public that would rather be fooled than not.

Great Caesar's Ghost.

Ghost writing is as old as literature itself. The author of the "Gallic Wars," one Julius Caesar—remember?—is asserted to have had a number of ghostly assistants in the preparation of his wearisome Latin textbook, but modern instances are more amusing. The great Dr. Johnson, in times of stress, is known to have written pulpit discourses for various clergymen of his day; his modest fee was one guinea per sermon. He once estimated that he had written some 40 in all, and agreed that all were lost to the world; he had kept no copies of them. "I have been paid for them all," he said simply, "and have no right to inquire about them." In the same period, it is recorded, a certain Sir John Hill contracted with a publisher, for 50 guineas, to translate an important work on insects, from the Dutch, but, knowing no Dutch, farmed out the job to another translator for 25 guineas. The second man, equally ignorant, passed it on to a competent hack for 12 guineas—a masterpiece of business, or chicanery, or something.

Dumas & Company.

The 19th century produced Alexandre Dumas, who produced some 1,200 published works. It is obvious that he could not have written them all without assistance, and it is notorious that he employed not less than a dozen ghosts. He founded a fiction factory that is still one of the wonders of literature. Most talented of his ghostly collaborators was Auguste Maquet, who projected and in part wrote the immortal "Three Musketeers." It was the genius of Dumas, however, that made the book a masterpiece. At the height of his remarkable career, the great Alexandre is said to have met his son, also a writer, at somebody's dinner party, and to have asked a paternal question: "Have you read my latest story?"

"No, sir," answered Alexandre Dumas fils. "Have you?"

For the most part, ghost writing—altho sometimes it is freely acknowledged by a credit line—is a trade secret. Many books of our own time are known to have been ghost-written, and in some instances gossip has been quick to name the ghosts. But it seems the part of discretion to say nothing of the immediate scene. Except that the ghost still walks.

Best Action Stories.

Writing from Galesburg, Ill., James F. Jones hopes it will be "convenient" for me to print a list of the best action stories, and contributes a brief list of his own. He likes Howden Smith's "Porto Bello Gold," Nordhoff's "Pearl Lagoon," Merritt's "Seven Footprints to Satan," and "Soldiers of Fortune," by Richard Harding Davis. And he concludes: "If you have knowledge of any tome of antiquity or modern times which will engender in me some of the ecstasy of a first perusal of 'Peregrine Pickle,' please broadcast your information to the world."

I get into more trouble naming "best" books than in any other exercise of the mind or memory, and I'm afraid the ecstasies of youth are always a little difficult to recall, but I will name a few books that have debauched me in their time—or mine—and take a chance. If Mr. Jones by some miracle has missed reading "The Lost World," by Conan Doyle; "King Solomon's Mines," by Rider Haggard, and "The Iron Pirate," by Max Pemberton, he should lose no time in getting them from the Galesburg public library. For good measure, I will add "The Lost Continent," by Cutcliffe Hyne, and "Good Men and True," by Eugene Manlove Rhodes. I take it for granted that he has already read "Treasure Island" 12 times.

Portable Parker Pleases.

I hope everybody who likes books is aware of the admirable Viking Portable library, one of the most satisfying of recent developments in the book trade. The books, as books, are neat, compact, and delightful, a pleasure to handle, and the titles to date are notable, too. The latest collection is an omnibus Dorothy Parker—following Pascal Covici's selections from John Steinbeck—a gathering of all the stories and poems by which she is best known; all based, as you know, on the charming and sensible and sometimes appalling arrangement by which the human race is divided into two sexes. Nobody has done more with this situation than Dorothy Parker, and W. Somerset Maugham pays tribute to her, as a fellow artist, in a special introduction.

New Comedy Is Rambling, Fairly Funny

By John Chapman.

NEW YORK [Special].—J. C. Nugent, as who isn't, is sore at the critics. The round-fronted, round-faced father of Elliott Nugent brought in a comedy he wrote for himself called "That Old Devil" which was taken kindly by the salaried first nighters, but not kindly enough to suit J. C.

Luella Gear.

Everybody liked Nugent, the elder, as a comedian—liked the technique he has built up in a lifetime of trouping in everything from tent shows to big time vaudeville and Broadway hits like "The Poor Nut." Everybody said so. But almost everybody remarked that "That Old Devil" is a thin little play, and this has made J. C. Nugent sore. In the manner of Richard Bennett, he has been talking to audiences, telling them they shouldn't have been laughing as much as they were because the critics hadn't found his comedy funny enough.

"That Old Devil" is more farce than comedy and more clean than dirty, despite the fact that its plot turns around a girl who is, in the polite phrase, "in trouble." In the play Nugent and his wife [Luella Gear, an experienced comedienne] live in a small town in Connecticut, which is a state of boredom. So weary is everybody of everybody else that there is nothing for the ageing women to do but play cards and gabble, pretending that their club, the Chickadees, is hot stuff. All interesting men are at war, and the remaining husbands are dull and sexless.

In the Gear-Nugent home lives a girl who, it is learned, has become an incipient mother. Thru deliberate maneuvering upon the part of the playwright, an erroneous suspicion arises that Mr. Nugent is the author of the young woman's condition. Tired of being taken for granted, not only by his wife but also by all her Chickadee friends, he accepts the blame. Instead of becoming the town louse, he becomes the town wolf and finds it fun. Everybody looks upon him with new interest, and the hens who heretofore have regarded him with a disinterest far worse than loathing now begin to make passes at him.

It all comes out okay in the end, of course, for Mr. Nugent has always been a fine family man. The girl's lover turns out to be a secret husband—and Nugent is astounded but overjoyed when the family doctor informs him that his wife, Miss Gear, is in an interesting condition.

Plays like this have not been uncommon during the last year, and the Broadway birth rate has been high. [The death rate among plays, according to Variety, has remained normal, being five flops out of seven arrivals.] Mr. Nugent, engaged in writing a comedy for himself, has done an amiable but sloppy job. When it should have pace, "That Old Devil" dawdles in order to give its author-star time to indulge in time-proved stage tricks. Nugent, the actor, is a very engaging man. He knows when to throw a line away, and when to drive one home; he is an expert at what Hollywood calls the double take, yet he has sense enough not to overwork this device; his face is mobile and comic, and his general air is that of a nice man.

"That Old Devil" is rambling, inoffensive and filled with mild chuckles. It is not anything for a critic to get sore at its author about—or vice versa.

Not long ago this correspondent supplied you with a cheerful list of shows you might see if you came to this resort during the summer. The list was comparatively lengthy—and it must now be revised. Many attractions which were perking along quite nicely have suddenly gone cold in the heat.

Thus, recent closings include the venerable "Arsenic and Old Lace," which might have gone thru another summer; "Tomorrow the World," which got a new boy in place of Hollywood bound Skippy Homeier, and "Decision," which was almost a good, serious play. A major failure was "Dream with Music," a $200,000 musical which lacked tunes and comedy.

Two nights before Pearl Harbor a melodrama by Patrick Hamilton, "Angel Street," was presented. It was, according to the Dec. 8, 1941, reviews, a hit. But over the week-end something happened and "Angel Street" wobbled and gasped for nearly a fortnight. Then, catching hold of itself, it began to go—and has been going since. This five character, one set thriller is so simple, so economical of method, so expertly theatrical, as to be something of a classic. It has survived several changes of villians—from Vincent Price to John Emery to Ferdi Hoffman; but always it has had two other standbys, Judith Evelyn as the most harassed heroine of modern times, and Leo G. Carroll as the most engaging detective of the same period.

Recently "Angel Street" has come forth with a brand new set of principals: Viola Keats in place of Miss Evelyn, Cecil Humphreys in place of Carroll, and Donald Randolph as the villain. This company made its bow quite brilliantly, but only a day or so before D-day. For a while the going was tough, but now the play seems to have recovered.

"Angel Street" is an excellent example of an actor-proof play. When it opened, people thought Price, Miss Evelyn, and Carroll were so wonderful that nobody could possibly take their places. Yet three men have replaced Price, and the other two artists are out of the cast. I found, upon a recent visit, that the replacements were just about perfect; in other words, Playwright Hamilton did his writing so well that almost any presentable actors can fill the roles. "Angel Street" should make a fortune in stock and in community and school theaters.

So effectively has Carmen Cavallaro played his music in the Empire room of the Palmer House that he has been signed to return there Sept. 21. With him here is Harriet Cross, one of the Merriel Abbott dancers.

Betty Garrett, Drake Singer, Hailed as a Great Find

She Has All 'the Assets to Reach Stardom

By Will Davidson.

In your very-near-future book of the show world, write large and joyfully the name of Betty Garrett. She's the greatest find since Ethel Merman.

Betty is singing her gay and amusing songs in Camellia House of the Drake hotel, and that glittering showcase has never displayed a more captivating entertainer. She has all the assets that are the foundation of stardom—charm, superb timing, buoyant personality, excellent material, a good voice which she doesn't attempt to stretch beyond whatever limits it may have, and an intuitive physical response to the number she is singing.

Betty has, too, that almost whimsical detachment that is to me the mark of an expert comedienne. When she sings in boogie time about "The Daughter of Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair" she doesn't force the humor and the implications upon you with extravagant gestures. Rather, she does it with the quiet and sparkling finesse of an expert raconteur. Arrangements and material are tailor-made for Betty, but she isn't a slave to design. Proof of that is the delight of Bill Snyder's orchestra over the ad libs that sneak into her songs. It's hard to see how this young lady can miss fame.

Mr. Snyder is playing superb music for the shows and the dancing in Camellia House, and with his augmented band should prove a capable successor to Neil Bondshu in the Blackstone's Mayfair room come Irene Bordoni and June 30.

Ethel Waters has been a commanding figure in the show world for a long time, and it is good to see her again, as the star of the Rio Cabana's current air cooled show. She may have left a bit of fine edge of her voice along the years, but when she sings "Stormy Weather" and "Cabin in the Sky" and all those numbers to which she gave so much fame, it is like a happy reunion. Ethel can still banter over her patter songs with the same full enthusiasm, and that's good, too.

There is competition for Miss Waters in this show—good competition. Danny O'Neil, for instance. Danny has an ease of manner that matches perfectly his easy, beautiful singing. He's a very much sought after entertainer, and with good reason. You don't find Danny O'Neils in bunches. Right now Danny's most exciting prospect is an impending visit to California to see his new son for the first time.

Rosita and Deno, the tiny whirling dervishes who have been seen in the best clubs here before; Isabel Johnson, a pleasant tap dancer; and the Rio girls fill out this buxom revue. Frank Pichl gets a laurel for his music, too.

The Pan American cafe of the Hotel La Salle has a completely new show on view, but fortunately Ralph Morrison's orchestra has been held over. The revue is not exactly what you would call stimulating. Best of the offerings is Loraine Westfall's singing. Loraine has a good voice that is pleasant to hear, altho her presentation leaves something to be desired.

Carla Borrell's Spanish dancing—at least in the numbers presented opening night—lack the fire necessary for this type. Best of them is a little comedy dance, yet it is dragged out and out and out until the comedy is so thin that even ending it up by kissing the cafe critics hardly merits a very enthusiastic revue.

Some one has done the Four Illusions a great disservice by encouraging them in their efforts to make something entertaining of the terribly overworked phonograph-pantomime skit. The conscientious effort these boys put into their work should pay them, and their audiences, better dividends.

Morrison's music continues to be pleasing in its quiet, well mannered way. And Ray has Jerry Friedman, the marimba star, to call upon for specialties in the show. The number in which a dummy tap dances on the marimba is a cute idea, but needs better staging.

With an augmented band that has strength and color, Henry Gendron now is occupying the stand in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel. Since there are no longer any shows in this room, Henry's music until 10 p. m. is for diners only, and he offers them a splendidly varied selection, modulated ideally for its purpose. His later dance music is of the same high caliber.

Carl Schreiber has taken over Henry's former spot in the danceless Park Row room of the Stevens. Considering that little instrument he plays, you might say that Carl has celeste word in music. It is pleasantly appropriate for this cool grey room.

Don't miss hearing little Joanell in the Buttery of the Ambassador West. She has just started an engagement there and she's a darling. Joanell sings as much with her smile and her eyes as with her voice letting her delightful personality find expression in all three. She favors the older songs and does a cute job with "Somebody Loves Me," "I Don't Know Why," and the like. There are some special arrangements that should be on display by now, which Dave Morrison, the popular orchestra leader in the Buttery, says are honeys.

Boswelling the Bistros:

The Chez Paree is exulting in its announcement that Lena Horne, the stage, radio and movie star, will be its name attraction as of August 3. The grapevine tells me that sundry changes in acts are to take place before then, if they haven't already. My telepathy set is on the blink, so I wouldn't be sure.

Leo Crosley, former 88'er with Ramon Ramos, will have the new band in Camellia House, starting June 30. . . . Charlie Wright, whose band was one of the most popular ever to play there, is now at the Providence Biltmore, in Rhode Island. . . . A new name has been added to the troupe at the Sarong—Nika Djaya, a Hindu dancer who joined Devi Dja's little group after its Hollywood stay. . . . The Blackhawk restaurant now offers tax free dining to guests leaving by 8:30 p. m. Chuck Foster's music starts at 7:30 but dancing is barred until an hour later. . . . Lawrence Welk comes back to the Trianon, and Art Kassel takes over the Aragon on July 1.

Larry [Out Again in Again] Adler has changed his mind. He'll stay with the Palmer House show until it closes June 28, instead of buying his way out a week early with a ten grand check in order to appear in two movies. First case I've heard of the signer, not the check, bouncing back.

Vestal's Book on Missouri Is Reported Nearly Ready

By Harry Hansen.

NEW YORK.

READERS of the "Rivers of America" series have been wondering when the authors and editors would get around to two major rivers not yet in the collection—the Ohio and the Missouri. They may take heart; I have word from the house of Farrar & Rinehart that the book on the Missouri is practically complete, save for revisions. It has been written by Stanley Vestal, professor of English in the University of Oklahoma, with his usual care. Vestal, whose real name is Walter Stanley Campbell, has made the history of the Indian lands his specialty and written with great thoroness about the tribes, the Santa Fe trail, and similar topics, so that the Missouri was right in his front yard. He has also written on professional writing under his real name. His manuscript is now being studied by Hervey Allen, who became editor of the series when Stephen Vincent Benet died. The Missouri book, however, will not be ready in time for this fall.

The Ohio project has been less fortunate. Constance Rourke was chosen for the job, but died before attempting it; later Neil Swanson, the Baltimore editor and historical novelist, was about to do it when he was swamped by his regular work. At present the Ohio rises and falls without a chronicler, altho a very good writer may assume the task.

Two River Books Ready.

Two new river books are ready for announcement: "The Salinas: Upside Down River," by Anne B. Fisher, is promised for the fall. This is the third largest river in California—can you name the others? The other is "Rivers of the Eastern Shore," by Hulbert Footner. This author, as readers of his books know, lives in an ancient house on the eastern shore of Maryland, which he described in "Charles Gift." Best known as a writer of books of mystery and adventure, he has also written other works, among them "New York, City of Cities," and "The Life and Adventures of Commodore Joshua Barney."

There are now 24 books in the rivers series, and one of them, "Upper Mississippi," exists in two editions, one of them revised. The sets, however, will contain only the revised edition from now on.

DeVoto Turns to History.

Bernard DeVoto came to town to talk on the Invitation to Learning program and declared he had nothing to kick about. The weather was fine and the book situation healthy. As to "The Literary Fallacy," he would say nothing about that; having stated his case, it was now up to the reviewers and commentators. But his real interest, said he, was history, and he was just tackling a job that would take some time to complete. It was nothing less than a thorogoing book about the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Tho often referred to, this expedition seems to have had less attention than many another great historical event. This means that a great deal of original material awaits the careful student. Bernard DeVoto knows where it is; his work on "The Year of Decision, 1846" provided him with an immense amount of information. Besides, he has been dealing with western history all his life.

Novel Contests Open.

It's full speed ahead for two new novel writing contests. The Doubleday, Doran contest opened June 1 and will close Jan. 1, 1945. The prize is $20,000. The Harper novel contest opened June 15 [an interesting date to remind one of heavy expenses, surely] and will close June 1, 1945. The amount is $10,000. In both cases the contests are open to new as well as established writers; both publishers would prefer to discover new talents, but the primary object is to get good novels. From my experience with contests I'd say that after Jan. 1, 1945, the house of Harper will receive a number of well thumbed manuscripts from the other contest.

In a few particulars the contests differ. The editors of Doubleday, Doran will be the judges of their contest, whereas the Harpers appointed Irita Van Doren, J. Donald Adams, and Betty Smith as their judges, and will not vote. The Doubleday contest will permit manuscripts to be submitted anonymously; in the Harper contest the author will be made known to the publisher but not to the editors. Naturally, no awards will be made unless the author is known to have submitted his own original work.

Nation Goes to School.

From where I sit it seems that the country is going to school to study geography. Half a dozen books on maps and global geography are readily available and more are coming. The Simon & Schuster item, "A War Atlas for Americans," probably will run away from competitors because it was compiled by the office of war information and is really a big government investment. The government agencies will use large numbers of copies in their work. But since it also contains a history of the war it really should have a supplement every month or six weeks to keep it up to date. The first edition reached 100,000 copies, of which 80,000 were paper and 20,000 cloth bound.

Books about babies are getting more detailed and complicated all the time. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen of Chicago has written the most detailed of all the baby books in "The Baby Manual," which is expected to have a wide circulation and be standard for years. A first edition of 20,000 copies was printed.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

LLOYD C. DOUGLAS, one-time Hoosier minister and now big league author, tells Jack O'Brian of the Associated Press that he's not going to permit his next novel to be made into a movie . . . Like many other authors, Mr. Douglas in the past has written with the film and magazine rights in mind . . . He says he was constantly faced with the problem of having 16,000 or so words ready by a certain date each month . . . Now that he is rich he feels he can indulge in the luxury of a careful, unhurried preparation of what he considers his most important work to date . . . "I'm a little tired of art by the yardstick," he says . . . His "The Robe" has been such a huge success that he probably could obtain something like $300,000 for the film rights to his next one. . . . The new novel will be called "The Big Fisherman" and it will be about Simon Peter.

June Wetherell of Minneapolis will see her "Shut the Door Behind You" published by Dutton in August . . . She's the author of "But That Was Yesterday" and other novels . . . Robert Penn Warren, also of Minneapolis, paused in Chicago long enough last week to let it be known that he's half-way through his third novel . . . His others were "Night Rider" and "At Heaven's Gate." . . . Between writing poetry and novels, and teaching English at the University of Minnesota, Mr. Warren finds time to review books for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE . . . Another book on Franklin D. Roosevelt is due Aug. 2 . . . It's called "What Manner of Man?" . . . Noel Busch wrote it, and Harper will publish it.

Rose Oller Harbaugh, manager of the Marshall Field store's book section, and A. Kroch, president of Kroch's Bookstores, have been elected directors of the American Booksellers' association . . . Ralph Henry, manager of the Carson Pirie Scott book section, last week completed his thirty-third year with that store . . . Rosamond Du Jardin of Glen Ellyn, Ill., has another novel, "Brief Glory," coming out tomorrow . . . Her first one, "Honorable Estate," was issued last fall by Macrae-Smith . . . On the Farrar & Rinehart fall booklist is "Blood of the Lamb," by Charles H. Baker Jr. . . . To the conductor of this column, at least, that title has a vaguely familiar ring . . . In this connection we recall that a number of years ago Edna Ferber wrote "American Beauty," only to discover that a novel of the same name had been turned out by Arthur Meeker Jr. two years previously. . . . It seems that there's no copyright on book titles.

The deadline on manuscripts in one contest sponsored by the Midwestern Writers' conference has been changed from July 1 to Aug. 1. . . . As previously announced, $200 will be given by THE TRIBUNE for the best war time experience recounted by a man or woman in the army or navy. . . . The award is to be made Sept. 23. . . . At the Fifth Annual Writers' conference, to be held at Northwestern university in Evanston next month, this newspaper will donate another $200 for the best short story written by a man or woman in uniform. . . . With all the current interest in writing in the middle west, two books by Dale Warren are attracting the attention of budding authors. . . . They are "What Is a Book" and "A Modern Galaxy." . . . Prof. Paul H. Douglas, Louis Zara, and Dr. Morris Lychenheim, all of Chicago, are among the officers of the Walt Whitman Society of America, which has selected Lewis Mumford's "The Condition of Man" and Leland Stowe's "They Shall Not Sleep" for its 1944 book awards.

Four Year Wonder.

Four years after its publication, "Lassie Come Home" is still at the top of the list in popularity among children's books, according to a recent survey of library preferences.

Graustarkian Intrigue Is Re-enacted in the Balkans

"HEADQUARTERS BUDAPEST," by Robert Parker. [Farrar & Rinehart, $3.]

Reviewed by James Gray.

In those distant days of man's innocency before the world had indulged in two catastrophic wars, glib writers of fiction used to while away dull hours for us by dreaming up tales of intrigue in Balkan kingdoms. In each of them various factions of the palace crowd would vie with one another to see which should have the honor of strangling the princess. But at the climax some clean cut young British or American always dashed audaciously onto the scene to save her throne for her.

It may seem frivolous and cruel to suggest that the Balkan countries where now the people are being so outrageously exploited, bullied, browbeaten, and robbed by the Nazis are living out the destiny created for the imaginary kingdom of Graustark by the late George Barr McCutcheon.

But in his dramatic and brilliant book, "Headquarters Budapest," Robert Parker suggests that the plots and counter-plots, in which the ruling houses of Romania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, and all the rest have indulged, show a familiar pattern. And now, once more, clean limbed Britishers and Americans are rushing in to save the throne of Graustark with the blessing and the authority of their governments.

Mr. Parker has traveled thru central Europe as representative of the Associated Press during all the past disastrous decade. He has watched cynical Nazis snatching all the Balkan resources at the point of a gun, leering and gloating as they promise the territory of one country to another in defiance of all international ethics. And now the very monarchs who have so miserably used their own people are being promised the restoration of their "old, discredited, rotten" regimes, in return for collaboration with the united nations.

To a close observer of the Balkans it does not make sense. Robert Parker says so with vigorous emphasis in a book that reads as excitingly as a Graustark romance and as depressingly as indictments of the stupidity and cupidity of international intrigue always must read.

Once Dewey Was Name of Naval Hero

"THE ADMIRAL," by Laurin Hall Healy and Luis Kutner. [Ziff-Davis, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Tremaine McDowell.

Luis Kutner.

George Dewey lived an appallingly uneventful life—like the majority of men to whom the exigencies of war have brought fame. During the Civil war he four times took part in what were then called major engagements, and during the Spanish-American war he had his day of glory. But 70 of his 80 years were so barren that his biographers fill nearly half their pages with a history of the United States navy. This narrative opens in pre-history ["In the beginning man swam across lakes with only a log to aid him. Then wiser men hollowed out trees to build canoes."] and concludes with an account of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Laurin Hall Healy.

The Admiral, as he was christened at Annapolis, was always a fighter. In 1856, for example, the young midshipman was riding home on a train with his sister and her schoolmates. "A group of young men [rowdies, they were called] tried to start a conversation with the girls. The boys apparently were too fresh toward the girls and others in the car. Finally Dewey stood up in his uniform and offered to thrash the lot of them. This was the gallant gentleman defending womanhood. And the approach was manual." In 1898 this same pugnacity sank seven Spanish ships and killed 323 Spanish sailors in Manila bay.

The biographers cite as sources not only unpublished letters but classroom histories of the United States, The Ladies' Home Journal, an article on "Commemorative Store Cards of Admiral Dewey" in the Numismatic magazine, and eight earlier biographies. This ninth biography is sponsored by Josephus Daniels, Capt. L. P. Lovette, United States navy, and George Goodwin Dewey, son of the admiral. It is a worthwhile work by a couple of Chicagoans.

Advice to Church: Preach God's Word

"THE CHURCH AND THE WAR," by Karl Barth. [Macmillan, $1.]

In this letter to American Christians the celebrated Swiss theologian appeals to the church to be the church—that is, to preach the word of God as revealed in Jesus. That word, he insists, carries in it the solution of such concrete problems as National Socialism without "dragging politics into the pulpit." The little book is certain to arouse differences of opinion among those who are scholarly enough to follow its rather difficult style.

Pastoral Play of Ben Jonson Is Completed

"THE SAD SHEPHERD," by Ben Jonson, now completed by Alan Porter. [John Day, $2.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

Often the most delicate poetry comes as a vigorous shock when it is read in the midst of books dealing with modern violence. The shift from the latest inside dope on the Far East to such an Elizabethan speech as the following is sudden and welcome:

Hath any vermin broke into your fold?
Or any rot seized on your flock, or cold?
Or hath your fighting ram burst his hard horn?

This is a pastoral comedy which Ben Jonson left unfinished. Alan Porter [until his recent and lamented death an Englishman teaching at Vassar] has completed it, in almost identical meter and phrasing.

The whole is a pure example of that rural tone which has been so strong a tradition in poetry in the English language. The verse is fluent and uncomplicated and full of a formal ease.

The present version was given by the students of Vassar in an outdoor theater of appropriate country air. I am sure that the performers were as pleasant to look upon as they were pleasant to hear. Just the kind of presentation lively Ben Jonson would have wanted himself.

Sailor's Yarn.

How two naval officers and a crew of newly trained sailors captured a Japanese destroyer, changed its name to the U. S. S. Hokeydokey, and put it to work against the Japs is the theme of a sailor's yarn written by Comdr. William C. Chambliss while on active duty in the Pacific. It will be published in July by Harcourt, Brace & Co.

MAUROIS INTERPRETS AMERICAN DEMOCRACY

Makes Vital Panorama of Our Nation

"THE MIRACLE OF AMERICA," by Andre Maurois. [Harper, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

"My country, 'tis of thee," we sing with special lustiness and gratitude these days, but how many of us really know our country? How many of us read her story or tell it over and over as we would sing a beloved song? To how many of us is the pattern of democracy a pattern which we can translate into action as skilfully as a trained engineer translates a blueprint? How many of us really know what that democracy really is? Any book which gives us clearer eyes with which to understand and utilize the pattern of democracy is a book worth knowing well.

One of the enlightening ways in which Americans can better know their own history is to read it as it is interpreted for those who are only vaguely aware of the details of our political and historical ideals and ideas. The French, in spite of their traditional affection for the American democracy, actually understand our ways of public life no better than we understand the French ways.

Andre Maurois, France's best known biographical and historical interpreter of the English speaking peoples to his countrymen, has now written a companion piece to his "The Miracle of England." In "The Miracle of America" he says: "I hope this work will be useful, first to the French reader . . . who will find here the facts arranged in a fashion conformable to his habits of mind, and then perhaps to the American reader, who will see what a foreign friend thinks of his great men, his institutions, his past, and his future as well. I believe it is of advantage to the French at the moment of rebuilding their country and founding the fourth republic to study the histories of other societies of free men. This book will help them, I hope, to understand why one of those societies has succeeded so well."

Because M. Maurois is eager to be of service to his fellow countrymen, he is also of great service to us, the readers of a country which he knows intimately and loves devotedly. He reconstructs our past for the French—and for us—with the genius, the simplicity and clarity of a teacher who can make his subject vital and living.

Because his object was to show his fellow countrymen "why one of those societies has succeeded so well," he has done more of a political and economic interpretation of America's miracle of development than a history of life in our country.

And because all relationships in any government are the relationships of human beings and in a democracy the leaders of their fellow men are the symbol as well as the choice of the masses, M. Maurois has made detailed studies of the Presidents of our country and of their perpetuation or [sometimes] disregard of the American ideal. In that sense "The Miracle of America" is something of a modern counterpart of the great work of another Frenchman, De Tocqueville, whose "Democracy in America" [published in two volumes in 1835 and 1840] became a classic.

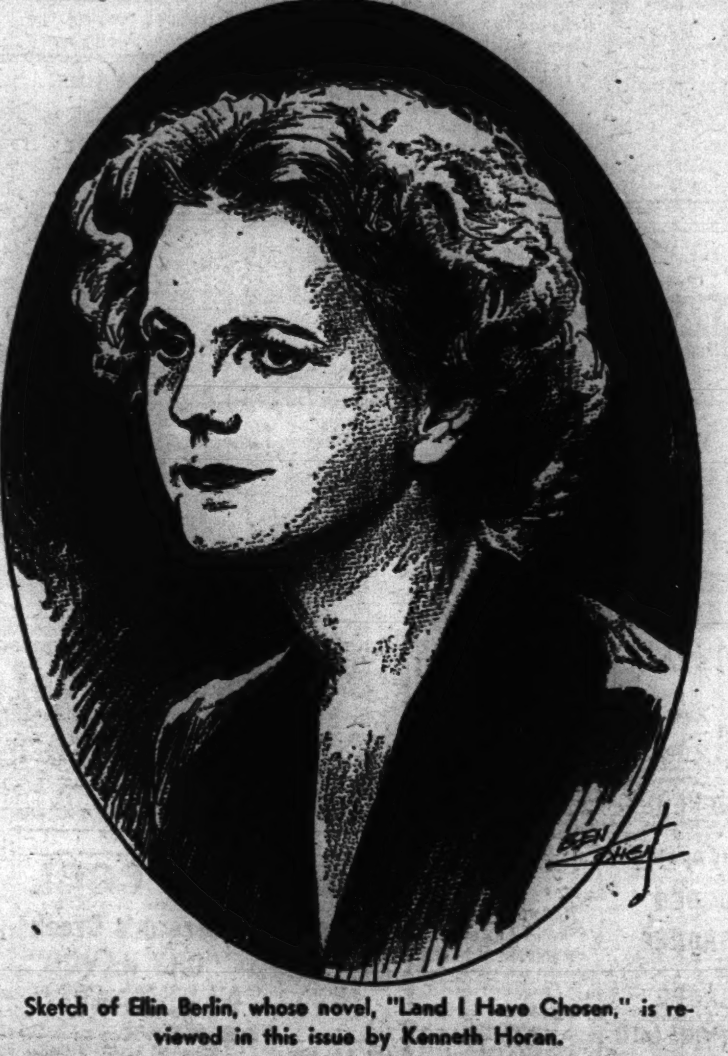
Most American readers will, I think, find "The Miracle of America" a fresh, living panorama of our past, illuminated by that "dry" light which Bacon declared was "ever the best," the light of understanding thru the intelligence rather than thru the emotions.



Sketch of Ellin Berlin, whose novel, "Land I Have Chosen," is reviewed in this issue by Kenneth Horan.

Dalliance and Bloodletting in Busy Piratical Career

"TOM BONE," by Charles B. Judah. [Morrow, $3.]

Reviewed by Kenneth C. Kaufman.

Tom Bone, Plymouth dockside waif, had seen his father murdered in cold blood by Edward Cousin's orders, and his sister a suicide by reason of the sadistic lewdness Cousin mingled with his Cromwellian piety. Also he had fallen in love with Polly Bragg, a little vixen who gave promise of being, in time, a vivid beauty. But Polly was in the clutches of a gentleman. So Tom, swearing eternal hatred for Cousin and all gentry, after an interlude on the Banks of Newfoundland, indentured himself for seven years in return for passage to Virginia.

Here fortune smiled. He married his master's daughter, took up land, bought the services of Polly Bragg [fortuitously come to Virginia as a bond girl], lost his plantation in an Indian war, lost his wife to a younger man during Bacon's Rebellion, and skipped out to Jamaica. He acted as a pirate's "fence," married Polly Bragg, and turned gentleman planter.

Then in his quest for Edward Cousin, now a slave trader, he became a pirate, found him, fought him, lost, saw [as he thought] Cousin murder Polly, escaped, was saved by a spitfire Irish girl, joined up as a common seaman with Cousin, led a mutiny of blacks, failed, and escaped again to Jamaica.

Charles B. Judah.

He played hide and seek with Cousin and the latter's mysterious wife, almost had his victim, let him go, went to New England as a gentleman capitalist, had the satisfaction of seeing Cousin come begging, found the mysterious wife to be none other than Polly Bragg, and finally killed Cousin, altho without much satisfaction in it. For by now he had grown old and weary.

• • •

The reader will understand and sympathize. For there is simply too much of Tom Bone. Half his 497 pages and fewer episodes would have made a better book. Judah has a fertile imagination and is clever at constructing situations, altho not quite so clever at solving them. Careless bloodletting and careless amours have their charms, no doubt, but they pall with much repetition.

Geopolitics Isn't Fully Made Clear

"GEOPOLITICS IN PRINCIPLE AND PRACTICE," by Russell H. Fifield and G. Etzel Pearcy. (Ginn, $2.75.)

Geopolitics—which is to say industrial, commercial and military geography viewed thru the eyes of a Machiavellian prince with global ideas—demands attention, if for no other reason than its influence on axis thought. The idea is reviewed in 200 pages by Prof. Fifield, University of Missouri geographer, who did the text, and Mr. Pearcy, air lines geographer, who did the 32 maps and illustrations. The maps are easily understood. The text would be understood more easily if it did not lack organization — a serious fault in discusing a subject which itself is ill defined and unlimited. LAURENCE T. HERON.

Here Is a Superb Account of Lives of Fighting Men

"GOD ON A BATTLE WAGON," by Capt. James V. Claypool and Carl Wiegman. [Winston, $1.50.]

Reviewed by the Rev. F. H. O. Bowman.

The chaplain who served for 20 months on the famous Battleship X, which won everlasting glory in the sea battles of Santa Cruz and Guadalcanal, tells the story which the mothers and fathers, wives and sweethearts of the men who served on her—and on every other fighting front—have been waiting to read.

How did their Joe or their Jim live and think and feel both during the battle and during the long days which preceded it? Who took care of him when he was sick, when he was discouraged, when his temper flared and he got in trouble?

The chaplain is the man who knows these intimate personal things about the men he serves. Chaplain James V. Claypool, of the U. S. S. South Dakota [now senior chaplain of the naval training station and operating base at Norfolk, Va., and one of the most beloved chaplains who ever served the navy], with the coöperation of Carl Wiegman of the Tribune staff, tells the story of these men in "God on a Battlewagon" and makes it one of epic beauty and reality and courage.

The reader lives with the men from the day when the mysterious Battleship X, as the South Dakota was called for many months, sets out for her unknown destination with her green crew, thru the wearisome days of gunnery practice under the demanding eye of the skipper, Capt. Thomas Leigh Gatch ["Gunpowder Gatch"] to the hour of the historic night battle of Guadalcanal, called by Adm. Halsey the navy's biggest slugging match since the Civil war.

The story of the burial of the 40 men who gave their lives in this battle would of itself give distinction to any book. Thruout the long afternoon and night, while the rain beat down and soaked them to the skin, Chaplain Claypool and his two assistants worked at identification. Then, while the ship scurried thru the black night toward safety, began the burials, with the chaplain repeating again and again the committal prayer as each body met the waves.

But the chaplain deals also with the living, and here the story is one of gripes and glory, personal counseling, prayers, services, family troubles, letters that come and letters that fail to come, men who are brave, others who are weak.

It is a story of interminable "bull sessions" about religion and life; the operating table turned into an altar . . . but why tell a story which is so superbly told in "God on a Battlewagon" by the Claypool-Wiegman combination?

Our hope is that this book will find its way into libraries of all kinds, especially those of churches and theological seminaries—to say nothing of those in the many homes where one or more service stars hang from windows waiting for the return of the men the chaplains now serve on land and sea.

Nazism and Americanism in Contrast

"LAND I HAVE CHOSEN," by Ellin Berlin. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

The ideologies of two countries are neatly compared in this conversational drama which interprets characters thru their words. Ellin Berlin knows the European scene, and her heroine is a German woman who seeks to escape the oncoming rush of naziism.

Obviously the author feels an overwhelming sympathy for her attempt. Few persons see the way the wind is blowing in their native land, and when they do, and make adverse prophecies, their unpopularity is considerable. Thus Lisa Blessing, the famous German actress, found she must leave her husband, who was high up in the Fuehrer's counsels, and escape to America, while simultaneously Anne Brooke, an American society woman, hurried to meet what she thought was the security of the new order.

The theme is shot with music. It is impossible for the wife of Irving Berlin to tell her story without the lovely accompaniment of well known and popular lyrics. So, in the midst of an emotional scene, the reader is transported to the emotion itself by means of the words of some quotation which invoke the very feeling involved in the plot.

"Land I Have Chosen" is carefully and imaginatively written. It compares fashionable American social life, just before World War II, with the beginnings of naziism in Europe, and it is almost personal in its presentation.

Many books have been written on the subject, but no story has been told that is quite so vivid, for the growth of the evil is here seen to be an unconscious thing, and its stature is attained in the midst of confusion. This subtle analysis in the story of two women and the men they loved is extraordinarily clear.

There are skill and grace in Ellin Berlin's writing. In less graceful hands her plot might be hackneyed.

War Time Values in Life of Small Town

"WHEN I COME BACK," by Frank R. Adams. (McBride, $2.50.)

It hardly needs explaining. The typical small American town adapts itself to life during war. New problems, stern requirements and a fresh set of values maintain, and here they all are, in a competent, well written story of what has happened to most of us, and how we take it. KENNETH HORAN.

British Merchant Marine Chronicle

"BATTLE OF THE OCEANS," by Warren Armstrong. [Liveright, $2.50.]

This is an informative story of England's part in the war at sea from the men's point of view. The book, by a practical seaman who served in the British merchant marine for some years, gives a comprehensive account of how the war got under way and is crammed with exciting stories of combat and courage. It's an informal history of the English merchant marine.

A Little About the Movies on City's Screens

"The Hour Before Dawn." Due to a childhood accident, Jim [Franchot Tone] dislikes firearms and killing. When the war strikes, Veronica Lake, a refugee, comes to live in his household, but in reality is a spy. They marry, but soon her activities are discovered and Jim joins the air forces. Apollo.

• • •

"Going My Way." Bing Crosby, a priest, is sent to a parish which is involved in troubles, including a church mortgage, neighborhood kids, and a fire. However, with his songs, kindliness, and understanding the difficulties are satisfactorily ironed out. Rise Stevens, James Brown, and Barry Fitzgerald are co-starred. Chicago.

• • •

"The Whistler." A mystery film adapted from the radio series. Its leads are portrayed by Richard Dix, J. Carrol Naish, and Gloria Stuart. Garrick.

• • •

"Shine On, Harvest Moon." Starring Ann Sheridan and Dennis Morgan, this is the life story of Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth, stars of yesterday. It tells of their climb to the Ziegfeld Follies and success. American, Broadway Strand, Center, Crown, Devon, Vogue, Maryland, Crystal, Biltmore, Belpark, Howard, Senate, State, Manor, La Grange, Tivoli [Downers Grove], Jeffery, Rhodes, Ogden, Beverly, Alcyon, Villas, York, Forest, Alamo, Tiffin.

• • •

"Address Unknown." This is K. T. Stevens' introduction to screen audiences. Paul Lukas, academy award winner, and Carl Esmond star with her. Two partners in San Francisco split, one returning to Germany to become a Nazi. He later becomes responsible for the death of his former partner's daughter. Garrick.

BEFORE DAWN

Here are Veronica Lake and Franchot Tone as they look in a scene from "The Hour Before Dawn." Apollo.

• • •

"Passage to Marseille." Humphrey Bogart, Claude Rains, Michele Morgan, and Philip Dorn are some of the leading characters. Five men escaping from Devil's Island are picked up by a ship, where they tell their story. The ship is attacked by planes, but manages to reach England, where the men join the fighting forces. Roosevelt.

"Knickerbocker Holiday." Based on a play and also some historical facts from back in the 1650s, this is a comedy film with music, gayety, and politics of that day. The stars are Nelson Eddy, Constance Dowling, and Charles Coburn. Apollo.

• • •

"Follow the Boys." George Raft, rejected for military service, organizes a group to entertain troops overseas. On the way over the ship is torpedoed and he is killed, but the show goes on. Vera Zorina and Grace McDonald also are featured. Palace.

• • •

"Pin Up Girl." Betty Grable, a small town girl, leaves for Washington to work, when fame catches up with her. Before the end of the film the young lady is billed as the nation's No. 1 pin up girl. Joe E. Brown, Martha Raye, and John Harvey are also starred. State-Lake.

• • •

"The Bridge of San Luis Rey." A bridge collapses as five men, doomed to die, plunge to their death. From this point, the scenes are flashbacks, telling the story of their lives and what brought on the tragedy. The film stars Lynn Bari, Akim Tamiroff, and Francis Lederer. McVickers, Riviera.

• • •

"See Here, Private Hargrove." Filmed from the book of the same title, the plot has to do with Pvt. Hargrove, former newspaper man, being inducted into the army. There is trouble with finances, K. P. duty, and even a girl. Robert Walker, Donna Reed, and Keenan Wynn have the leading roles. United Artists.

"Gildersleeve's Ghost." Take a mixture of a loose gorilla, the return of two of Gildersleeve's ancestral ghosts, two sinister scientists and a beautiful blonde who vanishes and you have a plot. It stars Harold Peary and Marion Martin. Palace.

• • •

"Lady in the Dark." This film, based on the Gertrude Lawrence play, comes to the screen in technicolor with elaborate settings, gowns, and cast. Ginger Rogers is the modern miss who visits a psychiatrist and unravels the story. Ray Milland and Jon Hall are cast with her. Belmont, Century, Northtown, Norshore, Congress, Gateway, Pantheon, Tower, Lamar, Teatro.

Ignorance Is Bliss.

HOLLYWOOD.—Lack of acting experience proved a boon to 10 young screen newcomers. They were cast in Frank Sinatra's "Manhattan Serenade" to play musical comedy characters who don't know how to act.

Notes of Music and Musicians

By Albert Goldberg

The Messiah Treble choir will give its sixth annual concert at Messiah Evangelical Lutheran church auditorium, N. Melvina and Patterson avs., tonight at 8. The choir is composed of high school students directed by Harold P. Wukasch.

• • •

Faculty members of De Paul university school of music will be heard in a series of Friday afternoon recitals open to the public, at the Little theater, 64 E. Lake st. Richard Czerwonky, violinist, will play on July 17 at 2; Margaret Lester, soprano, will sing on July 14 at 2; Rose Goldberg, pianist, will be heard on July 21, and Ralph Niehaus, tenor, and Morris Gomberg, violinist, will give a joint recital on July 28. Arthur C. Becker, dean of the school, will play an organ recital in St. Vincent's church, 1010 Webster st., on Tuesday, July 18 at 3.

• • •

The American Symphony Orchestra league reëlected the following officers at its meeting here last week: Mrs. Leta Snow of Kalamazoo, Mich., president; A. H. Miller of Duluth, Minn., vice president, and Robert Louis Barron of Amarillo, Tex., secretary and treasurer. A new executive committee was elected, consisting of S. A. Sandeen of Rockford, Ill.; Raymond Gould, Battle Creek, Mich.; James Kitchin, Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Mrs. Carl Thompson, Charleston, W. Va. The league membership consists of orchestras of smaller cities and its purpose is to develop means of servicing and promoting such organizations. Future plans look to the establishing of headquarters in New York, the formation of a central library and an artist and booking bureau.

The annual six weeks summer session choral clinic of Northwestern university will open on Tuesday, June 27, under the general direction of George Howerton, director of choral activities at the university. Four guest directors will appear during the course. The clinic is made up of approximately 100 choral directors of various schools, colleges, and churches, forming a chorus which will give two public concerts: On Saturday, July 1, in Cahn auditorium, under the direction of Robert Shaw, and on Monday, July 31, in the Women's East quadrangle, under the direction of George Howerton.

• • •

Serge Koussevitzky will conduct a Mozart festival with principals and players of the Boston Symphony orchestra as participants in the Berkshires this summer. Tanglewood, the summer estate of the Boston Symphony, will be reopened for the purpose. Four concerts will be given, on July 29 and 30 and Aug. 5 and 6. Soloists will be Ruth Posselt, violin; Dorothy Maynor, soprano; Robert Casadesus, piano, and Luboshutz and Nemenoff, duo-pianists. The programs will include several early and late symphonies, two serenades and two divertimentos, the "Coronation" piano concerto, the D major violin concerto and the concerto for two pianos. Following the Mozart festival a series of chamber orchestra concerts will be given by the Boston players in their home city on Aug. 13, 20, 27, and Sept. 3. Each program will be played twice. Conductors will be Richard Burgin, G. Wallace Woodworth and Bernard Zighera. At the conclusion of the Boston "Pops" concerts on July 15, Arthur Fiedler will lead the Boston Symphony in 30 free concerts on the Charles River esplanade.

• • •

Because of popular feeling the San Francisco Opera association has decided to omit all German operas except Richard Strauss' "Salome" from the repertoire of its season of 20 performances, Sept. 29 to Oct. 28. Operas listed for presentation, in addition to "Salome," are "Aïda," "Lakme," "Manon," "Tales of Hoffmann," "Martha," "Carmen," "Faust," "A Masked Ball," "Falstaff," "La Boheme," "Lucia di Lammermoor," and "La Forza del Destino." Singers will include Licia Albanese, Vivian Della Chiesa, Lily Djanel, Hertha Glaz, Margaret Harshaw, Lily Pons, Stella Roman, Rise Stevens, Thelma Votipka, John Garris, Frederick Jagel, Raoul Jobin, Charles Kullman, Jan Peerce, Lorenzo Alvary, Salvatore Baccloni, Ezio Pinza, and Leonard Warren. Conductors will be Gaetano Merola, William Steinberg, Pietro Cimara, George Schick, George Sebastian, Anggio Canarutto, and Antonio Dell'Orifice. Kurt Herbert Adler will be the chorus director.

STARS OF 'STAGE COACH'

The Oriental brings "Stage Coach" a rollin' back to you on its screen. Claire Trevor and John Wayne, seen here in a romantic moment, are the stars.

Vaudeville

Oriental theater. Henry Busse and his "Shuffle Rhythm" orchestra—noted for unique renditions of "Hot Lips" and "When Day Is Done"—top the bill and provide musical background. Betty Brownell, Wyatt Howard, and Red Wright are featured singers with the band. In addition, the "Oxford Boys" present an act that stresses close harmony, the "Two Novellos" perform feats with emphasis on the comic, and Gene Baylos, "Born Jest for Laffs," lends his assistance to the fun making.

Betty Brownell.

Chicago theater. The stage show, featuring Harry Richman in a caricature of Frank Sinatra, is held over for the second week. There are, besides, Dave Apollon, with his Filipino instrumental quartet, the dance team of Son and Sonny, Lou Breese and his orchestra and the Chicago Theater ballet.

• • •

Regal theater. Count Basie—the "Jump King of Swing"—is present with his orchestra, and his featured vocalist is James Rushing, the 300 pounder for whom the famous "Mr. Five by Five" was written. Among other acts is Harold Nicholas of the stage and screen dancing team, the Nicholas Brothers, alone now since his brother entered military service.

He'll Roll His Own.

HOLLYWOOD.—Another writer to become a movie producer is Niven Busch, Producer Samuel Goldwyn's former assistant and story editor. Busch, husband of Teresa Wright, will roll his own—producing his recently published novel, "Duel in the Sun."

AT GARRICK

K. T. Stevens, stage star who played Paul Lukas' wife in the legitimate production of "Watch on the Rhine" is co-featured with him in the screen play "Address Unknown." Garrick.

Drama Notes

Lila Lee.
[Lucas-Pritchard

Two stars who won fame in silent pictures are on their way to town, Lila Lee to replace Katharine Warren in "Kiss and Tell" for three weeks starting tomorrow night, and Gloria Swanson to appear at the Blackstone July 11 in a comedy called "A Goose for the Gander," with Ralph Forbes and Choo Choo Johnson, the girl who followed Gypsy Rose Lee in "Star and Garter." As for Miss Lee, after she has given Miss Warren a vacation, she will do the same for Violet Heming in Detroit and for Jessie Royce Landis in New York. In the fall she takes the role of Corliss Archer's mother in a touring company.

• • •

"Tomorrow the World" and "Decision" joined the list of New York closings last night. The former had been running 14 months, the latter about 17 weeks. The proposed Chicago company of "Decision" collaspsed before reaching us.

• • •

Arthur Hopkins has acquired "The Magnificent Yankee" and will stage the play in the fall with scenery by Robert Edmond Jones. This is Emmett Lavery's drama about Oliver Wendell Holmes, written on a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

• • •

"Porgy and Bess," which seems to go on forever, has shut up touring shop for the summer, but will reopen in San Francisco in August, and has Chicago on schedule for the fall season.

• • •

The future of the Selwyn and Harris theaters usually is settled reasonably far in advance, as both houses are prize booking plums. A Chicago company of "Wallflower" is reported penciled into the Selwyn in August, subject to the sojourn of "Let's Face It," and the Ruth Gordon play, "Over 21," probably will follow "Kiss and Tell" when it eventually gives up the Harris. Whether or not Ruth Gordon will come in it depends on business in New York.

• • •

The New Opera company's revival of "The Merry Widow" may come to Chicago after all. Recently disbanded in New York, the show will reopen at the San Francisco Opera house July 3 for three weeks, with Jan Kiepura and Wilma Spence again heading the cast. It then goes to the Hollywood bowl, and plans a subsequent tour. Later next season, Mr. Kiepura and his wife, Marta Eggerth, will appear in Kalman's "Czardas Princess."

LYNN BARI

This charming picture of Lynn Bari shows her as she appears in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." It's having a second run at McVicker's.

• • •

A musical version of "The Firebrand" is being put together for fall by Max Gordon. Edwin Justis Mayer, who wrote the play, will do the book, with songs by Kurt Weill and Ira Gershwin. No word yet as to the singer who gets Joseph Schildkraut's famous role as Benvenuto Cellini.

• • •

Olsen and Johnson are getting their new show, "Laughing Room Only," ready to invade New York's Winter Garden. John Murray Anderson will stage it, and Frank Libuse is definite for the cast.

• • •

William Gaxton and Victor Moore, who have been missing from the stage entirely too long, are considering renewing old associations in a musical called "Sweet Lavender," which goes in for nostalgia, a 1910 cabbie, the late Texas Guinan, and Jimmie Walker.

• • •

Zasu Pitts may be on our tournament lists next season in "Ramshackle Inn," hoping to retrieve some of the bruises suffered with her original Chicago attempt, "Her First Murder." Not that "Ramshackle Inn" is a better show—the reviews indicated that it isn't—but Miss Pitts managed to triumph over its shortcomings. At least, the play has reached its 200th New York performance and is in the black, meaning that all production costs have been paid off.

• • •

Altho "Arsenic and Old Lace" quit Broadway last night after 1,444 performances which paid fine dividends to its two producers and 22 angels, the comedy of homicidal old ladies who murder with smiles and elderberry wine will not disappear. It is in its 18th month in London, with two other troupes touring the British provinces. It has been played in Sweden, the Argentine, Brazil, Paraguay, and Hawaii.

• • •

Playgoers about to leave for New York want to know about vacation plans for two of their anticipated plays. "The Voice of the Turtle" closes to the public Saturday night, then gives a week of free performances for men and women in service. It reopens at the Morosco Aug. 28. Elisabeth Bergner will take six weeks' vacation from "The Two Mrs. Carrolls," starting July 3.

Talk, Topics of Menfolk on Father's Day

By Thalia.

Since this is Father's day, it is only fair to talk today about some of the things that interest our townsmen as well as our townswomen. There's amateur photography for one thing. Chicago since last Sunday is the amateur photography center of the world. On the spacious walls of the Chicago Historical society hang almost 300 entries in the third International Salon of Photography, the work of men and women from all over our own country, England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Mexico, and South America. The pictures will be on exhibit until Labor day and from the excitement of the preview last Sunday it looks as tho last year's 100,000 attendance at the exhibit would be topped this year.

The preview was given not only for the camera club members, of which I hear there are some 1,800 in and around Chicago, but also for members of the Chicago Historical society. The society's president, Joseph M. Cudahy, was the afternoon's host and Stuyvesant Peabody, chairman of the exhibit, was the recipient of plaudits for his tireless work for the exhibit's obvious success as well as for his own three entries.

One of Mr. Peabody's entries had almost the same idea as the winner of the first prize, titled "Post-War Planning," which was a photograph of two sailors in front of a hat store pondering headgear obviously not G. I. Mr. Peabody's "Hardship of War" showed a WAVE and a WAC fascinatedly and enviously gazing at a dashing creation on the head of a girl at the next table.

The Chicago Historical society is one of the pet interests of some of Chicago's most distinguished citizens. Its board of directors is made up of men who have helped make Chicago the great metropolis of the midwest, the most truly American of all of America's great cities. Among them are: Cecil Barnes, William McCormick Blair, the Hon. Charles S. Dewey, James M. Hopkins, Frank J. Loesch, Sterling Morton, and Joseph T. Ryerson. Two women grace the directorate: Mrs. Charles B. Pike, whose husband served the society so ably as president before his death, and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, whose beautiful historically accurate miniature rooms brought so many visitors to the society and are famous thruout the country.

Another exhibit now current in Chicago, which the builders of Chicago have made available to the public, is the one at the Newberry library, which shows "The Building of a Library." The trustees of the library issued the invitations to the opening of the exhibit, which closes Aug. 31. They, like the trustees of the Chicago Historical society, are among Chicago's most civic minded citizens. Alfred E. Hamill is president of the library. His own private library in his home in Lake Forest not only contains some of the finest collector's items in the country but is housed in one of the most beautiful and pragmatic rooms ever designed to shelter books and make them usable. The trustees represent leaders in every phase of Chicago's life: Edward Eagle Brown, Ralph Budd, Charles Freeman, Chalkley Jay Hambleton, John Holabird, William B. Greenlee, Bernadotte Schmitt, William Sidley, Hermon Dunlap Smith, Albert H. Wetten, and John P. Wilson.

I had luncheon with the librarian, Stanley Pargellis, the other day and he took me on a tour of the library and the current exhibit. It was one of those sizzling days when you felt like an oyster Rockefeller, broiled on the half shell with your edges curled up, and there was that tense war nervousness in the air that has given so many people mental St. Vitus dance. But the moment we

Household Forum

[Have you some household help that lightens labor or conserves on materials? Is there some convenience you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Ed. W., Chicago—My husband gave me a handy help. I was constantly bothered by our garments getting creased thru pressing together on our closet clothes poles, so he cut grooves, two inches apart at top of poles. Hangers stay put in these grooves. In a closet where we keep our heavier garments, overcoats, etc., he spaced the grooves farther apart.

Mrs. Ted A., Escanaba, Mich.—For some years I have made my scrap bags of mosquito netting. Any other open-mesh fabric would do as well, of course. In this way one can see various bits of material in the bag, and does not have to remove a lot of the contents in search of some particular piece.

Hazel M., Indianapolis, Ind.—It is easy to convert a discarded compact into a double picture frame, and then slip in two snap-shots, pasting them well so they'll stick.

Mrs. George F., Cedar Rapids, Ia.—I have cut a good many quilt patches in my life and to keep material from slipping and get a well cut block, I make the pattern of a fine grade of sandpaper. This I place, rough side down, next to material I am going to cut. It's a help.

Girl Scouts Plan Outings in City Parks

Girl Scouts unable, for one reason or another, to attend summer camps in the country, need not be dismayed at the prospects of a vacation period spent within the confines of Chicago. For an ingenious summer activities committee appointed by the Chicago Girl Scouts' council not only is formulating plans for seven day camps to be conducted in city parks thru the month of July, but a comprehensive outdoor program also has been outlined to provide recreation for the girls thru August.

Seventy adult volunteers have completed training courses to qualify themselves as counselors for the day camps, which will give an approximate 550 girls advantages of an out-of-door camping program within reach of their own back yard.

Chicago's extensive park system and nearby forest preserves will provide the setting for bicycle trips, horseback riding, hikes, and other recreational projects thru August. Miss Florence Ann Schlott, program director of the Chicago Girl Scouts, is in general charge of summer activities, and district program chairmen include Mrs. George Ziegler, Mrs. Alva A. Buss, Miss Margaret Cullerton, Mrs. E. W. Sanders, and Mrs. Harold Nicklaus.

A series of trips, designed to acquaint the girls with places of interest in and near Chicago, is being planned by the committee, and the incomplete calendar includes a tour of the Chicago Tribune Experimental farm near Wheaton on Aug. 16, a trip to the Brookfield zoo, Aug. 2, and an outing at the Indiana Dunes park, Aug. 9.

Doughnut Day for Salvation Army Tuesday

By Irene Steyskal.

Well might a story of today's world borrow for an introduction that first paragraph in "A Tale of Two Cities"—memorable lines encompassing another day of horror and heroism, of cruelty and compassion.

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times," Dickens wrote, "it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness . . . it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness . . . we had everything before us, we had nothing before us."

As the story of war is being written in blazing superlatives on a hundred battle fronts, another chapter, equally dramatic in its portent for the future of civilization, is being written at home on help to war victims, on human reconstruction and rehabilitation. It is epitomized in two immediate events on the Chicago home front.

Tuesday will see thousands of women volunteers taking their stand again on busy intersections in the city and suburbs, at entrances to railway stations and business places to collect contributions for the Salvation Army. Tomorrow and Tuesday members of the women's division of the Community and War Fund of Metropolitan Chicago will hold meetings to hear Mrs. Oswald Bates Lord of New York explain expansions in philanthropies and services which are called for by the times, and which must be considered in planning the fall community and war fund campaign. Mrs. Lord is chairman of the women's activities of the National War fund.

Increasing numbers of men and women facing serious war time difficulties are finding an open door to comfort and hope at Salvation Army emergency shelters, homes, and hospitals here. For example, within the last two months, 83 young women, wives of service men who followed their husbands to Chicago and were stranded here with insufficient funds, have been given temporary shelter at the emergency lodge at 1230 W. Adams st. All young and from small towns and rural communities, most of them were completely unfamiliar with the pattern of life in a large city. Many had babies who were poorly clothed, and some of the infants were without clothing entirely.

Scores of service men's wives who do not have sufficient money to pay for maternity care are hospitalized at the Salvation Army maternity home and hospital. Already the Salvation Army has been called upon to give emergency lodging to men stranded here after being given medical discharges from the army.

These are a few of the pictures for Chicago citizens to remember on Tuesday when the woman volunteer at the corner offers that familiar small brown cardboard circlet, a Salvation Army doughnut, for sale, and with it the opportunity to discharge, in a measure, that responsibility imposed upon the strong and the more fortunate with the charge that such a one was, indeed, his brother's keeper!

Among other Salvation Army social service institutions and services which will benefit from Chicago's contributions on Doughnut day are free medical and dental clinics; three men's industrial homes, where homeless unemployed men are given food, clothing, and shelter in exchange for constructive work done; Wonderland camp, a vacation place where mothers and children whose health and condition require it are given a summer

Fresh from the Hills . . . . Seventeen Hours

By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THOSE Terrible Seventeen hours began at sunset on Friday evening. It had been a drizzly, gray day, with enough chill in the air to make a fire in the grate pleasant. I was typing that story you read in last week's paper long after the banjo clock struck six. All about me were the pleasant little sounds of farm life. The cowbell in the lane. The sheep bells beyond the garden. The shrill cries of the guineas responding to supper call. The clatter of milk pails at the cave house. And from the kitchen the click of the refrigerator that told the Jedge was feeding the dogs and cats. Little Eva, the spotted cat that eats fast, came in to share my fire and wash her face with a dainty paw.

I lifted my head to glance thru the nearest French door to the beloved scene of peaceful beauty. I blinked and stared a long moment, wishing my camera were loaded. The white lawn bench, the green lawn, and the red gate were bathed in a weird greenish light that made them look like third dimension photographs. The light of a coming storm, I decided. I remembered I had written a storm into my new book, and I filed into a niche of memory the line:

"Just before the storm, objects stood out with startling clarity."

I went on typing.

A page later the Jedge called softly from the back door:

"Hey, Marge! Come see! Looks like a twister coming!"

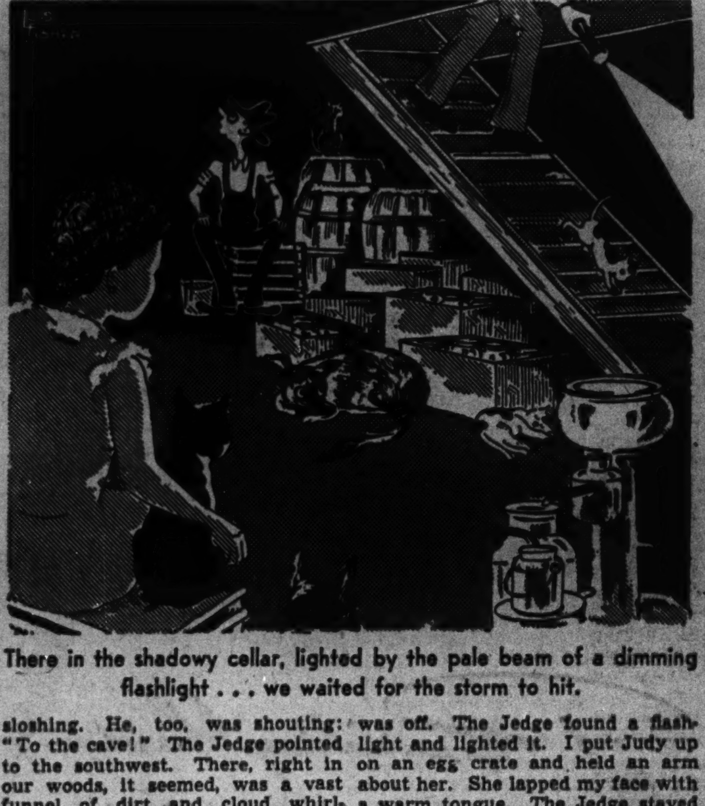
I'm not afraid of storms. I didn't hurry. By the time I reached the back door his gentle call had turned to sharp warning. He was yelling something about getting into the cave fast. Lem Jones, our man-about-the-farm, was tearing thru the back gate with a pail of milk sloshing. He, too, was shouting: "To the cave!" The Jedge pointed to the southwest. There, right in our woods, it seemed, was a vast funnel of dirt and cloud whirling like a gyroscope, with trees, branches, and dark objects of all kinds spinning in its upper regions. One look was enough. It was undeniably headed for us. I grabbed up Judy, the Boston terrier, and with Punch, Shep, and the Jedge at my heels, raced down the steps of the rock cave. Lem was ahead of me, milk bucket still in hand. He was moaning about his wife and children. He reached up to pull the light cord. The electricity was off. The Jedge found a flashlight and lighted it. I put Judy up on an egg crate and held an arm about her. She lapped my face with a warm tongue. The Jedge stayed close. Then in the shadowy cellar, lighted by the pale beam of a dimming flashlight, amid boxes of canned fruits and vegetables, barrels of old dishes and empty fruit jars, and the smells of earth, rocks and fresh milk we waited for the storm to hit. The seconds seemed hours. Suddenly there was the clatter of hail on the tin roof of the cave house. It stopped after a moment.



There in the shadowy cellar, lighted by the pale beam of a dimming flashlight . . . we waited for the storm to hit.

"The storm missed us," said the Jedge, hoarsely. He mopped his face with his handkerchief.

We came up from the cave to find chunks of solid ice as big as golf balls lying about. But more startling was the deathly silence of the hilltop. Not a bird was calling. Not a creature was stirring. There was no rain, and apparently no wind. Yet overhead, opaque masses of black clouds rolled and churned in a furious eastward movement. We felt certain the storm had followed the valley and taken our buildings in the valley. They are out of sight of the house, and fear of falling trees and worse yet, a second storm, kept us from making an investigation. Lem, reassured by the safety of our house and the knowledge that his home is on a direct line with it, finished the milking before he hurried home. Terrified by the unusual clouds, I went into the house and packed a basket with things I would take to the cellar next time. My cameras. The stories I had been working on. My unfinished book manuscript. My purse. Darkness, shot with flashes of blinding lightning, soon came. After a sketchy supper we huddled by a lantern and tried to read. At bedtime, with the storm clouds still rolling, we left a hurricane lantern and my packed basket beside the door nearest to the cave. Jittery was a mild word for our state of nerves.

Next morning, in the bright blue and golden dawn, we found that the storm had actually come to the south boundary of our farm. It had jumped the fence, taken the tops out of two black oak trees, and then swerved abruptly east, following Barn Holler toward Summersville.

All morning a stream of callers came to tell us of the damage to the homes of our neighbors and of the great trees uprooted by the storm. We learned of the injuries of Mrs. Huff, whose boy had been killed in action only the week before. When the Red Cross called to offer assistance, she had said:

"I only require 21 stitches in my head. I'll be all right. Save any aid you might give to me for the boys at the front."

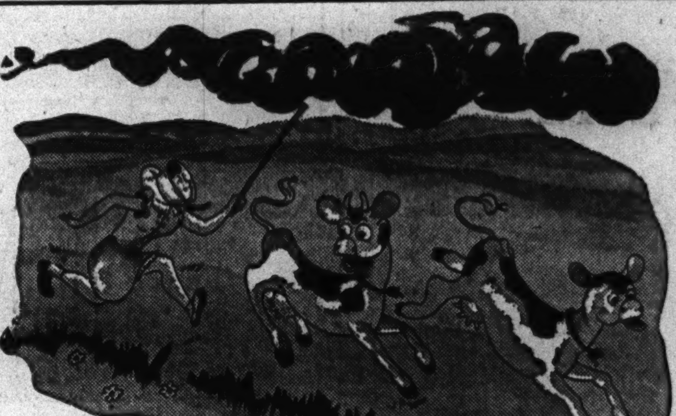
We learned of the mother who had sent her three children to lie in a ditch in front of the house when the storm approached, and of one small boy bruised by hailstones. We heard of the man who had flattened himself against a bluff and from a safe distance had seen his house blown away. We learned of the neighbor who was tragically smashed down on a case of eggs by the wreckage of her home. We learned of the young couple who took to the woods with their baby, and when each lay down to grasp the trunk of a young sapling, the mother kept the baby with her. We found that the home of our nearest neighbor on the south had its roof broken by two falling trees and its outbuildings blown away. It was the community's first cyclone in 80 years, and it loomed greater than the war in our eyes. At last in the late forenoon we heard that the fallen trees had been cut out of the highway. The Jedge drove in to town.

I tidied up the house, my heart heavy with sympathy for my neighbors. Still jittery, I stepped to the south door to look at the sky. And for the second time in 17 hours, the southwest was bringing terror. Almost at the exact point where the storm had been seen, great clouds of black smoke were rolling above scarlet streaks of flame. A forest fire! So close, the smoke was already clouding the bright sunshine. I ran to an east window to look at the weathervane on the barn. A brisk wind was bringing the flames toward us. In 15 minutes, I estimated, the fire would be in our clearing. My mind leaped to the possible damage. The barns would be saved by the bareness of the feeding grounds about them. The house was protected by the green lawn at the west and the newly planted garden at the south. The pastures and the woods, except for the lush valley in the middle forty, had enough dry grass and leaves to make them infernos. I must get all the animals and fowls out of them. I began a frantic search.

Boots, our riding horse, was feeding calmly in the direct path of the flames. I had no time to go to the barn for a bridle. I grabbed a handful of apples waiting for a pie and ran across the pasture to him. And I mean, I ran! He munched the apples one by one as we trotted side by side to the barn. And I'm no trotter. I listened for the cowbell. Its calm tinkle sounded somewhere near the big gate. Peering thru the orchard, I found that the Jedge had left the gate open. The cows were on the road, exactly at the point where the flames would sweep. I'm afraid of Brenda, but this was no time for personal feelings. I grabbed the walking stick Aunt Lizzie had left beside the door a week earlier and panted down the lane. When Brenda shook her horns at me, I said:



I pelted the cows barnward, all of us on the dead run.

"Look! If you don't want to be beefsteak well done, get up to that barn. And no nonsense out of you." I pelted the cows barnward, all of us on the dead run. As I passed the mailbox, instinct, I suppose, made me pause for an instant and pull out a stack of letters and papers. Somehow they stayed with me, altho I don't remember carrying them. I think they hung to me, as paper will cling to the rear of a whirling electric fan.

With the cows in the barn, I looked for the sheep. They were nowhere in sight, and I couldn't hear their bells. I could only pray they were in those miraculously saved barns in the valley, where they usually went in the heat of the day. Geese, guineas, chickens, and our precious homing pigeons were all over the home forty clearing. Wildly, I scattered grain from the feed bin and called them to the barnlot. They fluttered up to the unaccustomed lunch. I hoped they would stay there. I puffed into the house, calling Judy from her noonday siesta as I grabbed up the keys of my car and the basket I had packed in anticipation of a second cyclone. I must get the car out. The garage is not protected with bare grounds and I might have to outrun the fire to the river if it took the buildings. Shep, Punch, and Judy ran with me to the garage. I put all the dogs in the back seat. Somewhere I had picked up Merry Joe, my favorite cat. I dumped him in the front seat along with my basket and that stack of mail. I ran the car in front of the barns and stopped it. Then I took my second look at the fire.

The clouds of smoke were still rolling, but the flames were perceptibly lower. Somewhere, somehow, at least for the moment, the fire was being held in check. I could hear shouts of the firefighters. I leaned back in the seat. With one hand I pushed back my sunbonnet and wiped away the streaming perspiration. With the other I pushed down Merry Joe, who was trying to jump out of the window. He rolled over on his back, scattering letters and papers. The mail! I might as well go thru it while I waited to see what the fire would do. Numbly, I picked up a blue envelope, tore it open, and read what a feminine hand had written in far-off Chicago:

"How we envy you and the Jedge the peace and tranquility you must be enjoying now at your beautiful farm."

Talk, Topics of Menfolk on Father's Day

entered that quiet, cool, old fashioned building, I felt less grilled, physically and mentally. And when I held in my hands books which have lived for centuries, the first Bible printed in English, obviously read almost to death, a first edition of "Paradise Lost" that Milton himself may have held in his hand, a cook book dated 1480 that had helped feed bodies as the others had souls I felt man's eternal search for peace amid the wars of time.

The Newberry library is one of the great private public libraries of the country. The ideal of its founders and its present governing body is to make it a comprehensive reference library for the use of serious scholars. In some fields it surpasses any library in the country. The Ayer collection of books on Indians ranks, Mr. Pargellis says, first in the country in any large public library.

Musicians come from all over the country to consult the Newberry musical collection, which includes all the annotated scores of Theodore Thomas except the Wagner ones, the complete Bach Gesellschaft, and over 100,000 pieces of sheet music including the first edition of a 1862 song published in Chicago, in whose title seemed poignantly significant today. "Just Before the Battle, Mother."

The genealogy material is the best west of the Alleghenies. The Prince Louis Lucian Bonaparte collection of books on linguistics is larger than in any other library. The best collection in the country of books on calligraphy is housed there. The collection of books in English literature is almost entirely complete in the masterpieces. There are over 7,000 Civil war items in the Dawes collection of military history. Frank Luther Mott wrote his history of American magazines at the Newberry library with the help of its fine collection of periodicals. Arthur Meeker Jr. did some of the research for "The Ivory Mischief" in the Newberry, where the collection of 17th century material in French contained documents he had not found anywhere else. And he has used its early Chicago material in the novel he is now at work on, a story of his own family two generations back. came in the family mail on Wednes-

I was surprised on Tuesday evening to see how many men are balletomanes when the Ballet Repertory company with a group of four ballets opened a series of three performances to a well filled house in the Eighth Street theater dedicated usually to another and less terpsichorean revel, a radio barn dance.

Two world ballet premieres gave the evening a glitter socially, especially as one of them, "Fantasie Poetique," was created by Leonide Massine, the great choreographer and dancer, whose popularity in Chicago has been constant both as a person and as an artist since many years ago when he appeared at the Arts club for the first time before an intimate group. The Fantasie was indeed poetic, a series of lovely classic ballet divertissements conceived as a panorama of solo motion against a decorative background of the ballet chorus in exquisite poses which were fluid but seldom active. Principal dancers of first rank made ballet history.

Among the many well known men balletomanes in the audience the most eagerly welcomed were Robert Allerton and John Gregg barely off the Clipper from Hawaii where they were spending the winter when the fateful Dec. 7, 1941, changed the way of life and thought of every American. They both promptly offered their services to the defense of the islands, and have been working there indefatigably ever since. They are eager to get back to their work there now that, as Mr. Allerton said, they find the Allerton farms in mid-Illinois running so efficiently that they seem less needed here than in the islands. Mr. Allerton recalled to me the fact that it was in that same theater that a group of prominent Chicago dance enthusiasts sponsored a series of performances of leading dance artists of the day almost a generation ago.

And finally, since today we're talking mostly about the gentlemen, let me share with you a letter which came in our family mail on Wednesday morning, Flag day, a day of special significance and poignancy to those of us whose blue service starred windows are a symbol of the blue blood of Americanism. It seemed especially ironic on that day to read a perfectly serious communication to the head of the house, which extended an invitation to visit a loop jewelry store. The letter's first paragraph read:

"Believing that a solid gold shaving bowl requiring the gold refined from approximately 30 tons of ore is of more than passing interest, arrangements have been made for a special showing to a limited group of Chicago business executives."

Nobody believed me—except those who had seen it—that there was a necktie costing $150 in a Palm Beach haberdashery shop last winter. Nobody—except that "limited group of Chicago business executives" who out of curiosity exclusively gaze upon this Neronian luxury—will probably believe this fantasy—but it's true!

Chicago Y. W. C. A. Members to Attend Regional Meeting

Representing industrial clubs of the Y. W. C. A. in this and neighboring states, some 125 young workers will gather next Saturday at Forest Beach camp, New Buffalo, Mich., for an annual regional conference. The Chicago Y. W. C. A. will send about 20 delegates, girls from war plants and other industries, and two staff members, Mrs. Helen Howard and Mrs. Florence Fletcher, will be with the party. A week-long conference is planned.

Among problems to be discussed are those of workers in war and post-war industry, administrative and union relations, citizenship responsibility, and active participation in plans for job security after the war. Among national Y. W. C. A. staff members assisting at the conference will be Miss Myra Smith from the department of data and trends, and, both of the foreign division, Miss Lydia Johnson and Miss Lillian Espy. Miss Eldri Dieson, also of the national staff, will serve as conference executive.

Fine Arts Forum to Hear Book Talk at Tuesday Benefit

Mrs. Marco Adrogna will be presented by the Fine Arts forum in a book review program at a benefit tea Tuesday afternoon in the Army and Navy club, 410 S. Michigan av. The party, open to guests, is set for 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Adrogna will talk on W. Somerset Maugham's new novel, "The Razor's Edge" and "Canape Verte," by Pierre and Philippe Thorby-Marcellin.

Miss J. Winifred Hughes, president of Zonta International, will come from Syracuse, N. Y., to conduct the organization's 24th annual convention, which will be in session Thursday thru Saturday at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Miss J. Winifred Hughes.

Coming as a pleasant surprise was the recent announcement that the organization's Iceland chapter will be represented by Mrs. Helga Sigurdsson of Reykjavik. It had not been expected that war time exigencies would permit attendance of delegates other than from the United States and Canada, and because of restrictions on travel and hotel accommodations, attendance is being limited to official delegates and alternates, and members of the international board. Simultaneously with news of Mrs. Sigurdsson's approaching visit came announcement that the American Red Cross is sending Mme. Julie Colbjornsen of Norway to speak to the assembly at the Saturday luncheon session.

Among other important speakers on the program will be Sigrid Schultz, famous foreign correspondent, who managed THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S central European news bureau in Berlin for 16 years, and Henry Bohn Hass, noted research chemist.

An election will conclude the program on Saturday, and candidates for the post of president are Miss Jessie Ekins of St. Catherine's, Canada, and Miss Louise C. Grace of Detroit, Mich.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

The three night performance of the Ballet Repertory company this week at the Eighth Street theater gave local balletomanes one of their infrequent opportunities to enjoy an evening of first rate ballet. Applauding the dancers and six guest stars from their third row center seats at Tuesday's opening were Paul H. Raymer and his attractive blonde bride, the former Melvina Schuls of New York, who were married earlier this month in the east. Mrs. Raymer's gown was an appropriate one for a sultry spring evening—a short-sleeved bodice of heavy black linen and full skirt of shocking pink and black gingham squares, with a cluster of full-blown pink silk roses at the waist. Hot as the evening was, she had no use for the brief silver fox jacket she carried in one hand. In a true ballet mood was Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed's navy crepe gown, appliqued at intervals with chubby pink cherubs holding daisies. The two largest angels, one on each shoulder, held between them a pink swag that defined the neckline of the unusual dress. A navy net snood held Mrs. Goodspeed's locks neatly in place, and her earrings were large crystal daisies. Another in the first night audience was pretty Mrs. Philip D. Block Jr., whose stunning dress was of pale chartreuse and black print, made with the briefest of sleeves. The soft tie that was fastened at her throat was pinned in place with a handsome brooch of diamonds. Mrs. Thomas H. Fisher, known professionally as Ruth Page, saw the first part of the performance from a center seat, and departed to catch a train, dressed in a navy frock with red embroidered belt and turned back cap sleeves decorated with more of the embroidery. She topped it with a navy boléro jacket, and wore a little Dutch half hat of navy on the back of her head.

Mrs. William B. Greenlee, in a stunning gown of gray silk with a large applique of brown down one side to match her thin top coat, sat next to Mrs. Wentworth Field, whose theater costume was a high necked, long sleeved gown of black chiffon heavily embroidered in tiny white flowers. Most of the theatergoers that night appeared in dressy cottons or short summery prints, but Mrs. Edward A. Leight chose a more formal gown—a cerise crepe dinner dress with a net bodice crisscrossed in sequin streamers. Two large cerise roses and a wisp of veiling formed her headdress. Her companion, Miss Carol Fox, compromised on a simply cut black crepe gown with a garland of small white gardenias in her hair. Also in black with a cluster of white blossoms at the side of her dark hair was Miss Patricia McLaughlin, who saw the show with a navy escort. Enlivening Mrs. Winterbotham Badger's dark tailored costume were a dickey of pink and white candy stripes and a little crocheted hat of moss green with touches of the pink and white material. The thermometer had taken a sudden upward plunge earlier in the day, but it was cooling just to see the costumes and setting for Leonide Massine's new ballet, "Fantasie Poetique," the second number on the program. Against a background of misty spring green and a forest of slender saplings, the young women danced in short Grecian costumes of palest green, turquoise, violet, and gray chiffon, with a spray of leaves over one shoulder.. The three feminine stars, Rosella Hightower, Marina Svetlova, and Marie-Jeanne, wore white chiffon.

Massachusetts Yacht Clubs Open Season

BEVERLY, MASS. Cannons barked and flags were run up to the masthead on all north shore yacht clubs today marking the opening of the yachting season. Over at Marblehead the Eastern, one of the oldest in the nation, the Corinthian and the Boston went into commission while at Beverly the Jubilee, at Manchester, the Manchester, and on Cape Ann the Eastern Point, the Sandy Bay and the Annisquam marked their openings.

While most of the larger crafts will not go into commission because of war time restrictions the smaller crafts come into their own and this is the joy of the younger colonists. Most of the hotels, all the way from Nahant to Rockport, are open now, and others will welcome guests before the first of July. Next week will see the gardens in the full of their June time glories, and, despite the spell of dry weather, they are most attractive. Social life this summer will be brightened by the number of service men and women who come to the north shore for their leaves and furloughs, and all along the coast everything will be done to make their stay enjoyable.

The John Clay juniors of Chicago are at their lovely Finisterre estate out on Eastern Point in Gloucester for the long season on the north shore. Members of the Clay family have long been summer residents of Eastern Point where their attractive estate fronts on the broad Atlantic and is one of the show places of this stretch of coast. Miss Lucy Taggart of Indianapolis has opened her Eastern blvd. home on Eastern Point at East Gloucester for the season, and will remain until late in the autumn.

Arriving on the north shore for an extended season is Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago, who is at her Rockmarge estate at Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Moore has some of the finest gardens on the shore, and just now they are at their early season best. One of the features of the estate which borders on the ocean is the water gardens which have many rare plants which Mrs. Moore brought from Africa and from many other far distant points of the world. Her sons, Edward C. Moore of Lake Forest and Paul Moore of Convent, N. J., are coming on later for their usual visit here.

Castle hill, the baronial estate of Mrs. Richard T. Crane at Ipswich, is being readied for late June occupancy. The estate is one of the largest in Essex county and has nearly a mile of beach in Ipswich bay.

Mrs. Brownlee B. Gould of Cohassett announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Joan Warren Smith, SPAR, to Lt. Robert W. Schultz, U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Schultz of Oak Park. Lt. Schultz served in the Southwest Pacific for two years and is now stationed at New Orleans where Miss Smith also is stationed at the coast guard base.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hickman of Brookline are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Carolyn Hickman, to R. Marshall Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Barnes Jr., of Hinsdale. Miss Hickman is a graduate of the Katherine Gibbs school while Mr. Barnes was graduated from the Wharton school of finance, University of Pennsylvania.

Arriving at Pride's Crossing today was Miss Eleanora R. Sears, noted Boston sportswoman, who has met many Chicago women tennis players on the tennis courts in national matches. Miss Sears is at her new home in the Paine reserve, the summer home for many years of the late Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago.

Legion Auxiliary Group Plans Election Wednesday

An election of officers is to be held by the second district of the American Legion auxiliary at an 8 o'clock meeting Wednesday evening at the Morrison hotel.

ENGAGED TO ENSIGN

Miss Elizabeth Ann Lonergan's engagement to Ensign Edward F. Cavanaugh, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cavanaugh of Allegan, Mich., has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Lonergan of Wilmette. Miss Lonergan will be graduated this month from Michigan State college, from which her fiance received his degree last year. The latter received his commission from Columbia university and now is serving in the Atlantic.

Doughnut Day for Salvation Army Tuesday

outing; various emergency shelters, and a service in pre- and post-natal care for unmarried mothers.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark, founder-president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, a civic leader who has given many years of service on the board of the women's division of the Salvation Army and is now its president, last week appealed for many more volunteers for the Doughnut day drive.

Many of the clubs affiliated with Mrs. Clark's conference and other organizations are providing "captains" and workers for the drive. Among the "colonels" supervising large districts are Mrs. Jay H. Brown of the Navy Mothers; Miss Olive Hill, Mrs. E. I. Joscott, representing the telephone girls' union; Mrs. J. K. Jensen, of the Federation of Danish Organizations; Mrs. Loretta Lynge, American Legion auxiliary; Mrs. Pearl Krause, auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Mrs. George E. Olson, who is a state board member of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Scores of Parent-Teacher associations, women's clubs of the Illinois federation, and temple sisterhoods and other Jewish women's groups, women's societies of churches thruout the city and neighborhood communities already have appointed captains and recruited workers. Others who have a few hours to give on Doughnut day may register by phone, calling Mrs. Helen Bolsum, Randolph 8980.

The meetings of women's division members of the Community and War Fund are set for 2:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Women's Athletic club, 626 N. Michigan av., and for the same hour Tuesday in room 3-M of the Standard club, 321 Plymouth ct., Mrs. Bernice T. Van der Vries, division chairman, has announced.

Because of the creditable record achieved by the women's division in the Community and War Fund campaign last year an even greater share of responsibility has been assigned it for the 1944 drive, and leaders are looking forward to Mrs. Lord's visit for many practical suggestions to aid them toward their goal.

Mrs. Lord will be accompanied on her trip by Mrs. Richard Whitney, assistant to the president of the National War Fund. Mrs. Lord has had long and extensive experience in welfare work. After her school days at Smith college she did volunteer case work for the Family Welfare society in Minneapolis, and for the Charity Organization society in New York. She was vice president and president, successively, of the Junior league in New York, and had charge of the league's social work. Mrs. Lord was co-chairman of the defense recreation committee in her city in 1941 and has served as assistant regional director of the office of civilian defense, region II., which includes New York, New Jersey, and Delaware.

In metropolitan Chicago, the Community and War Fund represents the National War Fund thruout Cook, Du Page, and Lake counties, raising funds for the U. S. O., for U. S. O. camp shows, for war prisoners' aid, and for 16 allied nations' war relief agencies. In the city the war fund includes 187 health and welfare agencies of the Community Fund.

Both Clarence B. Randall and Robert E. Colburn, general chairman of the 1944 campaign and secretary of the combined fund, respectively, are to be present at the Monday and Tuesday meetings.

Dyslexia Buffet Dinner Today Marks End of Year

To close the season's activities, the Dyslexia guild will have a 4:45 o'clock buffet dinner this afternoon for members and guests. Annual officer and committee reports will be heard at the meeting afterward, and Miss Jane Russell, chairman of the nominating committee, will submit a new slate of officers for consideration. Mrs. James P. Kelley, chairman of the social committee, is in charge of the dinner.

Shoe Cleaning Tip.

If smooth leather shoes are dirty, work up a good lather with saddle soap, smear it all over the shoes, then wipe it off with a cloth or a sponge wrung out of clear water.

Cape Colony Is Ready for Busy Summer

CAPE COD, MASS. There is a time-honored slogan which says simply, "Cape Cod Calls." Evidence that this is true is realized each day as more and more persons arrive to take up residence at New England's foremost recreation center.

Altho the vast numbers of out-of-state automobiles are missing from the highways due to war time rationing, there still are fine transportation facilities via bus and train. Inquiries have been received in such volume that almost every board of trade and chamber of commerce urges prospective vacationists to make reservations early, or be disappointed.

For the first time in three war time summers, lights will be bright again on this ocean-bound playground, since the danger of enemy submarines in the coastal waters virtually has been eliminated. A housing problem which bothered all of the towns in the vicinity of Camp Edwards has nearly disappeared, for a decreasing demand of military personnel for rented homes has left many cottages and rooms available to visitors.

From the two superb bridges spanning the Cape Cod canal at Bourne and Sagamore to the Provincetown monument at the end of the peninsula, Cape Cod is the ideal spot for rest and recreation. Outdoor diversion in the salty, invigorating air for the sedentary worker; rest and deep, refreshing sleep to quiet jaded nerves; sunlight and good food to restore tired bodies—all these it has to offer the vacationist.

Certain parts of the Cape comprise both country and seashore, the extensive green fields, woods, sea, and sand dunes making picturesque spots which have brought thousands of artists here to study and paint the beautiful scenes. Some of the towns and villages are quaint, with narrow streets, and old houses from which the Cape Cod style of architecture derives its name.

At Falmouth, one finds broad expanses of sandy, white beaches, acres of rolling fairways, hundreds of miles of blue-green water and wind swept sand dunes waiting to charm the summer visitor. Falmouth offers a variety of activities. For the angler there are striped bass, flounders, tautaug, and a variety of pond and lake fish, including perch, pickerel, small mouth bass, and land-locked salmon, waiting to be caught. Bays and lakes make sailing safe for the novice, and there are many miles of deep open water for the practiced sailing enthusiast.

Principal social event of the summer is the Falmouth Nursing association lawn fete, held early in August on the village green. For the children there is always a carnival held on the circus grounds. Church bazars offer antiques and handmade rugs and quilts.

The warm water makes swimming ideal at the town beach, guarded by accredited Red Cross guards, and a large raft with sliding chute and two-platform diving tower is moored off-shore. A small lagoon, partially surrounded by rocks, provides a safe bathing pool for children. Large flat rocks jutting into the water make excellent picnic tables.

The Hyannis Yacht club already has started its racing season. An organization which was founded only a few seasons ago, it contemplates conducting a full program of activity thru the summer, including special parties in the attractive clubhouse.

The Garden club of Hyannis has disclosed plans for a series of public bridge parties. The Cape Cod hospital will endeavor to hold summer classes for those wishing to train as nurses' aids.

Leasing of the Hyannis Woman's club by a repertory company, has aroused considerable interest. The unit is comprised of women from the eastern states, all having had some professional status.

One of the first society events of the season was the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Priscilla M. Shaw of Lorain, O., and Hyannis, to Ensign Grant C. Chave of the naval reserve, a son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Chave of Chicago. Miss Carolyn I. Shaw was her sister's only attendant, and Lt. [j. g.] Robert Milligan of San Francisco was best man. Both the bride and groom were graduated from Oberlin college in Ohio. Mrs. Chave has been a voice teacher in Lorain. Ensign Chave is stationed at Newport, R. I.

Oyster Harbors, fashionable Cape resort, has been open for several weeks. Virtually all of the homes maintained by families who come to Oyster Harbors year in and year out, now have been reopened. Within another week the Oyster Harbors' club will be operating a full daily schedule of events.

Among the early arrivals at Wianno was Mrs. Seymour Wheeler of Chicago. Her guests for a recent house party were her niece, Miss Louise Heidre, Lt. and Mrs. Morris R. Eddy, Augustus Eddy, and Ensign J. Edward Jones Jr.

ENGAGED

Miss Janice Dexter's engagement to John William Allen of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Willis Allen of Wilmette, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Chandler Dexter of Winchester, Mass. Miss Dexter, a graduate of the Brimmer-May school, is now attending Vassar college and made her debut during the 1943-44 season. Her fiance attended Dartmouth college.

Shadowed Forests
Natural Lakes
Rushing Streams

● Born of the glaciers millions of years ago, nestling in forests primeval—Wisconsin's lovely lakes and streams offer a vacation paradise without equal. Though nature was kind to Wisconsin—she gets a helping hand too. Natural fishing waters are stocked with millions of fighting game fish each year—muskies, northerns, black bass, walleyes, trout and pan fish. The friendly folk of Wisconsin welcome you—now or after peace.

Sandy Beaches of W. Michigan Beckon Guests

By Mildred Peterson.

SAUGATUCK, Mich. [Special].—War taut nerves are forgotten as you loll in the sands along Lake Michigan near Saugatuck, in Allegan county, Michigan, about 150 miles from Chicago. The dunes, which follow the lake from the Indiana border north to the Straits of Mackinac, reach quite a height here at Saugatuck. Mount Baldhead, one of the highest dunes in the state, lies between the village and Lake Michigan, forming a peninsula. A beautiful view of the countryside for miles around can be seen from a point reached by a stairway which has been built up the east side of the dune.

Saugatuck is acclaimed to be the outstanding outdoor art center in the middle west, and many visitors enjoy painting portraits, marines, or landscapes while vacationing here. East of Saugatuck is a large marsh area, the home of countless wild ducks and geese, and rearing ground for ringneck pheasants, muskrats, mink, deer, and other wild life. You may obtain a boat at the village to explore this region, which is a paradise for wild life photography.

Allegan county is a farm and orchard country traversed by many creeks and rivers and has many fine resort lakes, camping and cottage areas, fishing streams, and outdoor cooking and picnic facilities. One of the most popular recreation centers is the Allegan state forest development, located back of the dammed area on the Kalamazoo river above Allegan, where a great area has been flooded. This is the home of one of Michigan's great deer herds.

Wayland, in the northeastern part of Allegan county, is known as the "cow town of Michigan" and is the home of the cowbell festival. It is famous also for its dahlia gardens, from which, in normal times, millions of roots are sent to all parts of the world.

If driving from Chicago to Allegan county you go thru Berrien and Van Buren counties. Berrien, named after John M. Berrien, attorney general in President Jackson's cabinet, is noted for its 60 miles of broad beach shoreline on Lake Michigan; its 40,000 acres of orchards; its lake towns of New Buffalo, Benton Harbor, and St. Joseph; its 2,000 acre Paw Paw lake; its Warren woods, three miles north of Three Oaks, a 320 acre tract of virgin hardwood, and Niles, the site of many bloody battles in early Michigan history, which was under the flags of France, England, Spain, and America.

Van Buren county, named for President Van Buren, specializes in the growing of peaches, apples, and grapes, and has a number of resort lakes, fishing streams, and miles of fine Lake Michigan beaches.

WHAT A CATCH!

This lovely miss displays a northern pike caught from a boat in Basswood lake near Ely, Minn.

Nature at Its Scenic Best at the Dells

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis. [Special].—In few other places in the middle west does nature offer such a lavish array of natural wonders as at Wisconsin's famed Dells. Here the vacationist will find mile after mile of amazing rock formations in rich reds, yellows, purples, and browns, worn into weird shapes by thousands of years of water, wind, and weather.

The grandeur of the Dells is best seen from the water, where launches carry you up and down the same blue waters of the Wisconsin river traversed many years ago by rollicking French voyageurs, and hardy courier de bois. Here Joliet, Marquette, Duluth, and other notable explorers came down the Fox river from Green Bay and made the short portage by land to the Wisconsin river thru what is now the nearby city of Portage. Among the scenic splendors in the Dells are the Narrows, Sugar bowl, Sunset cliff, Stand rock, Cold Water canyon, Chimney rock, Devil's Jug, Romance cliff, Steamboat rock, Witches' gulch, Squaw's Chamber, Hawk's Bill, Dell creek, Black Hawk's Head, Chapel gorge, Glen Eyrie, and Lone rock.

Numerous are the historical landmarks of interest, Indian mounds, the Winnebago Indian reservation, Old Agency house, Chief Yellow Thunder's pillar, Indian burial grounds, Wisconsin Heights battlefield monument, and the Indian ceremonials.

Nature has made this countryside ideal for pleasant hiking, and in any direction you will find beautiful scenery.

This little town, incidentally, is unique among rustic villages of America in that it is completely devoted to caring for needs of vacationists. Over 90 per cent of its 1,700 citizens directly serve visitors.

Two visitors admire the scenic beauty of near-by Wisconsin Dells.

Right Canning Methods Help Reduce Risks

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

You wouldn't try to remove the beaters of your electric mixer with the motor running and the beaters whirling. You wouldn't stand in a bathtub of water and play with an electric light socket. You wouldn't walk off the back porch without looking for the step.

But are you doing something just as stupid and as potentially dangerous as any of these things—canning fruits and vegetables without previous experience and without following directions?

So much is being said these days about safety in canning that some women may get the impression that canning food is dangerous. It isn't dangerous, provided you use common sense and follow a good set of directions.

The tremendous number of home canning accidents last year has been a cause for nation-wide concern and study as to methods of obviating such experiences this year. The National Safety Council reports that 80 per cent of home canning accidents in 1943 were with the oven method of processing. Certainly this is reason enough for abandoning this dangerous method which canning authorities condoned somewhat a few years ago.

Air inside the oven is not a good conductor of heat. Oven regulators, while accurate enough for cake baking, may not be accurate enough for canning. Foods which require temperatures above the boiling point [vegetables do] cannot be properly sterilized in the oven, for to obtain a high temperature, jars would have to be tightly sealed and a dangerous pressure raised within them. Crowding jars in the oven was a common contributor to accidents last year. So was the tendency to open the door, to "see how they're coming." Opening the door often caused cool air to strike the hot jars and resulted in explosion.

Many a range was blown to pieces and many a homemaker cut and burned by flying glass and hot food last year. Let's not have any accidents of this kind in 1944. Down with oven canning!

• • •

Fifteen per cent of last year's canning accidents were with the steam pressure cooker, and probably all of them could have been avoided. These were typical causes:

1. The petcock of the cooker was opened before pressure had returned to zero. Sudden release of pressure in a cooker will cause explosion.
2. Valves did not work properly because they were rusty or dirty. It is important to check all the parts of a pressure cooker and see that they are clean and in good working order.
3. Pressure gauges hadn't been checked and registered wrong pressure.
4. Not enough water was placed in the cooker.
5. Women did not open the cooker carefully with lid away from them, and were burned by escaping steam.

Following a manufacturer's direction for operating a pressure cooker [send to him for new 1944 instructions] and being certain that all parts of cooker are in good working order should eliminate hazards from pressure processing.

Other canning accidents were due to a number of different factors. One of them was failure to follow the manufacturer's directions in use of war time jar lids and caps. All caps have one common demand: That steam be vented during processing. Otherwise so much pressure will be built up within the jar that it cannot fail to explode. The flat metal lids with composition edge and screw band let out steam themselves. The person doing the canning applies the lid, screws on the band firmly, but not with extreme pressure, and does nothing further. The composition edge permits the escape of steam, and the jar is not sealed until it cools and creates a vacuum in the "headpiece," holding the lid firmly in place.

Jars with other types of lids must be vented manually, or an explosion may occur. Caps and lids used with separate rubber rings are tightened, then released very slightly, before processing. After processing, they are tightened firmly. This principle of venting steam must be understood if accidents are to be avoided.

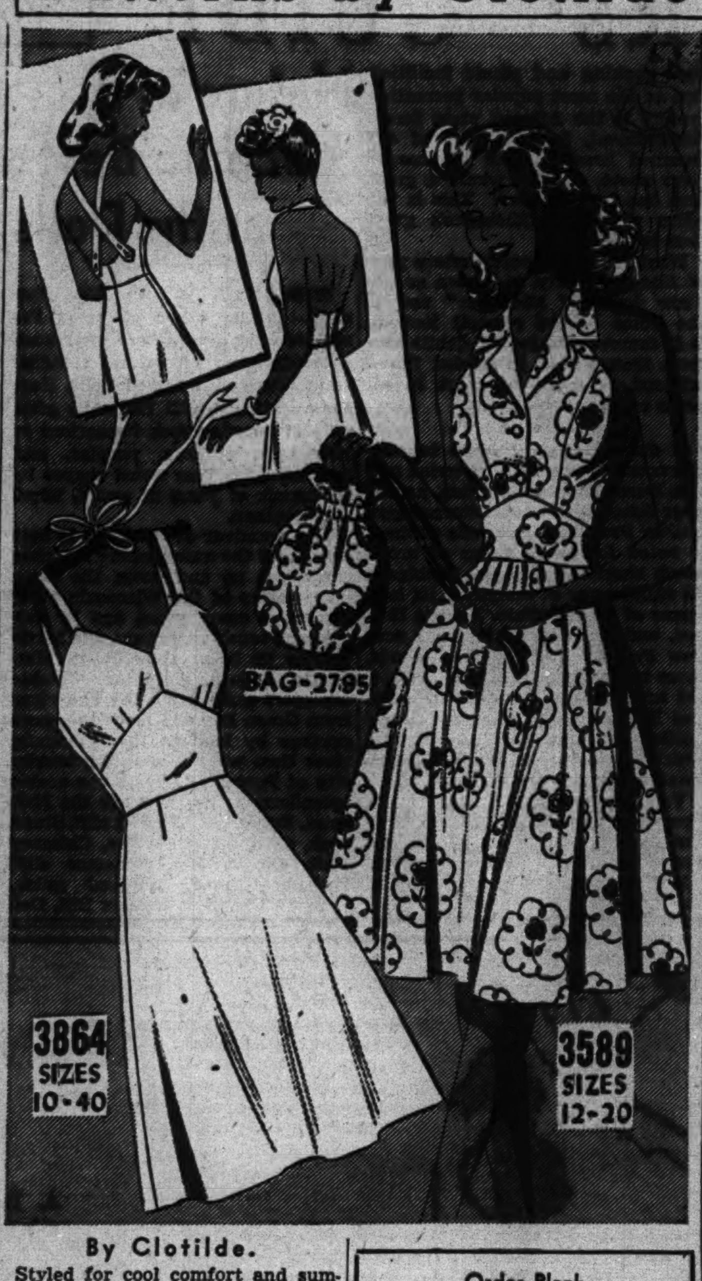
Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

Styled for cool comfort and summer smartness, these patterns are easy to follow and require a minimum of tubbable material.

One design creates a body-contour slip for wear under sheer summer things. It has a bra top and slender straps. The midriff is molded to the figure, while the skirt has desirable, moderate fulness.

The frock manages a clever illusion. Viewed from the front, it is a shirtwaist model with a graceful skirt. Seen from the back, its true nature is revealed! It's a comfort-loving sun-back model for "dog days." The bag pattern makes a carry-all to match the dress, a smart idea born this year.

Style No. 3864 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 35 or 39 inch material.

Style No. 3589 is designed for sizes 12 to 20. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 35 inch fabric.

Style No. 2795 is designed for one size requiring ⅝ yard 35 inch material, with ⅝ yard for lining.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The spring and summer edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions now is available over the counter at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents. Twelve cents buys the book if it is ordered with a pattern from the address in the coupon.

Lady of the House

Father's Day.

But where is father? How is he? What is he doing? When will father come home?

And there is that older father whose thoughts all twine about the younger one—who knows only too well how he is passing this special day and what its end may bring?

And that oldest father whose memory holds still other war time days, who now can only look on and grieve at the utter folly of much of human thinking and doing.

So, while we give special thought and prayer to all fathers today, Florence Denison reminds us that always beside the fathers there have been the mothers—

The Women.

'Twas ever so,
Wherever men were wont to go
There have gone their women.
O'er oceans wide, across the desert drear
Where men adventurous led, they followed, without fear.
The vanguard knew
Altho they followed, theirs to do,
Tho they were but women,
The daily tasks; lift high the torch of faith,
Will-o'-the-wisp, oft dim, a phantom and a wraith.
So thru the years,
Building a nation with toil and with tears,
Always there were the women.
Aiding, abetting and comforting, watching the star;
Lest their men lose its gleam in the darkness and wander afar.
And so today
Rises a new need, and into the fray
Steps an army of women.
Offering their talents, their all, in unstinted devotion.
In home or factory or camp; on the field, in the air, on the ocean.

Ware the Bug Blitz!

Almost on the day we plant our gardens begins the battle with the enemies that would destroy them but for our watchfulness—and that of our garden friends.

There is that velvety green cabbage worm, and the red and black harlequin bug that attack all the cabbage family. [Last year one woman got them with her vacuum cleaner.] The gaily striped squash bug and the cucumber beetle that attack all the squash, pumpkin, cucumber and melon family and spread disease. The dread cutworm, the stem borer, leaf hopper. That pestiferous tiny red spider. The bean weevil. The blister beetle that travels in "armies," and a whole host of aphids. Last, but not least, that old familiar of our childhood days, the potato bug.

The war is on, so let's encourage the birds and bees, the ants and lace winged flies, and all the other garden friends to join the battle on our side.

Young Son.

I wish some one would borrow this small demon
Who tries to help and just is in the way;
Who peers in every bag and begs
for raisins,
Who splits my ears with noise of
boist'rous play.
But while he's gone I cannot bear
the silence;
The panda waits and stares at me
in vain;
The loud, slow clock marks painful
passing minutes;
With all my heart I wish him back again!

FRANCES REIMER BURT.

Thermometers.

The best thermometers to me
Are little children's eyes;
When all my heart is warm within
They smile with sweet surprise.
In little meetings on the street
I smile and they smile, too—
Never a strange child's smile awakes
If you are cold and blue.
So when I meet, and try in vain
To win some new child's smile,
And still she solemn looks at me,
Nor lets my wish beguile,
Then know I that my soul is cold,
Its loving fires unfed;
For little children always know
The words we leave unsaid.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, June 13, 1896.

Dear Julia: I am wondering if you are going into New York from Newport for the marriage of young Cornelius Vanderbilt to Miss Grace Wilson. You were invited, I feel sure, since your father knew the Vanderbilts so well. I am sorry to read in the papers that the groom's family will not be present because they oppose the match so bitterly. She is eight years the older, which is, to be sure, a drawback. At 21, he is pretty young to marry a woman of 29. Shakespeare's counsel is good:

Let still the woman take
An elder than herself; so wears
she to him,
So sways she level in her husband's heart.

Gen. Lew Wallace.

It is interesting to read in the New York dispatches of the engagement of the groom's sister, Gertrude Vanderbilt, to Harry Payne Whitney. Both families will approve that marriage. She is young, only 19, gifted, handsome. He is enough older to be entirely suitable and has a fortune himself, so he can't be suspected of seeking hers.

June 18.

I was interrupted and almost forgot this letter which I started five days ago. Romance is secondary to politics these June days. Will has gone to St. Louis with many other Republicans of Chicago to attend the national convention. The Marquette club had a special train and I went to the station to see it pull out with many prominent citizens aboard. There was another special train which carried others, members of the Hamilton club and of no special organization. Samuel W. Allerton, a candidate for mayor last election, was on one of these trains. Charles S. Deneen, Arthur Dixon, J. Frank Aldrich, and E. G. Paulding were other pilgrims—all very fine men.

I received a letter from Will this morning. He says: "McKinley will almost certainly be nominated, as I have been telling you right along. The combination against him has collapsed. Names of other candidates will be presented—Reed, Allison, and Morton—but I think the Ohioan will be named by acclamation. Every one speaks very highly of him."

The money plank in the platform seems to satisfy Will, too. He feared the western senators who were strong for bimetallism might cause trouble, but the sound money declaration won. Will said Gen. Lew Wallace, who led the fight for this, was magnificent. It isn't often that a great novelist is a great leader of men, but Gen. Wallace's service in the Mexican and Civil wars have given him a commanding position in Republican councils. I like his latest book, "The Prince of India," as well as "Ben Hur." Have you read it?

Will writes that he saw Senator Teller of Colorado leaving the convention last evening with bowed head, for he fought for the silver coinage plank. His face twitched with emotion, says Will, as he declared he would leave the party on this issue. He told Will he thought he [Teller] was the oldest original Republican present. "I helped form the party," he said. "I supported it when it was in its infancy and when it was loaded with contumely. It grieves me to leave it, but I cannot remain and support the platform of today." He thinks that the Republican party will lose the west. Will is sure it won't.

Business men and educators of Chicago are glad of the stand the Republicans have taken. Marshall Field, Dr. T. W. Goodspeed, John Cudahy, F. D. Armour, Levy Mayer—all are quoted in our papers as rejoicing over the "sound money" platform. Now, the only question remaining is that of the Vice Presidential candidate. Ever lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, journalist of today, is the son of Cornelius and Grace Wilson Vanderbilt. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney is a sculptor of note. One of her works is a statue of Buffalo Bill in Cody, Wyo.

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

If a player bids one trick too many or too few for the particular nature of his holding, that can be put down to faulty judgment, which afflicts even the greatest experts from time to time. If, however, a player makes a bid, sound or otherwise, that robs his partner of a glorious opportunity, the error is inexcusable. Consider this case:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠KJ874
♦AJ1097
♣86

WEST
♠93
♥1087632
♣A543

EAST
♥A4
♦KQ6543
♣QJ109

SOUTH
♠AQ1062
♥KQJ9
♣K72

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	4 spades	5 diamonds
5 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened his singleton diamond. The ace won, trumps were drawn in two leads, and the heart was then led toward the closed hand. East put up the ace and shifted to the queen of clubs, and down went the contract!

North practically foamed at the mouth as he watched the opponents enter a neat 100 points above the line in their own column. "Don't you think," he said to South with elaborate politeness, "that you might have let that five diamond bid come around to me? Or were you afraid that if I couldn't double I might develop some sort of paralysis, and just do nothing?"

Perhaps North overdid himself in bitterness, but the fact remains that he had "called the turn" on his partner. South's five spade bid, quite aside from the question of whether or not he could legitimately expect to make five spades, was little short of criminal. North had announced the ability to carry a one spade opening to game in that suit; was it conceivable, then, that he would be embarrassed by having to bid five spades, if he couldn't do anything to five diamonds? Well, hardly! Thus, South's only correct action was a forcing pass.

Watch out for the "leathering" action of summer's sun! You'll probably find that your skin is dry and tends to wrinkle from the parching effects of hot weather and heat. So why not try the famous Angelus Dry Skin Creme from the House of LOUIS PHILIPPE? It has a special homogenized emollient which is so beneficial in its gently lubricating action . . . supplying your complexion with oils especially needed in summer. Cost is but 49c a jar . . . a fragrant, fluffy cream that cleanses AND lubricates! Ask your Cosmetic Counter for this wonderful Angelus BUY-LINE from the House of LOUIS PHILIPPE!

Take a good, round vow NOW that you'll not let a SINGLE lovely, summer day be spoiled by enforced "standing by"! Wear your lightest, sheerest frocks, your sleekest swim togs, your most figure-flattering evening gowns WITHOUT fear of telltale bulges, or embarrassing edges to reveal secrets you want to keep. Just try the TAMPAX method of sanitary protection. TAMPAX is made of highly absorbent cotton compressed in convenient applicators . . . and it is worn internally! So it eliminates all worry about pins, belts, pads and chafing . . . everything is modern, dainty and discreet. An average month's supply costs 29c at Drug Stores and Notion Counters . . . try TAMPAX!

Summer Corset Comfort!
Summer fashions all seem to be cut for young, carefree figures . . . with no room for the persistent bulges or protuberances that mature figures have! But there's a way you can overcome these handicaps,—redistribute excess flesh into fashionable lines, uplift a sagging stomach and control a "bumptious" back! In real COMFORT too,—by wearing one of the smartly designed P. N. PRACTICAL FRONT CORSETS! The famous inner-vest works wonders, easing up surplus flesh and gently supporting the stomach. Ask your favorite store for a P. N., or write Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Ave., New York 16, N. Y. as to where you can try one on.

Gift to a Lady . . .
In case you're looking for THE appropriate mid-summer gift for a lady,—here it is! YARDLEY'S 'Bond Street' Toilet Water is light as a breeze laden with spring flowers . . . answers feminine craving for a cooling, refreshing fragrance . . . beckons to those you meet with a lingering, well-remembered charm! Cost is $1.50 and $2.50 at finer shops everywhere! You'll love the gay bright box of crimson, blue, and gold, too! I predict it will head your list of gift-favorites . . . and that you'll want its "around-the-clock" fragrance for yourself, too!

Want to "loop the loop" with relief from metatarsal foot discomfort this summer? Then let those flesh-colored LuPADS fit pillowing cushions under your metatarsal arches . . . held in place by a tiny, silky strap that is invisible even in lightest footwear. LuPADS, by Dr. William M. Scholl, the famous foot authority, ease strain where it's needed most—at the BALLS of your feet. You'll be amazed at the relief they bring from pains, callouses, cramps or burning sensations in this area of the foot, acting as shock absorbers to your feet! Ask for Dr. Scholl's LuPADS at Drug, Shoe or Department Stores, or send $1 to DR. SCHOLL, 213 W. Schiller St., Chicago, Ill., giving your shoe size!

NEVER TOO MUCH!
I've just come back from a great Flying Fortress base . . . and let me tell you it makes you stop and THINK . . . think of the part OUR dollars are playing in shoving those B-17s off the line and into the hands of our eager fighting boys! So come on, ladies . . . let's all pitch into the 5th WAR LOAN DRIVE . . . every dollar you put into bonds is just that much more equipment for our armed forces . . . brings the day when this dreadful war will end that much nearer! Once again, we're in full swing for the greatest BUY-LINE any American can make . . . so get behind the 5th WAR LOAN DRIVE and thank the makers of SANI-FLUSH and MEL'O for this reminder that NOW is the time to invest in those WAR BONDS!

Mighty Like a Rose
"Mighty Like A Rose" sings itself when you look at a baby's rose-petal skin! But remember, it needs protective lubrication to stay "in the pink"! Use ALBOLENE Baby Oil, after every diaper change, after every bath. This safe, mild antiseptic and sweet-scented baby oil helps prevent diaper rash and irritation! Rub it gently into baby's skin folds and creases to soothe, cleanse, and help prevent chafing and aid in keeping that rose-petal skin smooth and comfortable! A big 6-oz. bottle of ALBOLENE Baby Oil is moderately priced at Drug Stores.

Summer Dance Dresses Crisp and Romantic

By Rea Seeger.

Romantic, floor sweeping dance dresses exist again. They are for young sylphlike creatures to wear dancing out under summer moonlight. These charmers have wide, swirling skirts, slender waistlines, heart necklines. Sleeves are short and demure bodices with off-the-shoulder yokes, deep vee, or sweet-and puffed, while velvet sashes, black velvet bows, and such extra frills as plaits, ruchings, lace edgings and insertions add the essence of glamor. And nearly all of the dresses are of cotton.

Cotton net with embroidered dots, crisp, printed or embroidered cotton pique, picturesque cotton eyelet embroidery, and all the filmy cotton sheers, marquisettes, organdies, nets, and meshed weaves provide a versatile collection. Color contrast is introduced with sash belts, embroidered motifs, or lace.

The most flattering dance dresses still are of flesh colored sheer trimmed with ink black lace; next are the pale blues and other pastels combined with lace dyed to match exactly the tint of the sheer material. Angelic creations in all-white are featured in lovely models of nunlike simplicity or in devastatingly frou frou dresses with yards of lace, double ruching or fluting. The width of a wide skirt is subtly enhanced with yards and yards of the ruching and ruffles, the minute bodice and the scraps of sleeves likewise frosted with the same ruffling as the skirts.

Crisp cotton pique dance dresses are typically summer, whether they are worn for country club dancing parties or made sleekly slim and sophisticated for wiltingly hot nights in town. Many double for dinner dress as well. Skirts of the dinner dress costumes are circular and flared around the hemline altho they fit smoothly over a narrow hipline. Sleeves are elbow length, necklines round or vee shaped, the sole decorative contrasts being a golden belt, insets of embroidery Anglaise, insets of point Venise lace, or the more fanciful Irish lace bandings. Some of the all-white piques are made with shallow scalloped edge embroidery in vivid colors, like jade or crimson with narrow belts to match in color. Others have effective applique designs and insets of open patterned cotton lace around the hipline to repeat the same sort of applique motifs in sleeve or neckline.

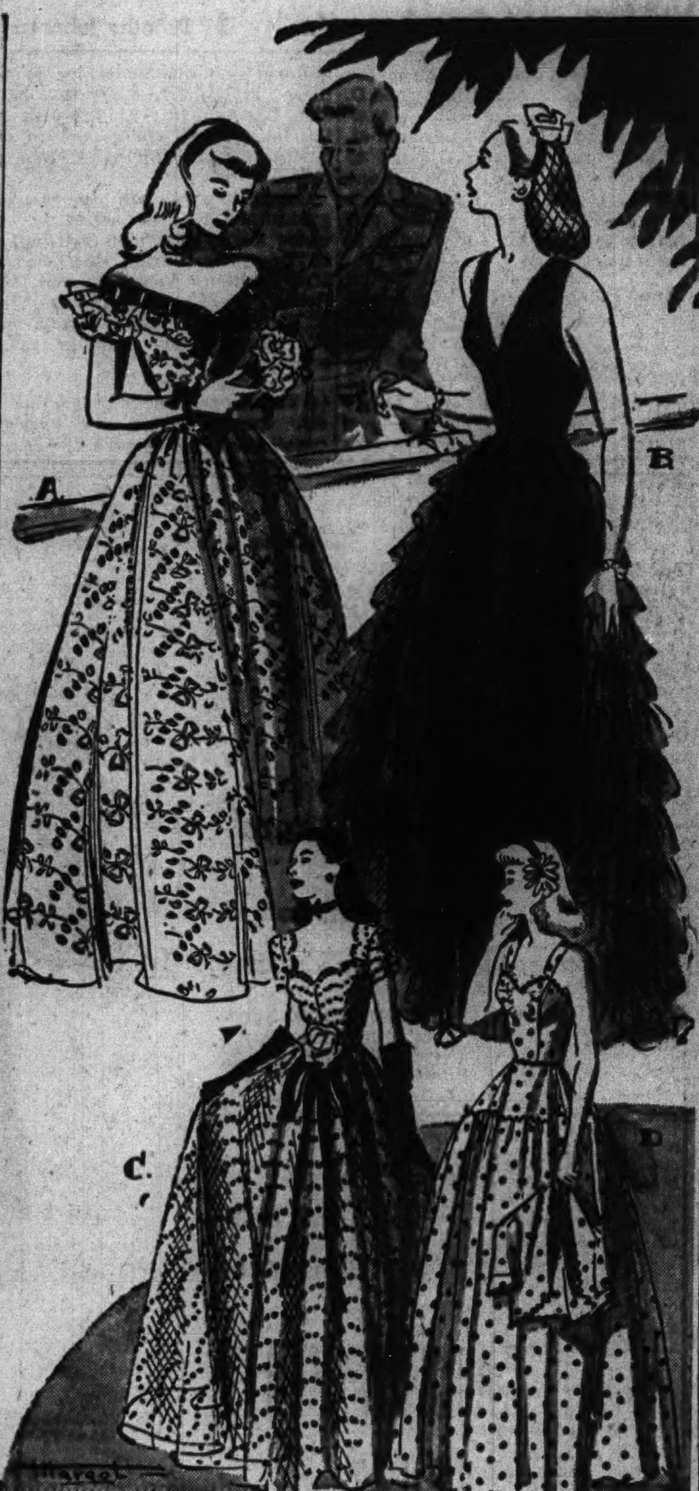
Young looking pique dance dresses combine color with the rustic charm of rick rack braid, dotted pique with rick rack braid the same color as the dots. Absurdly brief bolero jackets of the same material complete the costume. A few dotted Swiss models are made in the same gay young manner; all are far more practical than they look, for such cottons are tubbable, being color fast and pre-shrunk, therefore they are summer long charmers.

Femme fatale creations are much in evidence. See the night black nets and organdies, and, later in the season, the smooth black linens and eyelet embroidered models also in black or deep navy. But the big favorites of the hour are the long frankly feminine beruffled dream or waltz gowns classified by those who know as "something for the boys."

Sketched are four new engagingly feminine, summer dance dresses, all part of an intriguing collection ready for summer dancing parties. They are to be found in a Chicago store. For further information call Superior 0200.



A . . . Eyelet embroidered white cotton fashions demure dance dress. Decolletage neckline is trimmed with black velvet ribbon laced thru beading. • B . . . Sophisticated black net creation is worn over slim underslip. Dress skirt consists of rows of ruffles, and bodice features deep vee neckline in front and back. • C . . . Creamy white cotton net worn over swishy white taffeta slip has gentian blue sash to contrast with scarlet embroidered dots of the net. • D . . . Blue embroidered dots and rickrack braid against cool white pique add interest to young bolero dance dress.

Choose Glass to Blend with Table Setting

By Edith Weigle.

It's not difficult to choose an attractive china pattern among the many American-made wares displayed in Chicago stores, but it's often puzzling to find just the right glassware to harmonize.

Therefore it is nice to know that one company is producing several designs that might be called classics because they can be used with almost every type of china. And as they are open stock you can add as many pieces as you wish, at any time.

The pattern called "holly" is one of these. The shapes of the goblets and footed tumblers are rounded and extremely simple, the only decoration being a wreath of holly leaves near the tops. Eight inch salad or dessert plates are under two dollars each, and the stemware is $1.25.

Besides these items there are also the following: a fancy cake plate, mayonnaise bowl and ladle, nut and sweetmeat dish, sugar and cream pitcher, water pitcher, finger bowls, and candlesticks.

• • •

Similar in feeling, but with goblets that taper down to a V is a glassware pattern by the same American firm, called "laurel." Seven inch plates are $1.65 each, eight inch plates, $1.95, and the various footed glasses are $1.25 each.

Either of these two patterns can be used with china of modern design, or of traditional vein; with Lennox, or with Spode or Wedgwood. Or with unpretentious earthenware.

If you have a luncheon or dinner service that is a reproduction of a colonial style you'll be interested in a good looking set of glassware called Federal American that has little stars in its motif. Fluted sides add to its distinction, yet the various pieces are not at all expensive.

There is not much milk glass on the market, but by scouting around you'll usually find a little and its snowy whiteness and heavy quality make it ideal for use with very simple luncheon pottery or earthenware. The goblets [when in stock!] are priced at around fifty cents each, and plates at seventy.

Another excellent teammate for informal china is Mexican glassware. Shipments are fewer than before the war so the stores don't have the large quantities of this artistic blue and green, handmade glass they formerly displayed, but it's still possible to get a dozen water glasses, or chubby, round cocktail glasses, or a few plates. And the prices are always low.

A final suggestion is an open stock American design that copies antique ware and that is called Colony. It's rather massive in weight and its only decoration is a swirl effect in the cutting. The line contains a great number of items, from the regular stemware to fruit bowls, fancy dishes, salts and peppers, cruets, ash trays, etc. It should be used with pottery or earthenware having a colonial flower or scenic design.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Somehow it's interesting to us to survey the history of one of the best deodorants that ever has come to market. What fascinates us is that this preparation came to the grooming-aid market more than 40 years ago, and has flourished, in a stable, quiet way, ever since, unaided by fanfare, fancy package or the flossy "promotions" that characterize so much cosmetic merchandising.

The women who used this just told other women about it—and that was that. All these decades the liquid, in a bottle that looks a little quaint to modern eyes, has sold and sold to a steady stream of the fastidious women who calmly buy what they like and what serves them well, and who are not to be distracted by any sound and fury over what is merely "new."

This is probably the oldest deodorant on the market; its faithful users will tell you it's the best too—and there is certainly no doubt but that it is wonderfully efficient, not only for the woman who perspires normally but for the unfortunate woman [she is usually heavy] who perspires excessively. And there is no doubt, either, but that in method of use as well as efficiency it is unique.

When you use this you must discard many of your conventional ideas on how a deodorant is applied and how often it is used. This product is DIFFERENT in every sense. It's an astringent, and must be used sparingly. And the area must not be bathed before application; this you do NOT use after your bath.

You use it, for the first week, at least, at night [and take your bath the following morning], and the way you use it is different, too. You place the mouth of the bottle to the very center of the armpit, holding it securely to prevent the slightest trickle, and then maneuver your arm and shoulder in such a way that the liquid touches the skin not more than two or three times. In other words, you tip the bottle a couple of times without displacing its mouth. The directions that accompany the product are explicit and it's easy as pie—what we want to emphasize here is that you must keep in mind that this product, being different in character from other deodorants, is used differently, too.

For the first week this is used nightly; after that you taper off, depending on how often your judgment [and the flow of moisture] reveals you need it. This varies, of course, in individuals. Very few women have to use it daily. So far as we have been able to discover, it's as effective as any distressed woman could wish. And it is a particular joy to the women who perspire profusely; they can, with a little experimenting, synchronize its use with their own needs and absolutely lick their problem.

This product [which won't stain or injure fabric either when used according to directions] is even different as to price. The original price is higher than most, but the actual COST is not. A bottle lasts the average woman about a year.

This is not, as we have said, something new under the sun; but it is indeed something different, something good, and something fastidious women need all the year 'round, but especially in summer.

Delta Tau Sorority Plans 1 Day Meet Here Next Friday

Highlight of the Delta Tau sorority's social calendar for the year will be its national conference Friday evening at the Drake hotel. The opening dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock, will be followed by the reading of officer and committee reports, and there will be an election and installation of new officers.

Mrs. Irma Elliott, grand president, will preside at the meeting, which is being curtailed because of war exigencies from the two or three day assembly of former years, to a one day gathering. Officers assisting Mrs. Elliott include Miss Jean Moore, vice president; Mrs. Dorothy P. Storms, secretary; Miss Elynore Huebner, treasurer, and Mrs. Patricia O'Conner, chairman of new chapters' committee.

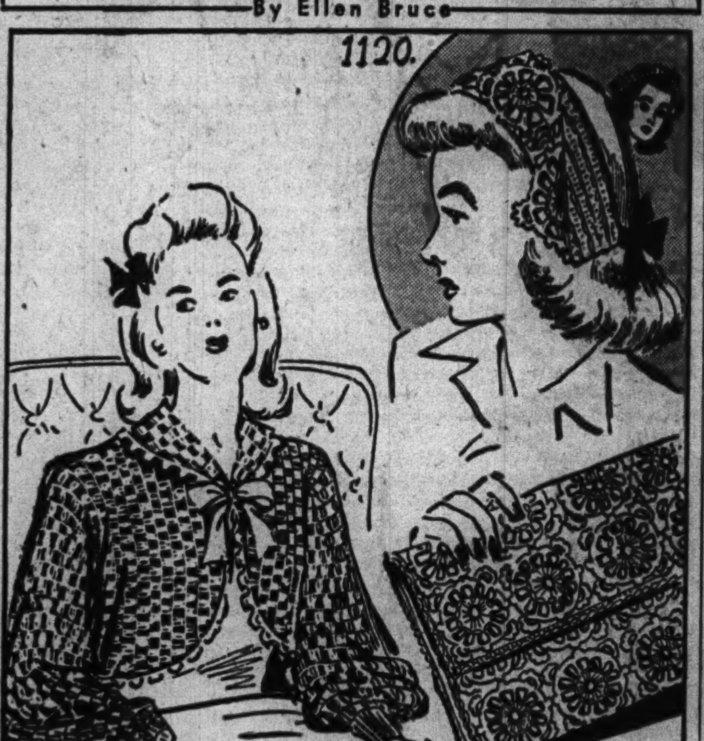
Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce



Receiving callers after an illness is sheer delight when one is attired in an airy little shoulderette crocheted in the attractive cluster stitch. Created of two ply saxony, these jackets are not only dressy, but offer adequate warmth.

The crocheted hat and bag duet is created of gimp. The tiny Dutch bonnet is trimmed with medallions which match the purse. The entire set may be crocheted in little time.

For instructions in crocheting the shoulderette, No. 238, and the hat and bag set, No. 1120, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, FOR EACH PATTERN, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York City.

The Glen Ellyn Philatelic club is sponsoring a movement for a commemorative postage stamp to mark the 80th anniversary of the founding of the railway mail service. Altho mail had been sorted some two years before on the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad mail cars, it was not until 1864 that the postal authorities were willing to try out the service which had been conceived by George B. Armstrong, long assistant postmaster at Chicago.

The first trial was made on Aug. 28, 1864, on the Chicago and Clinton division of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, the same line, by the way, which runs thru Glen Ellyn. The club, in its request for a special stamp, has interested the Railway Mail association and its women's auxiliary, the Railway Historical society, the North Western railway, and other groups.

Summer Art School Opens This Month

By Eleanor Jewett.

June, too often now, means not only that school is out but that the students are preparing for an attack upon summer school and drawing a deeper breath in expectation of the coming fall term. One of the pleasantests summer schools to be offered in the Chicago region is the Art institute summer school of painting at Saugatuck, Mich.

Francis Chapin, who succeeded the late Frederick Fursman as director of the Saugatuck school, announces he is preparing interesting plans for the summer session, which will have its headquarters at the famous Ox Bow Inn, on a spur of the Kalamazoo river. Max Kahn will be in charge of the lithography classes, starting June 26, and will be assisted by his wife, Eleanor Coen. Robert von Neumann and Malcolm Hackett will be among the visiting instructors, with Carlos Lopez to join the staff later. George Buehr and Dan Lutz will be among the painting instructors.

Word comes that one of the critical pronouncements upon the current water color exhibition at the Art institute is that it is "chi-chi." The description is apt. One does get the feeling of an Arts club show and a Museum of Modern art effect in walking thru the galleries. Luckily, because the galleries are hot on a summer day, there is no need to meditate on a chi-chi show; the most that is demanded is a rapid run-thru which will be rewarded as there are many light and amusing pictures to be seen, as well as a handful of fine paintings such as John Whorf's "The Gale."

The Art institute has an interesting exhibit, "Embroidery and Its Uses," in several galleries of the Allerton wing. Examples of rare European and American needlework may be found in Galleries A-2, 3, and 4. In the Hutchinson wing, in gallery H-5, examples from the near and far east are shown. The embroideries date from the earliest times down to the present day. China, Greece, India, Persia, and Turkey are represented.

The annual exhibition of work by students of the Art institute is now an event of the fall, but the traveling fellowships won by the students are announced in June. The James Nelson Raymond traveling fellowship of $2,000 was awarded to Marian Witt of Wilmette. Miss Witt has been a student at the Art institute for five years and specialized in textile design. She plans to travel in Latin America.

Lois Koenig of Chicago was given the Anna Louise Raymond traveling fellowship of $1,500. She plans to study and travel in Mexico or South America.

The John Quincy Adams traveling fellowship of $1,000 was awarded to Irvin Burkee of Kenosha, Wis. He intends to go to Latin America, probably leaving next December.

The third Chicago International Salon of Photography at the Chicago Historical society, Clark st. at North av., is a delightful show, beautifully hung. There are many effective prints. "Saturday Bath" is an unusual study of a dog, carved in soap suds. The cocker puppies, the Persian cat and the Egyptian cat, the Siamese cats, the three horses—all these animal arrangements have more than ordinary interest. There are several photographs of Negroes, one, a little colored girl in a huge white bed, practically lost in snowy sheets, is touching, and a second, "Sweet Gardenia," reminds one of Rochester feeling particularly jolly.

Chicago on a rainy day makes another good picture and traffic thru fog another. Several winter photographs are gorgeous. A lovely "Snow Blossoms" shows snow, as thick and warm as cotton clusters, along brown branches; "Rabbit Tracks" is a field of snow with the delicate tracks making a tracery on the unbroken surface; deep snow in the city with a car buried in a snow bank brings back memories of some of Chicago's heavy snowfalls; a print of thick frozen ice on piles reminds one of what below zero weather and the lake can do to Chicago's north shore.

There is a charming color picture of morning glories and a sensitive study of an eye. A few prints touch upon the war, one of these, a splendid photograph of two service men looking into a shop window, was awarded first prize. There are some excellent type portraits and a few personal portraits. Several studies of glass are intriguing. A Victorian room with a lady in a chair, the whole arrangement alive with dignity, calm, and that air of self-possession worn by a house which knows exquisite care, is another of the outstanding photographs.

The exhibition will run into September; it is one of the summer shows not to be missed.

A. H. E. A. to Open Session Here Tuesday

Prospects for raising family standards, psychologically and materially, both now and in the post-war world, will be given careful scrutiny here this week by some 1,000 members of the American Home Economics association. The organization, which last met here three years ago, will open its 36th annual assembly Tuesday in the Stevens hotel. Sessions will continue thru Friday.

Miss Edith Abbott.

Government experts, university authorities, business men, and labor leaders all will be brought to the platform for discussion and consultation on subjects ranging from the disputed rate in present living costs to improved housing and adequacy of medical care after the war.

The opening general session, called for 2 o'clock Tuesday in the Grand ballroom of the hotel, is planned jointly with the National Conference on Family Relations and the National Council of Parent Education, and will be open to high school and college students. Speakers will be Josephine Schain of New York, who was the only woman among this country's representatives at the international conference on food and agriculture last summer at Hot Springs, Va., and Coleman Roberts Griffith of the University of Illinois.

Miss Schain will talk on "The Family and the Community in a New World Order," and Dr. Griffith will discuss, "The Psychological Adjustments of Returned Service Men and Their Families."

General sessions on the following day are to be devoted to post-war levels of living, and a few of several distinguished speakers participating will be Miss Edith Abbott, internationally known social welfare worker and dean emeritus of the University of Chicago school of social service administration; Philip M. Klutznick, commissioner of the federal housing authority and Elin L. Anderson, who has helped in the setting up of group help organizations in rural Nebraska under a Farm Foundation grant and is now at work in Ohio.

The cost of living index of the bureau of labor statistics shows a rise of 23.4 per cent from January, 1941, to December, 1943. Estimates of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organization set the increase at 43.5 per cent and insist that their figure is more nearly accurate. These conflicting estimates will be discussed by Faith Williams, economist with the department of labor, and Joseph More, Wisconsin labor leader, at a general session Thursday.

Spokesmen for the OPA and WPB will be heard on Friday's program in a discussion of the present outlook for price control and civilian goods production. A session on education also is scheduled for Friday.

• • •

Numerous study groups, research round tables, and forums will be held, auxiliary to the general session programs. Among well known speakers addressing group meetings on the opening day will be Mrs. Gladys Hoagland Groves of the University of North Carolina, who has written, in collaboration with her husband, on child training; Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall, director of the National Association for Family Living, and Miss Mary E. Murphy, director of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund. The roster of presiding chairmen and speakers lists 168 names.

President of the association is Miss Jessie W. Harris of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn.

The Chicago committee on local management for the meeting is headed by Miss Karen Fladoes. Assisting members serving in advisory capacity or assigned to special services are: Miss Rosalie Buchanan, Miss Mary Louise Chase, Miss Helen Kyrk, and Mrs. Beth Bailey McLean, advisory; Miss Esther Latzke, exhibits; Miss Marye Dahnke and Mrs. Robert Friend, hospitality; Mrs. Lawrence G. Andrews, hotel arrangements; Dr. Marietta Eichelberger, information; Mrs. William E. Drips, publicity; Miss Mary E. Freeman and Miss Teresa O'Sullivan, registration; Miss Nellie Fredeen and Miss Helen McGann, special meals; Miss Florence Ferguson and Miss Marie Tierney, student clubs, and Miss Laura Weilepp, supplies and equipment.

Hospital Auxiliary to Hold Annual Benefit

To swell the funds for a new addition to the Illinois Masonic hospital building, the women's auxiliary of the hospital will sponsor its annual spring card party at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Margaret Zuelsdorf, chairman for the event, will be assisted in arrangements by the president, Mrs. Herman C. Sagehorn, and the treasurer, Mrs. Charles W. Kaiser.

Charlotte E. Becker Bride of Paul Langsam

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Becker of Douglas blvd. have announced the marriage on May 7 of their sister, Charlotte E., to Paul Langsam. The wedding took place in Los Angeles, Cal., where Mr. and Mrs. Langsam will be at home.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Two Chicago women are classed as "old salts" at the marine corps air station at Cherry Point, N. C. Sgt. Mae H. Swanson and Tech. Sgt. Sylvia Lempera are members of the original contingent of women reservists at the center, where they marked a year of duty last month with an "old salts" party.

Miss Swanson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Swanson, 5132 N. Bernard st. Her marine job is that of supervising mail service for women marines at the station. She attended Roosevelt High school and a business college. Before enlisting, she was employed by a Chicago law firm.

Miss Lempera, the daughter of Mrs. Anna Lempera, 5120 S. California av., attended high school in Morocco, Ind., and also is a business college graduate. Her civilian job was as a teller for a savings and loan association. At Cherry Point, she is assigned to the station adjutant's office.

Seven other Chicago women recently enlisted in the marine corps reserve. They will receive basic training at Camp Lejeune, N. C., after which they will be assigned to active duty somewhere in the United States.

Dorothy G. Nowak, 3531 Milwaukee av.; Lillian Dennison, 3203 N. Elston av.; Lillian K. Cartwright, 2010 W. Montrose av.; Rosella M. Schwamn, 5542 S. Throop st.; Alvera E. Maraldo, 805 S. Bishop st.; Celeste Murphy, 8128 S. Wolcott av., and Grace R. Shepardson, 610 Englewood av., are the young women who have answered the call: "Be a marine; free a marine to fight."

When it was moving day recently in Algiers for a detachment of WACs, one of those who made the transfer was Tech. Sgt. Florence D. Bronkalla of Chicago who, as a civilian, lived at 1100 N. La Salle st.

Their former quarters found to be no longer suitable, the WACs one evening packed their barracks bags, loaded them on army trucks, and rode atop them for a few miles to their new "home."

The Chicago units of the American Women's Voluntary services and Bundles for America will jointly sponsor, with the Chicago District Golf association, the Professional Golfers' Association of America, and the Cook County council of the American Legion, the 1944 national golf championships to be played at the Edgewater Golf club June 28 thru July 2. Proceeds of the tournament will go toward rehabilitation of wounded veterans of this war.

Committees of both women's organizations will be active in advance ticket sales and distribution of programs during the events. Mrs. Lawrence Nelson Jr. and Mrs. Robert A. Cavenaugh head the A. W. V. S. committee; Mrs. Frank W. Yarling is the Bundles' chairman.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Haym Salomon Groups Plan Joint Installation
